THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the Foreign Office. Another Council was held on Monday, and another yesterday. It was rumoured on Thursday that Earl Russell had gone to Osborne to tender his resignation as Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in consequence of a difference of opinion between him and the majority of the Cabinet on the subject of the Danish and German quarrel. It was also rumoured that the Queen had sent for the Earl of Derby in anticipation of the resignation of the entire Cabinet. The Morning Post of yesterday, however, asserts that there is no foundation for these rumours, which seem, it says, to be based upon the two very simple facts, that Lord Russell had returned from Osborne, and that Lord Derby had gone there on a visit to the Queen. "There is," it adds, "no crisis, and the Cabinet is acting in perfect harmony."

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—Lord Palmerston will give a full-dress dinner to his supporters in the House of Commons on Wednesday next, at Cambridge House; on the same day Earl Granville will give a full-dress dinner to the Peers in the Ministerial interest, at his house in Bruton Street; the Earl of Derby will give a full dress dinner to the Opposition Peers, at the family mansion in St. James's Square; and the Right Hon. B. Disraeli will give a Parliamentary dinner to the members of the Opposition in the House of Commons, at his house at Grosvenor Gate. There is a vacancy for Durham, caused by the death of Sir W. Atherton. Mr. Edward James, Q.C., of the northern circuit, and the Hon. Mr. Lambton, cousin of the Earl of Durham, have been mentioned as likely to become candidates for the vacant seat, but the general opinion in the city is in favour of Mr. John Henderson, the extensive carpet manufacturer, who for many years has taken an active part in Liberal politics. There are five candidates in the field for the seat at Brighton about to be vacated by Mr. Coningham, Mr. Dumas, Mr. Otway, Mr. Julian Goldsmid, Professor Fawcett, and Mr. Barker, all in the Liberal interest. Mr. Moor, who had come forward in the Conservative interest, has withdrawn from the contest. Sir J. Buller East, Bart., has announced his intention of resigning his seat for Winchester, and Mr. T W. Fleming has announced himself a candidate in the Conservative interest. A vacancy is about to occur at Rye, by the resignation of Mr. Mackinnon, who will, it is said, be raised to the peerage; his son, Captain Mackinnon, and Mr. W. M. M'Donald, of Rossie, are mentioned as candidates for the vacant seat, the former in the Liberal, the latter in the Conservative interest.

THE BISHOPRIC OF ELY.—Lord Palmerston has conferred the vacant bishopric of Ely on the Rev. Edward Harold Browne, B.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge, Canon of Exeter, and Principal of the Theological College at Exeter.

THE CHURCH.—Lord Palmerston has appointed the Rev. Frederick Charles Cook, M.A., Prebendary of St. Paul's and Preacher of Lincoln's Inn, to the Canonry of Exeter, vacant by the elevation of the Rev. Harold Browne, to the Bishopric of Ely; and the Rev. Stair Douglas to the Canonry of Chichester, vacant by the death of the Rev. Sir George Shiffner. The Bishop of St. David's has appointed the Rev. George Clark, M.A., Rector of Tenby, to the Archdeaconry of St. David's, vacant by the death of Archdeacon Bevan.

MEETING OF THE BISHOPS.—The Archbishop of Canterbury has invited the whole of the bishops, together with as many of the colonial bishops as are in England, to meet him at Lambeth Palace on Wednesday next, for the purpose of considering the subject of the Burial Service, together with other matters which are likely to occupy the attention of Parliament and Convocation in the forthcoming session.

UNIVERSITY APPOINTMENT.—The Queen has granted to the Rev. Walter Waddington Shirley, M.A., son of the late Bishop of Sodor and Man, the office of Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History in the University of Oxford, in the room of Dean Stanley, resigned.

THE ARMY.—The colonelcy of the 98th Foot, vacant by the death of General Wynyard, has been conferred on Major-General Sir Robert Percy Douglas, Bart., commanding the forces at the Cape of Good Hope, and the Colonelcy of the 2d West India Regiment, vacant by the death of General Trydell, has been conferred on Major-General Robert Law,

THE NAVY.—Dr. Bryson has been appointed medical director general of the Navy, in the room of Sir John Liddell, retired.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The debate on the Address in the Corps Législatif was continued on Friday. M. Granier de Cassagnac, in reply to M. Jules Simon, said he considered the Press as a dangerous power, and as an institution to which no strong Government should grant liberty, but only a toleration, regulated by the Administration. "Cowardly Governments," he said, "have alone been able to believe in the liberty of the Press, and this liberty has overthrown them." M. de Cassagnac declared the press law of February, 1852, to be a just, good, and necessary one, and censured the Government for the toleration which it grants to the journals with regard to the reports of the proceedings of the Corps Législatif. He further said it was necessary to maintain and execute the law as it now stood. M. Emile Ollivier stated that he and many of his friends were in favour of the responsibility of the chief of the State. (This declaration caused great sensation in the Chamber.) In continuation M. Ollivier demonstrated that the Press was not the cause of the fall of Governments, and was only fatal when not free. The amendment of the Left was then withdrawn. The amendment brought forward by M. Thiers and others on the same subject was then read, and was explained by M. Martel. M. Rouher declared that at present no modification of the Press law was possible, and said that "the Emperor may at some future time be enabled to modify the law of 1852." The amendment was rejected by a large majority. In the sitting of Saturday a debate took place on the paragraph of the Address relative to Algeria. M. Picard explained the amendment of the Left, proposing to assimilate Algeria to France, and to grant liberal institutions to that country, with the right of electing deputies. General Allart opposed the amendment, and M. Jules Favre made a speech in reply. The amendment was finally lost by 222 against 18 votes. In the sitting of Monday, Paragraph 5 was adopted, after the rejection by 225 to 16 of the amendment of the Opposition, requiring education to be gratuitous and obligatory. Paragraph 6, relating to distant expeditions, was next discussed. Three amendments were brought forward referring to Mexico, all demanding the termination of the expedition and the recall of the troops. M. Guerault spoke upon the amendment of the Left, demanding that the troops should be immediately recalled. M. de Beauverger replied. In the sitting of Tuesday, M. Thiers warmly censured the expedition to Mexico in its present and past condition, as well as with regard to its future consequences. He concluded by demanding that France should treat with Juarez, so as to preserve her honour and the interests formerly guaranteed, else the expedition would only result in an indefinite and ruinous occupation. M. Chaix d'Estange defended the expedition as being just, affirmed that it was impossible to treat with Juarez, and expressed a hope that tranquillity would soon be re-established in Mexico; "then," the speaker said, "our troops will be able to return." M. Berryer, in reply, said that France had been misled. He maintained that the Government was unpopular in Mexico, and ought to retire. The Left then withdrew its amendment. In the sitting of Wednesday, M. Thiers explained the amendment of the Opposition on paragraph 6, referring to the Mexican expedition, and supported the necessity of negotiating with Juarez when vanquished. M. Rouher, in reply, declared that France would neither treat with Juarez nor with Almonte—the one being conquered, and an enemy, the other devoid of any official position—but only with a ruler elected by universal suffrage. After a speech from M. de la Tour, M. Jules Favre dwelt upon the strange and difficult position in which the Archduke Maximilian would be placed, and compared the Mexican campaign to the campaign in Spain under the First Empire. M. Rouher warmly defended the expedition. He said that the presence of France in the Gulf of Mexico is the safeguard for the prosperity of her maritime commerce, which would be lost if she withdrew. The Government desired to evacuate Mexico as soon as possible, but not until universal suffrage should have spoken. The establishment of a monarchy in Mexico was possible, and the result would be the prosperity of the country. The amendment was rejected by 201 to 47, and the paragraph was adopted. The debate upon Poland commenced on Thursday, when M. David supported the amendment advocating the recognition of the Poles as belligerents. After speeches from MM. Kolb-Bernard and Corneille, the amendment was rejected. M. Pelletan explained the amendment of the Left, proposing a rupture of diplomatic relations with Russia. The Duc de Morny defended Russia against the accusations of M. Pelletan, and declared that Russia was more democratic than the whole of Europe. He explained why the committee desired to reconcile its sympathies for Poland with its respect for Russia, and said that no other solution was possible, for it was necessary, even in the interest of the Poles, not to encourage the insurrection. M. Guerolt demanded that Poland should not be exterminated under Napoleon III., after having been partitioned under Louis XV. On the motion of M. Jules Favre, the debate was adjourned. The following is a summary of the Budget for 1865 which has been laid before the Corps Législatif :—

The expenditure for the ordinary Budget for 1865 is estimated at 1,797,250,000f, or 21,000,000f. in excess of the amount for 1864, and the receipts at 1,799,750,000f., leaving a surplus of 2,500,000f. The Minister's Financial Statement proposes to reduce the amount of Treasury bonds in circulation in 1865 to 150,000,000f. In the event of this sum being insufficient for the wants of the public service, the deficiency will be met by supplementary issues, to be authorised by Imperial decree and submitted to the Corps Législatif in its next Session. The amount of bonds which may be issued by the Treasury of Public Works of the city of Paris during 1865 is not to exceed 80,000,000f.

The subscriptions to the new loan are said to amount to about five milliard francs. The Government has sustained two other defeats at elections. In the Vosges, M. Buffet, the Liberal-Conservative candidate, whose first election was annulled in committee, has been returned by a majority of 3000 votes over M. Bourcier de Villers, the official nominee. At Strasburg, M. Halley-Claparède, the candidate of the Opposition, and supported by the clergy, has defeated M. de Bulach, the Government candidate and Chamberlain to the Emperor. Vice-Admiral Rigault de Génouilly has been promoted to the rank of Admiral, and Rear-Admirals Penaud, Chopart, and Larrieu have been appointed Vice-Admirals.

SWEDEN.—The Swedish officers who have asked permission to take service in Denmark have been refused by the Government on the ground that Sweden herself required them. The Norwegian Minister of War has arrived at Stockholm. The King and Royal Family of Sweden have given a considerable sum of money to the fund for the support of the families of Danish soldiers.

DENMARK. — Prussia and Austria have refused compliance with the request of Denmark for delay, and the troops of the two Powers are consequently on the march to Schleswig. The Danish Cabinet has appealed to the four other Powers who signed the Treaty of London, France, England, Russia, and Sweden, in order that by their mediation Austria and Prussia might be induced to suspend the occupation of Schleswig. Rumours of the despatch of English auxiliary troops to the assistance of Denmark circulated upon the Bourse at Copenhagen on Thursday, and were received with immense enthusiasm. A royal resolution having fixed the electoral districts and their commissioners for Schleswig, for the new Rigsraad, it is inferred that a summons to elect will soon follow, and that all the great Powers are agreed as to that pacific measure. In the sitting of the Landsthing, the Upper Chamber of the Danish Rigsdag, on Friday, Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council, made the following declaration :—

"The Conventions of 1851 and 1852 contain the rights as well as the engagements of Denmark, among which is the point that there does not exist any state of Schleswig-Holstein. What do we struggle for? To prevent an invasion of Schleswig by foreign troops, and to expel them should they, nevertheless, enter it. The fortune of war will decide what will happen afterwards. It would be vain to trace a programme before the war is over, but we are determined not to allow a single German soldier to cross the Eider."

In the sitting of Wednesday, the Landsthing unanimously adopted the Address to the King in its integrity. The President of the Council declared that no Danish Government could accede to the independence of Schleswig, to a State of Schleswig-Holstein, or to a division of Schleswig, unless compelled by force. It is rumoured that the Rigsraad (common assembly for Denmark Proper and Schleswig) will be convoked very shortly. Herr Johansen has accepted the Ministry for Schleswig, offered to him by the King, and is expected daily at Copenhagen. The Prussian and Austrian Ambassadors have not yet left Copenhagen, but intend to do so as soon as the weather permits direct communication by steamer, which may be daily expected, since the weather is like spring. The Secretaries of the Embassies will officiate as Chargés d'Affaires after the departure of the Ambassadors.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—Four councillors have been suspended in Garding and Tönninggen for having refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King of Denmark. A proclamation has been issued by the Schleswig Ministry, in which it is stated that the landed property north of the Eider hitherto subject to the Holstein authorities legally belongs to Schleswig, and as regards jurisdiction and police is provisionally subordinate to the administration of that Duchy. It is asserted on good authority that the Federal Commissioners are about to convoke the Estates of Holstein to sanction the new Government of the Duchy, recently appointed by the Federal Commissioners. The Dagbladet of Tuesday says that such a step would be entirely illegal, as the King only has the right to assemble the Estates of Holstein. The Prussian and Austrian troops are marching towards the Eider canal, under the command of Field-Marshal von Wrangel, who has sent a requisition to Hamburg for about 3000 carts. Austrian columns continue to march through that city. The Federal Commissioners have declined to recognise them as belonging to the Federal reserve, but have ordered the authorities to receive them in a friendly spirit. The harbours of Flensburg, Eckernförde, and Apenrade are free from ice. Three steamers with troops have arrived at Flensburg. The Flensburg and Apenrade Railway will shortly be opened. The Danes continue to fortify the Dannewerk; 6000 soldiers are daily at work, forming intrenchments, in order to command the Haddebyer and Mövenberge Road. Two batteries have been erected in the intrenchments. It is expected the Danes will defend the Dannewerk to the last extremity. In consequence of the thaw, the Danish outposts on the frontier Customs line have received orders to retire on the arrival of the Prussian troops. It is stated that an aide-de-camp of the King of Prussia has gone to Kiel, charged with a delicate mission to Prince Frederick, whose presence in the Duchy will not, it is said, be tolerated by Austria and Prussia. The Prussian vanguard marched into Kiel on Monday morning. They removed the German flag, and placed the Prussian colours on the guard-house. They demanded the withdrawal of Duke Frederick's citizen guard, threatening to employ force in case of non-compliance. The guard then dispersed by desire of the Duke. Two Prussian battalions and one battery arrived on Monday afternoon. They were received without any kind of demonstration. A Prussian military post has since been installed in the Hôtel de Ville. The escutcheons and colours of Prince Frederick have been removed. When the Austrians and Prussians entered Altona, the Schleswig-Holstein banners were enveloped in crape, and the shops closed. Several members of the Diets of Schleswig and Holstein have arrived in Altona by railway. They were received at the terminus with music and great cheering. They proceeded to Hamburg by night, accompanied by immense crowds of people, and alighted at Zingg's Hotel, where they will deliberate upon the course to be taken in the present state of things.

PRUSSIA.—In the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies on the 21st inst., Count von Bismark read a despatch which the Government had addressed to the minor German States, and of which the following is a summary :

"The Prussian Government does not offer any opposition to the Federal Government, but has only in view its position with regard to the other powers who signed the Protocol of London. A possible solution of the Schleswig-Holstein question would be a mere personal union between Denmark and the Duchies, as is the case between Sweden and Norway.

Count von Bismark, in reply to a question from Herr Schulze-Delitsch, said :—

"It is not true that the minor German States are disposed to rely on Prussia. The last 15 years prove, on the contrary, that they seek support in Austria, which course has already caused great embarrassements to Prussia. Our natural mission is to live in harmony with the Scandinavian people. A Prussian Minister, who wished to obtain the confidence of the majority of the Chamber of Deputies, would be obliged to act contrary to the Constitution, against the feelings of the Prussian people, and against historical tradition. The Chamber desires to hold the position of a kind of diplomatic Aulic Court with military powers. It does not understand the Prussian people."

Count Schwerin said he hoped the King would submit to the decision of the Federal Diet on the question of succession. The Ministry were afraid of Democracy and the foreign Powers. Count von Bismark replied that the Government hoped to conquer Democracy, and that it was only a rule of common prudence to look abroad with apprehension. He maintained, as hitherto, that the policy of Prussia was to keep free from any engagement. At the same sitting the loan proposed by the Government was rejected by 275 against 51 votes. A portion of the Catholic members, President Grabow, and Count Schwerin voted with the majority. The following resolution proposed by Herren Schulze-Delitsch and Von Carlowitz, and amended by Herr Grote, was adopted by a considerable majority.

"1. Considering that Prussia, in common with Austria, has made the declaration at the Federal Diet that the two Powers will resist the resolution passed by the latter on the 14th January, and take the affairs of Schleswig Holstein into their own hands, and will carry out the occupation of Schleswig in their quality as great Powers; 2. Considering that by this declaration Prussia separates herself from Germany and commits an abuse of her position as a great Power; 3. Considering that the course of the Austro-Prussian policy can have no other result than that of surrendering the Duchies a second time to Denmark; 4. Considering that the threatened evacuation by force of the purpose of Prussia and Austria challenges the well-justified resistance of the other German States, and may thus produce civil war in Germany,—The Chamber of Deputies declares that it will resist this policy by all legal means in its power."

In the sitting of the Upper House on Saturday, a debate took place on the Budget, as amended by the Chamber of Deputies. The amendment was rejected by a large majority, and the Budget as proposed by the Government adopted by 58 against 17 votes. In the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies on Monday, the Committee on the Budget was ordered by the Chamber to immediately report upon the vote on the Budget given on Saturday by the Upper House. The Committee accordingly made their report, which proposed that the vote of the Upper House should be declared null and void. This proposition was adopted by the House. Count Eulenburg then read a Royal message, stating that the Diet would be closed at 3 P.M. by the President of the Council. Accordingly at that hour the Diet was closed by the President of the Council, who read the Speech from the Throne. The following are the most important passages :—

"The Chamber of Deputies has maintained the ground which led to the dissolution of the previous Chamber. The House has rejected the Bill referring to Article 99 of the Constitution, and has not discussed the Budget of 1863. In the Budget of the current year it has struck out items which are indispensable for the public service. The House has also renewed the resolution of the previous Chamber upon the Military Budget without having discussed the preliminary Bill establishing the obligation to military service. For that reason the Upper House, in the exercise of its Constitutional rights, has rejected the Budget of 1864 as amended by the Chamber of Deputies. The Government has carried out the vote of the Chamber with regard to the Polish members arrested for high treason, but does not consider it conformable to the respect due to public justice and to the dignity of the House. The House has also refused the required loan proposed by the Government to afford the means of carrying out Federal Execution in Holstein, as well as for the maintenance of Prussia's position as a great power and her honour in the further development of the conflict, and likewise for covering the portion of the expenses of the Execution falling to Prussia as member of the German Confederation. The House has rejected this vote, although the King had pledged his word, in his reply of the 17th of December, that the money should only be employed for the protection of the right and honour of the country. The House has passed resolutions by which the majority, in the event of warlike complications, takes part beforehand against the Prussian Fatherland. Renouncing, therefore, for the present, the hope of bringing about an understanding with the Chamber, the Government considers it its duty to act for the maintenance of the State, and relies herein upon the growing support of the country."

AUSTRIA.—In the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies on Friday the first section of the Finance Committee resolved by a large majority to recommend to the Chamber that the credit of 10,000,000 florins demanded by the Government should not be granted, but that the House should only vote the Austrian proportion, amounting to 5,320,000 fl. of the military expenses for the occupation of Holstein, voted by the Federal Diet. In the sitting of Saturday, Count Rechberg, in the name of the Government, entered into an historical explanation of the position of Austria in reference to the Schleswig question. He said that Austria could not act differently in this question than she had done. The view taken by the majority of the Federal Diet could not be accepted by Austria, because it was against international right, and its adoption would be dangerous. He continued :—

"We most carefully distinguish between the London Protocol and the question of the succession in the Duchies. By the London Protocol the Great Powers acknowledged the integrity of the Danish monarchy without prejudice to the question of succession. The Government of the Emperor of Austria never intended to pass over clear legitimate rights, although, on the other hand, the line of Augustenburg in no way appears to possess claims on Schleswig and Gottorp. Nothing would therefore remain but a separation of the Duchies. But it is to be considered that Denmark and Russia would never surrender their right of succession. The stipulations of the Danish law of succession will always be maintained as preliminary conditions of the London Treaty of 1852. Even the declarations of France, England, Russia, and Sweden show that Austria and Prussia are bound by this treaty. The maintenance of peace in Europe makes it necessary for Austria to keep aloof from the agitation now prevailing in Germany, and to only interfere in the Schleswig-Holstein question in her quality as a great Power. Austria would not have interfered at all in this question had not the Federal Diet taken the Danish question within its competency. To yield this question entirely to the middle and minor States would be equivalent to a surrender of the position of Austria as a great Power. It was impossible to communicate at present more details relative to the state of affairs without impeding diplomatic action and endangering the interests of the empire. In conclusion, he expressed a hope that a peaceful solution of the question might be possible. For this there were several ways open, among which was the union of the Duchies with Denmark only by the personal tie of the same ruler, both having the same dynasty."

Several members afterwards spoke for and against the credit demanded by the Government, and the debate was then adjourned on account of the lateness of the hour. In the sitting of Monday the following resolution was moved by a considerable number of the most important members :—

"The Chamber of Deputies cannot consider the measures taken by the Government in reference to Schleswig as in conformity with the interests of Austria, nor as calculated to insure general peace in Europe, and therefore believes itself compelled to decline any responsibility for the consequences which may attend the steps of the Government."

The resolution was agreed to, in spite of the energetic opposition of almost all the Ministers, by 18 to 17 votes. The debate on the recommendation of the Finance Committee that the House should grant only 5,320,000 florins to cover the Austrian proportion of the expenses of Federal Execution, instead of 10,000,000 florins, as asked by the Government, commenced on Thursday, and is likely to last for several days. It is expected that the supporters of the resolution will be in a minority. The Danish Ambassador,

Baron von Bülow, has been withdrawn by his Government, and presented his letters of recall to Count Rechberg on Monday. The Secretary of the Legation will provisionally undertake the affairs of the Embassy. The report that the Bank of France has addressed a communication to the Austrian National Bank, requesting a loan of 50,000,000f. in coined or uncoined silver, is contradicted by the semi-official journals.

FRANKFORT.—In the sitting of the Federal Diet on Friday, Austria and Prussia announced the march of their troops through Holstein towards Schleswig. The Diet was unanimously of opinion that the position of the Federal Commissioners in Holstein, as well as General Hake's command of the Saxon and Hanoverian troops, are in no way affected thereby. The necessary instructions to that effect were given by the Diet to the Commissioners and to General Hake. It was also resolved that as the Austrian and Prussian brigades of the first reserve of the Federal army in Holstein, under the command of General Hake, had been transferred by their respective Governments to the Austro-Prussian army of occupation for Schleswig, fresh reserves of Federal troops should be maintained, and that the acknowledgments of the Diet should be expressed to General Hake for his conduct in reference to the question of the occupation of Schleswig. It is asserted that at the next sitting of the Diet the proposal will again be made to admit the representative of Prince Frederick to take part in the deliberations of that body. It is not considered impossible that the Diet will accept this proposition, notwithstanding the energetic opposition of Austria and Prussia.

POLAND.—The Dziennik publishes an order of Gen. Berg, according to which Poland is to be governed in future by martial law. It is said that Gen. Berg has ordered that every insurgent captured shall be shot. Four insurgents, including a German named Lüdke, were hanged at Wlorlawek on the 4th inst. A fresh convoy of 500 political prisoners, sentenced to transportation to Siberia, left Warsaw on the 20th inst. Another convoy of 600 persons has since been sent away into the interior. Letters from Warsaw describe the condition of these persons as deplorable in the extreme. Numerous arrests have recently taken place in Warsaw. On the 16th the insurgents, under Rembailo, defeated three companies of Russian infantry at Daleszyn, near Kielce, in consequence of which all the Russian garrisons in the Cracow district have been sent out to operate against them. Meanwhile, Rembailo is said to have united his force with Wagner's cavalry corps. On the 18th a sanguinary engagement took place between the Russians and a band of insurgents under Colonel Komorowski near Tyszowa, in the government of Lublin. The Polish loss was considerable. Komorowski himself was killed while leading a cavalry charge. On the same day a sanguinary engagement between the insurgents under Bosak and the Russians, took place in the vicinity of Czenstochau. Several waggons filled with dead and wounded Russian soldiers have been brought into the town of Czenstochau. 1500 insurgents, under Bosak, are also said to have been victorious in an engagement with the Russians at Sieuna, in the neighbourhood of Zawichost, in the government of Radom. A fresh cavalry detachment of 300 insurgents has shown itself in the vicinity of the frontier railway station at Sosnowice. The Russians attacked the insurgent chief Danilowicz at Dombrowa, near the Prussian frontier, but were repulsed. On the 19th and 20th inst. unimportant engagements occurred near Maczki and Malkowice. Rembrailo attacked the Russians, who were advancing on all sides to surround the strong position of the St. Croix Mountains. Another engagement has taken place at Silaniec, near the fortress of Zamosc, in which the insurgent leaders Poninski and Wroblewski were victorious. The insurgent corps under these leaders have returned to the government of Lublin, after having supplied arms and ammunition to the detachments in Lithuania, in which province the formation of fresh corps of insurgents is announced.

ITALY.—In the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies on Saturday, the Minister of Justice replied to the question of Signor Crispi, relative to the conspirators in Paris, and stated that a prosecution had been commenced, and was being regularly carried on by the Tribunal of Varese, against Pascal and Grecco. The speech of Signor Crispi gave rise to protests in the Chamber, and was answered indignantly by the President of the Council. The Chamber finally passed, almost unanimously, to the order of the day. The results known up to the present of the elections of the new deputies chosen in the place of those who had tendered their resignation, are very favourable to the Government. It is expected that the Moderate candidates will be almost everywhere successful. The Papal Government have compelled Mr. Home, the spiritualist, to leave Rome, on the ground that it is their rule not to allow the presence of the author of any book placed on the prohibitory index. Before his departure Mr. Home left with the consul a claim for indemnity for the losses inflicted upon him, to the amount of about 150*l*.

GREECE.—Advices from Athens state that a favourable arrangement with regard to the Ionian Islands is expected. Several Greek officers intend to offer their services to the Danish Government in case of war.

DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES.—The question of the monastic property which has been secularised by the Government is entirely settled, the Chamber of Representatives having on Wednesday voted an indemnity of 50,000,000 francs to be paid to the religious communities of the Holy Places. This indemnity will be covered by a loan to be issued at 88, and bearing 7 per cent. interest.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—Bishop Colenso's trial was concluded on the 16th December, when the suffragan Bishops found him guilty on all the nine counts of heresy with which he was charged. The Metropolitan agreed in that opinion, and sentenced Bishop Colenso to be deprived of his see and all his rights of office therein. The defendant not being present to hear the judgment pronounced against him, the Metropolitan gave him until the 4th March next to file in London a full, unconditional, and absolute retractation in writing of all the heretical extracts referred to in the counts, or otherwise to the 16th April next to file a like retractation in Cape Town. On Bishop Colenso so complying the sentence becomes null and void. Dr. Bleek protested against the proceedings and the validity of the judgment, and gave notice of appeal. The inquiry into the death at Angra Pequina, of James Gray, mate of the bark Saxon, took place at Cape Town on the 2nd of December. The murder of Gray without provocation by Donoghan, an officer of the Federal steamer Vanderbilt, and the insulting conduct of the Vanderbilt's men to the crew of the Saxon, in addition to seizing her, had been proved. Indignation was felt in the colony at the affair. Messrs. Rowley and Miller had returned from the Zambesi. Dr. Livingstone had received the news of his recall, and had admitted his expedition to be a failure. A rumour had reached the colony of his having been murdered near Lake Nyassa. The new Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Percy Douglas, arrived out in the Golden Fleece on the 2d of December. The electric telegraph was in operation to Mossel Bay. Disturbances still existed in the Transvaal. Mr. Brand had been elected President of the Free State.

INDIA.—The war on the frontier is said to have excited the sympathy of the Affghans, who have assembled a large force at Jellahabad. On the morning of the 5th ult. a party of the enemy on the frontier made a raid on our outpost about 15 miles north of Peshawur. They were driven off by the Irregular Cavalry, but unfortunately Lieutenant St. G. M. Bishop, of the 6th Bengal Cavalry, was killed while charging at the head of his men. Further intelligence from the head-quarters of the Commander-in-Chief, at Rawul Pindee, states that affairs on the frontier had become much more pacific. The villages of Lalloo and Umbeyla were taken without any officer being killed or wounded, the enemy suffering severely. The Bonair tribe seem inclined to adhere to their engagements, and the Bajourles and others who had come to their aid have fled. General Chamberlain has left the camp, and is improving in health. Letters from the North-West frontier contradict the report of the death of Lieutenant W. Battye, of the Guide Corps, and of Lieutenant Inglis, of the 14th Bengal Native Infantry, who were severely wounded when combating the enemy in the Umbeyla Pass. The Shan States have broken out in open revolt against the King of Burmah, to whom they are tributary. Sir Charles Trevelyan has knocked himself up by overwork. He has been advised to leave Calcutta to recruit his strength, and has proceeded to Delhi, where he will spend two months.

CHINA.—The dismissal from the Chinese service of Mr. H. N. Lay, who for several years back has filled the post of inspector-general of foreign customs, is confirmed. Major Gordon attacked Soochow on the 5th December, and entered the place on the same day. Dissension had broken out among the rebels, and a party of them, desirous of surrendering the city, cut off the Mo Wang's head. It was expected that Hang-Chow would soon fall, and, that failing other means, the Imperialists would be able to starve the rebels out of Nanking. It was believed that Major Gordon would retire from the Chinese service, and that an order would be issued prohibiting all British subjects from engaging their services to either party in future.

JAPAN.—The accounts from Japan state that Prince Satsuma has refused to pay the indemnity demanded by Admiral Kuper, except upon condition that every foreigner quits Yokohama. "The British forces in Japan," says the China Mail, "are evidently waiting for support, and are not likely to withdraw from the country until something has been done much more decisive than the affair at Kagosima." Some of the powerful Daimios are still in open arms against the Tycoon's Government, and a force is being equipped to coerce them.

UNITED STATES.—General Longstreet has been heavily reinforced from the armies of Generals Lee and Johnston, and has taken up a strong position at the junction of the East Tennessee, Virginia, and Knoxville Railroad, 20 miles from Knoxville. His pickets confront the Federals at Blair Cross Road. It is expected that he will shortly resume the offensive. His entire force now consists of 34,000 infantry and 12,000 cavalry. A heavy cavalry fight occurred on the 10th near Strawberry Plains, eight miles from Knoxville, the Confederates being repulsed with serious loss. General Johnston has been largely reinforced by extra troops, and maintains a bold front at Dalton and Tunnel Hill. General Lee is also being reinforced by conscripts, and is organising his cavalry for the spring campaign. General Stuart, with 5000 Confederate cavalry, is reported to have passed round Gen. Meade, and to have reached Leesburg, Virginia, from which place the Federals retreated to Fairfax. The object of this movement, which is said at Washington to be unimportant, is believed to be to sever either the Alexandra and Orange or the Baltimore and Ohio Railways. The Federal authorities are said to be fully prepared to prevent material damage to either. Gen. Meade has made a speech in Philadelphia, stating that as soon as the weather moderated and the season allowed, active operations in Virginia would recommence. The war would have to be ended by hard fighting, and he trusted peace would be restored by next summer. General Burnside has been appointed to recruit and fill up the 9th Army Corps, of which he is commander, to the number of 50,000 men. Two blocks of buildings and several large warehouses are reported to have been destroyed in Charleston on the 20th by Gillmore's shells. The city was almost deserted by the military. Telegrams from Fortress Monroe of the 13th reported that the Federal gunboat Iron Age ran aground, under the fire of Confederate batteries, at the entrance of Wilmington Harbour, on the 11th. She was subsequently blown up by the Confederates, who captured 24 of her crew. In the Federal Senate Mr. Howe, of Wisconsin, has offered a resolution, which was referred to the Military Committee, requesting the President to call out 1,000,000 men for 90 days, to be led by General Grant against Richmond, for the capture of that city, and the liberation of the Federal prisoners there. An animated debate has taken place in the Senate on a resolution to expel Senator Davis, of Kentucky, for submitting treasonable resolutions. Mr. Davis defended himself, declaring that, if expelled, he would go back to Kentucky, and raise a cry of oppression, usurping tyranny, and revolution against the faithless men having charge of the Government. There were men in the administration recreant to their trust, trying to subvert the Constitution. In the condition of the states he had a right to call a Convention, and do away with the best Government on earth, and he called for such a Convention, that the people might take the war into their own hands, and reconstruct the nation upon the principles of a compromise and of liberty, upon which Washington and his associates acted. It is not believed that the resolution for expulsion will pass. Senator M'Dougall has offered a resolution asserting that the French occupation of Mexico was an act unfriendly to the United States, and that if the French troops were not withdrawn prior to the 15th of March next, it would be the duty of the Federal Government to declare war. The resolution met with no support, and was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. The New York Legislation has passed a bill to enable soldiers in the field to vote. The Governor of New Jersey, in his Message to the Legislature, recommends a conciliatory policy to the South, and declares that emancipation, peace, and the reconstitution of the old Union should be the sole object of the war. The Maryland Legislature have voted a resolution in favour of calling a convention to carry out emancipation. Mr. Lincoln has been nominated by both branches of the Pennsylvania Legislature for the next Presidency, and the Republican members of the State Governments of Maine, Illinois, and Indiana will also advocate his nomination in the meetings of their respective bodies on the 22d inst. A meeting of Democratic-Conservative members of Congress has been held at Washington. Resolutions were passed that President Lincoln's amnesty proclamation was unwise, inexpedient, revolutionary, and unconstitutional, and should therefore be disapproved of. It was also resolved to prepare amendments to the Army and Navy Bill, providing for the payment of the army and navy in specie or its equivalent. Extensive frauds in the Custom House of New York, the Treasury Department of Washington, the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, and the public offices, continue to be discovered. In the House of Representatives, Mr. Fernando Wood proposed to appoint a congressional committee to investigate the administration of affairs in all the departments, as well as the charges against General Butler at New Orleans. The proposition was rejected by a vote of 76 to 63. In order that the rejection should not appear in too scandalous a light, Mr. Fenton brought forward a resolution to inquire into frauds in the Custom House, which was adopted. The municipal report on the condition of the barracks on Broadway, near Astor House, has created much indignation. Sixty men, arrested for various military offences, were found confined in a room 15 by 20 feet square. Many had been there for months with no accommodation for sitting or lying down. The report states that they were covered with filth, and treated worse than wild beasts, and that the existence of such a place was an outrage on humanity, bringing disgrace to a nation. An extra brigade of troops, under General Terry, has been sent to Johnson's Island, in Lake Erie, to guard the Confederate prisoners there, who, it has been feared, might take advantage of the ice to make their escape. The Provincial Government of Nova Scotia placed the Chesapeake in the Admiralty Court on the 7th. In the preliminary hearing on the 9th, both Judge Stuart and Advocate-General Johnston expressed their opinion that the capture was piratical, and that the vessel should be returned to the owners. The case was adjourned to the 13th, when the judge declared that he should treat the case throughout as piracy. The passengers who lately captured the schooner Gerety, from Matamoras, for Havannah, took her into Honduras, and, after selling a portion of her cargo, escaped.

CHILI.—A terrible catastrophe occurred on the 8th December at Santiago, the capital of Chili. While the church of La Campania was crowded with nearly 4000 persons at the celebration of the Immaculate Conception, the drapery of the altar caught fire and soon involved the building in flames. Upwards of 2000 ladies, belonging mostly to the richest families in the capital, were burnt to death, and others had their limbs torn off or were crushed in the crowd. Upwards of 200 cartloads of burned corpses had been removed from the ruins.

METROPOLITAN BOARD OF WORKS.—At the meeting of the Board of Works on Friday a proposition was made to raise the salary of Mr. Thwaites, the Chairman, from 1500*l.* to 2000*l.*, the highest sum allowed by the Act of Parliament, on the ground of the great increase in the duties of the Board, and the business capabilities of the Chairman. The motion was carried by a majority of 27 to 4, three members declining to vote.

THE THAMES EMBANKMENT.—Active measures are in progress for the works of the embankment on the north side of the Thames. Between Westminster and Hungerford Bridges piles of immense size have been driven in, and machinery of a very formidable character introduced, upon which large numbers of men are actively employed. Operations on a somewhat smaller scale are going on immediately behind the Duke of Buccleuch's unfinished mansion in Whitehall Gardens, and at the bottom of Whitehall Stairs, and preparations will shortly be made between Hungerford and Waterloo Bridges. Another contract for that portion of the embankment between Waterloo and Blackfriars Bridges will be proceeded with without delay.

THE TYLNEY LONG FAMILY.—Among recent vicissitudes of families, a brief notice of the passing away of the Tylney Long estates into a new family may be of interest to the public. The Tylney property came into the Long family by the marriage of the last Earl Tylney's sister, Lady Emma Child, to Sir Robert Long, of Draycot Cerne, Wilts. His granddaughter, Catharine Long, the daughter of James Tylney Long, became the heiress of both the families on the death of her brother, and married the Hon. William Wellesley Pole, afterwards Earl of Mornington. Their son, the late earl, inherited all his mother's estates, and, after the death of his brother, his only sister, Lady Victoria Tylney Long Wellesley, became his heiress-at-law; and, though he had joined with his father in cutting off the entail, he had left all his lands to her. A will, however, executed a few weeks before his death, has disinherited her, and caused the lands of the Tylney Longs to pass away from all the heirs of the family, male and female, to Lord Cowley, her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris. The Longs had held the Draycot estates for centuries.

THE MISSION OF SIR MOSES MONTEFIORE TO MOROCCO.—The President of the London Committee of Deputies of the British Jews has received a despatch from Sir Moses Montefiore, stating that he had been unable to effect a landing, as he intended, at Saffi, one of the ports of Western Barbary, but was informed by signal from the shore that the two Jewish prisoners had been released on the 6th inst. Sir Moses left Mogador on the 17th inst. for Morocco, to have an interview with the Sultan. The following circular has been addressed by the Spanish Minister to the Consuls and Vice Consuls of Spain in the ports of Morocco, by order of the Government of Madrid:—

"The government of Her Majesty the Queen has seen with great displeasure the gross calumnies which have been written against Spain, in the belief that the Spanish consuls in Morocco have undertaken a crusade against the Israelites established in this empire. Such calumnies must not in the least influence your feelings, nor ought they to occasion any alteration in the proceedings of the agents of Spain in Morocco, regarding the Israelites, as relates to aiding and protecting them. On the contrary, the best mode of successfully combatting such calumnies is increasing your solicitude for this race which is so sadly circumstanced in this country. Thus you will avail yourselves of every opportunity which may arise, to prevent acts of cruelty on the part of the Moorish authorities against the Israelites, and also in cases of notorious injustice, and when it is the question to inflict the punishment of the lash, in order to extort confession, in any case you will resolutely interpose your influence with the local authorities to prevent the commission of such acts of barbarity."

PROPOSED NEW BRIDGE FROM WANDSWORTH TO FULHAM.—It is intended to remove the old bridge, which has been so long an inconvenience to the navigation, and to build a substantial one for carriages and passengers, with approaches and piers commencing at Wandsworth in the York Road, and terminating near the Peterborough Arms in King's Road, Fulham, with an approach road from the latter point, terminating in Moore Park Road, near to where it is crossed by the Britannia Road. The road on the Wandsworth side will commence in York Road and terminate at the junction of the high road from Wandsworth with the high road from there to the new Wandsworth station of the Crystal Palace and West End Junction Railway. The estimated cost is 40,000*l.*

THE GREAT EASTERN STEAMSHIP.—Messrs. Cunard, Wilson, & Co., of Liverpool, announce that the Great Eastern steamship will be sold on the 17th of February, "peremptorily and without any reserve," unless previously disposed of by private treaty. The Senate of Frankfort have refused to allow the lottery scheme to be carried out in that city.

METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADE.—At the last meeting of the Common Council, Mr. Lowman Taylor called attention to a report that the Government was about to establish a fire brigade for London on a scale which would entail considerable expense, and moved that the subject be at once referred to a committee to consider and report. The motion was agreed to.

THE CITY REMEMBRANCERSHIP.—At the last meeting of the Common Council a letter was read from Mr. Tyrrell, the late Remembrancer, stating that he had been in the habit for several years of compiling documents of great interest to the City from the Tower registers and other quarters. If the Common Council had voted him a retiring allowance, it was his intention to present those documents to the City, and he would still do so if they would reconsider their decision; if not, he would present them to the British Museum. The letter was referred to the library committee.

LANCASHIRE RELIEF FUND.—At a meeting of the Mansion House Committee on Friday, grants were voted to various places to the amount of 3835*l.* The subscriptions received in the previous fortnight amounted to 1710*l.*, of which upwards of 1300*l.* had come from places in the colonies.

THE NEW ACT ON TRADE MARKS.—The provisions of the new Act respecting trade marks are about to be put in force in order to protect the public and manufacturers against the frauds inflicted on them by the sale of pianos "by widows in distressed circumstances, and at a great sacrifice." These instruments are represented to be the manufacture of some eminent maker whose name is surreptitiously affixed, while in fact the instruments are of an inferior make and comparatively worthless. Messrs. Collard and Messrs. Rolfe have taken up the matter, and have obtained summonses against tradesmen who have been in the habit of using their names in their bills as well as on their pianos; though in the latter case a close examination of the inscription has brought to light the word "from" in very minute letters preceding the names of Messrs. Collard and Messrs Rolfe.

DEATH OF A COLUMBINE BY FIRE.—On Saturday an inquest was held at the London Hospital on the body of Mary Anne Thorne, known as Madame Marie Charles, aged 32, who, while dancing as Columbine at the Pavilion Theatre on the 6th inst., unfortunately set her dress on fire, and received such injuries that she died after lingering for several days, having never rallied. The evidence showed that, while she was making a "figure," she stepped across a board, behind which was a row of gas jets, and that her dress immediately caught fire. The inquest was adjourned in order that the jury might view the stage, and also have evidence as to the Lord Chamberlain's intructions with regard to the protection of stage lights.

INCUMBENCY OF HAMPSTEAD.—The Rev. Charlton Lane, of Jesus College, Cambridge, incumbent of St. Mark's, Kennington, and formerly rural dean of Southwark, has been appointed by Sir Thomas Maryon Wilson perpetual curate of Hampstead, in the room of the Rev. Thomas Ainger.

MURDEROUS OUTRAGE AT CAMBERWELL.—On Monday night, about a quarter before 9, two men called at the house of Mrs. Kent, 147, Camberwell Road, between the Albany Road and Addington Square, for the purpose of looking at some apartments which were to let. They were shown the apartments and engaged them, stating that they would leave a deposit and furnish substantial references. They had got as far as the street-door, when one of them pretended to be feeling in his pocket for some money to leave as the deposit. Mrs. Kent at the same time opened the street-door, and as she did so noticed that one of the men was attempting to pick her pocket. She seized his hand, and called out loudly for the police. The man whose hand she held then gave her a violent blow with his clenched fist over the eye and nose. The other pulled out a life-preserver from his pocket and inflicted two blows on the side of her head. She fell to the ground insensible, and the two men ran into the street, and managed to escape before the neighbours and the police had come to the spot. Mrs. Kent was found insensible, with blood running from her wounds, and the injuries have since been ascertained to be so serious that it is extremely doubtful whether she can recover. One of the men in running away let fall his hat, but it is not likely to throw any light upon the affair, as it contains no name beyond that of the maker. It is stated that the man who left his hat was stopped, when he said he was running after a man who had stolen his hat, and was allowed to leave. The men had a foreign appearance, but it is supposed that they were disguised. A short time since a woman was murdered by thieves in Addington Square, and it is suggested that the same men have committed the present assault. Robberies have recently been very frequent in the same neighbourhood.

ACCIDENT WITH THE LIONS AT THE AGRICULTURAL HALL.—A shocking accident took place on Thursday morning to the feeder of the lions now performing at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. It appears that the old keeper of the animals had left his situation, and a new man called John Reeves had been engaged in his place. He had only been employed two or three days, and was engaged on Thursday morning in pushing some straw between the bars, when first one lion and then another sprang upon him, seized him by the hand and arm, and commenced tearing him. The animals were struck repeatedly with heavy iron rods, but it was some time before they could be made to quit their gripe. The man was removed to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where it was once decided that amputation of the hand was necessary to save his life, but at a late hour on Thursday night he was in too low a state from loss of blood to undergo the operation. The operation was performed yesterday by Mr. Lawrence, and the sufferer remains in a most precarious state.

MURDER BY GAROTTING IN BETHNAL GREEN.—A verdict of wilful murder, under very singular circumstances, was returned by a coroner's jury a few days since. Some time last spring a man went into a small shop in Bethnal Green, kept by a Mrs. Moore, and picked her pocket. She discovered her loss, and grappled with the thief, on which he seized her by the throat, and nearly choked her. By leaving his great coat and muffler in her hands, he finally made his escape. The woman lingered for nine or 10 months, and died about a fortnight since. It was clearly proved that her death was caused by the garotting, on which the jury returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against some person unknown, and recommended that a reward should be offered for his apprehension. In accordance with this recommendation the Government have offered a reward of 50*l*. for the apprehension of the murderer.

THE BRONZE AND COPPER COINAGES.—It is understood that copper coin will shortly be declared an illegal tender, and that the Master of the Mint is desirous of affording ample facilities for its return to the Mint previous to the issue of an official proclamation to that effect. An officer of the Mint is at present employed in making arrangements in Warwickshire and Staffordshire for this purpose, and advertisements will shortly appear, containing full particulars of his arrangements. Already more than 9000*l*., containing three million and a half pieces of the old coin, has been returned to the Mint from Birmingham alone, and it is hoped that the small proportion which now remains in circulation will be speedily cleared out.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths in London in the week ending Saturday, January 23, were 2180, an amount considerably higher than is usual at this period of the year, but less by 247 than that of the previous week. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number of deaths, corrected for increase of population, was 1529. The present return is therefore 651 above the average. During the week the births of 1063 boys and 1013 girls, in all 2076 children, were registered in London, being 104 less than the deaths. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 1973.

Provincial.

BIRMINGHAM.—Mr. Bright, M.P., and Mr. Scholefield, M.P., attended a meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening for the purpose of addressing their constituents on public affairs. The hall was crowded in every part. The Mayor occupied the chair, and having briefly opened the proceedings, a resolution was unanimously adopted declaring the opinion of the meeting that the present Parliament had failed in its duty in not having passed a measure which would have admitted a large number of the unenfranchised to a real share in the government of the nation, and that the present period was favourable to the passing of such a measure. Mr. Scholefield then addressed the meeting, after which Mr. Bright spoke at great length on the various questions which have occupied public attention during the recess. The following is a summary of portions of his speech :—

"There are two subjects about which I would just say a few words. The first is the question which now keeps Europe in suspense, which may end in a war or may end in some diplomatic accommodation of a long standing quarrel. I will not go into the history of the Danish and German dispute, but I will say that if there be a possible Government in our day that will plunge this country into war under the pretence of maintaining the balance of power in Europe, and sustaining any kingdom there, be it little or great, that Government not only is not worthy the confidence of the people of England, but deserving of our execration and abhorrence. The other subject to which I referred, is the question between North and South in the United States. My opinion is that the unanimous judgment of the people of England, so far as that is ever shown upon any public occasion, is in favour of the course which her Majesty's Government have publicly declared it to be their intention to pursue. I have seen it stated by authority, North as well as South, and by authority which I may term English, and by authority from France, that in the present condition of the quarrel, recognition by all the usages of nations must necessarily lead to something more; and, therefore, although there were no question of slavery, although it were simply a political revolt, and that there were no special moral question connected with it, I believe that, looking to the past usages of this country with regard to the rebellion of the Greeks against the Turks, and with regard to the revolt of the colonies of South America against Spain, that it can be demonstrated that these cases afford no support whatever to the argument that we are permitted to recognise the South, and that if such recognition did take place now it could only exasperate still more the terrible strife which exists on the North American continent, and would spread that strife over Europe itself. Now, I am myself of opinion, and have been from the first, that the people of America, so numerous, so powerful, so instructed, so capable in every way, would settle the difficulties of that continent without asking the old countries of Europe to take any share in them. I believe that in the providence of the Supreme the slaveholder, untaught and unteachable by fact, or argument, or Christian precept, has been permitted to commit—I will not call it the crime, but the act of suicide upon himself. Whether President Lincoln will be in favour of abolition, whether the North are unanimous against slavery, whatever may be said or thought with regard to the transactions on that continent, he must be deaf and blind, and worse than deaf and blind, who does not perceive that through the instrumentality of this strife that most odious and most indescribable offence against man and against Heaven, the slavery and bondage of four millions of our fellow creatures, is coming to a certain and a rapid end. I will say of this question that I look forward to the time when all will join with me in rejoicing that there does not breathe a slave on the North American continent, that the Union has been completely restored, and not less will he rejoice that England did not in the remotest manner, by a word or a breath, or the raising of a finger, or the settling of a question, do one single thing to promote the atrocious object of the leaders of this accursed insurrection. He then referred at great length to a correspondence which took place some weeks ago between Mr. Cobden and the Editor of the Times in reference to a charge which that journal had brought against him (Mr. Bright), that he had proposed at a meeting at Rochdale to divide among the poor the lands of the rich. He said that Mr. Cobden had compelled Mr. Delane to throw off the mask of secresy, and avow himself the Editor of the Times, and afterwards to admit that neither Mr. Bright nor Mr. Cobden had recommended agrarian outrage, or proposed that the division should be accomplished by violence. He then proceeded as follows :—Now, what I said to the Rochdale meeting on the subject of the land was this—I should say, if we were fairly represented, that feudalism with regard to the land of England should be abolished, and that the agricultural labourer throughout the United Kingdom should be redeemed from that poverty and serfdom which up to this time has been his lot. It would take a long speech—indeed, it would take a night—to go into the question of the condition of that class; but with laws such as we have, intended to bring large tracts of land into possession of one man, that one man may exercise great political power. That system is a curse to the country, and dooms the agricultural labourer to perpetual poverty and degradation. Is it an unchangeable law of Heaven that the agricultural population of this country shall continue in that condition? They tell you your agriculture is far better than the agriculture of any other country; that you produce a larger quantity of wheat than any other producer from a given surface. We know that there is the greatest market in the world close at our doors, and the means of conveyance to every part of the kingdom. Then, I want to know, why it is that the labouring population on the farms of this country are in the condition in which they are described. It is not so in the most civilised countries in Europe. It is not so in the United States of America. But here it is caused, first by the law of primogeniture, and secondly by the law of entail. After describing the operation of these laws at great length, he said that in case of intestacy landed property ought to go among the next of kin instead of to the eldest son, and that no devise of land should be made to any unborn person. He had been told by a gentleman connected with one of the largest properties in England, that he had no idea of the terror which his speeches created among the landed gentlemen. "I never," he said, "frighten any of my neighbours. I don't know why I should be so alarming to these gentlemen who live in their great houses and their castles; but the fact is that the landed gentlemen are not a wise class. There are brilliant exceptions; there are men among them, many who cannot be surpassed by any of their class or of any class in the world, but as a class, and perhaps one might say it of nearly every class—I believe it is true of the class to which I belong in Lancashire—they are not a wise class. They know something of agriculture. County members have to get it up for agricultural dinners. And they know something about horses, and they know all that can be known on the subject of game. Well, on the principles of law and of government, speaking of them as a whole, and judging of them by their past force, they are as dark as night itself. Would you believe that the landed proprietors never found out till Mr. Cobden and I and a few others told them that the Corn Law was a great injury to them? They did not know that it actually diminished the value of their land, and diminished the security of their rents, and that it loaded them with an inconceivable amount of odium, while, at the same time, it beggared hundreds of thousands of the people, and it menaced this nation with revolution. Mr. Cobden and others who acted with us, chiefly because perhaps we were the most prominent, were slandered then, and by the gentleman in the mask just as we have been now. The Times was as foul-mouthed upon us 20 years ago as it is now. They said that we went about the country setting class against class; they said that our views led to the confiscation of landed property; they said, in fact, everything that was spiteful and untrue, as they say now; and yet is there any man in this country who will not admit that property is more secure in consequence of the abolition of that law, which they believed to be the anchor of their safety—that animosities between class and class have been allayed? And who shall tell how much it is owing to that that your Queen at this moment wields an unchallenged sceptre over a tranquil realm? A landowner in the House of Commons, an old member of the House, a representative of a south-western county, a man of excellent character, for whom I have always had the greatest respect, even when he was the most wrong, said to me not long ago, speaking about the corn laws, 'They didn't then know the good we were doing to his class.' I nudged him and said, 'Well, if you would only have faith, I could tell you one or two other things that would do you just as much good if you would let us try them.' But he had not faith. Now, I will just say to the landowners that I never was more their friend than in discussing this question as I am doing to-night, without the least animosity to them, and with a belief as firm as I ever had on the question of the corn laws that their interests are bound up with the interests of the people in the right solution of this question. I would ask to what are they tending under the operation of these laws? They are becoming every year smaller and smaller in numbers. The large ones are rapidly eating up the small ones. The census returns show that the number of landed proprietors is but a handful in the nation, and every day becoming fewer and fewer. Their labourers remain at the old 9*s*. or 10*s*. a week. Somebody will write to the papers to-morrow and say they get 12*s*. but bear in mind that they don't always receive wages on wet days, and I believe that the average money income of the agricultural labourer throughout the United Kingdom will not exceed, and many persons will say it will not reach 10*s*. per week. The smaller in number these landed proprietors become, the more, it may be, these labourers become discontented. There may arise some political accidents, and political accidents come almost as unlooked for as other accidents. You don't hear the tread of the earthquake which topples down your finest architecture, and the country gentlemen don't see the tread of that danger—it may be that catastrophe—which inevitably follows upon prolonged unjust legislation; and there may come a time, and I durst prophecy that it will come if there be an obstinate retention of our present system, when there will be a movement in this country to establish, not what I believe to be the just, moderate, and sufficient plan which I recommend, but a plan which shall be in accordance with that which is established by the Code Napoléon in France, and which is spreading rapidly over the whole continent of Europe. I would ask them again—How do they propose to keep their population if this system is to be maintained? During the past year I think 150,000 or 160,000 persons have sailed from this country to New York. Every man who settles in the United States can see what the working man gets, how he is considered, and what he is; and he writes over to his friends in this country, as has been the case for years in Ireland, and the result has been that Ireland has been drained, not of its surplus population, but of the population actually necessary to proper cultivation of the soil. Then, I say that the temptation held out to men here to emigrate, if we knew all the facts, would be irresistible to hundreds and thousands who have now no thought of moving to another country. Well, now, I ask you if I am wrong in saying to the rich and to the great what I believe, if they knew their own interest, it would be worth their while to try to make this country a more desirable one for the poor to live in. If they disregard this great question we, who are of the middle class, or not absolutely powerless class, shall have to decide between the claims of territorial magnates and the just rights of millions of our countrymen. There are some men—I meet them now and then, and I wonder where they were born and why they came into the world—who regard these territorial magnates as idols before whom we are all to bow down in humble submission. I think travellers tell us that there is a tribe in Africa so entirely given up to superstition that they fill their huts and hovels with so many idols that they do not leave room for their families. It may be so in this country—that we build up a system which is detrimental to our political freedom and is destructive of the best interests of the great mass of our producing and working classes. Now am I the enemy of any class if I come forward to state facts like these, and to explain principles such as these? Shall we go groping continually in the dark and making no effort to strengthen our position? Don't suppose because I stand here I love to find fault with the laws of my country rather than to praise them—that I am less English and less patriotic, or that I have less sympathy with my country and my countrymen, than other men have. I want our country to be populous, to be powerful, and to be happy, but this end can only be attained, and never has been attained in any country, but by just laws, justly administered. I plead only for what I believe to be just. I wish to do wrong to no man. For 25 years I have stood before audiences, great meetings of my countrymen, pleading only for justice. During that time, as you know, I have endured measureless insults, and have passed through hurricanes of abuse. I need not tell you that my clients have not generally been the rich and the great, but rather the poor and the lowly; they cannot give me place and dignities and wealth, but their honourable service yields me that which is of far higher and more lasting value—the consciousness that I have been expounding and upholding laws which, though they were not given amid the thunders of Sinai, are not less the commandments of God, and not less intended to promote and secure the happiness of men."

LIVERPOOL.—At the borough police-court on Wednesday, John Jones, principal partner in the firm of Jones & Co., of Chapel Street, Liverpool, ship store dealers and chandlers, and John Wilding, clerk in the service of that firm, were committed for trial at the assizes on a charge of having committed a breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act by aiding in procuring a crew for the Confederate war steamer Georgia. Mr. Highat, another partner in the firm of Jones & Co., had previously been committed for trial on the same charge. All the parties were admitted to bail, the two partners in 500*l*. each, and two sureties of 250*l*.; the clerk in 50*l*., and two sureties of 25*l*.—A shocking case of wife murder took place in this town on Saturday night. A marble mason, named Johnson, who lived in abject poverty in one of the low courts in the town, had been out drinking with his wife in the course of the evening. They came home together and he fell asleep, when the wife took the remainder of his money from his pockets, and it is said went out by herself for more drink. On her return he insisted on her giving back the money, and as she refused he struck and kicked her so severely that when medical assistance arrived she was found to be dead. The man has absconded.

MAIDSTONE.—At the Kent Annual Sessions on the 19th inst., the Earl of Romney in the Chair, Sir E. Dering moved that a Roman Catholic priest be appointed under the Prison Ministers' Act, at such a salary as the visiting justices may think reasonable, to attend the Roman Catholic prisoners in the county gaol, the visiting justices having previously reported that the daily average number of such prisoners during the last half year had been 56. After a long discussion the Court divided, when there were for the motion, 17; against it, 35—majority against it, 18.

COURT OF PROBATE AND DIVORCE.—O'Kane v. O'Kane, and Palmerston co-respondent.—On Tuesday this case, which was a suit for a divorce brought by a Mr. O'Kane against his wife and Lord Palmerston, as co-respondent, came before Sir J. Wilde, on the application of the respondent. The petition was filed on the 19th of October, citation was served on the 21st October, appearance was put in by the co-respondent on 28th October, denying the charge in every particular, and on the 17th November an order was obtained from the Court to oblige the petitioner to furnish the co-respondent with further particulars as to place and time and so forth. Mr. D. Seymour, on behalf of the wife, now applied for a rule to compel the petitioner to show cause why he had not proceeded with his suit, or otherwise why his petition should not be struck off the file. He stated that the application made on the part of Lord Palmerston in November last for particulars of the charges had not been complied with, and that an affidavit had been filed averring the belief that the sole object of the petitioner was extortion. Sir James Wilde said there was certainly just ground for complaint when a petitioner dragged a person into a court, more especially that court, to the sacrifice of reputation, and that the other side had a right to know why all reasonable expedition had not been taken. He therefore granted a rule ordering that on Tuesday next the petitioner should be called on to explain why the suit has not been proceeded with.

Obituary.

ADMIRAL HENDERSON died on Saturday at Middle Deal, Kent, in his 78th year. He was the son of Mr. J. Henderson, who was for many years secretary to Admiral Lord Bridport, and entered the navy in 1794, on board the Royal George, 100, the flagship of Lord Bridport, at that time Sir Alexander Hood. He afterwards served at the capture of Tobago in 1803, and at the reduction of the Dutch colony of Surinam, when he was severely wounded. In 1804 he accompanied Admiral Cochrane in the pursuit of the Rochefort squadron; and in the early part of 1806, while cruising off that port, assisted, in company, in the capture of four heavy French frigates. In this engagement he lost an arm, which, however, did not prevent him from accompanying Lord Gambier's expedition to Copenhagen; and afterwards, on the surrender of Madeira, being at the time first lieutenant of the Centaur, he was entrusted with the conveyance of Sir Samuel Hood's despatches to England, which procured him a commander's commission in 1808. After an interval of half pay he was appointed to the fire-vessel division of the expedition fitting out for Walcheren. During the operations he particularly distinguished himself, and for the third time was honoured with a notice in the Gazette. As captain, he assisted in the reduction of the Isle of France. After obtaining post rank he served in various other vessels, the last of which he paid off in 1815. He accepted flag rank in 1846, and was appointed vice-admiral in 1855, and admiral in 1860.

MR. THOMAS FRANCIS STEWARD, who had been for about 30 years the writing and English master of Westminster school, died at his house in Dean's Yard on the 7th inst., in his 68th year. His father, who had been for nearly 40 years the writing master of that school, was the teacher of writing to the present Queen. The late Mr. T. F. Steward was educated at Westminster, and since his connection with his old school in an official capacity he has been the most popular master at Westminster. He retired from his duties scarcely a year ago.

Markets.

COVENT GARDEN, Jan. 30.

Supplies of both Vegetables and Fruit in season have been well kept up. Pine Apples are tolerably plentiful. Hothouse Grapes are now beginning to get scarce, as are also good Pears. Some good samples of Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained. Kent Cobs are good, and Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 4s. to 7s. per 100. For Potatos the market is still heavy. Cornish Broccoli is arriving in large cratefuls, which vary widely in price according to quality. French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes begin to make their appearance. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, Jan. 25.

The number of Beasts is considerably larger than on Monday last, yet not excessive for the time of year. The demand is good for choice qualities, but generally the trade is not brisk. Prices have recovered from Thursday's reduction. There is scarcely any alteration either in the supply or price of Sheep. The trade is very dull. Calves are scarce, and a few choice ones have realised rather more than our late quotations. From Germany and Holland there are 860 Beasts, 690 Sheep, and 87 Calves; from Spain, 140 Beasts; from Scotland, 355; from Ireland, 195; from Norfolk and Suffolk, 2040; and 360 from the Northern and Midland Counties.

Beasts, 4270; Sheep, 14,030; Calves, 96; Pigs, 330.

THURSDAY, Jan. 28.

The number of Beasts is much larger than we have had for some weeks. Trade is very dull, yet the choicest qualities cannot be quoted lower than on Monday last. We have about a usual supply of Sheep; they are disposed of at fully Monday's quotations. We have several lots of show Sheep on offer, which, owing to the favourable weather, meet with ready purchasers. Choice Calves are still scarce and dear. Our foreign supply consists of 345 Beasts, 530 Sheep, and 32 Calves. Milch Cows, 110.

POTATOS.—SOUTHWARK, Monday, Jan. 25.

During the past week the arrivals coastwise have been moderate, but very plentiful by rail, and towards the end of the week less money had to be submitted to. Quotations:—Yorkshire Flukes, 80s. to 90s. per ton; do. Regents, 65s to 85s.; do. Rocks, 55s. to 60s.; Dunbar Regents, 70s to 75s. Kent and Essex Regents, 60s. to 70s; Perth, Forfar, and Fifeshire Regents, 50s. to 60s.; do. do. Rocks, 50s to 55s.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Jan. 25.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and was taken slowly on the terms of this day se'nnight. The market was moderately attended. Foreign Wheat continues to be neglected, and former rates are nominal. Barley, Beans, and Peas were a slow sale at last week's quotations. The Oat trade was dull, and prices were rather in favour of buyers. There was no alteration in the value of Flour.

FRIDAY, Jan. 29.

The weather since the 22d has been very fine and mild, excepting some showers on the 23d and 27th inst. The Wheat plant is represented as wearing a very favourable appearance. The Wheat trade for the past week has continued inanimate, both buyers and sellers in the present state of politics being alike unwilling to make any concession in prices in order to promote business, but their tendency has been towards a decline. The same may be said of all descriptions of Spring Corn and Flour. Since Friday last 14 vessels have been reported off the coast. The floating trade has been dull; there is very little inclination to purchase, and former prices have been barely maintained for all descriptions of grain. Linseed has advanced about 1s per qr. Paris, Jan. 28.—In Flour only a very limited business has been done at late rates. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 32s. 6d. per 280 lbs.; the present stock of Flour is estimated at 6060 cwt. Wheat: buyers are pressing for a further decline, which holders resist, and very few transactions have taken place. The arrivals of English grain by water are somewhat larger than of late, good of foreign Wheat, of Barley large, and of Oats small. The attendance at market this morning was unusually limited, and the business transacted in Wheat was of quite a minimum extent; Monday's prices remained nominally the same. Spring Corn of all descriptions was quiet at Monday's quotations.

LIVERPOOL, January 26.—With a very few country buyers at this day's market Wheat has met only a poor inquiry, and quotations remain nominally as on Friday last. American Flour is not to be bought cheaper, but we note French down 6d. per sack. A better demand was experienced for Indian Corn, and several parcels were taken both for consumption and to hold over at the rates of last market. Oats and Oatmeal dull. Beans, Peas, and Barley each steady at former prices, but not very saleable. The market closes without animation.

FRIDAY, Jan. 29.—The market rather quiet. Wheat fair demand, at Tuesday's rates. Flour dull. Indian Corn quiet. Egyptian Beans steady. Oats and Oatmeal dull.

MR. MURRAY'S
FOR ADVANCED SCHOLARS.

"This series of 'Students' Manuals,' edited for the most part by Dr. WM. SMITH, possess several distinctive features which render them singularly valuable as educational works. While there is an utter absence of flippancy in them, there is thought in every page, which cannot fail to excite thought in those who study them, and we are glad of an opportunity of directing the attention of such teachers as are not familiar with them to these admirable school-books."—The Museum.

A MONOGRAPH of ODONTOGLOSSUM.
By JAMES BATEMAN, Esq., F.R.S., F.L.S., &c.,
Author of "The Orchidaceæ of Mexico and Guatemala."

Although founded by Humboldt and Bonpland early in the present century, it is only of late years that the genus Odontoglossum has received any considerable attention, either from the botanist or the cultivator Not more than five species were assigned to it by Professor Lindley in 1832 ("Genera et Species Orchidearum," Part III.), these however had increased to 65 on the publication of the first Part of the same author's "Folia Orchidacea," in 1852, while they are now known to exceed a hundred, and we may expect to see that number doubled by the time that the favourite homes of the genus in the Mexican and Peruvian Andes shall have been thoroughly explored. In this case, Odontoglossum will become—next to Oncidium—the most extensive genus in the "Vandeous" Section of the great Orchideous family, and might therefore almost seem entitled to a separate Work even if it had no other claims to independent treatment. Such, however, may be readily found; for

(1.) Its species affect exclusively the mountain-chains of Mexico, Central America, New Grenada, and Peru; not a single straggler having yet been discovered either in the West Indian Isles or in the low and sultry latitudes of the South American continent. In this remarkable fact we have clear indications of a distinct group.

(2.) A large proportion are eminently beautiful. They are usually of compact growth; their flowers are always exceedingly durable, and often deliciously sweet.

(3.) They do not require—indeed they will not endure—the great heat of most Orchid-houses; but they will thrive, with proper treatment, in a mean temperature of about 60°, which is that of an ordinary greenhouse.

Unfortunately, it was long before this latter peculiarity in their habits—and consequently the secret of their cultivation—came to be fully understood; what wonder, then, if the labours of a Karwinski or a Galeotti, a Linden or a Schlim, a Purdie or a Warscewicz, should have added little to our collections of living plants, and that many of their most brilliant discoveries should at present be only known to us from dried specimens in our herbaria! The principle of cool treatment having at length however been fully established, the most strenuous efforts are being made by nurserymen and others to obtain fresh supplies of what we formerly lost, as well to search out new forms, and with this object, not fewer than seven collectors are now (January, 1864) busily engaged in ransacking such portions of the New World as seem to promise the richest harvest of novelty or beauty.

As the various collections arrive, they will doubtless be found to comprise many fine Odontoglossa, the most remarkable of which it is proposed to figure in a Monograph, specially dedicated to the genus; and the Parts of which will appear with greater or less frequency, as the materials for illustration can be had. Not more, however, than Four Parts will ever be published in a single year.

Full descriptions of the plants (in Latin and English), as well as careful directions for their cultivation, will accompany the Plates; and with the concluding Parts an Analysis of the Genus, and Conspectus of all its known Species, will be given.

The first Part is expected to be ready in April, and will contain figures of O. nebulosum, O. Uro-Skinneri, O. Insleayii, O. Phalænopsis, and O. auro-purpureum.

The Plates will be beautifully coloured, after drawings by FITCH and other eminent Artists. In particular cases, where the large habit of a species may prevent its being adequately rendered on the Coloured Plate, woodcuts will be added, giving, on a reduced scale, the general appearance of the entire plant.

Subscribers are invited to send their names to the Publishers, Messrs. LOVELL REEVE & Co., 5, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

Drainage of Land.
MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.
MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.
Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.
22, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

DRAINAGE LOANS are made by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY to the Owners of Freehold Estates, Life Tenants, Trustees, Incumbents, Bodies Corporate, &c., for all works of Agricultural Drainage, as well as Irrigation, Enclosing, Road Making, Wood Grubbing, and Farm Buildings, sanctioned by the Inclosure Commissioners.
The advances are repaid by way of Rent Charge on the Estate created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual charge to the circumstances of the Tenants.
No investigation of title being required, or notices given to Reversioners or Mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.
The Company either supply the money expended by landowners in works designed and executed by their own Agents, or they undertake the entire improvement by their experienced staff, supply the weekly advances required, and charge on the estate the actual outlay in the works, and their commission thereon.
Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, London, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.
To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.
The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
   Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.
No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.
For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

THE LANDOWNERS' WEST of ENGLAND and SOUTH WALES LAND DRAINAGE and INCLOSURE COMPANY. Established in the year 1844, and Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament, 11 & 12 Vict., Cap. cxlii.
Chairman—The Right Hon. the EARL of DEVON, Powderham Castle.
Deputy Chairman—WILLIAM PORTER, Esq., Hembury Fort, near Honiton.
Landowners having limited interests, such as Tenants for Life, Tenants in Tail, Mortgagors, and others, can Drain and improve their Lands without any expense to themselves personally,—as the Company's Act does not require Proprietors to liquidate the cost, the amount may remain permanently charged on the property, at interest, or be paid off when convenient, or be made redeemable over any term of years.
The works are undertaken by the Company, who keep in constant employ a very extensive and experienced staff of Engineers, Surveyors, and workmen; or Proprietors may avail themselves of the powers of the Act only, and get the works executed under their own superintendence, or by Agents appointed by themselves.
Outfalls through adjoining lands are obtainable under the Company's Act.
Works are also executed by the Company for Parties advancing their own capital, or not wishing to borrow the money.
Every information may be obtained on application to FREDERICK BRODIE, Secretary, Castle Street, Exeter.
Offices: Castle Street, Exeter; and 30, Parliament Street, Westminster.

News of the Week.

THE fifth session of the present Parliament was opened on Thursday by commission. The QUEEN'S Speech, after expressing HER MAJESTY'S satisfaction in again recurring to the advice and assistance of her Parliament, referred with gratitude to the birth of a son to the PRINCE OF WALES, and to the renewed demonstrations of devoted loyalty and attachment which the event had called forth. It then referred to the Danish question, and recited the leading stipulations of the Treaty concluded in 1852 between the five Great Powers, and subsequently acceded to by several of the German and other Sovereigns, with the view of preserving the integrity of the Danish Monarchy, and of securing to the present KING the succession to all the dominions then united under the sceptre of Denmark. It stated that HER MAJESTY, actuated by the same desire to preserve the peace of Europe which was one of the declared objects of all the Powers who were parties to that treaty, had been unremitting in her endeavours to bring about a peaceful settlement of the differences which have arisen between Germany and Denmark on the subject, and to avert the dangers which might follow the outbreak of war in the North of Europe; adding that HER MAJESTY will continue her efforts in the interest of peace. The Speech then recalled the late events in Japan, and regretted that, while the measures of coercion rendered necessary by the conduct of the Prince of SATSUMA had brought him to an agreement, they had incidentally led to the destruction of a considerable portion of the town of Kagosima. It regretted the continuance of the native insurrection in New Zealand, and said there was reason to hope that it would before long be put down. It announced the conclusion of a treaty for the surrender of the Protectorate of the Ionian Islands, and the negotiation of a treaty for regulating their annexation to the kingdom of Greece. After the usual reference to the Estimates for the year, the Speech stated that the condition of the country was on the whole satisfactory; that the revenue had fully realised its expected amount; the commerce of the United Kingdom was increasing; and that while the distress in the manufacturing districts had been in some degree lessened, there was reason to look forward to an increased supply of cotton from various countries which had hitherto but scantily furnished this material to our manufacturers. The Speech concluded by announcing that a commission was about to be issued for the purpose of revising the forms of subscription and declaration required to be made by the clergy of the Established Church; and that various measures of public usefulness would be submitted for the consideration of Parliament.

In the Lords, the Address in answer to the Speech from the Throne was moved by the Marquis of SLIGO, and seconded by Lord ABERCROMBY. The Earl of DERBY, in a speech of great length, criticised the foreign policy of the Government, which was defended by Earl RUSSELL and Earl GRANVILLE. The Address was then agreed to.

In the Commons the Address was moved by Lord R. GROSVENOR, and seconded by Mr. GOSCHEN. Mr. DISRAELI, Mr. S. FITZGERALD, and other members, complained of the omissions of the Speech, and condemned the foreign policy of the Government, especially in regard to Denmark and Germany. Lord PALMERSTON and Mr. GLADSTONE defended the policy of the Government, and in the course of his speech Lord PALMERSTON said that within the last few hours the Government had received information from the Governments of Austria and Prussia that they were prepared to abide by the Treaty of 1852, and to maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy in accordance with its provisions. The Address was then agreed to.

The Austro-Prussian army crossed the Schleswig frontier on Sunday, and on Monday morning the first battle of the war was fought at Missunde, on the Schlei, where the Prussians attempted to force a passage, with the intention of cutting off the Danes from the sea, while the Austrians attacked them in another direction in the centre. The attack on Missunde was made under the personal direction of Prince Frederick Charles, brother of the King of Prussia, supported by a force of 9000 men and 74 pieces of artillery. After an engagement of six hours the Prussians were repulsed, and compelled to retreat to Eckernforde, with a loss of from 300 to 400 killed and wounded, the Prince himself being among the latter. The Danish loss is said to have been less than half that amount. The result of the battle is said to have convinced Prince Frederick Charles that the Danes will oppose serious resistance to the advance of the allied armies. On Wednesday the Austrians made their first attack, selecting for that purpose two of the outposts of the Dannewerke. After a bombardment of several hours, during which the Austrians stormed two of the works, they were repulsed with heavy loss, and with no other result than the capture of a few prisoners and one gun. During the attack on Missunde, on Monday, an engagement took place between the Prussian artillery and two Danish screw steamers, off Eckernforde in Schleswig. The ships were ultimately obliged to leave the harbour, and the town was taken by the Prussians. The inhabitants subsequently proclaimed Prince Frederick as Duke of Schleswig-Holstein in the presence of the Austro-Prussian army, and in direct violation of the London Treaty. A provisional law has been issued at Copenhagen, for enabling the Government to accelerate the meeting of the Rigsraad.

The Emperor of the French on Monday received the deputation from the Corps Législatif with the Address in answer to the Speech from the Throne. In reply His Majesty said that the prolonged debates on the Address had not been useless, as the result had been to reduce into nothing the accusations which had been skilfully spread. His Majesty said that the policy of the Government was now better appreciated, and that the majority was more compact and more devoted to the institutions of France. For 60 years liberty had been a weapon in the hands of parties to overthrow the Government of the day, thereby causing incessant fluctuations, power succumbing to liberty, and liberty succumbing to anarchy. After the fruitless efforts of so many forms of government, the first want of the country was stability. By the intimate union of the Government with a majority inspired by patriotism and unseduced by vain popularity, they might await, from agreement and from time, such improvements as were possible, and not allow the delusive hope of a chimerical future unceasingly to compromise the present good which they had at heart to consolidate together.

A telegram from India announces that Sir John Lawrence, the new Viceroy, reached Calcutta on the 12th January. The war on the Punjaub frontier was completely ended, and the forces employed against the Hill tribes had been broken up.

The Prince, accompanied by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, drove to Claremont on a visit to the ex-royal family of France. On Wednesday morning the Prince hunted with the harriers. The Princess drove out in a close carriage in the grounds and park. On Thursday morning the Prince came to town, and attended the debate in the House of Lords, returning to Frogmore in the evening.

The Royal Family.—The Queen has, by letters patent under the Great Seal, declared her Royal will and pleasure that the children of the sons of any Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, shall at all times have the title of "Royal Highness," with their titular dignity of Prince or Princess prefixed to their respective Christian names, or with their other titles of honour.

Intended Visit of the Queen of Denmark.—It is understood that the Queen of Denmark and her eldest daughter will arrive in England in the course of four or five weeks on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales, in order to be present at the christening of the infant Prince.

Court Arrangements.—It is announced on authority that levées will be held by the Prince of Wales, for the Queen, before Easter, and probably a Drawing-room, by the Princess of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty. Levées and Drawing-rooms will likewise be held by the Prince and Princess of Wales after Easter. The Queen is still unequal to the performance of State ceremonies, and her Majesty's physicians have declared that any such exertion would be prejudicial to her Majesty's health.

The Cabinet.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the Foreign Office. Another Council was held on Monday.

Parliamentary Movements.—New writs were issued on Thursday for Durham, Tewkesbury, and Winchester. Mr. Walker having intimated his intention to retire from Beverley, Mr. Christopher Sykes, a younger son of the late Sir Tatton Sykes, has, in compliance with a requisition from the electors, consented to be put in nomination for the vacant seat in the Conservative interest. Mr. Moor, who had announced himself as a candidate for Brighton in the Conservative interest, withdrew last week from the contest, but has since been induced by a deputation of the electors to come forward again and pledge himself to go to the poll. Sir F. Smith has contradicted the report that he intended to retire from Chatham.

Pembrokeshire: Thomas Harcourt Powell, of Hook, Esq. Radnorshire: George Augustus Haig, of Llanbadarn fynydd, Esq.

Marriages, Births, and Deaths.—The Registrar General's Quarterly Return has just been published. It comprises the births and deaths registered by 2200 registrars in all the districts of England during the autumn quarter that ended on December 31, 1863; and the marriages in 12,628 churches or chapels, about 1913 registered places of worship unconnected with the Established Church, and 641 superintendent registrars' offices, in the quarter that ended on September 30, 1863. The general result of the quarterly returns is favourable. The marriage rate was above the average during the first nine months of the last year for which we have returns; and it is well known that they afford a good indication of the opinions which the people themselves have of their prospects in life. The births are returned for the last quarter of the year, and greatly exceed the average; while the deaths are also above the average, but to a much less extent. The marriage returns of the last quarter are not in; but in spite of some discouragement it is evident that the year of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales will be the anniversary of more than the usual number of such celebrations. The birth rate of the year 1863 is the highest that has been observed in England; and the rate of mortality, owing chiefly to the prevalence of fever and of scarlatina, is also higher than is usual Marriages.—83,804 persons were married in the quarter that ended on September 30, 1863. The weddings were 41,902, and exceed by 1317 the weddings in the summer quarter of 1862, and by 2018 the weddings in the summer preceding. The marriage-rate was 1·616 per cent., and this is above the average of 10 preceding quarters. Thus the marriage meter indicates by its rise a steady improvement in the condition and prospects of the great body of the nation. London takes the lead, and is followed by all its surrounding divisions; in the interval between 1861 and 1863 the summer marriages rose from 7322 to 8031 in the metropolis; from 3232 to 3512 in Kent and the other south-eastern counties. A notable increase also appears in the returns of the counties of Hertford, Oxford, Bedford, and Cambridge; in Suffolk and Norfolk; while marriage decreased in Wilts, Devon, and Somerset, but increased in Gloucester, Bristol, Salop, Stafford, and Warwick, which are pervaded in different degrees by prosperous coal and iron works. Leicester, Lincoln, and Derby, show an increase; Nottingham indicates some depression. The marriages of Cheshire and Lancashire fell from 7086 in the summer quarter of 1861 to 6376 in the corresponding quarter of 1862, but in the summer quarter of the year 1863 rose again to 6,999, and thus gave the signal of reaction. Yorkshire sympathised with Lancashire—especially in Huddersfield, Halifax, Bradford, and Hull,—but the reaction in this great county was more complete; and the people of Leeds and Sheffield married in greater numbers than they did in either of the two preceding summer quarters. The marriages increased steadily in the Northern Counties; and the principality of Wales, either animated by loyalty, or by the heat of the iron trade, surpassed the metropolis in the rise of its marriage-rate, which exceeded by 12 per cent. the summer rate of Wales in 1861. Births.—180,010 births were registered in the last quarter of the year 1863; and the birth-rate of the quarter was 3·461, which is considerably above the average rate of the autumn quarter. Children are not born in equal numbers throughout the year; and in general births are at the highest in the winter quarter, and at the lowest in the autumn quarter of the year. But the seasons of the last year were exceptional, for the birth-rate was highest in the spring, and lowest in the summer quarter; and in all the quarters the rate was above the average. The account of 1863 makes the registered births in that year 729,399; and the birth-rate is 3·549, or 0·122 above the average (3·427) of the ten preceding years. The births exceeded by 17,708 the births in the year 1862, which was itself more prolific than any year that had gone before it. It is shown in the Census Report that the number of wedded child-bearing women is increasing faster than the general population, and this partly accounts for the increase of the birth-rate. Increase of Population.—As the births were 180,010, the deaths 116,299, the ascertained natural increase of population in the last quarter of the year was 63,711. About 15,319 persons of English origin emigrated during the quarter. The emigrants from the United Kingdom of which the Emigration Commission furnishes an account amounted to 43,123, of whom about 2,850 were foreigners. 68,280 emigrants of English origin sailed from ports at which there are emigration agents in the year 1863; and of their number 36,312 sailed to the United States, 2,843 to the North American Colonies, 27,487 to the Australian Colonies, and 1,638 to other places. The emigrants from the United Kingdom in the year were 215,025—124,433 males and 90,592 females—after excluding 8,733 foreigners who sailed from British ports. Allowing for unregistered births, and for emigration, the increase of the population of England was about 215,537 in the year; while the emigration from Ireland reduced the rest of the population, so that the probable increase of the United Kingdom was about 190,428. The Registrar-General of Ireland is now empowered to register births and deaths, and under his able superintendence the country will learn the exact numbers in that part of the United Kingdom during the ensuing year.

Foreign.

France.—In the sitting of the Corps Législatif on Friday, M. Jules Favre spoke on the diplomatic side of the Polish question. Alluding to the words of the Emperor, he pointed out the ill-success of negotiations, and urged the necessity of breaking off all relations with Russia, in order to assert the rights which she had violated, and to manifest the indignation of the whole of Europe. The project of a Congress was a generous impossibility. Russia was resolved to exterminate Poland. It was not requisite to make war, which would be folly in the state of isolation in which France was at present placed, but it was requisite to break off every kind of relation with a Power which had violated the rights of treaties. M. Rouher opposed the amendments. He defended the Congress project with energy, and showed that, in spite of the profound sympathies of the Government with Poland, it was necessary to await the solution of the question from time and the moral influence of France. The amendment was then rejected and paragraph 7 adopted. M. Guéroult supported the amendment demanding the evacuation of Rome, which was rejected by 218 to 12. The entire draught of the Address was adopted by 234 to 12. On Monday the Emperor received the deputation with the Address, to which his Majesty replied as follows:—

"M. le President,—The address, which expresses to me the approbation of the Corps Législatif, touches me deeply. The debates on the confirmation of the members' elections and on the address have been long and elaborate, and though they have taken nearly three months from the legislative business of the House, they have not been useless. What is, indeed, to an impartial mind, the result of those debates? Accusations which had been skilfully spread have been reduced to nothing; the policy of the Government has been better appreciated; a majority more compact and more devoted to the maintenance of our institutions has been obtained. Those are great advantages; for, after the fruitless efforts of so many different forms of Government, the first want of the country is stability. It is not on an ever shifting base without consistence that anything durable can be founded. What have we seen for the last 60 years? Liberty has become nothing but a weapon in the hands of parties to overthrow the existing Government; thence have resulted incessant fluctuations; power by turns succumbing to liberty, and liberty succumbing to anarchy. This must no longer be. The example of recent years proves the possibility of conciliating what has so long appeared irreconcilable. Really fruitful progress is the fruit of experience. Its advance will not be hastened by systematic and unjust attacks, but by the intimate union of the Government with a majority inspired by patriotism, and never seduced by a vain popularity. Let us await from agreement and from time such ameliorations as are possible. Do not let the delusive hope of a chimerical future unceasingly compromise the present good which we have at heart to consolidate together. Let us each remain in our right sphere, you, gentlemen, enlightening and controlling the progress of the Government, I taking the initiative in all that may promote the greatness and prosperity of France."

His Majesty's reply was received with cries of "Vive l'Empereur." At the sitting of the Corps Législatif on Tuesday an Imperial decree was read, proroguing the Session until the 4th of April. The elections of MM. Buffet, Hallez, and Claparede were declared valid without discussion. On Thursday the Extraordinary Budget for 1865 was laid before the Corps Legislatif, asking for a total credit of 108,650,000 frs. A decree has been issued, fixing the import duty upon coals and coke by French ships and by land, at 12 centimes per 100 kilogrammes, dating from February 4. The official report of the subscriptions to the new loan was issued on Saturday. It appears that 542,061 persons (134,105 of whom reside in Paris) have subscribed for 219,321,536f. of rente. The irreducible subscriptions for 6f. rente amount to 2,409,366f. Persons having subscribed for sums of from 10f. to 120f. will have 6f. rente allotted them. For subscribers for other amounts the allotment will be at the rate of 5f. 21c. for every 100f. subscribed. The report further states that the resources which the loan will provide for the Treasury will more than suffice for the public service, and will enable the Government, dating from Saturday, to suspend the permission granted to subscribers of paying in advance the instalments of the loan not yet paid. The report says in conclusion:—

"The eagerness of the country to respond to the appeal is a fresh proof of its confidence in the Government of the Emperor, and of the security felt by everybody in the credit of France."

The Mémorial Diplomatique states that the Archduke Maximilian and Archduchess Charlotte, before coming to Paris, will go to England and to Brussels, and take leave of Queen Victoria and the Belgian Court. The Emperor has conferred upon the Comte de Flahault, lately Ambassador of France at this Court, the high dignity of Chancellor of the Legion of Honour. The Danish question is the subject of general discussion in Paris, and the official journals again assert that France has declined to join the English Cabinet in diplomatic intervention for the protection of the integrity of Denmark. Two contradictory reports were current in Paris on Wednesday, one stating that Missunde had been taken, the other that the attack had been renounced after four ineffectual attempts. Both reports are believed to be unfounded. The Constitutionnel publishes an article signed by M. Paulin Limayrac, stating that in commencing hostilities on the Eider, the two great German Powers have taken the initiative in measures pregnant with perilous incidents, considering the pride and courage of the Danish people. The Opinion Nationale says that it is almost certain that the war is undertaken for the special advantage of the King of Prussia. The Patrie doubts that the Cabinets of Berlin and Vienna have given the assurance that the integrity of the Danish monarchy would be maintained. It considers, also, that this assurance would be irreconcilable with the contrary promises made by the two great German Powers to the other German States. The France says:—

"We persist in thinking that France has no motive for assuming an aggressive attitude towards any of the parties in this quarrel; it is her duty to watch the course of events, whilst endeavouring by wise counsels to prevent, if it be yet time, a useless effusion of blood by preaching to all conciliation and peace. If she fails in that generous attempt she must wait, and frame her course solely according to her interests."

Bills have been posted in Paris announcing the sale of the Palace of the Permanent Exhibition at Auteuil. The upshot price is fixed at 2,250,000f. The affairs of the company are about to be wound up.

SPAIN.—The Ministry have required of the Cortes to suspend their Session for a fortnight, to allow time for preparing several Bills. The Cortes have assented unanimously.

PORTUGAL.—The stormy debates respecting the late loan continue. The Opposition is strong, and censures the conduct of the Minister of Finance with respect to the loan. The Minister made a long and able defence, but the bad impression had not been removed. The Viscount Sa da Bandeira and Senhor Anselmo Braacamp have left the Ministry in consequence of the bad reception by the Cortes of their proposed reforms in the army. The Portuguese steam frigate Mindelho has sailed, at the urgent demand of the American Minister, to watch the movements of the Confederate privateers at the Azores. The ironclad frigate Royal Oak has arrived at Lisbon.

SWITZERLAND.—M. Lefebvre, the French Commissioner, and M. Corni, attaché of the French embassy at Turin, have arrived at Lugano, and transmitted to the President of the Ticino Government a request for an inquiry concerning Mazzini's residence, and that of the four Italians at Lugano, on account of the conspiracy against the Emperor. It appears from the inquiries made by the Swiss authorities that M. Mazzini left Lugano in the beginning of October, and that the men who have been arrested did not arrive at that place till November.

BELGIUM.—All the public men who have been called upon by the King to form a new Ministry having declined, the resigning Ministers will reassume their portfolios. This fact has not yet been officially announced, but it is generally considered as certain.

SWEDEN.—The Swedish Government has protested at Vienna and Berlin against the decision of the two great German Powers to occupy Schleswig. It is said that an alliance has been concluded between Sweden and Denmark, and that Sweden will place 35,000 auxiliary troops in the field. Mr. Kirkpatrick, the English Secretary of Legation at Copenhagen, has arrived at Stockholm on a mission, the object of which it is said is to prevail upon Sweden to act in the Danish question only in common with England.

DENMARK.—A provisional law was published at Copenhagen on Monday morning, enabling the Government to accelerate the assembly of the Rigsraad. A Royal patent was issued at the same time, ordering the elections to the Rigsraad. The Bill levying a war tax on incomes of about 3½ per cent. was submitted to the Rigsdag (the Assembly for Denmark Proper) on Tuesday. It is expected that it will produce a revenue of from 5 to 6 million rigsdalers. It is also believed that an embargo will be placed on all German shipping in Danish ports. The King and the Crown Prince on Friday inspected the battalions proceeding to join the army. They were greeted with extreme enthusiasm by the troops and the people. His Majesty, accompanied by Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council, left Copenhagen on Sunday at midnight to join the army. Large crowds assembled at the railway station to witness the King's departure. His Majesty was continuously and enthusiastically cheered. The Government has placed a steamer at the disposal of the Prussian and Austrian Ambassadors, by which they left on Sunday evening. The postal and telegraphic communication with Germany is broken off. A Council of War was held on Wednesday night.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—Marshal Wrangel on Sunday morning sent three Prussian officers, one of whom was of high rank, to the head-quarters of General de Meza, the Danish Commander-in-Chief in Schleswig, summoning him to evacuate Schleswig as a pledge of the fulfilment of the promises of 1851, and of the abrogation of the November Constitution, giving him till 5 o'clock in the afternoon to reply. Marshal Wrangel in this despatch referred to the note presented to the Danish Cabinet on the 16th ult., and informed General de Meza that he had received orders to occupy Schleswig and to carry on the administration until further orders. He requested General de Meza to inform him immediately whether he had orders to evacuate Schleswig. General de Meza, in his reply, stated that the instructions he had received from his Government were entirely opposed to the request of the Prussian Commander. He was, therefore, prepared to meet any act of violence by force of arms. On the receipt of this note the Prussian and Austrian troops were ordered to march, and on Monday morning they crossed the Eider. The movements of the Prussian army were intended to force a passage at Missunde, thus cutting the Danes off from the sea, while the Austrians engaged them in the centre. The Danes destroyed the bridges on their approach, abandoned the Kronenwerk at Rendsburg, and subsequently blew up the Sarg bridge, and destroyed the railway, withdrawing all their war material. Some shots were exchanged during these operations, but no one was wounded. At noon an engagement took place between the Prussian artillery and two Danish screw steamers off Eckernforde. The town was taken by the Prussians, and the ships ultimately left the harbour. On Tuesday morning Prince Charles Frederick of Prussia attacked Missunde with 9000 Prussian troops and 74 pieces of artillery. The Danish force consisted of nine companies of infantry and two squadrons of Dragoons, in all about 2000 men. The Prussians made two attacks, but were repulsed four times, and finally compelled to retreat to Eckernforde after an engagement of six hours, with a loss of from 200 to 300 killed and wounded, including several superior officers. They at first left their dead and wounded on the field, but the greater part were subsequently removed. Prince Frederick Charles is said to have been wounded in the arm. The Danish loss was from 150 to 200, including three officers killed and four wounded. One Prussian regiment is said to have been totally destroyed, and one company alone had 130 men killed and wounded. The Danish Dragoons routed the Prussian Hussars. The town of Missunde was in flames during the engagement. The result is said to have convinced Prince Frederick Charles that the Danes will oppose serious resistance to the Austrian and Prussian advance. The Danes, who during the engagement maintained a heavy cannonade from their forts against the storming parties of German infantry, continued the cannonade on Wednesday and Thursday. The Prussians have brought heavy artillery to the front, and boats are ready for the transport of troops over the Schlei, which is free from ice. On Wednesday afternoon the Austrians attacked the position of the Dannewerk at Bustrup with heavy artillery supported by riflemen. They also sent artillery and columns of infantry against Haddely. They stormed two of the works in the outer line of entrenchments, but towards dark they withdrew, leaving a few prisoners in the hands of the Danes. They captured however 200 prisoners and one rifled gun. Their loss in killed and wounded is admitted by Marshal Wrangel to be "not inconsiderable." The Danish loss in officers and soldiers is described as not important. Later in the evening firing recommenced, but ceased for a time. On the Sunday preparations for throwing a bridge across the Schlei were completed, and the Austrians attacked Jagel, when the brigade Gondercourt lost 400 men, with many superior officers. It appears that two persons offered themselves as guides, but conducted the Prussian troops against the Austrians, and that both parties fired into each other. The King of Denmark, with the Crown Prince, and the President of the Council, inspected the works at Missunde in the forenoon. On his return, His Majesty heard the firing at Bustrup, and witnessed the retreat of the enemy from the extreme point of the Bustrup works. His Majesty was expected to return to Flensburg the same evening. Two Austrian regiments (the Regiment of Hesse and the Regiment of the King of the Belgians) under Marshal von Gablenz crossed the railway bridge on Monday, to take possession of the Kronenwerk. Marshal Wrangel, the Crown Prince, and Prince Albrecht of Prussia are with the army near Rendsburg. Marshal Wrangel has issued a proclamation to the Schleswigers, stating that the German troops have come to protect their rights, and that the Civil Commissioners of Austria and Prussia will assume the administration of the Duchy of Schleswig, and the Schleswigers will follow their orders. In conclusion the proclamation advises the inhabitants to abstain from any party agitation, which would not be suffered by the Commander-in-Chief, in the interests of the Schleswigers themselves. Another proclamation announces that the Prussian and Austrian forces are to bear the name of the Schleswig-Holstein army. Prince Frederick of Augustenburg was proclaimed Duke of Schleswig-Holstein at Eckernforde in the Duchy of Schleswig on Monday, in the presence of the Prussian troops, who are advancing under the pretence of maintaining the London Protocol. The Mayor of Eckernforde was driven away. Count Baudissin, with other landed proprietors and inhabitants, also proclaimed Prince Frederick in Gottorp.

SAXONY.—The Committee of the Chamber of Deputies on the Schleswig-Holstein question has made fresh propositions, to the effect that the Government of Saxony should energetically defend the dignity and authority of the Federal Diet against all measures undertaken in opposition to the resolutions of that body, and should interfere at the Diet for the purpose of obtaining the recognition of Duke Frederick of Augustenburg. In case, however, it should not be possible to obtain an immediate vote of the Diet on the succession question, the Saxon Government should demand the admission of a representative of the Duke of Augustenburg to the Diet, and, in common with other loyal States of the Confederacy, cause an immediate increase of the Federal troops in Holstein; finally, that Schleswig should be occupied by loyal Federal troops.

BAVARIA.—The Bavarian Government has taken preliminary measures for assembling a conference of Ministers of those States having the same views as this Government, in order to come to an understanding relative to the Schleswig-Holstein question. All the replies have not yet been received.

AUSTRIA.—In the sitting of the Lower House of the Reichsrath on Monday, the recommendation of the Committee that the sum of 5,320,000 florins should be voted for the Austrian proportion of the expenses of Federal execution in Holstein, instead of the 10 millions demanded by the Government, was carried. The resolution brought forward by the Opposition censuring the course pursued by the Government, and stating that Austria has no interest in Schleswig-Holstein, and that her action should be subordinate to the policy of the Federal Diet, was rejected by 103 to 59. During the sitting Count Rechberg acknowledged the respect due to the rights of the members of the Germanic Confederation, but said that consideration should be shown by them for the position of Austria. Herr von Schmerling defended in a long speech the home and foreign policy of the Government. The semi-official General Correspondenz of Wednesday says:—

"Disquieting rumours have been current of intended intervention on the part of non-German Powers, especially England, with reference to the action of Austria and Prussia. We may express the hope that the explanations from the Vienna and Berlin Cabinets, and more particularly those sent immediately before the opening of the British Parliament, have been perfectly appreciated, and will avert all further complications."

FRANKFORT.—At the sitting of the Federal Diet on the 28th ult. a motion was brought in by the representative of Electoral Hesse advocating the acceleration of the debate upon the succession to the throne of Schleswig-Holstein. Herr von der Pfordten stated that the report of the committee on the question was ready. The Federal Civil Commissioners in Holstein having asked for instructions whether they are to convoke the Holstein Estates, as demanded by a deputation from the rural portions of the duchy, the matter was referred to the committee on Holstein affairs.

POLAND.—The Russian Government is said to have accidentally discovered some of the archives of the National Government, in consequence of which many domiciliary visits and arrests have been made in Warsaw. It appears that a boy was arrested having in his possession 14 copies of a notice from the Town Captain, advising persons not to be present at the ball of the General Ritkowski. A piece of paper was also found on the boy, on which were written 14 initials, probably of the names of the persons to whom the notices were addressed. After being bastinadoed the boy confessed the full names of these persons, who were thereupon arrested. The Russians have definitively failed in their attempts to surround and destroy Bossak, who has been successful in two more engagements in the government of Radom. Colonel Suchonim has been wounded. Rembailo is dead.

ITALY.—The Bill for the suppression of brigandage in the Neapolitan provinces was passed by the Senate on Saturday. In the Chamber of Deputies the Bill proposing taxation on movable property was agreed to. The result of the elections is generally favourable to the moderate party. Garibaldi has not succeeded at Palermo, where Signor Robandi has been elected. Signor Colonna has withdrawn from his canvass at Naples in favour of Garibaldi, expressing the hope that the electors will choose him, not as the author of the events of Aspromonte, but as the liberator of the South. The Patrie of Wednesday evening publishes, under reserve, the news that the Italian Government had protested against fortifications being erected by Austria near Peschiera, in contravention of the treaty of 1859. The Pays of Wednesday announces that Austria is making armaments on the Mincio.

IONIAN ISLANDS.—The Mémorial Diplomatique states that a protocol was signed at London by the protecting Powers of Greece on the 25th ult. The object of the protocol is to explain the convention of the 14th November last, and to restrict neutralisation to two of the Ionian Islands. At the same sitting the draught of a treaty ceding the Ionian Islands to Greece was discussed. This treaty extends to those Islands the Protectorate accorded to Greece, maintains the commercial arrangements concluded by the islands with foreign Powers while under English rule, confirms their debt, and regulates pensions and indemnities. The treaty will be referred to the consideration of the protecting Powers.

TURKEY.—The Turkish Government is strengthening all the defences of the Danube. Great agitation prevails in the Moldo-Wallachian provinces, and it is rumoured that Turkish troops will be concentrated on that frontier. Keen frost and heavy falls of snow have occurred at Constantinople. The winter is the severest known in Turkey for many years. Thirty thousand sheep have perished in the province of Gallipoli alone.

DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES.—In the Chambers on Thursday a debate took place on the reorganisation of the gendarmerie. An amendment demanding the establishment of a national guard in the towns was carried by a majority of six. Several speakers belonging to the coalition declared the establishment of such a force indispensable, to counterbalance the too absolute devotion of the army to the Prince.

INDIA.—Sir John Lawrence, the new Viceroy of India, arrived at Calcutta on the 12th ult. The war on the frontier is at an end, and the force employed against the hill tribes has been broken up.

UNITED STATES.—General Rosecrans has been appointed to command the Department of the Missouri; and General Schofield has superseded Gederal Foster at Knoxville. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times asserts that the campaign will be opened by two large armies, each equal to cope with Lee's army. One of these armies will advance by the Rappahannock, and the other by way of the Peninsula. Accounts from Charleston announce four days' bombardment of the city, commencing on the 10th ult.; 471 shells were discharged between 8 o'clock on the 12th and the evening of the 14th. On the 23d the Federals were throwing one shell into the city every five minutes night and day. The statement that four Confederate iron-clad rams are lying in Charleston harbour, nearly ready to make a descent upon Admiral Dahlgren's fleet, which has been several times made, is again repeated. One of the rams carries eight heavy guns, and is said to be very swift; another equally formidable is in course of construction. The secret expedition sent out by Admiral Dahlgren in December has proved a failure. The Maryland Legislature and the Republican members of the New Jersey Legislature have nominated Mr. Lincoln for the next Presidency. The New York Herald asserts that a strong movement is making by the Republican party to nominate General Fremont for the Presidency. Vice-President Stephens is seriously ill. Mr. Fernando Wood has made a speech in the House of Representatives in favour of peace, declaring that the administration opposed the restoration of the Union, and favoured the continuance of the war for partisan advantage. He said that the most damnable deeds were perpetrated under the plea of patriotism. Mr. Thomas Francis Meagher has delivered a panegyric on Gen. Corcoran before a large Irish audience at the Cooper Institute. His numerous references to the Fenian Brotherhood were loudly cheered. The diplomatic correspondence between Mr. Seward and Mr. Adams has been published. In one of the letters from Mr. Seward to Mr. Adams, the former states that on the whole the President is disposed to admit that the Cabinet of London has acted with "firmness and fidelity to just principles," notwithstanding the fact of its being surrounded with great difficulties. In another letter Mr. Seward says that such proceedings as a negotiation of a Confederate loan have come to be regarded by the people and the Government in America as tending to complicate the relations of both countries in such a manner as to render it difficult, if not impossible, to maintain and preserve friendship between both countries. In another letter Mr. Seward, referring to the Alexandra decision, writes to Mr. Adams that if British law must be left without amendment and be construed by the Government in accordance with the rulings of the Chief Baron, there will be left for the United States no alternative but to protect themselves and their commerce against armed cruisers proceeding from British ports as against the naval officers of the public enemy. They will also claim and insist upon indemnities for injuries committed by such expeditions. If the Federal naval force is not sufficient for the emergency, the United States must employ a private armed force afforded by the mercantile marine. The United States, he adds, are sufficiently chastened by civil war to seek peace and friendship with all nations through any concession compatible with the interests of the national life and honour. Earl Russell, in his reply, disclaims all responsibility of the British Government in regard to the proceedings of the Alabama or any other Confederate cruiser, and trusts that Mr. Adams will not again be instructed to put forward claims which the British Government cannot admit to be founded on grounds of law or justice. In another letter Earl Russell requests Mr. Adams not to repeat complaints about British subjects entering the Confederate service, unless he can prove that all British subjects in the Federal service have been discharged, and orders given not to enlist more. Despatches from London, Canada, state that companies of Canadian Riflemen have been sent to Windsor to watch the movements of Confederate sympathisers, who are suspected of designs to assist in the liberation of the Johnson Island prisoners. The Alabama left Singapore on the 21th December, and afterwards in the Straits of Malacca, burnt the British ship Martaban, from Moulmein, and the American ships Sonora and Highlander.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.—The Vancouver Island Express states that seven men returning from Cariboo—John Walker, John Robson, and James Henderson, natives of Scotland; Thomas Beatty, a native of Northumberland; Bernard Rauton, a native of Ireland; and John Beath and Robert Kelly, Canadians—have been drowned in the Fraser, the boatman having got out of the proper channel into an eddy. In local matters at Vancouver Island the most important event is the defeat of a Bill introduced into the House of Assembly which would have conferred upon aliens, after a certain term of residence, the right, upon taking the oath of allegiance, to sit in either House of the Legislature. The Bill was opposed by the British portion of the community. The fleet upon the station comprises but three vessels—viz., the corvette Cameleon, Captain Hardinge, at Nanaimo; and the gunboats Grappler and Forward, both lying at Esquimalt. The former has returned from her cruise in northern waters. She was several times placed in extremely perilous situations during gales. Her services have principally been directed to the suppression of the illegal sale of spirituous liquors to the Indian tribes. Trade has been altogether brisker in Victoria since the return of the miners at the close of the mining season, and the town exhibits a thriving aspect. The steamers to California are generally crowded with passengers returning home, as a proportion of those engaged in mining pursuits in British Columbia hail from that State. The amounts of treasure exported during November by three steamers, through the banks, exhibit a very satisfactory increase over the shipments for the same month last year. The total is 665,365 dols. 56 c. The amount exported during the corresponding month of 1862 was 436,304 dols. It must be understood that these figures do not represent the real quantity of treasure exported, as a large quantity of gold-dust leaves the colony in private hands, the amount of which the attempt to compute would necessarily prove abortive. It is, nevertheless, a well-ascertained fact that the miners who depart carry with them substantial mementos of their sojourn in the gold regions of British Columbia. With respect to the gold discoveries on Vancouver Island we have nothing of importance to chronicle. No companies have yet got fairly to work, but a number of men remain in the locality, and are actively engaged prospecting and preparing. Nearly all the girls sent out by the steamers Tynemouth and Robert Lowe are now married and settled in life. The disparity between the sexes is greater in these colonies than in any other portion of the British empire, and society much requires an increase of the female element in our population.

MEXICO.—Advices from Mexico to the 2d ult. state that in an attack on Morelia on the 17th December, Juarez was repulsed by the French with the loss of all his artillery, and 2000 prisoners. Three battalions of the army of Juarez passed over to the Imperialists. The forces of Uraga and Beriozabal were also defeated, and San Luis de Potosi was occupied by the French on Christmas-eve. Juarez fled, unattended, to Monterey, but Governor Vidaurri, of that city, would receive Juarez only as a private citizen. The French subsequently occupied La Potolin without opposition, and the Mexican General Negrete was disastrously repulsed in an attempt to retake San Luis de Potosi. Uraga, with 8000 Mexicans, was preparing to make a stand in mountain defiles near Bolima. Juarez was last reported at Zacatecas, where Doblado was concentrating his forces. It was believed, however, that Generals Doblado, Uraga, and Etchegaray, would shortly declare their adhesion to the new empire. A fresh deputation has since left for Europe, commissioned to offer the Archduke the ratification by the Provinces of the vote of the Assembly of Mexican Notables, which was the condition laid down by the Archduke for his acceptance of the crown. The New York Tribune deems this news conclusive of the speedy establishment of the new Empire, which it admits will be of the greatest advantage to the Mexican people.

SAN DOMINGO.—Intelligence from San Domingo to the 12th ult. announces a fresh victory of the Spanish troops over the insurgents. The Minister of War at Madrid has ordered the organisation of four battalions, which will be dispatched to San Domingo in March.

Parliament.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

The Session of Parliament was opened on Thursday by Royal Commission. The Commons having been summoned to the bar, the LORD CHANCELLOR read her Majesty's Speech, which was as follows:—

"MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

"We are commanded to assure you that her Majesty has great satisfaction in recurring again to the advice and assistance of her Parliament.

"Her Majesty is confident that you will share her feeling of gratitude to Almighty God on account of the Princess of Wales having given birth to a son; an event which has called forth from her faithful people renewed demonstrations of devoted loyalty and attachment to her person and family.

"The state of affairs on the continent of Europe has been the cause of great anxiety to her Majesty. The death of the late King of Denmark brought into immediate application the stipulations of the treaty of May, 1852, concluded by her Majesty, the Emperor of Austria, the Emperor of the French, the King of Prussia, the Emperor of Russia, the King of Sweden, and afterwards acceded to by the King of Hanover, the King of Saxony, the King of Wurtemburg, the King of the Belgians, the King of the Netherlands, the Queen of Spain, the King of Portugal, and the King of Italy.

"That treaty declared that it is conducive to the preservation of the balance of power, and of the peace of Europe, that the integrity of the Danish Monarchy should be maintained, and that the several territories which have hitherto been under the sway of the King of Denmark should continue so to remain; and for this purpose it was agreed that upon the death of the late King and of his uncle Prince Frederick without issue, his present Majesty King Christian IX. should be acknowledged as succeeding to all the dominions then united under the sceptre of his Majesty the King of Denmark.

"Her Majesty, actuated by the same desire to preserve the peace of Europe, which was one of the declared objects of all the Powers who were parties to that Treaty, has been unremitting in her endeavours to bring about a peaceful settlement of the differences which on this matter have arisen between Germany and Denmark, and to ward off the dangers which might follow from a beginning of warfare in the north of Europe; and her Majesty will continue her efforts in the interest of peace.

"The barbarous murders and cruel assaults committed in Japan upon subjects of her Majesty rendered it necessary that demands should be made upon the Japanese Government, and upon the Daimio by whose retainers some of these outrages were committed.

"The Government of the Tycoon complied with the demand made upon them by her Majesty's Government, and full satisfaction having been made, the friendly relations between the two governments have continued unbroken. But the Daimio

Prince of Satzuma refused to comply with the just and moderate demands which were made upon him.

"His refusal rendered measures of coercion necessary, and her Majesty regrets that while those measures have brought this Daimio to an agreement for compliance, they led incidentally to the destruction of a considerable portion of the town of Kagosima.

"Papers on this subject will be laid before you.

"The insurrection which broke out last year among some portion of the native inhabitants of New Zealand still unfortunately continues, but there is reason to hope that it will, before long, be put down.

"Her Majesty commands us to inform you that she has concluded a treaty with the Emperor of Austria, the Emperor of the French, the King of Prussia, and the Emperor of Russia, by which her Majesty consents to give up the protectorate of the Ionian Islands, and also agrees to the annexation of those Islands to the Kingdom of Greece. This treaty shall be laid before you. Her Majesty is also negotiating a treaty with the King of the Hellenes for regulating the arrangements connected with the union of the Ionian Islands with the kingdom of Greece.

"GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

"Her Majesty has desired the estimates for the ensuing year to be laid before you. They have been prepared with every attention to economy, and with a due regard to the efficiency of the public service.

"MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

"Her Majesty commands us to inform you that the condition of the country is, on the whole satisfactory. The Revenue has fully realised its expected amount; the commerce of the United Kingdom is increasing; and while the distress in the manufacturing districts has been in some degree lessened, there is reason to look forward to an increased supply of cotton from various countries which have hitherto but scantily furnished our manufacturers with this material for their industry.

"Her Majesty has directed that a commission shall be issued for the purpose of revising the various forms of subscription and declaration required to be made by the clergy of the Established Church. A copy of that commission will be laid before you.

"Various measures of public usefulness will be submitted for your consideration.

"Her Majesty commits, with confidence, the great interests of the country to your wisdom and care; and she fervently prays that the blessing of Almighty God may attend your deliberation and prosper your councils for the advancement of he welfare and happiness of her loyal and faithful people."

THURSDAY: The Address.—On the resumption of business at five o'clock the Marquis of SLIGO moved the Address in reply to the speech from the throne. The motion was seconded by Lord ABERCROMBY. The Earl of DERBY said it was gratifying to find that the country was in a prosperous condition, and that our commerce was steadily increasing, thus affording a reasonable hope for a further remission of taxation. Lancashire was no doubt exempt from that general prosperity, but there was reason to believe that in the course of a few months there would be a sufficiency of cotton, independently of any supply from the Confederate States, to work the mills during five days in each week. In Ireland as in Lancashire distress prevailed to some extent, and he hoped the attention of the Government would be turned to that country. With regard to the other topics of the Speech, he referred to the Commission to be appointed to inquire into the subject of subscription by the clergy of the Church of England. He feared that the result of such an inquiry would not be proportionate to the magnitude of the machinery employed in it. He then called the attention of the House to the portion of the Speech relating to foreign affairs. Her Majesty's Government had for two or three years past mainly rested their claim to public confidence on their foreign policy. They had abandoned the question of Parliamentary reform the moment it had served the purpose of placing them in office. The fulfilment of the promises they had made was defeated by Lord Russell, and when he was transferred to the more serene atmosphere of the House of Lords he pronounced the funeral oration of Reform. He had told them to "rest and be thankful;" and from that time their foreign policy had been the groundwork of the claim of Her Majesty's Government to public confidence. This policy he examined and criticised. Its chief principles were stated to be the maintenance of a good understanding with France, and non-intervention with the internal affairs of other countries. As to non-intervention, it would be difficult to mention a country with whose affairs Lord Russell had not interfered. In fact, his main principle seemed to have been to meddle and to muddle. With great or small States his course was lecturing, blustering, and retreating. Like Bottom, the weaver, he wished to play every part, but, above all, that of the Lion. He could roar that it "would do any man's heart good to hear him," though he also knew how to "aggravate his voice, like any sucking dove!" But, seriously, he believed that England had been lowered and humiliated in the eyes of Europe by the foreign policy of the Government. England had not a single friend on the Continent, and its remonstrances were treated with contempt, both by the larger and smaller States. As to keeping up a good understanding with the Government of France, there was hardly a single question on which her Majesty's Ministers had not thwarted its policy. From the Mexican expedition England had withdrawn, and it had not supported the Emperor's policy in relation to the Confederate States of America. It had also declined the Emperor's proposition of a Congress. He admitted the difficulties that would have been encountered, but if any country was less justified than another in meeting the suggestion with a blunt refusal, it was England. This country had no interests that could have been affected by the Congress. The proper course would have been to recognise the benevolent intentions of the Emperor, and, stating that England had no interest that could prevent her taking part in the Congress, to have expressed a readiness to co-operate in such a laudable design, provided we received assurances that other States would submit to such an arbitration. Then, if the plan failed, the failure would have caused no ill feeling between England and France. It must have been known that the Danish and German question was pending, and if the proposition of holding a Congress could have postponed but for a short time the extreme steps that had been taken, there would be now a better prospect of restoring the peace it was too late to preserve. As to the points in dispute between Germany and Denmark, it ought not to have been difficult to settle them without an appeal to arms. Had England possessed the influence she ought to exercise, she could have played the part of mediator, and the difficulties that threatened the peace of Europe might have been adjusted. But France had been alienated, Russia offended, and they could not look to any European Power for support. He hoped England was not committed to a conflict with Germany on a question on which the Germans felt so strongly. Such a war would be a great disaster, and would give France the opportunity of acting on any ambitious designs with regard to Germany if she entertained them. In every case of Lord Russell's interference he had offended, not one side only, but both. He had offended the Confederates, and from the Federals he had been met by a demand that out-blustered Lord Russell himself. The Federal Government held this country responsible for all the damage the commerce of the North had suffered from the Alabama. He hoped the despatch had been answered in a manner that would put an end to all such demands. In conclusion, he recapitulated the existing differences between Her Majesty's Government and most of the European Powers, and denounced the policy that had produced such embarrassments as a source of national danger.—Earl RUSSELL in reply said he believed that the whole country approved of the policy of non-intervention which the Government had adopted both in reference to Poland and the struggle between the Federal and the Confederate States of America. With regard to the difference between Germany and Denmark, the latter was disposed to yield every reasonable concession, but the former refused to give a delay of six weeks to enable the Rigsraad to assemble and revoke the constitution of 1862 in a constitutional manner. The proposals of England, France, Russia, and Sweden to arrange the difficulty met with no favour from the German Powers. In fact they had peremptorily rejected all overtures in the cause of peace. Within the last few hours, however, he had received a despatch from the Prussian Minister to the effect that the German Powers would merely hold Schleswig as a material guarantee for the revocation of the constitution; but he owned that it was framed in such ambiguous language that he found the greatest difficulty in understanding it. Hitherto no hope of material assistance had been held out to Denmark by England; but it was impossible to say what complexion the question might assume hereafter. In his opinion the better way would be for the Government not to take its policy from Parliament, but, having adopted a policy of its own, to stand or fall by it.—Earl GREY did not think that our foreign relations had been conducted by Earl Russell in a manner which, while maintaining the honour of the country, was as conciliatory as possible to other Powers. He was not satisfied with the policy of the Government in respect of China and Japan, any more than with the style of the despatches of the noble earl on the subject of Schleswig-Holstein. After a few words from Earl GRANVILLE, the Address was agreed to,

FRIDAY.—Metropolitan Railways.—In reply to the Earl POWIS, Earl GRANVILLE said that in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee of last session, committees of both houses would be appointed, in order to act together, and take the whole matter into consideration. Ecclesiastical Commission.—The Archbishop of YORK moved few copies of two reports of committees of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.—Lord REDESDALE and Earl POWIS objected to the expenditure of the commissioners.—The Archbishop of CANTERUYRY and the Earl of CHICHESTER defended the commissioners.—The Bishop of LONDON said he was in fauour of a thorough inquiry into all their operations. [Left sitting.]

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

THURSDAY: Income Tax.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER gave notice of his intention to introduce a Bill to amend the assessment and collection of the Income-tax.—Sir G. GREY gave notice of a Bill to amend the Act 3rd and 4th William IV., and to make further provision for the confinement and maintenance of Insane Prisoners; and to amend the Acts relating to Penal Servitude.—Mr. LOCKE KING and Mr. BAINES gave notice of Bills to extend the Franchise in Counties and Boroughs.—Mr. DILLWYN renewed his motion on the subject of the Established Church in Ireland. The Address.—Lord R. GROSVENOR moved the Address in answer to the Speech from the Throne. The motion was seconded by Mr. GOSCHEN. Mr. DISRAELI said that the Royal Speech was ambiguous, vague, inconsequential, and remarkable for several notable omissions. It contained no reference whatever to the condition of Ireland, which was critical and unsatisfactory, to the affairs of China, to the revolution in Poland, to the civil war in America, or to the proposal of the Emperor of the French for a European Congress. Nor did it contain the usual paragraph to the effect that her Majesty had received from foreign Powers expressions of their amity and good-will. The foreign policy of the Government appeared to him to be in a state of utter confusion, inconsistency, and incoherency. He protested against a Government coming forward year after year without a policy, and expecting the House of Commons to place unlimited confidence in it. What, he asked, were the objects of the Government, and who were their allies? According to all appearances we had no ally but the King of Denmark, whom we were not going to help. In the present aspect of affairs the Government were bound to confide in Parliament, and state what their policy was. If they failed to do so, they did not discharge their duty as Ministers of the Crown. He was aware he might be taunted with the stereotyped phrase, "If you are dissatisfied, why do you not move a vote of want of confidence?" His reply was, that if the Government would lay the proper papers on the table of the House, and give the Opposition the means of arriving at an opinion upon them, they would not hesitate to challenge the decision of Parliament if they were of opinion that the Government was no longer deserving of its confidence.—Lord PALMERSTON said that the objections of Mr. Disraeli were directed not so much to what was in the Royal Speech, but what was not to be found in it. With regard to the civil war in America, her Majesty's Government still deplored its continuance, and were still determined to maintain an attitude of neutrality. With respect to China our relations with that Power were satisfactory, and there was consequently no necessity for making any marked reference to them. As regarded the Congress he denied that the overtures of France had been met in an uncivil or discourteous spirit. The Congress had been declined because her Majesty's Ministers, after communicating with Austria and Russia, had come to the conclusion that it would not have led to the satisfactory results expected of it by the Emperor of the French; but he was happy to say that the relations between the two countries were as cordial at this moment as they were before the Congress was suggested. Referring to the Danish question, he said that the policy of the Government was to bring to a friendly settlement the differences arising out of the protocol of 1852. They thought it right to exhaust all the means of diplomatic persuasion, and to a great degree they had succeeded; and within the last few hours they had received information from Austria and Prussia that they would abide by the treaty, and maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy in conformity with the Treaty of 1852. Austria and Prussia had certainly put themselves in the wrong by not waiting until the Danish Parliament could assemble, and revoke the constitution of last year. England, France, Russia, and Sweden had combined in urging Denmark to revoke that constitution; but the King, however willing, could not constitutionally do so without the consent of the representatives of his people. The German Powers had declined to wait, but had promised that they would merely hold the Duchy of Schleswig as a material guarantee, a principle which had been scouted when acted on by Russia. This being the condition of affairs, the invasion, however lamentable, was not intended to lead to the dismemberment of the monarchy. In conclusion, he observed that the policy of the Government was a policy of peace, its object being to prevent quarrels and divisions in Europe, and that policy they would continue to pursue as long as it received the approbation of the country.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD contended that the Speech emanated from a divided Cabinet, which was not entitled to the confidence of Parliament.—Mr. G. DUFF entered into the details of the Schleswig-Holstein question, pursuing it at considerable length in all its intricacies and complications. He was of opinion that the Duke of Augustenburg was entitled to rule in Holstein, and probably in Schleswig. England, he considered, had no interest whatever in the quarrel.—Sir H. VERNEY discussed the details of the same question, which, he said, really was whether a Scandinavian race should oppress a German race.—Mr. HENNESSY adverted to a declaration by Earl Russell, that, by the violation of the Treaty of Vienna, Russia had forfeited a title to Poland, and asked why that declaration had been withdrawn from a despatch. He complained of the policy of the Government in relation to Poland, and accused the Emperor of Russia of being the real author of the severities exercised towards the Poles. With regard to the Danish question, he examined the history of the Treaty of London, and denied its validity. The question, he said, was one in which we ought not to have interfered. Denmark was actually dismembered, and Lord Russell was responsible for it.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER denied the suggestion that the Cabinet was divided upon the Danish question, and insisted, in opposition to Mr. Hennessy, that we were bound by the Treaty of London. The sum and substance of the advice which her Majesty's Government had given to Denmark was that she should perform her engagements, and he maintained that, by tendering that advice, they were performing the part of a true friend. He then pointed out what, he said, was a misapprehension of a declaration of Lord Palmerston in July. The case which had arisen was totally different from that contemplated in that declaration. As to the views and policy of the Government, he subscribed to the exposition given by the Premier.—Lord J. MANNERS inquired whether Lord PALMERSTON really believed in the bona fides of the declaration made by the two German Powers. If he did, it was more than Earl Russell did, who had declared that very evening, in another place, that he could not even understand it.—Mr. PEACOCKE inveighed against the diplomatic action of Lord Russell in our foreign policy.—Mr. BAILLIE charged the Government with departing from the principle of neutrality, in recognizing a blockade of the coast of Confederate America, which was not effective, but a paper blockade, and showed the disastrous effects upon British commerce of this connivance on the part of the Government.—Sir J. PAKINGTON, referring to the statement of Lord Palmerston as to a despatch he had received within the last few hours, asked Mr. Layard to say whether this despatch did not contain provisions which destroyed the value of the engagement.—Mr. LAYARD read the despatch, which elicited some laughter from the House.—Mr. WHITESIDE and Mr. KINGLAKE made a few remarks, the latter throwing out cautions to Germany as to the possible effects of the movement in that country, and to her Majesty's Government in dealing with the Danish question.—After some remarks by Sir M. FARQUHAR and Mr. NEWDEGATE, the Address was agreed to.

DECORATION OF ST. PAUL'S.—A meeting of City bankers and merchants interested in the adornment of the interior of St. Paul's Cathedral was held on Friday at the Mansion House, the Lord Mayor presiding. It was stated that to carry out the decoration of the interior according to the original designs of Sir Christopher Wren would require from 60,000*l.* to 70,000*l.*, and that of this sum only about 15,000*l.* had been raised by the efforts hitherto made. There was an impression abroad that the dean and chapter ought to find the money from their corporate funds; but it was shown that this was quite a mistake, inasmuch as the Ecclesiastical Commissioners had possession of the corporate funds, and the dean and chapter, as such, had no fund whatever at their disposal. It was unanimously resolved to make an appeal to the whole country for a guinea subscription to decorate the cathedral, but without refusing any larger sums that might be offered.

THE CITY BANQUET TO THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.—The committee charged with providing the banquet in the City to the Prince and Princess of Wales have just published an elaborate report of their proceedings. It appears that the cost of the banquet, which lasted six hours altogether, amounted to 16,590*l.*, which was afterwards reduced by about 1500*l.* by the resale of a variety of the articles used on the occasion.

CITY COMMISSION OF SEWERS.—At the last meeting of the Court of Common Council, Mr. Medwyn moved that the existing law, which required that one representative from each ward should be sent to the Commission of Sewers, be altered, so that all the members of Common Council who were eligible might be members of the Commission. Mr. Norris, M.P., moved an amendment defending the composition of the present Commission. A long discussion ensued, which ended in the motion being lost by the narrow majority of three. On Mr. Norris's amendment being put as an original motion, it was found that the numbers were equal, and as the Lord Mayor declined to give the casting vote, the commission remains as it was.

PROPOSED REGENT STREET ARCADE.—A prospectus having been published for the construction of an arcade from Regent Street to Bond Street, a meeting of the inhabitants was held a few days since at the Vestry Hall, Piccadilly, the Rev. Mr. Kempe, rector of St. James's, in the chair, to consider the moral objections to the scheme. There was some opposition manifested to the object of the meeting, but the feeling against the scheme largely preponderated, and it was resolved to oppose it by all the means in their power. A committee was accordingly formed, and subscriptions opened for the purpose. On the other hand upwards of 100 householders, shopkeepers, and other inhabitants of Regent Street, Conduit Street, Bond Street, and Piccadilly, have signed a petition in favour of the scheme. The proposed arcade is intended to run from Messrs. Lewis & Allenby's, in Regent Street, to the corner of New Bond and Clifford Streets; New Bond Street being widened by the promoters at the latter point, which is its narrowest part. The arcade will run as nearly as possible parallel to Conduit Street, and following the boundary line between the parishes of St. James's and St. George, Hanover Square. The length will be 860 feet; the width between the shops 30 feet; and the height of the roof from the subway, which will run under the arcade to afford private access to the shops, will be 60 feet. The roof will be of glass and iron, like that of the Crystal Palace. Over the whole length of the shops on each side it is proposed to construct galleries, lighted from the top, so as to be available for the exhibition of pictures.

CITY OF LONDON SCHOOL.—The Senior Wranglership of the University of Cambridge has this year again been won by a pupil of the City of London School and a citizen of London, Mr. Henry John Purkiss, son of the late Mr. John Purkiss, of Little Distaff Lane. This is the second instance within four years in which the same high University distinction has been gained by a pupil of this school, a circumstance which is said to be unprecedented in the history of any other public school.

MR. PEABODY'S GIFT.—The first of the buildings which have been erected by the trustees of Mr. Peabody's munificent gift to the City of London will be ready for occupation in the course of the present month. The building, which has cost 22,000*l.*, is situate at Bethnal Green. The number of applications for rooms far exceeded those to be disposed of, and some difficulty has been experienced in making a selection of the occupants. Rooms have been constructed of the dimensions of 12 feet by 15 feet 6 inches, a sufficient size for a small family. There are rooms of a smaller size, and some for single men. There are also shops on the basement with suites of rooms adjoining, which, it is believed, can be let at a rental of about 60*l.* a year. The domestic comforts of the inmates have been carefully studied. There are separate lavatories for the men and for the women and children, a plentiful supply of water, and excellent ventilation. The rent however of the rooms (which will be from 2*s.* to 3*s.* and 5*s.* a week) will be above the means of the poor for whom Mr. Peabody mainly intended his gift.

THE GREAT EASTERN.—On Saturday the first portion of the bonded stores of the Great Eastern, which have been recently seized at the suit of Mr. Parry, ship-store merchant, of Leadenhall Street, for a balance of upwards of 5000*l.*, were sold by auction at Liverpool, under a sheriff's warrant, by an order of the Court of Queen's Bench. The articles sold consisted of the exciseable stores only, and realised only nominal sums. —On Thursday Dr. Lushington gave judgment in the Admiralty Court on the claim which the owners of the Jane had brought against the owners of the Great Eastern for the collision which took place between those vessels, by which the former was sunk. His decision was that the Great Eastern was solely to blame for the collision.

THE PAPER DUTIES.—A deputation of paper-makers had an interview with the President of the Board of Trade on Friday, to represent to him the evil consequences of the continuance of the export duty on rags in foreign countries. Mr. Milner Gibson disputed the gloomy view which the paper-makers took of the prospects of their trade, and quoted the increased number of licences that had been taken out for the manufacture last year as compared with the year preceding. He admitted, however, that the continuance of a high export duty on rags by foreign Governments was a fair subject of complaint by our own manufacturers, for which the Government would do its best to procure them redress, and stated that the Italian Government had within the last few days abolished the duties on the exportation of rags.

THE RECENT DEATH OF A COLUMBINE BY FIRE.—At the adjourned sitting on Madame Charles on Friday, the evidence proved that deceased had transgressed the positive orders of the management by stepping over the board which was intended to protect the actors from the gas-jets, and that she admitted in the hospital that her death was caused by that act. The jury returned a verdict of Accidental Death, but recommended farther protection in all cases of lights upon the stage.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return reports a decided improvement in the public health, the deaths in London, which were 2180 in the previous week, having fallen to 1749 in the week that ended Saturday, Jan. 30. The average number in the corresponding weeks of 10 years 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1529. The present return, therefore, although much less than any since the cold weather set in, exceeded the average by 220. During the week the births of 1044 boys and 1063 girls, in all 2107 children, were registered in London. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2035.

Provincial.

BIRMINGHAM.—At a meeting of the Town Council on Tuesday, a report respecting the completion of the purchase of Aston Park, was read by the chairman of the Baths and Parks Committee, recommending that the sum of 7000*l.* offered as a donation by the Rev. Dr. Miller's committee be accepted; that the park be purchased for 26,000*l.*, under the powers conferred by the local Act of 1854, and that a sum of 19,000*l.* be voted by the Town Council to complete the sum necessary for this purpose. The chairman moved, and Alderman Manton seconded, the resolution for the adoption of this report; and a discussion ensued which occupied five hours. In the course of it several amendments were moved, but finally, after a strong appeal in favour of purchase by the mayor, the recommendation of the Committee was carried by a majority of 34 to 14. The Park which her Majesty graciously condescended to open in 1858 will therefore now become the property of the people of Birmingham.

COWES.—Her Majesty last week honoured Professor Tyndall with an invitation to Osborne, in order that he might deliver two lectures on electricity, for the instruction of the younger members of the Royal family. The lecture for the 29th ult. was upon static electricity and the phenomena of the Leyden battery; and that on the 30th on dynamic electricity and the effects due to the voltaic current. On Friday week her Majesty spent some considerable time in going over Parkhurst Prison, the greater part of which is occupied by female convicts, and the other part by boy convicts. Attached to the females' prison is a nursery for the children born of convicts since their conviction, and in that department her Majesty remained for some time. On the following Monday the Hon. Mrs. Bruce drove to the prison with a load of toys for the nursery, a present from her Majesty.

GREAT DRIFFIELD.—The London detectives have been successful in tracing some of the fire raisers who have lately done so much damage on the Yorkshire Wolds. On Wednesday week a man named Sterwood was brought up before the magistrates in this town, charged with four distinct cases of fire raising. Two other men were connected with him, but they have for the present evaded apprehension, and it is supposed have left the district, for since the capture of the prisoner there have been no more fires. The magistrates committed the prisoner for trial. A young Irishman named Moran, who had been employed on one of the farms where the fires have occurred, had previously been committed for trial by the magistrates of South Holderness at Patrington.

DERBY.—The magistrates of this county last week replied to Sir George Grey's last letter on the Townley case. After disputing several statements referred to in the Home Secretary's letter, they stated that one of the medical men on whose certificate Townley was spared was not a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, and therefore was not qualified to act. They called on the Home Secretary to apply the latter portion of the Act as he had already applied the former, by calling upon the authorities of Bethlehem Hospital for information as to the present state of Townley's mind, and to act upon their report, whatever it might be. On Tuesday the visiting justices received the following important communication from Sir G. Grey.—

"Gentlemen,—I am directed by Secretary Sir George Grey, with reference to previous correspondence with you as to the case of George Victor Townley, to inform you that, with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor, he requested Dr. W. C. Hood and Dr. J. C. Bucknill, visitors of Chancery lunatics, together with Dr. Meyer, the medical superintendent of the Criminal Lunatic Asylum at Broadmoor, and Dr. Helps, the medical superintendent of Bethlehem Hospital, to examine into Townley's state of mind, and to report thereupon. Sir G. Grey has received from these gentlemen a report, a copy of which is herewith transmitted to you. While the letters—copies of which were sent to you on the 23rd and 25th ult.—from the magistrates who signed the certificates of Townley's insanity leave no reason for doubting that they were convinced of his insanity at the time when the certificates were signed by them, the present report from four medical gentlemen of great experience in mental diseases appears to Sir G. Grey conclusive as to Townley being of sound mind. A certificate to that effect, as required by the Act 21 and 4th Victoria, cap. 54, has since been received by the Secretary of State. I am further to inform you that, taking all the circumstances of this case into consideration, Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that it would not be right that the capital sentence should now be carried into effect, but that it ought to be commuted to penal servitude for life. This course has therefore been taken, and the prisoner will be dealt with accordingly. I am to add that it is the intention of Her Majesty's Government to propose an amendment of the Act under which the certificates of insanity in this case were given.—I am, Gentlemen, your obedient servant, H. WADDINGTON."

"To T. W. Evans, Esq., M.P., and W. Mundy, Esq., M.P."

"Bethlehem Hospital, Jan. 28.

"We, the undersigned, having been requested by Secretary Sir George Grey to examine into the state of mind of George Victor Townley, a prisoner under sentence of death in Bethlehem Hospital, and to report our opinion as to whether he is of unsound mind, report as follows:—'We have carefully considered the copies of papers supplied to us, and on the 26th and 27th days of this month we have had two lengthened interviews with the prisoner, and the conclusion at which we have unanimously arrived is that George Victor Townley is of sound mind. The demeanour of the prisoner during each interview was calm and self-possessed, with the exception that at the commencement of the second interview he displayed and expressed annoyance at the repeated examinations to which he was being subjected. Neither in mode of speech nor in look and conduct was there any sign of insanity observable in him. His prompt apprehension of the purport of our questions, and the manner in which he replied to them, indicated the possession of good intellectual capacity. The opinions which he avows that men, as the creatures of circumstance, are not justly responsible for their actions, are opinions at which he appears to have arrived by ordinary processes of reasoning. That he knows that he is responsible for the commission of crime is made clear by his own words used to us,—'I expected to be hanged because I killed her, and am not such a fool as not to know that the law hangs for murder. I did not think of it at the time, or I should not have done it.' We think that his statement that he killed Miss Goodwin to repossess himself of her as his property was an afterthought adopted to justify his crime. He acknowledged to us that he had come to this opinion after the deed was done. The supposition that he killed Miss Goodwin under the influence of the opinion that in so doing he was repossessing himself of her as his property is inconsistent with his own repeated statement to us that, without forethought of any kind, he killed her under the influence of sudden impulse. He explained to us that by killing Miss Goodwin to repossess himself of her as his property he simply meant that he took her out of the hands of his enemies, and placed her in a position where she would wait, and where he would rejoin her when he died. The prisoner endeavoured to represent the catastrophe to us as due to the influence of sudden impulse, but the details which we elicited from him show that he used threats of murder for some time before he struck the first blow. We think that his clear memory of the events attending the crime, and also the attempts which he has made to misrepresent the state of his mind and memory at the time of these events, are evidence of his sanity. We are of opinion that he does not entertain any delusion on the subject of a conspiracy against him, but that he uses the term conspiracy to express the real opposition which he has met with from the members of Miss Goodwin's family to his engagement with her, and also to express the feeling that they are hostile to him. We have considered the evidence of hereditary predisposition to insanity given in the papers supplied to us, and our opinion of the prisoner's state of mind has not been altered thereby. We examined the apothecary and also the chief attendant of Bethlehem as to the conduct of Townley since he has been in detention at the hospital—both of them have had him under daily and special observation—and they assure us that neither in conduct, manner, or conversation had they been able to observe in him any of the peculiarities which they are in the habit of remarking among the insane. W. CHARLES HOOD, M.D., Visitor of Chancery Lunatics; JOHN CHARLES BUCKNILL, M.D., Visitor of Chancery Lunatics; JOHN MEYER, M.D., Medical Superintendent of the Criminal Lunatic Asylum; W. HELPS, M.D., Medical Superintendent of the Royal Bethlehem Hospital.'"

HAYLE.—The county magistrates of this division have opened an important inquiry in reference to a charge brought against Mr. Richard Oke Miliett, surgeon, of Penpol, of having administered poison to his brother, Mr. Jacob Curnow Millett, with intent to cause his death. The main facts of the case are these:—It appears that Mr. Jacob Curnow Millitt, an elderly man, had been living with his brother (the accused) at Penpol, in the parish of Phillack. For nearly a month prior to his decease he had been suffering from a cold. His brother had recommended him to stay at home, but on one or two evenings he went out to go to chapel. On Christmas eve the servant noticed that his cough was worse than usual, and on the morning of the 30th ult., in answer to her inquiry, he said that he felt very poorly. Those who sat at the table were the deceased, the accused, Miss Davy, a relative of the late Sir Humphry Davy, and her nephew, Master Rawlins, who were on a visit to the house. The deceased is stated to have eaten with unusual heartiness, partaking of beef and vegetables and ale, and also eating a baked apple and four apples uncooked. At the conclusion of the repast the deceased went upstairs to his bedroom. After remaining there about an hour he called the servant to get him his hat and coat, stating that he wanted to go out. The servant supplied him with these things, and had returned to the kitchen, when he again called to her, and told her to bring him a glass of cold water, complaining of thirst, as he had also done in an earlier part of the day. She took him a tumbler of water, immediately, which he drank, and she then continued her work. She afterwards found that the deceased had not left the house, but was standing in the drawing-room, rubbing his forehead with his hand, which was a common practice with him. She asked him what was the matter, and he said that he was not feeling well, and that he had a pain in his stomach. The servant then went to the apple chamber and called her master, and he came into the house. By his advice a glass of brandy was given to the deceased, and the accused returned to the apple chamber. The deceased said he thought he would go out for a walk, but after some persuasion from the servant he remained at home, and asked for a glass of whisky, which he drank. The deceased subsequently became worse, and he was taken up to bed insensible, where he vomited several times. He died on the following morning. Nothing was administered to him for twelve hours before his death. An inquest was held on the body, and the jury returned a verdict that the deceased died from natural causes. Since the body was interred a suspicion has arisen that the deceased had been poisoned. Upon the information of Mr. William Millett, of Hayle, brother of the deceased, and Mr. Frederick Edmonds, surgeon, the Home Secretary, Sir George Grey, gave an order for the exhumation of the body. This was done last week, and certain portions of the body were sent to a surgeon for analysis. The result of this examination was the issue of a warrant by one of the county magistrates, and the same evening the accused was arrested at his residence. Since then the case has proceeded very slowly, and there does not appear to be any prospect of its being brought to a speedy conclusion. The evidence at the last sitting showed the existence of a will made by the deceased gentleman prior to his death, in the presence of the accused and two witnesses, and the provisions of that document will determine the question as to who could have had a motive in hastening his death. The evidence of one of the medical gentlemen who examined the body after its exhumation was gone into at length, and the examination made by them only shows that the body was in a very healthy state. The contents of the stomach, however, had not been examined by them, but sent to Professor Taylor to undergo an analytical examination, and the result of that gentleman's search will either dispose of the charge at once or make it assume a much more serious aspect than at present. This result has not yet been made known, and is looked for with considerable interest in all parts of Cornwall, where the family has been well known for many generations as one of high respectability.

HITCHIN.—A man named Samuel Wabey and a boy named Joseph Hanmer, were brought before the magistrates last week on a charge of having robbed Mr. Edward Foreman under the circumstances already mentioned in our Provincial news. It will be remembered that the body of Foreman was found lying on the road dead, and it was supposed he had been murdered; but it was afterwards ascertained that he had been thrown out of his cart and robbed as he lay on the ground. The evidence of the boy, who was admitted as a witness for the prosecution, left no doubt of the guilt of the prisoner Wabey, who was accordingly committed for trial at the assizes, bail being refused.

IPSWICH.—A jobbing shoemaker, named James Gooding, living in a narrow back street called Albert Street, in the parish of St. Clement, one of the poorest parts of this town, murdered one of his children last week, and then committed suicide by cutting his throat. It appeared from the evidence at the inquest that he had for years been in an indifferent state of health, and since September, when he lost three children in a week from diphtheria, he had been in a very desponding state of mind. Though a sober man previously, he had latterly indulged in drink, but had always spoken in affectionate terms of the deceased child, who was both imbecile and a cripple, and said he only lived for her. The evidence left no doubt that he was labouring at the time under temporary insanity.

LEAMINGTON.—A young man called Hugh Colville Goldsmith has been committed for trial by the magistrates of this town, on the charge of obtaining 30*s.* by means of false pretences, from Sir Morgan George Crofton, Bart., of Leamington. It appeared that the accused, who is the son of the late Commander Goldsmith, R.N., the great nephew of Oliver Goldsmith, wrote to Sir Morgan Crofton from Bilton, near Rugby, representing that he was the son of Major Stuart, an officer in the army, who was well known to Sir Morgan's late son, Colonel Crofton, who was murdered some time since by a soldier at the Preston depot; that he had the chance of a situation as tutor near Lancaster, and begging for 30*s.* to enable him to accept it, as his friends who could assist him were on the Continent; his widowed mother, who resides at Penzance, being utterly unable to do so. Sir Morgan, believing the statements to be true, sent the money; but finding that he had been imposed upon, he gave information to the police, and the prisoner was apprehended on a warrant at Rugby. He admitted having written the letter to Sir Morgan, which he did in the name of Henry Stuart, and also that the statements in it were false.

LEOMINSTER.—A woman called Mary Anne Watkins was murdered last week by her husband in a field near this town. They had been living apart for some time, and the husband had frequently uttered threats against his wife, who was an honest hardworking woman, because she had refused to live with him again. In consequence of his violence deceased had applied to the Board of Guardians, and the prisoner had sworn that she should not say anything more against him. The murder was accompanied with great violence, and the ground on the neighbourhood bore marks of a severe struggle. The man immediately absconded, but was apprehended two days afterwards, when marks of blood were found on his clothes, and the clogs he wore were found to correspond with the impressions on the ground. At the inquest on Friday the jury returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against the prisoner, who was committed for trial.

LINCOLN.—Messrs. Dawes, of the Milton Ironworks, near Barnsley, have taken an extensive track of land on the Lincolnshire side of the river Trent, opposite Keadby, and opened extensive blast furnaces there. They are making about 500 tons of iron per week. The immense mineral wealth of that locality, which was only discovered about two years ago, will give employment to large numbers of men, and when railway communication is opened, as it shortly will be, with the Yorkshire side of the river, the new trade will, it is expected, still further be developed.

SHEERNESS.—At the petty sessions at Sittingbourne on Tuesday week Mr. Rumble, the inspector of machinery at Sheerness Dockyard, was charged with a breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act in having procured men to enter for the Confederate service on board her Majesty's ship Scylla, which had been sold out of her Majesty's service, and when taken out to sea was renamed the Rappahannock of the Confederate States Navy. The prosecution was conducted for the Crown by Mr. Vernon Harcourt. Several witnesses were examined at great length, after which Mr. Hardinge Giffard addressed the Court on behalf of the defendants, and strongly urged that there was not a sufficient amount of evidence to show that the charge had been proved against him. The Bench having consulted, the Chairman said that it was the opinion of the magistrates that the case should be sent for trial by a higher court. Bail was taken for the defendant to the amount of 1000*l.*

STONE.—A good deal of excitement has been produced in this town by a mysterious discovery which was made a few days ago. In a street leading out of the town resides a member of the medical profession, with his wife and family, and in the same house has lived for many years a maiden sister of the wife's. It was known that this lady had lived there, and had not been known to leave, and the neighbours sometimes wondered why she was never about, and she had not been seen out of the house for eleven years. The recent discovery of a concealed lunatic in Cornwall ultimately led to an application to the magistrates for a warrant to investigate the circumstances, and a few days ago two magistrates of the neighbourhood and some police officers entered the house for that purpose. They found the lady in a front upper room, sitting on a straw mattress, her limbs drawn close together, and her body leaning forward on them, with but little covering on her, and looking as if she had been indifferently fed. The room had all the appearance of a room which had not been entered for a dozen years. It was covered with dust, dirt, and cobwebs. Under the bedstead and even on the mattress were piles of dirty plates, altogether about 40, on which the occupant of the room had had her meals served, and on which were bones, some of them yellow with age. She held a bone, which had been polished by licking, tightly gripped in her hand, and was with difficulty induced to let it go. The mattress was dirty, as also were the scanty clothes which covered her, and the equally scanty bed-clothes. Her person was very neglected, and showed that her ablutions had been rare and not recent. Her hair was matted, and a compact mass of it partially covered her face. Her toe-nails had remained uncut so long as to be quite a curiosity in their way. They had grown to a length of about three inches, and were curled something in the form of a corkscrew, with sharp points. It is said that the only way of reducing them to their proper proportions will be by sawing them. The finger-nails were not so bad, the lady, no doubt, having kept them short by biting them. The strangest part of this story is that the lady herself is said to have chosen her retreat, and those who know her peculiarities are disposed to place some amount of credence in the story. She appears to be about 48 years of age, and to have been all her life known by her relations as a person of "queer" disposition, and exceedingly unsociable and reserved, and is said to have been "crossed in love" in her younger days. She has been removed from her prison, cleaned, and comfortably clothed, and is now being carefully attended to. It has been suggested that she is insane, but that does not appear to be the case.

WADEBRIDGE.—On Friday night four burglars paid a visit to Treverna, the residence of Mr. Bernard, near this town. In attempting to force the front door they awoke Mr. Bernard and his niece. The latter, quite a girl, courageously escaped by a back window down the kitchen tiles, and, in her night-dress, went for help to some men at Trenant, about half a mile off, and returned the same way. Meanwhile Mr. Bernard took down his double-barrelled gun, loaded it, made his appearance before the four burglars, and presented the gun at them. The men were completely cowed. Two of them scampered off as fast as possible, but the other two stood still under the threat of being shot if they stirred, while a lad went to the stables, saddled a horse, rode to Wadebridge, a distance of two miles, and gave information to the constabulary, who lost no time in repairing to Treverna and taking the thieves into custody.

THE NEW REGISTRATION ACT.—Archbishop Cullen, the Roman Catholic Primate, has issued a letter of great length to his clergy on the subject of the new Registration of Marriages Act. While not wholly approving the enactment, he enjoins his clergy to comply with its provisions. At the same time he quotes the decrees of the Council of Trent to prove that all persons are excommunicated and living in a state of concubinage who have contracted marriages in the office of the public registrar. Dr. Walshe, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Ossory, has also issued instructions to the clergy of his diocese in reference to the new Act. He simply says "that the purpose of the new law is obviously highly important, and that the Act seems to have been framed so as to avoid interference with the discipline of his Church, and to entail as little trouble as is compatible with the attainment of the judicious and laudable objects of the law."

INAUGURATION OF THE DARGAN TESTIMONIAL.—The ceremony of uncovering the statue erected in Leinster Lawn, in honour of Mr. William Dargan, and to commemorate his patriotism and munificence, as illustrated upon that site by the Great Exhibition of 1853, took place on Saturday. The Lord Lieutenant officiated, and delivered an address suitable to the occasion.

OPENING OF THE IRISH NATIONAL GALLERY.—The new National Gallery, the first stone of which was laid in 1859 by the late Earl of Eglinton, when Lord Lieutenant, was formally opened by the Earl of Carlisle on Saturday. It stands on the north side of Leinster Lawn, which is now entirely closed in on three sides by magnificent blocks of buildings, having the splendid old mansion on the west side forming a front, and flanked on the north and south by the National Gallery and the Museum of Natural History.

ORDER OF ST. PATRICK.—The ceremony of investing Lord Dufferin and Clancboye, the author of "High Latitudes," as a Knight Companion of the Order of St. Patrick, took place on the 28th ult. at Dublin Castle. The Lord Lieutenant, as Grand Master of the Order, officiated. The Archbishop of Dublin at the same sitting was invested with the dignity of Chancellor of the Order. After the investiture the Lord Lieutenant conferred the honour of Knighthood on Mr. William Wilde, for his important services as Medical Commissioner of the Census.

COURT OF PROBATE AND DIVORCE: O'Kane v. O'Kane and Palmerston.—This case again came before the Court on Tuesday, in accordance with the rule granted last week, calling upon the petitioner to explain why the suit had not been proceeded with. Counsel for the petitioner now produced affidavits from his solicitor, stating that the case had been compromised, but insisting that he was in a condition to prove all the charges he had made. He could not say with whom the case was compromised, but was instructed distinctly to state that neither the respondent nor the co-respondent had anything to do with the compromise. He intimated that as the parties had been married by a Roman Catholic priest, it was not improbable that the compromise had been effected by members of that communion, who are well known to be opposed to the law of divorce. The solicitor for the wife made an affidavit on her part, denying that she was any party to the compromise, and the prosecutor's solicitor said that he was informed by the solicitors to Lord Palmerston that they also knew nothing about a compromise. The Queen's Advocate, who appeared for Lord Palmerston, said he had not even seen the affidavits, upon which the judge refused to proceed farther, but adjourned the case till Thursday. On that day the Queen's Advocate said that he was instructed to deny explicitly that Lord Palmerston was in any way a party to the withdrawal of the case; and the counsel for the petitioner again admitted that neither the respondent nor the co-respondent had been a party to the arrangement that the suit should not be prosecuted. After a long discussion on incidental topics raised by the affidavits, the Judge Ordinary said that the suit must be dismissed. The petitioner came into court with his complaint and he now retires from it without any imputation upon either of the other parties to the suit, and without any suggestion of an arrangement between himself and either of them, on grounds best known to himself, and in consequence of what he by his counsel calls an arrangement with his friends. It is no doubt much to be regretted that a man should be able to attack the character of a woman whom he calls his wife, and to hold her up to public censure without cause. Owing to the publicity which happily attends every step in our courts, that evil is unfortunately aggravated, but the remedy is to be found in the same publicity. The chastity of the respondent, who has in vain challenged inquiry into and proof of the charges against her, has received no tarnish from this ordeal, and, as for the petitioner, he retires from the suit with the evil words still on his lips, and will probably meet with the censure of some and with the contempt of many. The Court cannot part with this suit without one word respecting the co-respondent. It is a matter of great satisfaction to the Court that a name never mentioned in England without just pride should have passed from its annals without a stain. His lordship uttered these words with great emphasis, and they were followed by expressions of applause from the persons who crowded the court. Later in the day, Mr. D. Seymour, for the respondent, said he had omitted to ask for costs. The Judge-Ordinary: Certainly. The man who has presented a petition to this Court and has voluntarily abandoned it ought to pay the costs. The petition was accordingly dismissed.

COURT OF CHANCERY: Broun v. Kennedy.—The Lords Justices on Friday gave judgment in this appeal. The suit was instituted by Mr. and Mrs. Broun against Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy, barrister-at-law, to set aside a deed executed by Mrs. Broun, formerly Mrs. Swinfen, before her marriage with Mr. Broun, in favour of Mr. Kennedy, of the reversion in fee, after Mrs. Broun's death, in the Swinfen Hall estates. The deed was dated the 10th of May, 1859, and was expressed to be made in consideration of the services rendered to Mrs. Swinfen in defending, and finally establishing, her title to the Swinfen estates, and also in consideration of her esteem and friendship for Mr. Kennedy. It will be remembered that the Master of the Rolls some time ago ordered Mr. Kennedy to give up this deed, and the present was an appeal against that decision. Their lordships gave judgment to the effect that the contents of the deed were alone sufficient to condemn it, on the assumption that the recitals contained in it were true; but, with respect to their truth, the defendant, who drew up the instrument, could not certainly complain. They were of opinion that, apart from all considerations of public policy, the lady had a right to complain seriously and effectually that she obtained under that want of sufficient advice, information, and assistance on the subject, before and when she executed the deed, which, in their judgment, was an instrument of great and substantial and manifest impropriety—one from which the lady who executed it, however clever she might be, and probably was, had a plain right to be delivered, and against which relief could not be refused to her, without manifest discredit to the administration of justice. The appeal was therefore dismissed with costs.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH: Yelverton v. Yelverton.—The Divorce Marriage Case.—This was an application to allow Mr. Forbes, a Hull, who obtained a judgment against the Hon. Major Yelverton in the Irish courts for money advanced in support of his wife, to serve notice upon the major otherwise than personally, as it was alleged that he kept out of the way to avoid the service. The Court, however, held that sufficient proof had not been laid before them of all necessary diligence having been used to discover the defendant, and for the present the application was refused. [Major Yelverton has since presented a petition, through his agents, to the House of Lords, and which was served the same day on Mrs Yelverton's agents, stating that on the 10th of February, 1863, he submitted a petition of appeal to their lordship's house, complaining of an interlocutor pronounced by the first division of the Court of Session in Scotland on the 19th December, 1862, in conjoined actions of declarator of marriage at the respondent's instance against the appellant, of putting to silence at the instance of the appellant against her. That the respondent duly entered an appearance on the above petition of appeal, and lodged her answer on the 29th of June, 1863. The petitioner on the said 29th of June, 1863, lodged his printed case with the Clerk of the Parliaments, and the said petition of appeal was on the 2d of June, 1863, set down for hearing before the House of Lords. The petitioner goes on to state that the "only" question for the consideration of their lordships upon this appeal was whether the respondent was the lawful wife of the appellant. The petitioner concludes by asking that their lordships will be pleased to fix an early day for the hearing of the said appeal.]

BAIL COURT: The Case of Colonel Waugh.—This was an application to discharge Colonel Waugh from prison, a similar application to the Court of Bankruptcy having been unsuccessful. Justices Crompton and Shee, in giving judgment, said they were sorry for the unpleasant position in which the colonel was placed, but as he could put an end to his hardships by going through the court they declined to make the order for his discharge.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.—Libel.—The Rev. Thomas Richardson Birch, chaplain of the Slough Union, was charged with uttering a libel against Mr. Taylor, of Slough, with whom he had formerly lived as tutor to his boys. The jury found him guilty, but recommended him to mercy on account of the excitement under which he was labouring at the time. He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Newgate. Murder and Piracy on the High Seas.—John Lyons, 22; Francisco Blanco, 23; Ambrosio or Mariscio Durranno, 25; Basilio de Los Santos, 22; George Carlos, 20; Marcus Portos, otherwise Watto, 23; Marsolino, 32; and Miguel Lopez, otherwise Joseph Chuncis, 22, were arraigned on an indictment charging them with the crime of wilful murder on the high seas, within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty of England, on the 10th of September last. The prisoners are Spaniards, except two—namely, Carlos, who is a Greek, and Watto, who is a Turkish subject. Lyons is a Manilla man, and his real name is said to be Leon, and, like most of the prisoners, he is a mulatto. The prisoners severally pleaded Not Guilty, and elected to be tried by an English in preference to a mixed jury. The Solicitor-General conducted the prosecution for the Crown. The leading facts of the case were fully noticed in our Metropolitan news on the arrival of the prisoners in England. It will be remembered that the captain and chief mate were put to death; that the ship was plundered, and, as soon as she had been brought in sight of land, scuttled and abandoned. The charge was established by the evidence of the second mate, whose life was spared in order that he might take the vessel to the coast of the River Plate, where he made his escape and gave information to the consul, who had all the prisoners arrested and sent home for trial. The jury returned a verdict of Guilty against all the prisoners except Carlos. Mr. Baron Bramwell, having assumed the black cap, said, addressing the convicts,—You have been found guilty of the crime of wilful murder, and it is now my duty to pass upon you the sentence of the law. After some experience and very much reflection, I have come to the conclusion that I shall best discharge that duty by adding to the form of words prescribed by law, no observation of mine of any sort or kind. The learned Judge then pronounced the sentence of Death in the usual form, and it was afterwards interpreted to them in their own languages. One of the counsel for the Crown then said they intended to proceed with the indictment against Carlos for scuttling the ship.

SURREY SESSIONS: Embezzlement of Rates.—William Henry Manners, one of the rate collectors at Lambeth, was tried on a charge of having embezzled nearly 200*l*. of the rates which he had collected. He was found Guilty and sentenced to four years' penal servitude.

Obituary.

HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUCHESS OF PARMA died at Venice on Monday. The Princess Louise Marie-Therese of Bourbon was the daughter of the late Duke de Berri, and married, in 1845, Prince Ferdinand Charles III of Bourbon, Duke of Parma, who succeeded to the Dukedom of Parma, Piacenza, and the States annexed, on the abdication of his father in 1842. His royal highness did not long reign over his Duchy, his career having been cut short by an assassin, who stabbed him in the abdomen with a dagger in the streets of Parma in March 1854. The late Duchess was immediately proclaimed Regent during the minority of her son, Prince Robert. On the outbreak of the Italian revolution in 1860, the Duchess-Regent found it necessary to quit her States, which were annexed to Piedmont at the end of the year, notwithstanding a protest sent by her from Zurich, and the clauses in her favour inserted in the Treaty of Villafranca. The young Duke, Robert I., the present claimant to the Duchy, who was born in 1848, and was consequently six years old at the death of his father, has been living in retirement with his mother since their withdrawal from Parma in 1860. He has one brother and two sisters, viz., the Princess Marguerite, born in 1847; the Princess Alice, born in 1849; and Prince Henri, born in 1851.

THE DUCHESS OF GORDON died at Huntly Lodge, Aberdeenshire, on the 31st ult., from gout in the stomach, in her 74th year. Her Grace was the daughter of Mr. Brodie, of the Burn, Kincardineshire, and was married to the 5th Duke of Gordon in 1813. The Duke died in 1836, and as he left no issue, the title became extinct. The Duke of Richmond now succeeds to the Aberdeenshire estates. The Duchess of Gordon has for some years past lived in a very retired manner at Huntly Lodge, doing a great deal of good among the poor, promoting education, and otherwise working for the good of the district. She was the main founder and supporter of the out-door religious meetings that have taken place during the last few years in Huntly.

LIEUT.-GENERAL SIR ALEXANDER KENNEDY CALEB KENNEDY, K.C.B., K.H., of Kinkell, Knockbrecht-shire, Colonel of the Scots Greys, died on the 2nd ult. at his residence, Oxford Terrace, Hyde Park, in his 81st year. He entered the army in 1802, and served in the Peninsula with the Royal Dragoons from 1809 to 1813. At the battle of Fuentes d'Onor he had his horse struck down by a shell, and was thanked for his services by Lord Lynedoch during the siege of Badajoz. He served also in the campaign of 1815, and at the battle of Waterloo had two horses killed under him, besides himself receiving two severe wounds. While leading his squadron in a successful charge against General D'Erlon's corps at Waterloo, perceiving, on a flank movement of the enemy to the left, he changed the direction of his squadron, ran the whole through the body who opposed it, and captured the eagle which belonged to the 105th French Regiment of Infantry, and is now in Caledon House.

ADMIRAL JAMES DUNCAN, [illegible] the 4th son of [illegible], Perthshire, was born in [illegible] the Navy in 1787, and after serving [illegible] accompanied Lord Macartney to China. As Lieutenant he served at the Blockade of Brest, took part in Lord Bridport's action in 1798, and afterwards served in the North Sea and in the West Indies. After being promoted to the rank of Commander in 1802, he served in the West Indies, on the coast of North America, the Cape of Good Hope, and Rio de la Plata, where he took charge of the flotilla appointed to co-operate in the unfortunate attack upon Buenos Ayres. He was subsequently engaged in blockading the ports along the coast of France, and in 1808 commanded a division of the fleet during the operations in the Scheldt. He attained [illegible] in 1837, accepted the rank of retired Rear-Admiral in 1841, became Vice-Admiral in 1854, and Admiral in 1857.

MISS ADELAIDE ANNE PROCTER, the eldest daughter of Mr. Bryan Waller Procter, better known under the literary pseudonym of "Barry Cornwall." Miss Procter, who was about 30 years of age, first attracted notice about five years since by the publication of two volumes of poems, entitled "Lyrics and Legends," and has since that time been somewhat prominently before the public as a contributor to the monthly magazines. She was one of the writers in the "Victoria Regia," a volume containing a collection of poems from living authors, issued from the Victoria Press.

Miscellaneous.

THE CENSUS.—A Parliamentary paper giving the general results of the Census of 1861, was published on Monday. After describing the means taken to obtain accurate returns of the population, which are themselves of much interest, the Return proceeds to describe the principal results obtained in the following terms:—1. POPULATION, HOUSES, AND FAMILIES.—1. Persons Absent from the United Kingdom.—The people of these islands are more moveable than other nations, and large numbers of them are always abroad, sometimes on distant voyages, sometimes on the Alps, sometimes in the deserts of Africa, or in the strangest places; but generally in ships at sea, in the great commercial entrepôts, in the capitals of Europe, in our colonies, or in the States of America. The measures which were taken to procure the returns of the army and navy and merchant seamen abroad, either on sea or land, have been already described, and they were successful. The numbers exceeded a quarter of a million (250,356), of whom 162,273 belonged by birth to England and Wales. The army and navy of a country are an integral part of its population; and they should, therefore, be counted among its numbers. But the population of travellers and of temporary settlers in other States are less accurately defined; their numbers are not easily ascertained, and they are represented to some extent by exiles and foreign visitors in England. They are therefore excluded from our tables. The number of the British subjects, including the Scotch and the Irish, abroad, of which we have returns, was 67,969. This number does not include the English in America, in India, or in the colonies, neither does it include any of the English in France, except those who were domiciled. Upon the other hand, some of the people born at the Mediterranean stations were inscribed in the Consular registers as British subjects; but as a general rule the Maltese and Ionians are excluded from the list. France is the country to which the English most resort in Europe, and 25,844 are domiciled there; 4092 are returned in Belgium, 827 in Holland, 1124 in Switzerland, 7365 in Germany, 5467 in Italy, including Rome, 2072 in Portugal, and 3879 in Spain, 525 in Greece, 2360 in Turkey, and 931 in Egypt; in Denmark 372, in Norway 242, and in Sweden 411; in Russia 3749. Passing to Asia, 30 of her Majesty's subjects were returned in Persia, 1072 in China, 81 in Japan, and 24 in Siam. The English population in India, according to the returns of the Indian Government (apparently defective), amounted to 125,379, including the English army, 85,008 strong. 340 English people are in the empire of Morocco. Algeria and the rest of Africa make no return. Central America returns 145 English residents, Ecuador 27, Chili 4152, of whom 3265 are males, chiefly miners, and Brazil, 2838. Table 6 shows in detail the particular places in which the English resided, and the notes supply some necessary explanations. The numbers of each of the two sexes returned abroad did not greatly differ, as the males were 36,734, and the females 31,235. In France and Belgium the women exceeded the men in number, and in Germany there was little difference. The girls at school probably affect this result. In China, Japan, Chili, Brazil, and India the men preponderated largely. The natives of England in the United States exceed the numbers in all other countries. Mr. Kennedy, the able superintendent of the census of the United States, has favoured us with an elaborate return of the numbers of the inhabitants of each State in 1860 who were born in this kingdom, amounting in the aggregate to 2,224,743; of whom it was ascertained that 477,455 were born in England and Wales, 108,518 in Scotland, and 1,611,304 in Ireland; 27,466 were described simply as born in the United Kingdom. In addition to these numbers 249,970 were born in British America, and 1419 in Australia. Our information about foreigners in England and Wales is tolerably complete, and we shall refer to the details hereafter. The number was 84,090, or, exclusive of those from the United States, 76,229. This is some compensation, therefore, for the English abroad, who, as has been already stated, are not included in our numbers. 2. The population of the United Kingdom in 1851 was 27,745,949. The increase which had been so great in Ireland up to the era of Catholic Emancipation, ceased after 1841; and the population emigrated in large numbers to new fields of industry, so that the increase in the United Kingdom was found in the 10 years ending in 1851 to be less than it had been in any previous decenniad since the first census was taken. The rate of increase decreased, and only 709,499 people were added to the population in 10 years. In the 10 years following emigration flowed in a still larger stream, for by the returns at least 2,054,578 British emigrants sailed from the ports at which accounts are kept; the country was engaged in a war with one of the European Powers, and it was again visited by the Asiatic epidemic; so that although it was probable that the population had advanced, the extent of the increase remained uncertain. All doubt, however, was suspended by the enumeration, and the census showed an increase of 1,575,339 people; making the aggregate population of the United Kingdom, including its army, navy, and merchant seamen abroad, 29,321,288. The increase was at the rate of 5.68 per cent. in the 10 years, and of 553 per cent. annually. This gives a correct view of the rate at which the population has increased; but to determine the increase of the English race the emigrants must be taken into account. The ascertained excess on the population of 1851, with the emigrants, makes 3,629,917. The increase of emigrants abroad, and the number of persons unregistered who leave the country, probably counterbalance not only the number of emigrants returning, of whom no record is kept, but also the number of immigrants into this country from other States. The population has produced numbers to replace the dead, and on every thousand families an addition of 131, of whom 57 are provided for at home and 74 in America and Australia. The population was thus distributed over the four divisions of the United Kingdom in the year 1861.

TABLE I.

	Total Population.	Population, excluding Army, Navy, and Merchant Seamen Abroad.	Proportion of Population in Four Divisions of the Kingdom.
United Kingdom ..	29,321,288	29,070,932	100.0
England and Wales ..	20,228,497	20,066,224	69.1
Scotland	3,096,808	3,062,294	10.5
Islands in the British Seas	145,674	143,447	.5

The facts respecting Scotland and Ireland are discussed by the Commissioners for those parts of the United Kingdom; and we have now to notice the general results of the Census of England and Wales and of the islands in the British seas. Out of 10 parts of the population of the country, nearly seven belong to England and Wales, two to Ireland, one to Scotland, and a small fraction (1-20th) to the Channel Islands. The population of England and Wales, including the army, navy, and merchant seamen abroad, was 29,228,497. 3. The increase of the population of England and Wales since the last census was 2,174,327. The increase was at the rate of 12 per cent. in 10 years; or 1.141 annually. The emigrants of English origin in the last 10 years amounted to 640,316, which makes the numerical increase since the census of 1851 to be 2,814,643. The increase of the emigrants abroad is probably rapid, and it may be taken to represent the emigration reflux. A certain deduction must be made for the Scotch immigrants who crossed the Tweed and never returned, as well as for the Irish emigrants who settled in England. The increase in the 10 years of the numbers of the Scotch and Irish in England was 120,790, which has, however, to be reduced by the increase of the Englishmen in Scotland and Ireland. The number of persons in England born abroad increased by 63,429 in the ten years; but this is counterbalanced again by the increase of Englishmen abroad, exclusive of the recorded emigrants. If the whole of the increase of the 184,219 persons in England, born out of its limits, be struck off, the natural increase recorded becomes 2,630,424; and it is certainly the minimum to be arrived at by estimate, the true number being between this and 2,814,643. Taking the natural increase at only 2,630,424, the excess of the registered births over the registered deaths accounts for 2,262,935 of the number, leaving 369,489 children in ten years, or 36,950 annually, who are left unregistered under the Act, which does not enforce by penalty the registration of births on the parents or on the guardians of children. The increase of the population was at the rate of 12.0 per cent. in ten years. If the emigrants are added to the ascertained numbers, the rate of natural increase will be 15.6 per cent.; or, allowing for the Scotch, Irish, and other immigrants, 14.6 per cent. The population of England and Wales has advanced steadily through this century; from 9,156,171 people in 1801 to 20,228,497. In actual numbers, the additions during 10 years of war were 1,298,000; in the 10 years 1811-21, divided between war and peace, the increase was 1718 thousands, and in the next 10 years, 1879 thousands; making the aggregate population at the Reform era, 14,051,986. Since the year 1831 the population, advancing firmly at a composed rate, has grown in each 10 years by 1983 thousands in 1831-41, 2019 in 1841-51, and 2174 in the last 10 years, making the addition to the population since 1831 full 6176 thousands, or exactly 6,176,511. In the same period swarms of emigrants have left these shores. The annual rate of increase of the home population was highest in the years following the peace, before emigration was developed; it was 1·533 in 1811-21, and has fallen successively to 1·141. The annual rate of increase in the 60 years of this century was 1·330, and the actual aggregate increase is 11,072,326, or 121 per cent. The population of 1801 doubled its numbers in the year 1852. At the rate of increase prevailing in the last ten years, the population would double itself in 61 years. The period of doubling, deduced from the annual rates reigning during this century, is 52 years. 4. Males and Females.—The boys born in England are in the proportion of 104,811 to 100,000 girls; but they experience a higher rate of mortality, and, according to the new English life table, the rates are so finely adjusted that the numbers are reduced in the end to very nearly an equilibrium, the men and women living, of all ages, being in the proportion of 100,029 to 100,000. Such would be the state of things if there was no emigration, or if the men and women emigrated in pairs. That has not hitherto been the case; and at the census, 10,289,965 females and 9,770,239 males were enumerated. There was an excess of 513,706 women at home; or, deducting 162,273 from their number on account of their husbands and of other men in the army, navy, and merchant service abroad, the difference is reduced to 351,433 women at home; the men of the corresponding ages being on the continent, in the colonies, or in foreign lands, unless their numbers have been reduced by higher rates of mortality than prevail in England. To 100,000 women, of all ages, in England, there are 95,008 men, of all ages, at home; or, including a due proportion (1577) of the army, navy, and merchant seamen abroad, 96,585, leaving 3415 of the absent unaccounted for. The proportion of men to women at home is less than it was in 1851, owing probably to the increase of the army abroad. It will be observed that the disparity in the numbers of the two sexes at home was greatest in 1801 and 1811 during the war. This was due to the men abroad in the several services. To complete this view of the proportions of the two sexes living at home, their ages must be taken into account. There is an excess of boys over girls living under the ages of 15; and by the life table an excess of men is provided all through the middle period of life; but that surplus is overdrawn by emigration, so that the women exceed the men in number to a considerable extent in the early and middle, and still more in the advanced ages, when their longevity comes into play. The excess of the emigration of males over females accounts for the present difference in the proportions of the sexes. 5. Houses and Public Institutions.—The nomadic race which once peopled these islands has a certain number of representatives still existing. Fairs and races are their field days, and their irregular battalions are there easily passed in review. But the enumerators had to follow them to their haunts, and succeeded in discovering accounts of 7,130, who, on the night of the 7th of April, were in the open air, in tents or in canvas, and of 4,314 in barns, sheds, and other places of shelter. The numbers living out of houses vary with the seasons; in winter they shrink into dwellings, and in summer they swarm again in the fields, which have irresistible charms for the vagabond race, as well as for their near relatives the hop-pickers and haymakers. Mixed among them are found some of the victims as well as some of the outcasts of society. The ascertained houseless class amounted to 20,348 persons on the 7th of June, 1841; 15,764 on the 31st of March, 1851; and 11,444 on the 8th of April, 1861. In 1861 we found also 11,915 persons living in barges, 6,6 5 in inland vessels in ports, and 55,765 persons in seagoing vessels in the ports of England and Wales. Of the whole class of the population, including those in vessels, out of fixed dwellings, 75,188 were males, and 10,601 were females. Classes of the population, which in uncivilised societies are often without fixed dwellings, are now lodged, voluntarily or involuntarily, in public institutions. Thus 26,096 criminals are in prisons; 24,345 lunatics are in asylums; 10,414 patients are in hospitals; 125,722 of the poor and infirm are in workhouses. There are 23,598 inmates in the principal charitable institutions and asylums. The inmates of colleges and schools have not been distinguished, and a multitude of small institutions of various kinds are treated as houses. There were 63,840 soldiers in barracks. In 1684 public institutions of various kinds were 37,778 officers and servants, with their families, in addition to the special inmates. The inhabited houses in England amounted in 1861 to 3.739,505, showing since the last census an increase of 461,466. The great difference in these houses is shown by their annual value. Thus 519,991 houses are returned at rentals varying from 20*l.* to 20,000*l.* a year; or at 52*l.* ·8 on an average. 3,219,514 householders, or more than six in seven, pay no house duty; and the annual value can only be estimated approximatively, by continuing the series as shown in the Table 31 (p. 92 App.). By this method the average rent of houses at rents under 20*l.* a year is 9*l.* ·5; and the mean annual value of all the houses in England is 15*l.* (15*l.* and 5 florins). The annual value of all the houses at this rate is 58,013,181*l.*, of which 7,159,000*l.* is due to the 461,466 new houses erected in the last 10 years. At 15 years' purchase the dwelling-houses erected in 10 years are worth 107,000,000*l.*; and all the houses standing in 1861 are worth 870,000,000*l.* 1,575,92 houses were inhabited in 1801, and the subsequent additions of new houses, besides replacing houses decayed and destroyed, leave a surplus of 2,163,53 The value of the houses has probably increased in a greater ratio than their numbers. 184,694 houses were uninhabited, and 27,305 were building in 1861. To 1000 houses inhabited there were 49 uninhabited and seven building. The number of "houses building" was 27,305 or in the proportion of one house building to 137 inhabited and to seven uninhabited. The number of inhabited houses was 3,739,505, and on an average there were 537 persons to 100 houses, making the proportion 5.37 to a house, or nearly 16 persons to three houses. If the 397,582 persons in 1684 institutions and ships are excluded, the persons to an inhabited house are reduced to 5.26. The proportion of persons to 10 inhabited houses has gradually decreased from 575 in 1821 to 537 in 1861. This is a satisfactory movement for the isolation of families in separate dwellings is in every way salutary. This average, it is understood, is a mean result, and includes extremes and varieties of the utmost importance. We give illustrations of the variety of distribution in the houses of 14 sub-districts. Thus, of 48,273 houses, institutions excluded,—247 were uninhabited; 1601 houses contained one person each, or 1501 inhabitants; 5361 contained two inhabitants in each house, or 10,722 in the aggregate; 6627 houses contained three inhabitants in each house; 7048 houses (the maximum) contained four inhabitants in each house; the numbers then gradually decline. Each of 25,319 houses contained five or more people; 4465 contained 10 or more people; 1389 contained 15 or more; 596 contained 20 or more; and 142 contained 30 or more inhabitants. While more than half of the houses contain five or more inmates, more than half of the inhabitants live in houses containing seven or more inmates. 6. Families.—The family in its complete form consists of a householder with his wife and his children; and in the higher classes with his servants. Other relatives and visitors sometimes form a part of the family; and so do lodgers at a common table who pay for their subsistence and lodging. In taking the census the enumerator was directed to leave with each occupier a householder's schedule; the occupier by definition including the owner, or the person who pays the rent, whether (as a tenant) for the whole of the house, or (as a lodger) for any distinct floor or apartment. Thus a lodger alone, or in company with another lodger, occupying common apartments, is an occupier, and as such is classed as a family in the abstracts. The occupiers of separate almshouses, of public buildings, of portes lodges, and of detached dwellings, although nominally paying no rent, are also treated as families; except in the case of servants boarding in their master's house. The number of families was 4,491,524 in 1861; and the proportion of persons to a family was 4·47 persons to 100 families; 4·47 persons to one family; or nearly nine persons to two families. The proportion of persons to a family varied from 4·79 in 1801 to 4·83 in 1851. And the reduction of the proportion to 4·47 in 1861 is fairly referable to the multiplication of families by the recognition of lodgers as constituents of the class. In the 1684 institutions and their inmates and persons out of houses (397,582) are excluded from the calculation, the proportion of persons to a family will be reduced to 4·38. There are 12 families to 10 houses. We have endeavoured to give a more definite view of the constitution of families, by analyzing the constituent parts, in 14 sub-districts, representing the different classes of the community. We distinguish three classes of families,—the first has at its head a husband and wife; the second has a widower or a widow at the head; and the third has a bachelor or spinster at the head. The head of the family was absent in 31[illegible] instances out of 65,031; and of 61,868 families [illegible] had the husband and wife at their head; 11,099 had a widower or widow, and 9243 had a bachelor or spinster at their head. About two-thirds of the existing families consisted of married couples; 6487 were also, and of the rest 31,896 had one or more children. The numbers who had children, relatives, visitors, servants, and apprentices, or trade assistants, in the various combinations, are shown in the Table which also exhibits the corresponding facts for the other classes of families. The number of children residing with their parents was 93,788; and there were 2[illegible] children on an average to each family, or 4.26 children and parents, including the father and mother to each family of this class. Striking off the families consisting of husband and wife, sole, there remain 31,896 families having with them at home 93,788 children—that is 2.94 children to a family, or 4·94 children and parents to a family. A fourth part of the families had four children or more at home; and the families of parents and children consisted of seven persons on an average. The families of which widowers or widows were the heads had children connected with them in 6677 out of 11,099 cases.

COVENT GARDEN, Feb. 6.

Notwithstanding the changeableness of the weather, supplies of both Vegetables and Fruit in season have been pretty well kept up. Hothouse Grapes are, however, as a matter of course, scarce. Some good samples of Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained; likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 4s. to 7s. per 100. For Potatos the market is still heavy. Cornish Broccoli is also still largely supplied. French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes begin to make their appearance. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

BRITISH WOOLS.—LONDON, Feb. 4.

Our transactions are still on a limited scale, in consequence of the smallness of stocks and of arrivals, so that there is no pressure to sell, and consumers are supplied in exact proportion to their immediate demands. At this season of the year, however, there is generally an improvement of demand, which it is presumed will occur as usual for most descriptions of short clothing wool. For combing sorts the disturbance on the Continent may be the means of restricting the usual requirements until more is known of the objects of Prussia and Austria in their present inglorious raid on the territories of a small state.

We have rather a larger supply of Beasts; trade is not brisk, but late quotations are well supported, with a fair demand for choicest qualities. Sheep are also rather more plentiful; the demand is, however, good, and prices for choicest descriptions are higher. Good Calves are very scarce and very dear. From Germany and Holland there are 760 Beasts, 710 Sheep, and 26 Calves; from Spain, 18 Beasts; from Scotland, 355; from Ireland, 330; from Norfolk and Suffolk, 2530; and 200 from the Northern and Midland Counties.

THURSDAY, Feb. 4.

We have a moderate supply of Beasts: trade is slow, but prices remain about the same as on Monday last. There are very few Sheep on offer, but enough for the demand. Trade is by no means brisk; prices, however, continue high. Good Calves are still scarce and dear. From Germany and Holland there are 110 Beasts, 575 Sheep, 63 Calves, and 156 Beasts from Spain. Milch Cows, 75.

POTATOS.—SOUTHWARK, Monday, Feb. 1.

During the past week the arrivals both coastwise and by rail have been large, and the trade is very dull at a considerable reduction. The following are this day's quotations:—Yorkshire Flukes, 75s. to 90s. per ton; do. Regents, 60s. to 70s.; do. Rocks, 50s. to 55s.; Dunbar Regents, 70s. to 75s.; Kent and Essex Regents, 60s. to 70s.: Perth, Forfar, and Fifeshire Regents, 45s. to 55s.; do. do. Rocks, 45s. to 50s.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Feb. 1.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was moderate, and taken slowly on the terms of this day se'nnight. The market was tolerably well attended, but foreign Wheat continues to be neglected, and our quotations are unaltered. Barley and Peas were unaltered in value. Beans were rather more inquired after. The Oat trade was steady at last week's prices. The little business done in Flour was at late rates.

FRIDAY, Feb. 5

The weather since the 29th ult. has been fine with white night frosts, excepting on the 2d and 3d, which days were damp and showery; last night some snow fell. Notwithstanding the commencement of hostilities between the Germans and Danes, the Wheat trade during the week has been inanimate, and former prices were scarcely exceeded, although as a rule, holders are unwilling to realise, and the least sanguine hold for an advance of 2s. to 3s. per qr. In Liverpool, Leith, and Glasgow, some speculative purchases have been effected at an improvement of 1s. to 2s. per qr., and very full rates have been generally obtained in other markets of the kingdom. Little alteration has occurred in the value of Barley, and the tendency of prices is rather towards a decline. Buyers of Oats, Beans, and Peas have had to pay the late extreme rates, and where an alteration has occurred in the quotations of Flour it has been in favour of the sellers. Since Friday last 22 vessels were reported off the coast. The floating trade has not been active during the week. Paris, Feb. 4—The market has become very firm. Flour has advanced about 1s. per 280 lbs. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 33s. 8d. per 280 lbs.; the stock has increased to about 9140 cwt. Wheat 1s. per qr. higher. The arrivals of English and foreign Wheat and foreign Oats this week have been small, of Barley and English Oats large. The day's market was badly attended. The quantity of English Wheat on offer was small, but nevertheless met a slow sale at Monday's prices. Foreign continues to be neglected, and our quotations nominal. Spring Corn was firm at Monday's prices.

LIVERPOOL, February 2.—To-day's market has been well attended. The advance in Wheat has made further progress, and we have to quote all classes of American red now fully 5d. and white 2d to 3d. per cental dearer than on Friday last. Flour is 6d. per barrel and 1s. per sack higher, but does not move freely. Indian Corn attracts a good share of attention. and we raise our quotations 9d. per qr. Oats and Oatmeal show no alteration. Beans, Peas, and Barley each remain steady at late rates. The market closes very strong for the leading articles of the trade, and speculators seem still disposed to follow up the advance.

FRIDAY, Feb. 6.—The market was moderately attended. Wheat quiet, holders asking Tuesday's advance. Flour unchanged, demand slow. Indian Corn steady. Egyptian Beans steady. Oats firm, at the advance of Wednesday. Oatmeal very quiet.

A MONOGRAPH of ODONTOGLOSSUM.
By JAMES BATEMAN, Esq., F.R.S., F.L.S., &c.,
Author of "The Orchidaceæ of Mexico and Guatemala."

Although founded by Humboldt and Bonpland early in the present century, it is only of late years that the genus Odontoglossum has received any considerable attention, either from the botanist or the cultivator. Not more than five species were assigned to it by Professor Lindley in 1832 ("Genera et Species Orchidearum," Part III.), these however had increased to 65 on the publication of the first Part of the same author's "Folia Orchidacea," in 1852, while they are now known to exceed a hundred, and we may expect to see that number doubled by the time that the favourite homes of the genus in the Mexican and Peruvian Andes shall have been thoroughly explored. In this case, Odontoglossum will become—next to Oncidium—the most extensive genus in the "Vandeous" Section of the great Orchideous family, and might therefore almost seem entitled to a separate Work even if it had no other claims to independent treatment. Such, however, may be readily found; for

(1.) Its species affect exclusively the mountain-chains of Mexico, Central America, New Grenada, and Peru; not a single straggler having yet been discovered either in the West Indian Isles or in the low and sultry latitudes of the South American continent. In this remarkable fact we have clear indications of a distinct group.

(2.) A large proportion are eminently beautiful. They are usually of compact growth; their flowers are always exceedingly durable, and often deliciously sweet.

(3.) They do not require—indeed they will not endure—the great heat of most Orchid-houses; but they will thrive, with proper treatment, in a mean temperature of about 60°, which is that of an ordinary greenhouse.

Unfortunately, it was long before this latter peculiarity in their habits—and consequently the secret of their cultivation—came to be fully understood; what wonder, then, if the labours of a Karwinski or a Galeotti, a Linden or a Schlim, a Purdie or a Warscewicz, should have added little to our collections of living plants, and that many of their most brilliant discoveries should at present be only known to us from dried specimens in our herbaria! The principle of cool treatment having at length however been fully established, the most strenuous efforts are being made by nurserymen and others to obtain fresh supplies of what we formerly lost, as well to search out new forms, and with this object, not fewer than seven collectors are now (January, 1864) busily engaged in ransacking such portions of the New World as seem to promise the richest harvest of novelty or beauty.

As the various collections arrive, they will doubtless be found to comprise many fine Odontoglossa, the most remarkable of which it is proposed to figure in a Monograph, specially dedicated to the genus; and the Parts of which will appear with greater or less frequency, as the materials for illustration can be had. Not more, however, than Four Parts will ever be published in a single year.

Full descriptions of the plants (in Latin and English), as well as careful directions for their cultivation, will accompany the Plates; and with the concluding Parts an Analysis of the Genus, and Conspectus of all its known Species, will be given.

The first Part is expected to be ready in April, and will contain figures of O. nebulosum, O. Uro-Skinneri, O. Insleayii, O. Phalænopsis, and O. auro-purpureum.

The Plates will be beautifully coloured, after drawings by FITCH and other eminent Artists. In particular cases, where the large habit of a species may prevent its being adequately rendered on the Coloured Plate, woodcuts will be added, giving, on a reduced scale, the general appearance of the entire plant.

Subscribers are invited to send their names to the Publishers, Messrs. LOVELL REEVE & Co., 5, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LANDOWNERS' WEST of ENGLAND and SOUTH WALES LAND DRAINAGE and INCLOSURE COMPANY. Established in the year 1844, and Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament, 11 & 12 Vict., Cap. cxlii.

Chairman—The Right Hon. the EARL of DEVON, Powderham Castle.
Deputy Chairman—WILLIAM PORTER, Esq., Hembury Fort, near Honiton.

Landowners having limited interests, such as Tenants for Life, Tenants in Tail, Mortgagors, and others, can Drain and improve their Lands without any expense to themselves personally,—as the Company's Act does not require Proprietors to liquidate the cost, the amount may remain permanently charged on the property, at interest, or be paid off when convenient, or be made redeemable over any term of years.

The works are undertaken by the Company, who keep in constant employ a very extensive and experienced staff of Engineers, Surveyors, and workmen; or Proprietors may avail themselves of the powers of the Act only, and get the works executed under their own superintendence, or by Agents appointed by themselves.

Outfalls through adjoining lands are obtainable under the Company's Act.

Works are also executed by the Company for Parties advancing their own capital, or not wishing to borrow the money.

Every information may be obtained on application to
FREDERICK BRODIE, Secretary,
Castle Street, Exeter.

Offices: Castle Street, Exeter; and
30, Parliament Street, Westminster.

MESSRS. WAY AND EVANS, ANALYTICAL and CONSULTING CHEMISTS, receive PUPILS for the study of AGRICULTURAL and GENERAL ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY.

106, Leadenhall Street, E.C.

Chemical Analyses.

DR. AUGUSTUS VOELCKER, F.C.S., CONSULTING CHEMIST to the Royal Agricultural Society of England, has REMOVED his LABORATORY from Cirencester to 101, LEADENHALL STREET, LONDON, E.C., where he receives a few Private Pupils for the Practical Study of Analytical and Agricultural Chemistry.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5s. per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.

22, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

LAND DRAINAGE.—WORKS of DRAINAGE of any extent are EXECUTED by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY, on all descriptions of property, whether freehold, entailed, mortgaged, trust, ecclesiastical, corporate, or collegiate.

Repayment may be made by the Landowner as successive portions of the Works are completed, or the outlay and expenses may be charged on the estate by way of rent charge created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants.

No investigation of title being required, or notices given to reversioners or mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.

Works of irrigation, enclosing, wood grubbing, road-making, and farm buildings are executed in a similar manner.

Landowners desirous to execute any of the improvements by their own agents, and charge the outlay and expenses on the Estate, may obtain loans for the purpose.

Applications to be made to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.
TO LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

News of the Week.

IN the House of Lords on Friday, on the motion of the Archbishop of YORK, returns were ordered relating to the proceedings of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. On Monday the House sat for a few minutes only, and no business of importance was transacted. On Tuesday Earl RUSSELL, in reply to the Earl of MALMESBURY, stated that her Majesty's Government had not received any guarantee from Austria and Prussia that their troops would evacuate the Duchies as soon as the Common Constitution of November had been revoked, but had been informed by the Prussian and Austrian Governments that their demands upon Denmark were based upon the Treaty of 1852, which recognised the integrity of the Danish monarchy, and that they did not intend to depart from it. His lordship added that it would be too frivolous for any government to maintain that the London Treaty, to which the two great German Powers, in conjunction with Great Britain, France, Russia, and Sweden, were parties, could be abrogated by a war between Denmark on one hand and Austria and Prussia on the other. In answer to the Earl of DERBY, Earl RUSSELL said that Mr. ADAMS, the United States Minister, had not presented to him any despatch from Mr. SEWARD demanding an indemnity for the depredations of the Alabama, although it appeared that a copy of such a despatch had been laid before the Federal Congress. On Thursday, in answer to the Earl of DERBY, Earl RUSSELL said he had no doubt that the rams recently seized at Liverpool were intended for the service of the Confederate States, but he could not produce the papers relating to their seizure, as he had been informed by the law officers of the Crown that their production would embarrass the Government in the legal proceedings now in progress. Earl GRANVILLE moved that a select committee be appointed to act with a committee of the House of Commons in considering the best method of dealing with the railway schemes proposed within the metropolis. After some discussion the motion was agreed to.

In the Commons on Friday the report on the Address was brought up and agreed to, after a discussion on the state of Ireland, in which Mr. WHITESIDE, Sir R. PEEL, Mr. O'HAGAN, and other members took part. On Monday, in answer to Lord R. CECIL, Lord PALMERSTON said that Her Majesty's Ministers had remonstrated with the Austrian and Prussian Government on the steps which had been taken, under the shadow of their troops, to proclaim the Prince of AUGUSTENBURG as Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, as utterly inconsistent with good faith, and the Prussian Government had intimated their disapproval of the proceedings. His lordship denounced the idea which prevailed in Berlin, that war would put an end to treaties. This doctrine, he said, was one which no Government with any respect for itself, or any regard for the principles of good faith, could seriously uphold, inasmuch as, if it were once established, any strong Power having an inconvenient treaty with a small one could free itself from that engagement by making an unprovoked and unjustifiable attack. The House then went into Committee, when the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER obtained leave to bring in a Bill to allow the making of malt duty-free to be used in feeding cattle, and also to alter and amend the laws relating to the collection of the land tax, assessed taxes, and income tax. Sir G. GREY moved for leave to bring in a Bill for amending the Act for making further provision for the confinement and maintenance of criminal lunatics. After a long discussion on the case of Townley, leave was given to bring in the Bill. Mr. MILNER GIBSON moved for a Select Committee to consider, in conjunction with a Select Committee of the Lords, the best method of dealing with the proposed railway schemes within the limits of the metropolis, and to report their opinion whether any of these schemes should be proceeded with during the present Session. Lord STANLEY, Mr. MASSEY, Lord ENFIELD, and other members expressed their opinion that a Royal Commission would be more effectual than a joint committee, and Sir J. SHELLEY moved, as an amendment, the adjournment of the debate, with the view of enabling the Government to reconsider the matter. After a long discussion the amendment was withdrawn, and the motion agreed to. On Tuesday, in answer to Mr. DISRAELI, Lord PALMERSTON stated that the Treaty of 1852 was binding upon the German Powers, who could not be absolved by war with Denmark from a common engagement into which they had entered in conjunction with other Powers. Mr. BUXTON moved a resolution declaring that the House, while only imputing to Admiral KUPER a misconception of the duty imposed on him, deeply regretted the burning of Kagosima, as contrary to those usages of war which prevail among civilised nations, and to which it is the duty and policy of this country to adhere. Mr. LONGFIELD moved, as an amendment, to omit from the resolution the words relating to Admiral KUPER. After a long debate the amendment was agreed to. Mr. BUXTON then offered to withdraw his resolution; but this course being objected to, Lord PALMERSTON moved the previous question, which was carried on a division by 161 to 85. On Thursday the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER obtained leave to bring in Bills for replacing the lapsed issue of bank-notes in Scotland, and for amending the law relating to the purchase of Government Annuities through the medium of savings banks. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL for IRELAND obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the procedure of the County Courts in Ireland. Last night Lord PALMERSTON stated that the report of an armistice having been proposed to Prussia, Austria, and Denmark by England, France, Russia, and Sweden was correct, but the result of the suggestion was not yet known.

The Danish army, overpowered by the superior numbers of the Austrians and Prussians, has been compelled, after a gallant resistance, to evacuate the Dannewerke with all its artillery, and to abandon the Duchy of Schleswig to the invaders. On Friday night the Prussians, under Prince FREDERICK CHARLES, succeeded in crossing the Schlei, near Arnis, and on Saturday morning the Austrians resumed their advance towards the city of Schleswig. In consequence of these movements, and in order to prevent his entire army from being cut off, the Danish Commander-in-Chief evacuated Schleswig and the Dannewerke, and fell back towards Flensburg, pursued by the Austrians. On Saturday afternoon the Austrians came up with the Danes near Oversee, and completely defeated them, after a desperate resistance. Two other engagements took place on the same day at Jübeck and Jastedt, with the same results. The Danes then retreated to Flensburg, but were compelled by the rapid advance of the Austrians to evacuate it on Tuesday and retreat to their defences on the coast. Meanwhile the Prussians marched upon Düppel, in order to cut off the retreat of the Danes into Jutland. The greater portion of the Danish army succeeded in escaping to the island of Alsen, while the other portion, pursued by the Prussians, marched northwards, with the intention, it is supposed, of retiring to Frederica and the island of Funen. These disasters, and especially the abandonment of the Dannewerke with all its material of war, have aroused indescribable indignation and excitement in Copenhagen, and the Government have felt it necessary to supersede the Commander-in-Chief, and to publish a declaration that the retreat of the army had taken place without their knowledge or authority. A special meeting of the Rigsdag was held on Sunday, at which it was unanimously resolved by both Houses to assure the people that they might rely upon the Rigsdag maintaining the honour and independence of the country by all the legal means at its command, and upon its calling on the Government to take all measures for the most energetic defence. It was announced yesterday that the British Government had proposed an armistice to the belligerents, on the basis of the evacuation of Schleswig by the Danes, with the exception of the Island of Alsen. This proposition has received the support of France, Russia, and Sweden, and is put forward as a preliminary to a Conference of the European Powers.

Accounts from Japan state that Prince SATSUMA had paid the indemnity demanded for the murder of Mr. RICHARDSON, and has engaged to do his best to discover the murderers and bring them to justice.

A telegram has been received at the Foreign Office, stating that on the 20th November a severe engagement, which lasted 13 hours, took place between our military and naval force under General CAMERON and Sir WILLIAM WISEMAN and the New Zealand Maories, at Rangiriri, on the river Waikato. The Maories were defeated with great loss, and about 200, including nearly all their chiefs, were taken prisoners. Our loss was also very severe, including 15 officers and 117 men killed and wounded.

THE COURT.—The Queen and Royal family continue at Osborne. On Thursday, the 4th inst., the Queen opened the new School at Whippingham, which has recently been erected by Her Majesty's command. The Queen was accompanied by the Princesses Helena, Louisa, and Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and the Princess Hohenlohe. The Rev. G. Prothero, rector of Whippingham, received the Queen at the entrance and conducted her Majesty to the school-room, where the children, about 300 in number, were assembled, and where tea was provided for them. Her Majesty remained at the School for some time, and then returned to Osborne. On Friday the Queen and Princess Helena walked and drove. During the week Professor Hofman delivered two lectures on chemistry before her Majesty and the Royal family. On Sunday morning the Queen Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Osborne. The Rev. G. Prothero officiated. On Monday Viscount Sydney, Lord Chamberlain, and Lord Proby, Controller of the Household, arrived at Osborne, and had audiences of her Majesty to present the Addresses from the two Houses of Parliament, in answer to the Speech at the opening of Parliament. In the afternoon the Queen drove out. On Tuesday the Queen and Princess Helena walked out. On Wednesday the Queen drove out with Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice. The Right Hon. E. Cardwell arrived from London and had an audience of her Majesty.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES with the infant Prince, left Frogmore on Thursday for St. Leonard's, where they will remain for about a fortnight, in order that the Princess may enjoy the benefit of sea air. On Friday his Royal Highness was present at the Windsor steeple-chases. On Saturday the Prince went out rabbit shooting. The Princess took a carriage airing. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner party. On Sunday afternoon the Prince attended Divine service in St. George's Chapel. On Monday morning his Royal Highness came to town, and presided at a meeting of the Council of the Duchy of Cornwall. In the evening the Prince dined with Earl Granville, and afterwards returned to Frogmore. On Tuesday morning his Royal Highness went out hunting. The Princess of Wales drove through the grounds and park of Frogmore. On Wednesday morning the departure of the Prince and Princess for St. Leonard's, which was to have taken place on that day, was postponed at the last moment in consequence of the medical advisers of her Royal Highness having pronounced that the temperature was too cold to allow the infant Prince, to travel with safety. During the morning the Prince of Wales, with Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, skated on the ice in the Home Park. On Thursday afternoon the Prince and Princess, with the infant Prince left Frogmore for St. Leonard's. Their Royal Highnesses travelled by a special train on the South-Western line to Waterloo Station, and thence by the Charing Cross and South-Eastern lines through Redhill and Tunbridge Wells, to St. Leonard's. The whole journey was accomplished in less than three hours. The Prince and Princess immediately drove to the Royal Victoria Hotel, where apartments had been prepared for their accommodation. The route from the station to the hotel was thronged with spectators and lined with a double row of carriages containing the chief residents in St. Leonard's and Hastings. The progress of their Royal Highnesses was greeted with enthusiastic cheering. A telegraphic message was immediately forwarded to her Majesty at Osborne announcing that the journey had been safely performed. It is expected that during the stay of their Royal Highnesses at St. Leonard's the Prince will attend the meets of the East Sussex hounds. His Royal Highness's hunters have already arrived at St. Leonard's.

LEVÉES.—The Prince of Wales will hold Levées on behalf of the Queen, at St. James's Palace on Wednesday, March 2, and on Saturday, March 12.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street. Another Council was held on Wednesday.

KEEPER OF THE SIGNET.—The Prince of Wales has conferred upon Colonel the Hon. Sir Charles B. Phipps, K.C.B., the honorary appointment of Secretary, Chamberlain and Receiver-General, and Keeper of the Signet of his Royal Highness as Prince and Steward of Scotland.

LORD LIEUTENANCY.—The Queen has appointed James Hay Erskine Wemyss, Esq., to be Lieutenant and Sheriff Principal of Fifeshire, in the room of the late Earl of Elgin. The Earl of Gosford has been appointed Lord Lieutenant of Armagh, in the room of the Earl of Charlemont, who succeeds his uncle, the late earl, as Lord Lieutenant of Tyrone.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—Mr. T. W. Fleming has been elected for Winchester, Mr. John Reginald Yorke has been elected for Tewkesbury, and Mr. John Henderson has been elected for Durham, all without opposition.

THE ARMY.—The Colonelcy of the 2nd Dragoons, vacant by the death of Sir Alexander Kennedy, has been conferred on Lieutenant-General J. B. Gough, and the Colonelcy of the 13th Foot, vacant by the death of General M'Pherson, has been conferred on Lieutenant-General Spencer Stanhope.

ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSION.—The Estates Committee of the Ecclesiastical Commission have published a report recommending the Board to make grants during the current year, which will be represented by a capital sum of 700,000*l*. Among these grants is one to augment to 300*l*. a year all benefices in public patronage where the population amounts to 8000, and to assist in doing as much for all benefices in private patronage, provided half the augmentation be supplied from non-ecclesiastical sources. On the same arrangements they propose to augment the livings of all district churches with a like population to 200*l*. a year.

CONVOCATION.—The Convocation of the Province of Canterbury met on Friday. The report of a committee on the Burial Service was read, from which it appeared that a majority of the committee was opposed to any alteration in the service, but recommended instead that the discipline of the Church should be so far revived as to pass a purely spiritual sentence of excommunication on persons of scandalously immoral lives, which sentence, if not removed by repentance, would disentitle them to have the Burial Service read over their graves. The report of the committee appointed to consider the question of clerical subscription was read. It stated that there was no sufficient evidence to show that as a general rule subscription is burdensome to the clergy, but suggested a modification of the declaration of assent and consent required from beneficed clergymen. The report of the committee on the subject of the "relief of persons in holy orders," was read, stating that no legislation would be satisfactory to the Church which did not fully recognise the indelibility of holy orders. A letter was read from the Dean of Bristol announcing his resignation as Prolocutor.

CONVOCATION OF YORK.—The Convocation of the Province of York has been summoned to meet on Wednesday, the 24th inst. Meanwhile the Archbishop has directed the appointment of a committee of the Lower House to draw up and report on the subject of the burial service to be presented on that day.

THE PROPOSED BISHOPRIC OF CORNWALL.—The Archbishop of Canterbury has received from Sir George Grey an answer to the memorial from the Upper House of Convocation praying the Queen to divide the see of Exeter, and create a separate diocese of Cornwall. The reply of the Home Secretary states that her Majesty's Government decline to recommend such a subdivision, or to entertain the general question of the increase of the episcopate.

CLERICAL SUBSCRIPTION COMMISSION.—The Queen has been pleased by letters patent under the Great Seal to appoint the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of Armagh, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Earl Stanhope, the Earl of Harrowby; the Bishops of London, Winchester, St. David's, and Oxford; Lords Lyttelton, Cranworth, and Ebury; the Right Hon. E. P. Bouverie, the Right Hon. Dr. Lushington, the Right Hon. S. H. Walpole, the Right Hon. J. Napier, the Right Hon. Sir John T. Coleridge, Sir W. Heathcote, Bart.; Charles Buxton, Esq.; the Dean of St. Paul's, the Dean of Ely, Archdeacon Sandford, the Rev. Dr. Jacobson, the Rev. Dr. Jeremie, the Rev. H. Venn, B.D.; and the Rev. W. G. Humphry, B.D., to be her Majesty's Commissioners to consider and revise the various forms of Clerical Subscription, and to report their opinion how far they may be altered and simplified consistently with due security for the declared agreement of the clergy with the doctrines of the Church and the conformity to its ritual.

ORDER OF THE BATH.—The Queen has given orders for the appointment of Sir John Liddell, C.B., M.D., late Director-General of the Medical Department of the Navy, to be a Knight Commander of the Bath.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—In the sitting of the Senate on Friday, the petition of M. Darimon, denouncing as unconstitutional several Ministerial decrees relative to the public press, was set aside by the adoption of the previous question. The committee proposed that the House should pass to the order of the day on the petitions demanding that the municipal councils should elect their own mayors and deputy-mayors. MM. Troplong and Lacrosse requested that the House should adopt the previous question on the petitions, in order not to allow the articles on the Constitution to be called into question. The previous question was then adopted by a large majority. The Constitutionnel of Thursday, in an article by M. Limayrac, considers that the evacuation of the Dannewerk will be found to have prolonged the war. The writer fears that the difficulties now arising will be of a different kind to those before the war. The basis of negotiation will have been displaced. M. Limayrac sees with regret that many complications and difficulties are possible. At a dinner given on Thursday evening to celebrate the Suez Canal undertaking, Prince Napoleon made a speech, which was loudly cheered. His Imperial Highness retraced the history of the enterprise, dwelt upon its grandeur and utility, and paid a tribute of praise to all who had participated in the undertaking. M. de Lesseps replied. M. Corta, a deputy of the Corps Législatif, has left for Mexico, to collect information requisite for the introduction of financial reforms in that country. The Confederate cruiser Florida, under the command of Captain Maffit, left Brest on Tuesday night, in the midst of a dense fog, on a cruise. The United States war-steamer Kearsage, on being apprised of the Florida's sailing, stood out to sea the same evening, so that there is every possibility of a fight between the two vessels should they chance to fall in with each other. A short time since the Duke of Brunswick, who has resided in Paris for many years, was robbed of diamonds valued at 9,000,000 francs, and a sum of 18,000 francs in gold, which were kept in an iron safe fixed to the wall of his bedroom. The Duke's valet, a man called Schaw, was found to be missing, and the telegraph being immediately set to work by the police, he was arrested in the course of a few hours at Boulogne with the stolen property in his possession. The robbery has since become complicated by a new incident. Since the recovery of the jewels they have remained in the custody of the Correctional Police. The thief has been tried and condemned, but the Duke on applying for the property could not obtain possession of it, in consequence of an opposition having been lodged in the name of the reigning Duke, who claims a great part of the jewels as belonging to the Crown of Brunswick.

SPAIN.—The Queen has formally authorized the marriage of the eldest daughter of the Duc de Montpensier to the Count of Paris. The reply of the Emperor Napoleon to the letter of her Majesty, announcing the marriage, is said to be couched in very affectionate terms.

SWEDEN.—A telegram from Stockholm states that extreme consternation and grief prevailed in that city on the receipt of the news from Denmark. Large numbers of people collected in the streets, and popular demonstrations took place in front of the residence of the Danish Ambassador, in favour of Denmark.

DENMARK.—The news that the Danish army, by order of the Commander-in-Chief, had evacuated the Dannewerk, leaving behind them the matériel of war and retreated to Dybbel, has aroused indescribable indignation and excitement in Copenhagen. Public feeling is very much depressed, and a proclamation of the King to the army has produced an unfavourable impression. The Danish Commander-in-Chief, General de Meza, and the Chief of the Staff have been recalled, and General de Luttichau has been temporarily intrusted with the command of the army. Notwithstanding its being Sunday, both Chambers of the Rigsdag held an extraordinary sitting on the 7th. At this sitting Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council, said that the King was not instrumental in the retreat of the army, that the proceedings of the Commander-in-Chief were inexplicable, and that he had therefore been recalled. After this communication by Bishop Monrad, the following resolution was proposed in both Houses of the Rigsdag:—

"The Rigsdag, fully recognising the extreme gravity of the time, expects that the nation will perceive the necessity of upholding tranquillity and order. The people may rely upon the Rigsdag maintaining the honour and independence of the country by all the legal means at its command, and on its calling upon the Government to take all measures for the most energetic defence for this purpose."

This resolution was passed by both Houses, together with a second, authorising the preparation of an address to be presented to the King. On Tuesday the Rigsdag passed an address to the army, announcing the energetic prosecution of the war. The address was proposed by the President of the Council. The Patrie of Monday published under express reserve a report that a revolution had broken out at Copenhagen, and that the King of Sweden had been proclaimed in that city. The report also stated that King Christian had embarked for England, but both statements are now known to be entirely without foundation. His Majesty returned to Copenhagen on Wednesday from Sonderburg. The latest news states that great excitement is felt at Copenhagen among the maritime population and the workmen at the arsenal, all of whom demand to be led to battle. A powerful squadron is fitting out, and two screw frigates have left Copenhagen for the island of Alsen, to support the movements of the army. On the 5th inst. Denmark proposed to Prussia the assembly of an European Conference, to which the German Federal Diet should be a party for the settlement of the Schleswig-Holstein question. It was announced yesterday that the English Government had proposed an armistice to the belligerents, on the basis of the evacuation of Schleswig by the Danes.

with the exception of the Island of Alsen. This proposition has the support of France, Russia, and Sweden, and has been made as a preliminary to a conference for the settlement of the question of the Duchies. It is stated that Denmark, yielding to the remonstrances of European commerce, has given orders that the German mail steamers running between New York and Bremen should not be molested.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—On Friday the hilly ground in front of the whole Missunde line was taken by the Prussians. The Austrians advanced to Fahrdorf, and in the course of the afternoon two Danish forts were entirely destroyed and razed to the ground. The battery of an Austrian Brigade posted upon the Kirchberg, near Fahrdorf, subsequently silenced the Danish breastwork at Lollfuss, and occupied Fahrdorf. During the day the Danes evacuated Tönningen and Friedrichstadt. Some 20 soldiers, natives of Schleswig and Holstein, deserted on this occasion from the Danish army, and made off for Holstein. On Friday night Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia threw a pontoon bridge over the Schlei, near Arnis. At 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, during a snow storm, 300 fishing boats conveyed the Prussians across the Schlei, between Arnis and Kappeln. Röder's Brigade, which crossed in the boats, immediately pushed forward and captured four 24-pounders. Kappeln, on the north bank of the Schlei, was afterwards occupied by the Prussian division under Prince Frederick Charles, after having been previously evacuated by the Danes. On Friday night the Danes sent a flag of truce from Oberselk to the Austrian Commander-in-Chief, applying for an armistice of 24 hours. General von Gablenz replied that he could only grant one of two hours. The bearer of the flag of truce had, however, left before this answer had reached him. During the night the Danes having learnt that the Prussians under Prince Frederick Charles had concentrated opposite Arnis and Cappeln, for the purpose of crossing the Schlei, evacuated Schleswig, abandoning the Dannewerk, with 60 heavy pieces of artillery. The Austrians were advancing along the dam of Haddeby, removing barricades and intrenchments, when the inhabitants of Schleswig went to meet them, and announced that the Danes had commenced retreating the previous evening. The Austrians immediately set out in pursuit of the Danes, and overtook them near Oversee, where an engagement took place on Saturday, in which the Austrians, commanded by General Gablenz, completely defeated the Danes, after a desperate resistance. Colonel Prince William of Wurtemberg, Lieut.-Colonel von Francois, and Major von Jena, commander of the 60th Regiment, were severely wounded. Lieut. Count Von der Gröben, of the Ziethen Regiment of Hussars, the personal adjutant of Prince Frederick Charles, while carrying despatches, was killed by a ball in the breast, and several other officers had their horses shot under them. Two hundred prisoners and six guns of heavy calibre, with a portion of the ammunition and baggage trains, were taken by the Austrians. During the engagement the Austrians are said to have lost 500 and the Danes 130 men. Oversee, near which place the battle was fought, is situated between Schleswig and Flensburg, to which town the Danes retreated, pursued by the Austrians. During this retreat the 1st Copenhagen Regiment of Infantry made a splendid and heroic bayonet charge upon a battery of 16 Prussian guns. The regiment was nearly destroyed, but the army was thereby saved. Another engagement, which lasted for several hours, took place on the same day near Jübeck, north-west of Schleswig, between the Nostitz (Austrian) Brigade and the retreating Danes; and another sanguinary engagement took place near Idstedt, in which the Danes were defeated. On Sunday morning the Austrians commenced the pursuit of the Danes in a northerly direction, and the Prussian Guards in a westerly direction. On Monday the Austrians attacked the Danish positions before Flensburg, while the Prussians were cutting off the Danes upon the right. Large quantities of booty and many prisoners fell into the hands of the allies. In the northern part of Flensburg the inhabitants favourable to the Danes erected barricades in the streets and fired on the Austrians, who lost in and before the town 1100 men in killed and wounded. A desperate struggle also took place at Bau and Kupfermühle. On Tuesday the Danes evacuated Flensburg, and the greater portion of their army with their war material escaped to Sonderburg, in the Island of Alsen. The rest marched further north, pursued by the allies. While these operations were being carried out by the Austrians, the Prussians marched upon Düppel from Holnis. They carried the intrenchments before Düppel with a loss of 500 men, and threw forward their main body to Apenrade, in order to cut off the retreat of the Danes into Jutland. The roads were blocked with cannon, which the exhausted horses were unable to drag further. On Sunday morning the corps of General von Gablenz and the Prussian division commanded by General von Mülbe entered Flensburg. They found the town already occupied by the cavalry of Prince Frederick Charles, which had marched from Arnis to Flensburg in one day. Generals von Gablenz and Mülbe having allowed their troops a day's rest, which they urgently required, advanced towards the intrenchments at Duppel, which they intend, it is said, to bombard instead of assaulting them by storm. It has been decided to raze the Dannewerk, and the disarmament has already commenced. The Austrians and Prussians have divided the guns captured. Field-Marshal von Wrangel's head-quarters are at Flensburg, and the Austrian head-quarters are at Frorup and Oversee. By order of Marshal von Wrangel, the German flags have been removed, but the Schleswig-Holstein colours have not been prohibited. Prince Frederick has been proclaimed in Flensburg, and in the Town Hall of Schleswig. In reply to a deputation from the Municipal Council, General von Gablenz declared that it was not his business to interfere either with the proclamation of Duke Frederick or with the removal of the Danish functionaries. The proclamation of Duke Frederick was a question concerning the German Confederacy, and the removal of Danish functionaries one merely concerning the citizens. The inhabitants of Schleswig have sent a deputation to Kiel to render homage to the Duke. The inhabitants of Rendsburg sent a deputation last week to the Crown Prince of Prussia with an address, thanking him for his presence among them, and expressing their confidence that their rights would at last be directed to the only goal that could satisfy them, namely, that they might be permitted to live quietly and contentedly under the government of their legitimate Prince, Duke Frederick VIII. The Crown Prince in reply said—

"I cannot yet join in your qualification of the prince whom you have just mentioned; I have come here solely in the capacity of a soldier, and beg that you will only salute me as such, but also as your countryman. I will with you place my trust in Providence, in whose keeping your cause now lies. You are aware that I have for a long time maintained most friendly and consanguineous relations with my cousin. I will acquaint my Royal father of your having so cordially saluted me. You may feel satisfied that he also possesses a warm heart for your cause."

A proclamation issued by Marshal von Wrangel on Sunday, announces the appointment of Baron von Zedlitz as Prussian Civil Commander of Schleswig; confirms provisionally the civil functionaries in their posts; declares that the German language is henceforth to be used in all branches of the administration; and finally prohibits any political demonstrations not in accordance with the policy pursued by the great German Powers, and attempts to establish any other authority in the duchy of Schleswig. Another proclamation issued by Marshal von Wrangel declares the authority of the King of Denmark to be suspended in Schleswig. It states that the public functionaries will be maintained so long as they obey the Austrian and Prussian Civil Commissioners. All political meetings are prohibited, and tranquillity and obedience are recommended to the inhabitants. According to a telegram received yesterday at Breslau, a body of 3400 Austrian troops, will arrive in that city in a few days, on their way to Schleswig. They will be conveyed by eight special trains, and will be quartered at Breslau for the night. The Amtmann Blauenfeld, of Fleckbye, was brought into Rendsburg last week between two Austrian dragoons, with his arms tied to the saddle. He was one of those who led a Prussian detachment against a column of Austrians, upon pretext that they were Danes, in consequence of which they fired into one another with fatal results. A complete plan of the Austro-Prussian position was found upon him, which led to the supposition that he was in communication with a regular company of spies. He was shot as a traitor on the 5th.

SAXONY.—In the sitting of the Upper House of the Saxon Diet on Friday, Baron von Beust declared that a reconciliation between the majority in the Federal Diet and Austria and Prussia was impossible so long as the latter Powers uphold the London Protocol.

BAVARIA.—The Conference relative to the Schleswig-Holstein question will open towards the end of this week, all obstacles having been removed.

PRUSSIA.—The semi-official Nora-Deutsche Zeitung of Sunday contained an article on the declarations made by Earl Russell and Lord Palmerston in the English Parliament. It states that the Austro-Prussian demands for the fulfilment of the London Treaty by Denmark were made before the outbreak of hostilities, and says that, according to international law, war annuls all treaties. In another article on Monday it declared unfounded the statements of Lord Palmerston in Parliament that Prussia and Austria had expressed themselves as intending to uphold the integrity of Denmark, and also that England was ready to guarantee the withdrawal of the November Constitution. In another article on Thursday it said that the note sent by Denmark to the Prussian Government on the 5th inst. proposing a conference on the Schleswig-Holstein question, was handed to the Prussian Cabinet on the 7th, but, "having been written before the outbreak of hostilities, is of purely historical value." The same paper contained a previous article on England, of which the following is a summary:—

"The German Powers will not abandon one hair's breadth of their demands on Denmark. England of the present day is a fallen country, very different from the England of the olden time. Her policy only retains the shadow of the past; the presents of England are 'Danaic gifts,' and all have seen the results of English sympathy for the Hungarians, Poles, Italians, for Greece, Turkey, Portugal, Spain, the small republics in South America, the United States, and Austria, where she prepared in 1854 the isolation of 1859. If the English journals remind Germany of the fate of Russia in the Crimean war, and the fault committed by the Emperor Nicholas in not believing in an alliance between France and England, it was precisely because at St. Petersburg the England of former times was still believed in. But we will not allow ourselves to be deceived, any more than the French Government, as to a policy which in the Crimean war played no other part than that of leaving the French soldiers to pull the chestnuts from the fire, which placed obstacles in the way of French policy in Italy, which is endeavouring to embroil the French Government with America, and is now labouring to form a Scandinavian union to fortify her weakened supremacy at sea by an alliance with the maritime Powers of the North. No, we will not allow ourselves to be deceived. We will not seek a support for Germany in this new England. That time is past. But we will do what German right and German honour command, and then Denmark also will learn what the friendship of England is worth."

AUSTRIA.—It was announced on Tuesday by Reuter's telegrams that at a Council of Ministers held on Sunday at Vienna, under the presidency of the Emperor, resolutions were adopted declaring that the London Treaty could no longer be considered by Austria as a basis of negotiations between the great Powers. Official assurance has since been received from Vienna that this telegram was not authentic, and that the Austrian Government does not intend in any way to depart from the basis laid down in the identical despatch from Austria and Prussia of the 31st January. In their sitting of Friday both Houses of the Reichsrath expressed warm sympathy for the army in Schleswig. The Lower House subsequently granted an extraordinary credit of 4,000,000fl. The session will be closed in state on Monday by a speech from the throne. The Emperor will give a soirée to-day to all the members of the Reichsrath. The Minister of Finance opened a subscription on Saturday for a new lottery loan of 40,000,000fl. (4,000,000*l*.) The loan will not bear interest, but will be redeemable within 55 years by periodical drawings with prizes. The loan was negotiated on Thursday at 96 per cent. The Austrian Credit Mobilier took 15 millions, Messrs. Rothschild's 11½ millions, and Baron Wodianer 13½ millions. All the other competitors for the loan joined these capitalists. Large offers for the loan were made to the Government, both by foreign and home capitalists. Count Revertera has been appointed Austrian Civil Commissioner for Schleswig. Austria has accepted the proposition of Denmark that a delay of eight weeks should be allowed to Danish and Austrian ships with their cargoes, material of war excepted, to leave the harbours of both countries without molestation, and that during a similar period the mails should be regularly conveyed to and from either country. The Botschafter of Vienna of Wednesday, says:—

"Denmark, by its anterior conduct, and finally by its armed resistance, has abolished treaties. The London Treaty no longer exists. The great German Powers are masters of their policy towards Denmark. The ulterior events of the war, the circumstances under which peace will be concluded, and the regard due to the condition of Europe, will aid in determining what use they will make of this liberty of action."

FRANKFORT.—The Kölnische Zeitung publishes the conclusions of the report of M. Von der Pfordten on the question of the succession to the Duchies. The report comes to the conclusion of the non-validity of the Treaty of London for the Germanic Confederation, and the nullity of the stipulations which it contains relative to the Duchies, and proposes—

1. To recognise Prince Frederick as Duke of Holstein. 2. To recognise M. de Mohl, nominated for that purpose by Prince Frederick, as his representative at the Diet. 3. To reserve the decision in respect to the Duchy of Lauenburg.

At the sitting of the Diet on Thursday the report of the majority of the Holstein Committee upon the London Treaty was read, regarding the Treaty in its bearing upon the succession question. The views of two sections of the minority of the Committee were also submitted. They consisted of an identical opinion of the Austrian and Prussian representatives, and an opinion of the representative of Mecklenburg, arrived at upon different grounds. Both advocated that this report should be discussed on the occasion of the report to be made shortly on the claims of succession of the Duke of Augustenburg. Voting is to take place upon the propositions of the majority and minority of the Committee in a fortnight. The representatives of Austria and Prussia declared that the nature of the present occupation by the two great German Powers of the Schleswig villages allotted to Holstein upon the north of the Eider is without prejudice to the rights of the Confederation and of Holstein. The announcement of the representative of Lübeck, that an embargo had been laid upon shipping, was referred to a committee.

POLAND.—Letters from Warsaw announce the arrest of a person named Fawski, and state that it had led to most important discoveries, in consequence of which 1000 persons had been arrested in Warsaw and the provinces up to Saturday last. The same letters state that the archives of the National Government had fallen into the hands of the Russian authorities, and that important personages in Poland and abroad were thereby seriously compromised. The Dziennik announces the discovery of 10 infernal machines, together with bombs and arms, at the vinegar manufactory of M. Eskert. A circular has been addressed by General Berg to the military commanders, ordering that insurgents voluntarily surrendering with their arms shall be permitted to retain their liberty. Those who surrender without arms are to be set free on producing a certificate of legitimation, and their future good behaviour being guaranteed by the authorities of their respective villages. Insurgents failing to comply with either condition are to be transported until the restoration of order. The report that the Polish insurgent leader Rembailo was killed in the engagement at Itza is unfounded, but Colonel Suchonim, who was wounded on that occasion, is dead. On the 1st of February Rembailo encountered seven companies of Russian troops at Miechow, in the government of Radom, when he dispersed three companies and captured a large quantity of arms. A sharp engagement took place on the 20th ult. at Prochenk, in the government of Lublin, between the combined insurgent corps of Zeglinski, Pogorzelski, Cwiek, Jagmin, and Wagner, and a strong division of Russians under General Manukin. The Poles lost 93 killed and 127 wounded. Epidemic typhus has broken out among the Russian garrisons in the district of Cracow.

IONIAN ISLANDS.—The Turin papers publish advices from Corfu to the 7th, stating that orders have been given to suspend the demolition of the fortifications in that island. The papers believe the order to have been occasioned by the expectation of war.

ITALY.—It is said that riots have occurred at Bellinzona. Several arrests were made, but the people released the prisoners, uttering seditious cries. The Unita Italiana of the 2d, publishes an article under the title of "Military Force of Austria in Italy," signed "Giuseppe Mazzini." It endeavours to prove that, in a war against Italy, Austria could not bring into the field more than 150,000 or 170,000 men at the most. Italy could oppose to them, it affirms, a force of 300,000 men. The article terminates with the cry of "To Venice! with purely Italian forces! To Venice! for Italy and for Poland!"

TURKEY.—In consequence of the excitement in the Principalities, Russia and Austria, fearing for Poland and Hungary, are putting a strong pressure upon Turkey to send an army of occupation to the Principalities. The Turkish Government is strengthening all the defences of the Danube, and it is rumoured that Turkish troops will be concentrated on the frontier. It is said that the Porte has obtained possession of documents proving the existence of a secret treaty between Moldo-Wallachia and the Servian Government. Keen frost and heavy falls of snow have occurred at Constantinople. The winter has been the severest known in Turkey for many years, but is now becoming milder. Thirty thousand sheep have perished in the province of Gallipoli alone. The Levant Herald says the Turkish Government is going to constitute a new Tribunal of Commercial Arbitration at Constantinople, with three judges, English, French, and German. The Sultan has decreed that, dating from the commencement of the current year, a certain number of youths, fixed for the present at 32, and chosen each year from among the Greek, Bulgarian, Armenian, and Catholic Armenian communities, shall be educated at the Government expense in the Imperial Military Schools of Constantinople and Paris, with a view to their subsequently receiving commissions in the Turkish army; eight out of this number will be brought up for the civil service. These students will likewise be permitted to practise their religion without any restrictions, in the same manner as the Christian students in the Imperial School of Medicine; and, to prevent any undue influence being exercised on them by their Mussulman fellow-students, they are forbidden to embrace Mahomedanism under pain of expulsion.

CHINA.—A despatch from Shanghai of the 26th Dec., says that the Imperialists are gaining ground. Woosi has been captured by Rhode.

JAPAN.—Advices from Japan state that Prince Satsuma has paid the indemnity demanded of him on account of the murder of Mr. Richardson. With this, and the Prince's own assurance that he will do his best to discover the murderers and bring them to justice, Colonel Neale has expressed himself satisfied.

AUSTRALIA.—Great floods had occurred in Australia, destroying the Wheat crops.

NEW ZEALAND.—Advices from New Zealand announce that the Maories have suffered a great defeat. General Cameron, on the 20th Nov., with a force of 1000 men and three guns, aided by the Royal Navy, under Commodore Sir William Wiseman, attacked the Maories, who occupied a strongly entrenched position on the bank of the river Waikato at Rangiriri, and after a severe engagement succeeded in dislodging them from it, and taking 183 prisoners, including most of the chiefs. The fighting commenced at 5 P.M., and did not cease till 6 A.M. next day. Our loss, including that of the Royal Navy, is 4 officers killed, 11 wounded; 37 men killed, 80 wounded. The 50th Regiment had arrived in the Himalaya, which returned to Sydney on the 4th December with the following message from General Cameron:—

"'November 21, 1863.

"We assaulted the enemy's intrenched position at Rangariri at half-past 4 P.M. on the 20th, and carried it after a desperate engagement. I regret to say our loss is severe —Lieutenant Murphy (12th), and Midshipman Watkins, of the Curaçoa, and 35 men killed; 13 officers and 80 men wounded, including Colonel Austin, 14th Regiment, since dead; Captain Mayne, Lieutenants Alexander, Downes, and Hotham, R.N; Captain Mercer, R.A, since dead; Captain Phelps, 14th Regiment, since dead; Captain Gresson, Lieutenant Talbot, Lieutenant Chevalier, Adjutant Lewis, 65th Regiment; Captain Brookes, R.E.; Ensign Dicrow, 40th Regiment—the greater part severely. The enemy fought with the greatest determination, and held the strongest part of their position during the whole night. Being completely surrounded and cut off, they surrendered unconditionally at half-past 5 this day; 183 in number are now prisoners of war, among them several chiefs of note. The enemy's loss has not yet been ascertained, but it is known to be very great. A party of 400, under William Thompson, approached the position from the east with a flag of truce after the surrender. An interpreter was sent, who states that William Thompson appeared inclined to surrender, but his people were opposed to it, and went back, he says, and sent in his mere by the interpreter, with what objects I am not aware. The King was present at Rangariri, and escaped during the night by swimming across the swamp, as did several others. The total number of the enemy present at the engagement is not known."

UNITED STATES.—The contradictory reports which have been received during the two past weeks from Knoxville have been reduced to intelligibility. Skirmishing between the forces of Generals Longstreet and Forster commenced on the 15th, and continued until the 20th, when the Federals fell back to Knoxville, with a loss of upwards of 150 men, and 200 prisoners, several caissons blown up, a large quantity of clothing destroyed, 700 cattle, 900 waggons, and two boat loads of provisions and tobacco captured. The entire Federal force had retreated west of the Holston River, and skirmishing was in progress within six miles of the city. General Longstreet, who had been strongly reinforced, had established an impregnable base of operations at Bull's Gap. General Forster is ill, and the Administration at Washington is said to be seriously alarmed at the situation of affairs at Knoxville. The 6th Corps from the Army of the Potomac, under General Sedgwick, has been sent to the assistance of General Forster. Richmond papers of the 28th report the capture by the Confederate General Forrest of Island No. 60, in the Mississippi River, with all the managers, negroes, cattle, &c. The Federals are declared by the same papers to have evacuated Fort Pillow; and Corinth, Mississippi, having first blown up their fortifications. General Forrest has defeated the Federals at Lagrange, Collinsville, and Germantown, Tennessee. A large force in West Tennessee is purposing to join General Forrest. Cairo despatches report that the Confederates, under Generals Marmaduke, Shelby, and Fagan, were advancing upon Pine Bluff, Arkansas, on the 22d. An attack upon Marmaduke by Lieutenant Payst had been repulsed; the other columns were skirmishing with the Federals under Clayton. The same despatches state the guerilla firing upon the Mississippi steamers had been resumed at Miliken's Bend. Despatches recently read in the Confederate Congress relate that the Confederate troops are recruiting by brigades for the war. Charleston telegrams of the 23d, via Richmond, announce that the bombardment of the city was almost suspended. The Courier of the 26th ult. states that trifling damage has been done by the Federal shells. The Democrats in Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, in convention on the 12th, unanimously nominated General M'Clellan for the next Presidency. The Senate on the 24th, by a vote of 27 against 11, adopted Mr. Sumner's resolution requiring all senators to subscribe the new oath of allegiance. Senator Bayard, of Delaware, against whom the resolution was aimed, took the oath and announced his intention to resign. The committee of the Senate to whom the question of the expulsion of Senator Davis of Kentucky had been referred, have asked to be discharged from making a decision, and the question is therefore dropped. Mr. Vallandigham has applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to test the legality of the sentence of imprisonment passed upon him in May last by General Burnside's Military Commission. Mr. Lincoln has directed a State election to be called in Arkansas on the 28th of March. He declares that after that date the original laws of the State shall be considered in force, excepting that slavery is abolished from the Constitution. Mr. Chase, in an order dated the 23rd, has removed the restrictions upon trade in Missouri and Kentucky. Letters from Key West, Florida, of the 22nd, state that a convention of Unionists is to be held at St. Augustin on the 1st of March, to reorganise the State government under the conditions proclaimed by Mr. Lincoln. General Banks, in compliance with a petition presented by the Free States General Committee of New Orleans, on the 16th, has authorised a convention to frame a new Constitution for Louisiana.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

FRIDAY.—Ecclesiastical Commission.—The Archbishop of YORK's motion for copies of two reports of committees of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners was agreed to after some remarks by Earl GRANVILLE, who said that some of the objections made to the administration of the Board had been answered by the Earl of Chichester, and that as to the other changes suggested, the Government had not yet come to a decision.—The LORD CHANCELLOR gave some details of the manner in which his Bill for the Sale of Small Crown Livings had worked. The prices realised by the livings that had been disposed of had exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The returns were then ordered.

MONDAY.—The House sat for a few minutes, but no business of any importance was transacted.

TUESDAY.—The Address.—Lord SYDNEY brought up the answer of her Majesty to the Address. Germany and Denmark.—The Earl of MALMESBURY, in asking a question on the present position of Austria and Prussia in relation to Denmark, made some observations on the Treaty of 1852, by which the succession of the Danish Crown is settled. He described the negotiations that resulted in the treaty, adding that when in office he had always discouraged every attempt to deal with the subject of Schleswig as a German question only. He had always contended that it was a matter for the consideration of the European Powers. Now, however, it seemed to have become an exclusively German question. He considered that Prince Frederick had no right whatever to dispute the arrangement made with his father for the renunciation of the rights of his family, as he was 24 years of age when it was made, and never protested against it in any way. He asked whether her Majesty's Government had obtained any guarantee from Austria and Prussia that their troops would be withdrawn from the Duchy of Schleswig in the event of the demands on Denmark being conceded, whether the two great German Powers still considered their obligations under the Treaty of 1852 valid; and whether her Majesty's Government still considered Austria and Prussia as so bound by the treaty to maintain the integrity of the Danish Monarchy.—Earl RUSSELL, in reply, said it was an error to suppose that her Majesty's Government had allowed the points in dispute to become exclusively German questions. On the contrary, they had always maintained that they were European and international. The Government had not received any guarantee that the Austrian and Prussian troops would be withdrawn from Schleswig if the Danish constitution were abrogated. As to the second question, it was impossible that a treaty concluded between England, France, Russia, and Sweden could be annulled by a war between Germany and Denmark. As to the third question, he again quoted the despatch of M. von Bismark. At the time the despatch was written, Prussia well knew that the invasion of Schleswig was resolved on; it was impossible therefore to say the treaty was annulled by an act of war that took place on the day after the date of the despatch.—The Earl of DERBY regretted that the Government had no guarantee for the evacuation of Schleswig, even if all the German demands were complied with.—The Earl of CARNARVON thought no discussion on the subject could be satisfactory till all the correspondence had been produced. Everything depended on the promises the Government had made to Denmark. The American Despatches.—In answer to a question from the Earl of DERBY, Earl RUSSELL stated he had ascertained that Mr. Seward had written to Mr. Adams the despatch which had appeared among the papers submitted to Congress, referring to the demand of indemnification for the losses sustained by the commerce of the North from the captures made by the Alabama. Mr. Adams had received that despatch, but had not communicated it. Naval Gunnery.—The Earl of HARDWICKE, after referring to some recent experiments, asked when the navy would be supplied with a gun and projectile that would be effective against ships plated with 4½ inches of iron.—The Duke of SOMERSET gave a detailed statement of what had been done towards supplying the navy with effective artillery. The Government had obtained 130 and 150-pounders that would pierce iron plating, but the difficulty was to procure an effective broadside gun.—Earl DE GREY explained the causes of the delay in the proceedings of the committee, and disclaimed, on the part of the Government, any wish to favour one competitor for the supply of arms more than another.

THURSDAY.—The American Despatches.—The Earl of DERBY, in asking for the production of the correspondence relating to the Alabama, referred to the refusal of the Government to furnish the despatches concerning the seizure of the rams at Liverpool, although they had already been laid before Congress, and been made public in America. What he would like to see was the English as well as the American version, for the impression created by the latter was that her Majesty's Government had been compelled, by the menaces of the Federal authorities, to make concessions which they had declined in the first instance. In addition to the correspondence as to the Alabama and the steam rams, he wished that Parliament should also be supplied with any correspondence that might have taken place in regard to acts of violence committed by Federal cruisers upon English vessels. One of the despatches of Mr. Seward to Mr. Adams contained the threat that such vessels as the Alabama and the Florida should be followed and seized even when they took refuge in British waters, and were under the protection of the flag. It was true that Mr. Adams did not appear to have communicated that document to her Majesty's Government; nevertheless, it had been laid before Congress, and it was expedient that a thorough understanding should be come to with the Federal authorities on the subject.—Earl RUSSELL said there was little reason to doubt that the steams rams built at Liverpool, and which were at first stated to be on French and then on Egyptian account, were really intended for the use of the Confederates; and he agreed with Mr. Adams that the vessels were armed and equipped in this country, and sent forth to attack a Power with which we were at peace, it would be an infringement of the proclamation of neutrality issued by her Majesty, and would be virtually taking part in the war in favour of the Confederate States. Her Majesty's Government were extremely anxious that no act should give countenance to such proceedings. With regard to the publication of the papers, he was informed by the law officers of the Crown that their production would lead to discussion, and that the Government would be prejudiced by having their case either partially stated or altogether forstalled. Case of Lieut. Tinling.—Lord CHELMSFORD called attention to the circumstances connected with the death of Lieut. Tinling, of H.M.S. Encounter, at Shoushing, on the 5th of March last, and asked for explanation of a statement made by the Secretary to the Admiralty that when that officer fell he was not engaged in the service of the Queen.—The Duke of SOMERSET praised the gallant conduct of the deceased officer, who was not on duty but acting as a volunteer when he received his fatal wound. Earl GREY said that Lieut. Tinley went to Shoushing in charge of an English gun, and was practically acting under the orders of his superior officer. The question was an illustration of the unwise policy of the Government in China; they ought, in his opinion, to do one of two things—either refrain from all interference in the struggle between the Pekin Government and the Taepings, or, if they did interfere, to do so in a manner worthy of the country.—Earl RUSSELL contended that we had maintained a strict neutrality as long as we could, but that at length it had become absolutely necessary to take steps in defending Shanghae and the other treaty ports from the attacks of barbarians.—The Earl of HARDWICKE, the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, and Lord CHELMSFORD contended that Lieut. Tinling must be considered to have been acting under orders. Metropolitan Railway Schemes.—Earl GRANVILLE moved that a select committee be appointed to consider the best method of dealing with the railway schemes now before Parliament affecting the metropolis; and, in conjunction with a committee of the Commons, to report to the House as to what schemes should not be proceeded with during the present session.—The Earl of DERBY regretted that no combined plan had been laid down for the guidance of the joint committee. For any other district of the country he should not ask this; but in the metropolis the interests involved were so large and so complicated that one good governing plan should be decided on.—Lord REDESDALE approved the joint committee, as the case was an exceptional one.—After some remarks by the Earl of CARNARVON in reference to the protection of private rights where the enormous railway companies that were special features of the present time, the motion was agreed to, and the committee appointed.

FRIDAY.—Lancashire Distress.—Lord DENMAN presented a petition from the Guardians of the Bakewell Union against the renewal of the Rate in Aid Act, which they considered to be oppressive.—Earl GRANVILLE thought there was no ground for the alarm of the petitioners. The grievance was not probably great, and he thought they would not probably be called upon to contribute for more than another year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—The Address.—Lord R. GROSVENOR having brought up the report on the Address on the Queen's Speech, Mr. WHITESIDE commented on the state of Ireland, and complained that no notice was taken of that country in the Royal Speech. All the Irish manufactures were in a very depressed condition, in consequence of the legislation of late years. Within the last 13 months upwards of 100,000 men had carried the shores of Ireland to swell the ranks of the Federals in America. He did not see in what way the affairs of the local government of Ireland could be conducted with efficiency so long as differences of political views and opinions existed amongst its members.—Sir ROBERT PEEL denied that any such differences of opinion existed among the members of the local government of Ireland, or that 100,000 fighting men had left the shores of that country within the last year. The total emigration during that period was 120,000, but that included men, women, and children, and it was the natural result of the inability of Ireland to give employment to the vast number of her agricultural labourers. The condition of the lower classes of the people of Ireland was improving yearly, and although the prospects of the harvest had not been realised, he did not hesitate to say that Ireland offered no exception to the internal prosperity of the kingdom. —Mr. BENTINCK regretted the absence from the Speech of all reference to the United States, and said that the Government ought to have stated something as to their intentions with respect to the continuance of the paper blockade, and as to the outrages which had recently been committed by American cruisers on the British flag. — Mr. WHITE regretted that the Government had not accepted the proposal of the Emperor of the French for a European Congress, and condemned the proceedings in Japan.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL for IRELAND said that the future of Ireland was full of hope and promise. Education was more widely diffused than ever it had been before, and was accompanied by a purity of morals and an earnestness of religious feeling unexampled in the history of the world. There was a growing spirit of self-reliance amongst the people. No country was so free from crime, and the general condition of Ireland was that of peace and order.—After some remarks by Mr. HENNESSY, Sir P. O'BRIEN, and Mr W. E. DUNCOMBE, Sir G. GREY said, in answer to an inquiry by Mr. HADFIELD, that the object of the Commission on the subject of Clerical Subscription was not to abolish but to revise the various forms of declaration and subscription. The Report was then agreed to.

MONDAY.—Germany and Denmark.—In reply to Lord R. CECIL, Lord PALMERSTON said that her Majesty's Government had remonstrated against the demonstrations which had taken place under the shadow of the protection of the troops of Austria and Prussia in favour of the Prince of Augustenburg as Duke of Schleswig and Holstein. These demonstrations were inconsistent with the good faith of the two German Powers, who were bound to acknowledge the King of Denmark as ruler of those Duchies, and also inconsistent with their declaration of readiness to maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy. Prussia had expressed her disapproval of the proclamation of the duke, and had given instructions to countermand them. With regard to what had been done in Holstein, Austria and Prussia were not directly responsible, as the occupation had been carried out under direction of the Diet. Prussia had not denied her readiness to abide by the Treaty of 1852, but since the commencement of these warlike measures, had informed her Majesty's Government that she would abide by the Treaty of 1852, and maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy. To hold, as had been held in Berlin, that the existence of subsequent war put an end to treaties, would be preposterous, for if such a doctrine were for a moment admitted, any powerful State might make an unprovoked attack upon a weak one, and then declare that the outbreak of war had put an end to treaties. Such a doctrine no Government that had any respect for itself, or any regard for the principles of good faith, could seriously uphold. It would be utterly disgraceful for any civilised country to stand on such a position. Military Establishments.—On the order of the day for the consideration of the Speech from the Throne, Mr. BENTINCK inquired whether there was any truth in the rumour that it was the intention of Government to reduce military establishments by diminishing the strength of the Artillery, and whether in the opinion of the noble lord at the head of the Government the position of Europe at this moment was such as to justify a reduction of armaments.—Lord PALMERSTON said that no material reduction would take place in the army or navy beyond that consequent upon the transfer of the Ionian Islands. He had no means of predicting what might occur in the future, but should circumstances call forth the energies of England, he was sure that she would, as usual, prove equal to the emergency. The Viceroy of India.—On the motion of Sir C. WOOD, seconded by Lord STANLEY, a resolution was passed in committee of the whole House, continuing the annuity granted to Sir John Lawrence, the new Governor-General of India. Malt for feeding Cattle.—In committee of the whole House, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER moved that leave be given to bring in a Bill to allow the making of malt duty free to be used in feeding cattle. He explained the provisions of the Bill, which was intended to be temporary.—Sir F. KELLY congratulated the right hon. gentleman on a measure which might be described as the first effort of legislation favourable to the agricultural interest which had been brought forward for the last 30 years. — Mr. BENTINCK regarded the measure merely as an instalment of justice, which, however, would not satisfy the agricultural body.—Mr. BASS expressed his apprehension that if the proposed alteration were made, it would be very difficult to protect the revenue.—Mr. NEWDEGATE viewed the proposition with favour, as the existing restriction was calculated to intercept the profits of agriculturists, and to interfere vexatiously with the most important branch of native industry.—After some remarks by Col. BARTTELOT, Sir E. DERING, and Mr. S. BOOTH, leave was given to bring in the Bill. The Collection of Taxes.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER moved for leave to bring in a Bill to alter and amend the laws relating to the collection of the land-tax, assessed taxes, and income-tax. He explained the machinery under which the taxes were now collected, observing that the Bill would not touch the Commissioners or the assessors, but would be confined exclusively to the collectors, who, though local officers, were not popularly elected, the taxpayers having no voice in their appointment. He proposed to substitute the system which existed in Ireland and Scotland, where it worked well, and to carry it into effect, under the Department of Inland Revenue, by voluntary operation, the details of which, as well as other provisions of the Bill, he explained. After some remarks by Mr HENLEY, Mr. HUBBARD, Sir B. HALL, and other members, leave was given to bring in the Bill. Lunatic Criminals.—Sir G. GREY moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Act 3d and 4th William IV., c. 54, intituled "An Act for making Further Provision for the Confinement and Maintenance of Insane Prisoners." He gave a detailed explanation of the circumstances under which he felt it to be his duty to respite Townley, and said that he proposed to alter the existing law by imposing the duty of giving certificates of the insanity of prisoners on the visiting justices of the gaol, leaving to them the selection of the two medical men who should report on the state of the prisoner. This would remedy the defect of the present law, which allowed the machinery to be set in motion not by impartial persons, but by agents of the prisoner. He also proposed that certificates of insanity should not be final and conclusive. With these amendments he hoped that no similar miscarriage of justice would occur such as that which had lately attracted so much public attention.—Mr. MACDONOGH expressed his opinion that the commutation of Townley's sentence was in violation of all law and precedent, and that the execution ought to have been carried into effect.—Mr. NEATE thought that the better mode of proceeding would be by Royal Commission, rather than by Bill.—Mr. LOCKE thought that Townley should have been executed, and that if Wright had had rich friends, he might have got off in the same way.—Sir G. BOWYER thought that no blame whatever was attached to the Secretary of State for Townley's case, but regretted that the royal clemency had not been extended to Wright.—Sir B. LEIGHTON felt bound to admit that if he had been placed in the same painful position as Sir G. Grey he should have acted as he had done.—Mr. BRIGHT said that the right hon. baronet could not have taken any other course than that which he had adopted. It was certainly unfortunate that the case of Wright had fallen so closely upon that of Townley, but the two cases were widely different, and it by no means followed that because Townley had not been punished by death, the sentence of Wright should have been commuted. He held this opinion, although he was opposed to all capital punishment. —Sir J. PAKINGTON also defended Sir G. Grey, and said that he would not have been open to obloquy if it had not been for the mistrust engendered in the public mind by the course he had pursued in the case of Jessie M'Lachlan, convicted of the Glasgow murder. As for Townley, who had been saved from execution by a juggle and a trick, he was not insane, and deserved to suffer the extreme penalty of the law. Leave was then given to bring in the Bill. The Irish Bar.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL for IRELAND obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the laws relating to conveyancing, special pleaders, and draughtsmen in equity practising in Ireland. The Metropolitan Railways.—Mr. M. GIBSON moved for a select committee to consider the best method of dealing with the railway schemes proposed to be sanctioned within the limits of the metropolis by Bills to be introduced in the present session, and to report their opinion whether any, and what schemes should not be proceeded with during the present session; also that a message be sent to the Lords, acquainting them that the House had appointed such committee, and requesting their lordships to appoint an equal number of Lords to be joined with the members of the Commons to consider the subject. He thought he was fully justified in inviting the House to appoint the committee when he told them that the estimated expense of the proposed metropolitan schemes amounted to between 34,000,000*l.* and 35,000,000*l.*, and that one quarter of the whole area of the City proper had been scheduled for railway purposes.—Lord STANLEY said that in the present position of the question the most practical step would be to appoint a royal commission for the purpose of investigating not only the best mode of supplying London with railway communication, but with such river and street communication as the necessities of the metropolis might require. — Mr. MASSEY was of opinion that a very little extension of the existing railways would amply meet all the wants of the capital, without cutting up and destroying the town in all directions, as was contemplated by the various projects now before the House. He disapproved of the proposal to inquire by a joint committee of the two Houses.—Lord J. MANNERS also thought the proposal of a joint committee would be insufficient for any useful purpose.—Sir J. SHELLEY advocated a royal commission as preferable to a joint committee. He moved as an amendment the adjournment of the debate, in order that the Government might have an opportunity of reconsidering the subject. The motion was seconded by Lord ENFIELD, who suggested that no civil engineers should be put on the commission.—Sir M. PETO supported the proposition of the Government.—After some remarks by Mr. CRAUFURD, Mr. SELWYN, Mr. SCOURFIELD, Lord FERMOY, and Mr. LOCKE, Sir J. SHELLEY withdrew his amendment, and the motion was agreed to.

TUESDAY.—The Address.—Lord PROBY brought up the reply of her Majesty to the Address of the House. State of Denmark. —In reply to Mr. PEACOCKE, Lord PALMERSTON said he had seen the report in the papers of a revolutionary outbreak at Copenhagen, but the very latest accounts which had reached the Government led them to believe that although there had been a display of dissatisfaction on the part of the populace of Copenhagen on the retreat of the army from the Dannewirke, there was no truth in the report that the King of Sweden had been proclaimed, and that King Christian had departed from his kingdom. Germany and Denmark.—Mr. DISRAELI wished to know whether it was the opinion of the Government that, in consequence of the war which had broken out between the German Powers and Denmark, the former had been relieved from the undertaking which they had entered into with this country and the other signataries under the Treaty of 1852. He also wished to know whether, before the invasion of the Duchies, her Majesty's Government had obtained from the Governments of Austria and Prussia an undertaking that, when they had obtained the revocation of the Constitution, they would restore the Duchies to the King of Denmark?—Lord PALMERSTON replied that he meant to have said on Monday evening that a notion had been broached at Berlin, and in certain places in Germany, to the effect that the existence of war with Denmark would release the German Powers from obligations to respect the Treaty of 1832. That was not, however, the principle upon which Austria and Prussia had taken their stand, as they had already acknowledged the Treaty of 1852 to which they were parties, and had expressed their willingness to maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy. The despatch from Berlin, which had been read on this subject on the night of the opening of Parliament, was the last which her Majesty's Government had received, and they were of opinion that it was complete as regarded the obligation of Prussia to maintain the Treaty of 1852. Her Majesty's Government had not received any assurance from Austria and Prussia that they would evacuate the Duchies so soon as the Constitution of November had been revoked, but he apprehended that they were bound by every consideration of honour and good faith to fulfil their promise to that effect.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD complained of the delay in producing the papers on the subject. Ash Wednesday.—On the motion of Lord PALMERSTON, it was agreed that the House, at its rising, should adjourn until Thursday. Bombardment of Kagosima.—Mr. BUXTON moved the following resolution:—"That this House, while only imputing to Admiral Kuper a misconception of the duty imposed on him, deeply regrets the burning of the town of Kagosima, as being contrary to those usages of war which prevail among civilised nations, and to which it is the duty and policy of this country to adhere." He entered at some length into the history of our attempt to establish ourselves in Japan, and, having described the bombardment of Kagosima by Admiral Kuper as an act of wanton cruelty, altogether unworthy of a great and civilised Power, expressed his opinion that if such acts of unmerited aggression against a weak and unoffending Power were allowed to become a precedent, the reputation of England would suffer incalculable injury.—Mr. AYRTON seconded the motion.—Mr. LONGFIELD moved as an amendment the omission of the words—"while only imputing to Admiral Kuper a misconception of the duty imposed on him." He explained that his object was to vindicate the character of a brave and absent officer, who had merely executed the orders which he had received from the immediate representative of her Majesty's Government. Admiral Kuper had made no misconception whatever; on the contrary, when he proceeded to the bombardment of a town of 200,000 inhabitants, he did so with the entire approval of Colonel Neale, the British Plenipotentiary, acting upon instructions from Earl Russell.—Sir J. HAY seconded the amendment, urging that the attempt to make the admiral responsible for the barbarous orders of the Foreign Office was discreditable to the Government.—Admiral WALCOT said that no blame whatever attached to Admiral Kuper, who had no other alternative but to return the fire of the Japanese batteries.—Lord STANLEY could not see any justification whatever for the double claim which had been made—first, upon the Government of the Tycoon, and secondly upon Prince Satsuma. The amount demanded was also exorbitant. He feared that the policy which we were pursuing in Japan would frustrate the object we had in view, and deprive us of all moral influence in that country.—Lord R. MONTAGU contended that the Government had no course open to them but to enforce their demands. —Sir F. CROSSLEY believed that the honour of England might be maintained in the East without resorting to those extreme measures.—Mr. LIDDELL also disapproved of the manner in which we had sought to force ourselves into Japan.—Mr. KINGLAKE acquitted Admiral Kuper of all blame, and reminded the House that when Earl Russell heard of the bombardment of Kagosima, he wrote to Colonel Neale expressing his regret at the circumstance.—Mr. LAYARD, in defending the original treaty with Japan, declared that England had no choice but to follow in the wake of Russia and America in opening up trade with that country. He entered at some length into the history of the disputes between the Tycoon, the Daimios, and the Mikado, which had led to several outrages on foreigners, and as regarded the destruction of Kagosima, he asserted that, however deplorable that occurrence was, Admiral Kuper had acted according to strict precedent, although there was no proof whatever that the city itself was wantonly destroyed. The Government, so far from casting blame on Admiral Kuper, had supported him, and the only reason he had not received distinctions similar to those conferred upon Colonel Neale was that there was a strong feeling in England against the burning of Kagosima, and the Government were desirous of receiving full explanations from the admiral before conferring any special reward upon him.—Sir J. ELPHINSTONE and Mr. W. E. FORSTER supported the amendment.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL defended the conduct of the Government generally, and expounded the principle of the law of nations in reference to the bombardment of towns.—Mr WHITESIDE attached the entire blame to Earl Russell, by whose specific instructions hostilities had been carried on.—Lord PALMERSTON said it was necessary for the security of British life in Japan, and also for the maintenance of the national honour, that redress should be demanded for the murder of Mr. Richardson and others. Her Majesty's Government had exhausted every expedient before hostilities were commenced to induce the Japanese authorities to bring the perpetrators of that outrage to justice. The Tycoon did all he could to make reparation, but the Prince of Satsuma declined to do so, and the admiral on the station had no option but to use compulsion. The instructions given by Earl Russell had the entire approval of the Government, and they were ready to take the responsibility of them. His noble friend had not directed Admiral Kuper to bombard a defenceless town, but he had instructed him to fire upon the defences of the place and the stronghold of the prince, with the view of compelling him to yield to force what he had withheld from justice. If under such circumstances, the town was burnt, neither the admiral nor the Government was responsible for it. He suggested that the more convenient course would be to withdraw the motion.—The amendment of Mr. LONGFIELD to omit reference to Admiral Kuper was then agreed to.—Mr. BUXTON declared himself satisfied with the general expression of regret which the bombardment of Kagosima had elicited from the House, and intimated his willingness to withdraw the motion. The Opposition, however, objecting to this course, Lord PALMERSTON moved the previous question, which was carried on a division by 164 to 85. The original motion was therefore dropped.—Sir F. KELLY obtained leave to bring in a Bill to provide a further Appeal in Criminal Cases. The House then adjourned to Thursday.

THURSDAY.—The Crawley Court-Martial.—In reply to Colonel GILPIN, the Marquis of HARTINGTON stated that all the expenses incurred by Colonel Crawley consequent on the recent court-martial which it was usual to allow to a prisoner who had been acquitted of the charges brought against him had been paid by the Government. The only portion of his expenses which had not been paid were those connected with the legal assistance he had received during the trial, and with which the Government had nothing to do. Germany and Denmark.—In answer to Sir H. VERNEY, Mr. LAYARD stated that no guarantee had been offered to Austria and Prussia by the British Government that the Danish Rigsraad would repeal the Constitution of November, incorporating Schleswig with the kingdom of Denmark. The House having gone into Committee on the Bank Acts (Scotland), the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER moved a resolution that it was expedient to make provision for replacing the lapsed issue of bank notes in Scotland. The motion did not involve any new principle, but was founded upon that which was clearly established and declared in England by the Act of 1844. The lapsed issue of bank notes in Scotland amounted to 337,000*l.*, and he proposed to authorise the Scotch banks to issue to that extent upon paying to the State 2*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* per cent. on the amount, but relieving them from the composition which they now paid in the shape of stamp duty, which was equivalent to 8*s.* 4*d.* per cent. This would be a relief to the Banks and a profit to the State, and would not touch the general principles of the currency or of banking in Scotland. After a short discussion the resolution was agreed to. Public Expenditure.—On the report of the resolution that a Supply be granted to her Majesty, Sir H. WILLOUGHBY called attention to the amount of taxes levied for, and expended in supply during the years 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, and 1864, amounting to nearly 350,000,000*l.* in a time of peace, and urged upon the Government and the House the duty of seeing whether they might not enforce economy without crippling or injuring the naval and military establishments.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he should greatly rejoice if the public expenditure could be brought back to the scale of former years, and thought it was the duty of the House to exert an efficient control over the expenditure.—Savings Banks Annuities.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER obtained leave to introduce a Bill to amend the law relating to the purchase of Government annuities through the medium of savings banks. Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill was read a second time.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL for IRELAND obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the procedure of the County Courts in Ireland.—Mr. FERRAND moved for returns with reference to the Board of Charity Commissioners.—Mr. LOWE assented to the motion, with certain amendments to which Mr. FERRAND assented. The motion was then agreed to.

FRIDAY.—Diseased Cattle.—In answer to Mr. R. LONG, Sir G. GREY said that a Bill would shortly be introduced in reference to the importations of diseased cattle and sheep. New Courts of Law.—In answer to Mr. W. SMITH, Mr. COWPER said that a Bill would be introduced for the erection of new Law Courts between Carey Street and the Strand. The Condemned Pirates. —In answer to Sir G. BOWYER, Sir G. GREY said he had no power to prevent the execution of the seven men at Newgate, and saw no reason to deviate from the usual course. The American Despatches.—In answer to Lord R. CECIL, Mr. LAYARD repeated that Mr. Seward's despatch to Mr. Adams had not been communicated to Lord Russell, and that no written or formal communication in the sense of that despatch had been received. The Schleswig Constitution.—Lord PALMERSTON stated, in answer to MR. PEACOCKE, that the Government had proposed a protocol to be signed by Denmark in the presence of England, France, Russia, and Sweden, engaging herself to Austria and Prussia to withdraw the Constitution, but Austria and Prussia declined the proposal. He had never offered any other guarantee than this engagement would have been when made in the presence of other Powers. The Armistice.—In answer to Lord R. CECIL, Lord PALMERSTON said that the report of an armistice having been proposed by England, France, Russia, and Sweden was correct, but the result was not yet known. Capture of British Vessels.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD called attention to the recent capture of British vessels at the Cape by Federal cruisers.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

THE METROPOLITAN RAILWAY SCHEMES.—The Board of Trade have just published the important report in connection with which the President of the Board on Monday moved for a joint committee of both Houses of Parliament to consider the various railways projected in the metropolis. The report states that in eight out of 39 cases the standing orders have not been complied with, and that in none of the bills is there a provision for securing a month's public notice of the intention to take houses inhabited by the labouring classes. There is no scheme to create a central station, though the erection of several stations is proposed. The report then enumerates the various schemes designed to meet the recommendations of the select committee of the House of Lords, that there should be a railway across the Thames on the eastern side of the metropolis, to connect the lines north and south; and that additional railway communication should be provided in the densely populated parts of the metropolis, and a connection between the main lines, where not already in existence, should be established. But these objects would be in a more complete manner effected by certain schemes designed for giving effect to the recommendation of the committee of an inner and outer circuit of railway within the metropolitan district, communicating with the principal main lines coming into the metropolis for distribution of the passenger traffic, the outer circle in its course intersecting and communicating with the principal lines north of the Thames. The report then describes in detail the lines proposed by these various schemes, and states that it has been strongly pressed upon the Board by the directors of the London and North-Western that the construction of the outer circle might be accomplished by means of the lines already existing or authorised, if the companies had due facilities for the purpose, thereby obviating the unnecessary expenditure of a large amount of capital. After enumerating the schemes which would effect communication between railway termini, the report remarks upon the schemes which would use new embankments or streets, block up those already in existence, or otherwise interrupt, temporarily or permanently, the street traffic. Great inconvenience, it says, would no doubt be caused to the occupants of houses in the streets interfered with. The Board suggest that some provision should be made to compel the removal of abandoned works, and that the deposit money should be applied for that purpose, instead of being forfeited to the Crown.—At the last meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works an elaborate report from the engineer on the proposed railways was submitted, minutely describing the different lines, and the proposed interference with property in the metropolis. A report from the streets committee was also presented, stating that they had considered the report of the engineer, and ascertained that bills had been deposited for the construction of 417½ miles of railways within the circuit of the metropolis, with a capital of 70 millions for their construction, but many of them were competing lines, and the admission of one would exclude the others. The engineer had reported that Hyde Park, the Green Park, St. James's Park, Kensington Gardens, Newington Park, Hackney Downs, Leyton Grange Park, Trinity Square, Finsbury Circus, Camden Square, Oakley Square, Ampthill Square, Euston Square, and Sloane Square, would be cut through, some of them in two or three places, and the same would be the fate of the following commons:—Stoke Newington, Clapham, Tooting (invaded by seven different lines), Acton Bock, Acton, Wimbledon, Fulham, Deptford, and Turnham Green. The Whitechapel Road would be crossed by thirteen railways, Euston and Marylebone roads by thirteen, Bishopsgate Street by nine, King William Street, City, by four; Palace Yard, Westminster, by four; and other important parts of the metropolis would be crossed in the same manner. St. Stephen's Churchyard and St. Pancras Burial Ground would be invaded, the latter by three different lines. It was therefore by no means unreasonable that some alarm should be felt at so serious an interference with the open spaces and public thoroughfares. The committee had examined the proposals for accommodating the internal traffic, and they felt that no argument was necessary to prove the advantage of completing what had been called the inner circle, of which the Metropolitan Railway formed so important an instalment, by the completion of which the whole of the several metropolitan stations would, either directly or indirectly, be brought into communication, and by which a steady uninterrupted flow of traffic would be maintained throughout the day. The committee could not conceal from themselves that, in whatever way that object might be effected, it was almost inevitable that a part of the work should be constructed in the line of the northern embankment; and, though earnestly deprecating any interference with that improvement, either above ground or below, the committee could not ignore the fact that propositions would be laid before Parliament showing that a portion of the inner circle might be conveniently constructed under the Thames Embankment. The connection of the New Charing Cross station with the stations of the great lines north of London was next in importance to the inner circle. It was therefore desirable to permit a carefully-planned line in that direction, more especially as such a line might be conveniently combined with the construction of a new street, materially facilitating the uninterrupted flow of traffic from north to south. If the engineering difficulties could be overcome, great advantages would result to the public by connecting the eastern and southern lines by means of the Thames Tunnel, much of the heavy goods traffic now encumbering the streets between the docks on each side of the river and London Bridge would be diverted, and greater facilities afforded to trade, without at all interfering with the navigation of the river. The committee were decidedly of opinion that no railway bridge should be permitted to cross over the Pool below London Bridge, as a free and unimpeded access to the wharves on both sides was of primary importance to the trade of the port. No power should be spared to defeat any interference with so necessary a condition. The committee considered that the suggestion they had thrown out, coupled with the accommodation promised by lines now in course of construction, would at present suffice to meet metropolitan requirements. The committee believed that even now the public do not derive all the benefits they might from the existing lines. Excessive tolls and other impediments frequently prevented that free intercommunication between neighbouring railways which the vast and increasing traffic demanded, and the removal of those impediments by the intervention of some external influence was necessary. The execution of one-half of the proposed undertakings, in the opinion of the engineer, would render the drainage of London all but impossible. The sewers would be cut off, blocked up, diverted, and destroyed in all directions. However great the convenience of easy locomotion, the committee conceived that the perfect drainage of a densely peopled area was a yet more primary necessity. In conclusion, the committee thought it was desirable to complete an inner circle by connecting the Metropolitan Railway with the Victoria and City stations, and for minerals and heavy goods, as well as for passenger traffic, additional lines to unite the northern and southern systems. It was also desirable to connect the North-Western, Great Western, Great Northern, and Midland with the Charing Cross, South-Eastern, South-Western, and other lines south of the Thames by a carefully-devised project, and to separate as far as possible local from through and heavy traffic, both for the protection of the public and the regularity of the traffic. On the motion for the adoption of the above report a long discussion took place, and eventually it was referred back to the committee for reconsideration, the question of new railways to be discussed by the board at a future time.—Mr. Haywood, the engineer to the City Commissioners of Sewers, has also presented a report on the projects which affect the City of London. This report states there are 24 schemes, 19 of which are for railways and matters connected with railways, one for the acquisition of property for a site for a public building, one for a high-level roadway and new streets in connection with it, one for laying pipes for the transmission of parcels and letters, and one for the formation of a subway or tunnel beneath the Thames. The total length of the various railways proposed to be made within the jurisdiction of the City is about 20 miles. The area scheduled for projects of all descriptions amounts to about 211 acres, but many parts are under notice by two, three, or four companies, and the actual area scheduled is probably about 160 acres only, which are about one-fourth of the entire City. The various railways of all descriptions which are interfered with is about 300; but in comparatively few cases are the levels to be altered when the works are executed. A very large portion of the sewerage works within the City will be annihilated, and will have to be reconstructed upon an entirely different plan. There probably never was a city, says Mr. Haywood, threatened at once by so many projects as the metropolis. Two companies propose buying up and utilising the Thames Tunnel; two propose crossing the Thames, west of the Tower of London, by bridges with spans of 820 feet and with heights of 100 feet above high water mark; another equally ambitious, is to cross at Limehouse; while to the west of London, four or five bridges, although of less imposing dimensions, are proposed to be built. The Monument, Temple Bar, Drapers' Gardens, Finsbury Circus, and Apothecaries' Hall, are all scheduled, as are various of the City halls, and the Admiralty at Whitehall. The line of the Fleet sewer is to be reconstructed, and property worth many millions sterling is put under notice.

THE HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT.—Sir Goldsworthy Gurney, by whose persevering industry the atmosphere of the Houses of Parliament has been so much improved, has for some months been severely afflicted by paralysis, augmented by the daily and nightly attention which he has for some years bestowed upon the ventilation of the Houses. Being quite unable to resume his duties, he has received a prolonged leave of absence, and Mr. Alexander Gordon, civil engineer, has been installed in the office, and now carries on its duties. It is announced that Mr. Dyce, R.A., has been compelled by ill health to cease working on the series of frescoes relating to the legends of King Arthur upon which he has been so long engaged in the Queen's Robing Room, and that, having relinquished the hope of ever being able to finish them, he has returned to the Exchequer the sums he had received in advance.

Office of City Architect.—At the Court of Common Council on Tuesday the report of a committee was read, recommending that the office of City architect should be abolished, and that in lieu of it a gentleman should be appointed under the ancient title of clerk of the works and surveyor to the City, at a salary of 1200*l.* per annum. Mr. Rowe moved as an amendment that the title of City architect should be maintained, and that the proposed salary should be 1500*l.* instead of 1200*l.* per annum. Alderman J. C. Lawrence did not believe that any eminent men would accept the office for less than 2000*l.* per annum, and he proposed an amendment to that effect, which was seconded by Mr. G. J. Cockerell. This amendment was lost, and the amendment of Mr. Rowe was eventually carried. The report thus amended was then agreed to.

Launch of the Enterprise.—The iron-clad sloop Enterprise, the smallest of the vessels constructed on Mr. Reed's principle, was launched at Deptford on Tuesday in the presence of Prince Arthur and the Admiralty authorities. She is 990 tons, 160 horse-power, and is to mount four guns. The Enterprise is to be commanded by Commander Charles J. Rowley.

The Victoria Cross Gallery.—It is stated that a gentleman from Leeds has purchased from Mr. Desanges all the pictures forming this gallery, and will keep them together as a collection illustrative of British valour.

The Proposed Regent Street Arcade.—On Friday the subject of this Arcade from Regent Street to Bond Street, was brought before the Metropolitan Board of Works by deputations from the promoters and opponents of the scheme, and was ultimately referred to a committee.

Bethnal Green.—The Bishop of London has conferred the rectory of Bethnal Green, vacant by the death of the Rev. Dr. Gibson, upon the Rev. Septimus Hansard, formerly curate of St. Mary's, Bryanstone Square, and latterly curate in sole charge of the parish of St. George's-in-the-East.

Fire in a Church.—On Sunday afternoon a fire took place in St. Stephen's Church, Pratt Street, Camden Town, before the congregation had assembled. It was caused from the overheating of the stoves, and was not extinguished until some damage had been done.

The Condemned Convicts in Newgate.—The execution of the seven foreign seamen who were convicted last week of the murder and piracy on board the Flowery Land, has been fixed for Monday, the 22d inst. The execution of so many prisoners at one time is an event unprecedented in London for many years, and at the sitting of the Court of Aldermen on Tuesday Mr. Sheriff Nissen stated, in answer to a question by Alderman Sidney, that he and his colleagues had addressed a letter to the Home Secretary requesting him to appoint some other place than Newgate for the execution. It was understood that the Home Secretary had power to fix the locality, and the sheriffs, therefore, hoped that the metropolis would be spared such a spectacle. Sir George Grey has stated in reply that he has no power to make any alteration. All the convicts have severally confessed their participation in the crimes for which they are to suffer.

Prevention of Accidents by Fire in Theatres.—In consequence of the recent death of a columbine by fire, and of the earnest recommendation of the coroner's jury that uninflammable dresses should be rendered compulsory, and that all "ground lights" should be protected, the Lord Chamberlain on Friday convened a meeting of the managers of the metropolitan theatres. About 24 managers attended. His lordship read to them the letter of the coroner's jury, and briefly directed their attention to the question of inefficient egress from public buildings, brought so vividly to the mind by the late catastrophe in Chili. He then called upon them for any suggestions which they might wish to make. Several of the managers in reply stated that the great difficulty was not in protecting the lights but in controlling the movements of the ballet girls. They stated that they have not sufficient power over the ladies of the ballet to ensure obedience to their orders on such matters, and one manager declared that if the Legislature made certain stipulations compulsory, the girls would not accept engagements. With regard to the proposed plan of rendering the dresses non-inflammable, they all stated that there was an insuperable difficulty in compelling the ballet-girls to wear dresses which had been steeped in a solution rendering them incombustible. The efficacy of the solution was evanescent, and could not be applied to the underclothing, which was the chief source of danger. Moreover, both the solution of potass and the tungstate of soda imparted to the muslin a rigidity and stickiness which deprived it of that airy lightness indispensable to a dancer. On the whole they could suggest no other plan than that the Lord Chamberlain should issue strict injunctions to the ballet girls which the managers could see properly enforced. The Lord Chamberlain thanked them for their attendance, and stated that they would probably receive shortly a circular on the subject. On Wednesday, in accordance with this intimation, his lordship issued a circular addressed to the managers accompanied by a series of regulations for the better protection from accidents by fire in theatres. The Lord Chamberlain admits the value of the improvements they have already made, and now directs that all fixed gas lights shall have guards, and all moveable lights shall, whenever practicable, be protected in the same manner. Wet rugs or blankets and water pots are to be constantly ready, and persons are to be appointed to take charge of them, and to be responsible for attending to that duty. No regulation is made respecting non-inflammable dresses, because the opinion of the managers at the recent meeting was so strongly expressed as to the difficulty of issuing a general order, that his lordship has forborne to do so; but he trusts that both the managers and the ballet-dancers will see the advantage of adopting them whenever practicable.

The Public Health.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths registered in London in the week ending Saturday, February 6, were 1655. The corrected average for the corresponding week of the 10 years, 1854–63, was 1481. The present return is therefore 174 above the average. During the week the births of 1055 boys and 1023 girls, in all 2078, were registered in London. The average number was 2069.

Provincial.

Hayle.—At the adjourned sitting of the magistrates on Friday a report from Professor Taylor in reference to the case of Mr. Millett was read. It stated that there was not the slightest trace of any kind of poison, and that the result of the post mortem examination was not consistent with any form of poisoning within his knowledge. In another report Professor Taylor expressed his belief that death was clearly caused by serous apoplexy. The chairman then addressed Mr. Millett, and said that they deeply regretted having had to keep him so long in custody, but they had no alternative after the statements made to them by the prosecutor. They had now only to say that they were extremely happy that he was released from the charge. The prosecutor had not made good his case, and Mr. Millett was accordingly discharged. Mr. Millett was warmly congratulated by numerous friends, and was accompanied to his residence by a large concourse of persons; and the band of the Hayle Foundry, to which establishment he was surgeon, met in the evening in front of his house and performed various pieces of music. This result was also received with considerable interest in all parts of Cornwall, where the family has been well known for many generations as one of high respectability.

Liverpool.—The informations laid in the matter of the seizure of the rams El Tousson and El Monassir, were signed on Saturday by the Attorney-General, and filed in the Court of Exchequer for trial.

Plymouth.—On Saturday morning, about 8 o'clock, a fire, accompanied by a slight explosion, took place at the Blasting Powder Works, near Millbrook, in Hamoaze. Signal was immediately made from the Royal Adelaide flag-ship, and her boats and fire-engines, with those of the Canopus, Cambridge, St. George, Indus, and other men-of-war, in charge of about 500 men, proceeded to South Down, where the sailors in the most courageous manner entered the mills, removed most of the stores to a place of safety, and suppressed the fire. One of the workmen was injured, and an able seaman belonging to the Canopus had his arm burnt, in consequence of a spark falling on two trays of powder which he was endeavouring to save.

Worcester.—On Monday a man named John Ford, living in a court on the western side of the Severn, in this city, was taken before the magistrates at the Town Hall, on a charge of murder. The prisoner had lived for some time with a woman named Elizabeth Hall, who was many years his senior, and on Sunday the woman, going out on an errand for a neighbour, gave offence to Ford, upon which high words took place between them, when the prisoner knocked her down with a fire-shovel. The blow was fatal, the woman dying in the course of an hour. An old pensioner named Bennett was in the house at the time, but did not interfere between them, and his evidence was given with an evident desire to screen the man. A fire-shovel, with stains of blood upon it, was found in the room, and a surgeon deposed that the wound might have been caused by such an instrument. The prisoner was remanded until Tuesday, when it appeared from the result of the post mortem examination that there were no injuries to the skull sufficient to cause death, but that an extensive rupture of one of the vessels of the heart had been the cause of death. Such a rupture might have been occasioned by passion, violent emotion, a blow on the chest, or violent exertion. The magistrates, after this evidence, committed the prisoner for trial on the charge of murder, and on the same day the coroner's jury returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against him.

The National System of Education.—Dr. M'Hale, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Tuam, has published a very long pastoral, condemning in violent terms what he calls the anti-national system of education, a system, he says, which maintains "proselytising Bastilles" in this Catholic country. The Roman Catholic Bishop of Galway, Dr. M'Evilly, in an address to his congregation, has also denounced the model school in that town as a standing danger to the faith. He said that the system of mixed education destroyed faith by ideas of false liberty and unmeaning independence. He denied the moral right of parents to send their children to schools which the Bishops condemned, and declared that "the exercise of such a monstrous power was alike repugnant to all the dictates of natural and educated religion." He concluded a long and vehement attack on the model schools by declaring that he deprived every confessor, of whatever grade or position in the diocese, of all jurisdiction to absolve either the parents of the children or the children themselves who resort to such establishments, or to any other parties who actively co-operate in the infliction of such present and prospective spiritual evils. The Roman Catholic Bishop of Limerick, Dr. Butler, has also joined in these denunciations. In an address to his congregation he said that he did not believe that any Catholic who had the slightest pretensions to the name, would take his stand against the Councils of the Church, and obstinately persevere in sending his child to that condemned place—the local model school—which was set up by the English Government to get the education of the country in its own hands, and carry it out on its own plans. He need not remind his hearers of the character and conduct of the British Government towards the people of Ireland in the matter of religion and education, and in every other respect. Education was proscribed; religion was condemned and persecuted. The object of the British Government was to root out the faith and to hunt the teachers. That object the Government cherished to this hour by the manner in which it acted.

Illegal Marriage by a Priest.—An extraordinary case was before the Master of the Rolls on Saturday, involving so audacious a violation of the marriage law of Ireland, that if the guilty parties be allowed to escape with impunity there will be no protection for the honour of any family in the country, Protestant or Catholic, where there is a young girl, entitled to property, on whose affections schemers may be tempted to practise. Susannah Quinton is a minor, who has lived with her uncle, who is also her guardian, near Tempo, in the county Fermanagh. She is entitled to a fortune of 1000*l.* She met at some entertainment a young man named Peterson, an attorney's clerk at Enniskillen, whose mother, a widow, with whom he lives, keeps a small shop in that town. An attachment grew up between them, and they agreed to get married. But her guardian peremptorily refused his consent, because Peterson is a Roman Catholic, and is otherwise unsuitable, being without a penny to support a wife. But as the young lady was resolved to have this person and no other, she was made a ward of Chancery, to prevent her taking the rash step, and to save her fortune. The Master of the Rolls threatened Peterson and his abettors with imprisonment if they proceeded further in the matter. In defiance of this authority, it is alleged, Peterson got a license at the registration office by making a false declaration of the lady's age. A license was then obtained by him from the Roman Catholic Archdeacon, authorising a Roman Catholic curate to celebrate the marriage, provided the young lady was not under age. Before this was obtained she had been brought on a car by Peterson's mother to her house, and kept concealed for several days. The curate declined to marry the parties, dreading the penalties he would incur by marrying a Protestant. A strange priest was sent for to perform the ceremony, on whose face the parties pledged themselves not to look, that they might not be able to identify him in case of a prosecution. The parties were then married, the curate who had procured the strange priest standing outside the door while the ceremony was performed. Miss Quinton was afterwards baptized by the curate as a Roman Catholic. The friends of Peterson then, in order more effectually to secure their prize, saw that they were safely put to bed. The parties were all brought up before the Master of the Rolls on Saturday. He threatened to send the whole of them to gaol; but the attachment was suspended, on an undertaking being given by the minor's solicitor that she should not see Peterson again. She refused, however, to go home to her uncle, and is now at an hotel under the protection of her solicitor. The Master of the Rolls described the case as scandalous and outrageous. He said on a former day that he would lay the papers before the Attorney-General, and the Solicitor-General was present on Saturday to watch the case for the Crown.

Proposed Revival of Agitation.—The Nation last week published an address of a column and a half, signed by John Martin, one of the heroes of 1848, on behalf of "the provisional committee of the Irish National League," setting forth that the object of that body "is to obtain the restoration of a separate and independent Irish legislature and government."

Mr. T. F. Meagher, now a general in the Federal army of America, has also delivered an address in New York in which be referred, amidst loud cheers, to the organisation of the Fenian Brotherhood. Mr. Serjeant Howley, in opening the recent quarter sessions for Cashel, made the following remarks on secret associations in his address to the grand jury:—

"I deeply regret to learn that throughout the country, and even in the neighbourhood of the present place, attempts have been made, and to a certain extent successfully, to entrap the young, the impulsive, and the unwary, and to involve them in the meshes of illegal associations. The origin of these associations is folly, or, worse, it has been imported from a country which at this moment presents the most lamentable instances of the horrors ever attendant on civil war. Devastation, bloodshed, and massacre are its concomitant characteristics. In the American strife we have held up to us a picture of its sad and awful results, and it should be a warning to the people against rushing upon a similar misfortune. There are people abroad who are engaged in administering unlawful oaths to the people, and the project that they contemplate is the severance of this empire. No amalgamation of this kind can succeed, there is too much loyalty in the land to permit of it or to warrant the prevalence of fear that any dangerous consequences should result from it. There are too many allied to property and a love of order to think that a reckless band of conspirators can destroy with impunity the lives of men or the security of property. I am glad to say that the Roman Catholic clergy are alive to the danger that is abroad, and have raised their voices against those evil associations. If in the administration of this country there be faults, if remedial measures be imperative for the salvation of her people, it is not by civil commotion or destructive warfare that the one can be altered or the other accomplished. Those societies seek to instil into the minds of those people who join them delusive hopes and ideas which disturb and prevent men from settling down to calm and useful considerations; it prevents them from giving their energy and honest labour to the country by engaging them in the contemplation of events that will never occur; and if they did, it would be most destructive to the best interests of our country, for it would, indeed, be unwise to seek to pluck the remedies we require from the ashes of a civil conflict."

MURDER IN CAVAN.—On Saturday week a shocking murder was committed at a place called Kilnacola, near Grousehall, within seven miles of Cavan. It appears that about 13 years ago a lad named Bernard Cagley lived with a farmer named Peter Reilly, and while in his employment an ass wounded his hand in such a manner that amputation was necessary. Cagley after this accident suddenly disappeared. On Friday a stranger entered Reilly's house, and asked him if he knew him, and upon his being answered in the negative, he reminded him of the accident and stated that he was Cagley. Reilly invited him to remain all night with his family, and, after supper, they all retired to rest, Cagley going to sleep with Reilly's servant boy in a loft over the kitchen. About two o'clock in the morning Mrs. Reilly, hearing a noise in the loft, called to the servant boy to be cautious in coming down, as the entrance was dangerous, whereupon she was answered from the kitchen by Cagley, that he had seen a light outside the house and could not sleep. On Reilly going up to Cagley to see what was the matter, he stabbed him in the kidney with a knife, causing almost immediate death. Upon hearing the shout of her husband Mrs. Reilly ran up, when Cagley also stabbed her in the abdomen, inflicting such severe injuries that she is not expected to survive. She, however, seized a cleaver and made a blow at him, whereupon he walked out of the house, dressed in his shirt and trousers, went to the Virginia Police Station five miles distant, and surrendered himself, when he was immediately recognised as a ticket-of-leave convict. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of "Wilful Murder" against him.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE GLASGOW AND GREENOCK.—On Friday morning, while the passenger train from Glasgow was between Bishopton and Langbank, running at a speed of about 27 miles an hour, the tire of a wheel of the last third-class carriage broke in two. The flooring of the carriage was torn up, and one-half of the tire flew into the guard's break, and the other half into the carriage. In the break the guard narrowly escaped; but in the carriage the tire struck a man named Bernard Gechan, aged 24, a labourer belonging to Mount Charles, county Donegal, and, penetrating through his clothing, entered his breast, above the region of the heart, causing almost instant death. A man called William M'Leod, belonging to Argyleshire, was considerably bruised about the body; John M'Allan, of Greenock, had his arm broken; and Mary M'Culloch or Leslie, of Glasgow, was slightly injured about the body. M'Leod received his injury by leaping from the carriage. The breaking of the tire is attributed to the hard frost.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE YORK, WHITBY, AND SCARBOROUGH.—A dreadful accident occurred on Wednesday night on the Whitby branch of this railway. The train was as usual drawn up the Grosmont incline by a rope attached to a fixed engine, and when a considerable way up, the rope broke with the strain, and the train rushed down the incline, ran off the rails, and rolled over into a ditch. Two of the passengers, who were said to be commercial travellers, were killed, and several others were severely injured.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF PRIVY COUNCIL: Essays and Reviews.—On Monday the Lord Chancellor delivered judgment in the cases of "The Bishop of Salisbury v. the Rev. Dr. Rowland Williams," and "The Rev. J. Fendall v. the Rev. H. B. Wilson." The appeal in each case was from the judgment of Dr. Lushington, the Dean of Arches, who had sentenced each of the defendants to suspension from his benefice for a period of 12 months. There were present also the Bishop of London, Lord Chelmsford, Lord Cranworth, and Lord Kingsdown. The Lord Chancellor in his judgment stated that it was not the part of that Court to deal with the general subject-matter, principles, or tendencies of the "Essays and Reviews," nor to consider the whole of the essays by Dr. Williams and Mr. Wilson; but their judgment was necessarily confined to the two meagre and disjointed extracts which had been allowed to remain in the reformed Articles which had been submitted to them. After an anxious consideration of the subject they found themselves unable to say that the passages extracted from the two essays, and which formed the subject of the articles of charge, were contradicted by or plainly inconsistent with, the articles or formularies of the Church to which the charge referred, and which alone they were at liberty to consider. Their lordships, therefore, would humbly recommend to her Majesty that the sentences be reversed, and the reformed articles rejected in like manner as the rest of the original articles were rejected in the Court below—namely, without costs; but inasmuch as the appellants had been obliged to come to that Court, their lordships thought it right that they should have the costs of this appeal. The Lord-Chancellor added that he was desired by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Archbishop of York to state that they did not concur in those parts of this judgment which related to the seventh article of charge against Dr. Williams and to the eighth article of charge against Mr. Wilson.

COURT OF ERROR.—The Alexandra Case.—This case came before the Court on Saturday upon appeal from the decision pronounced by the Court of Exchequer on the 11th ult. when, it will be remembered, the judges were equally divided on the question whether the seizure of the Alexandra was lawful or not, but the judgment was substantially given against the seizure. When the case was called on Saturday, Sir Hugh Cairns, for the part of the owners, took an exception to the jurisdiction of the Court, and contended, in effect, that the Lord Chief Baron having objected to sign a bill of exceptions, the decision already given by a majority of the Court of Exchequer was irrevocable. The Attorney-General opposed this view at great length, and stated his impression that if the objection should prevail the Crown would be left without remedy. The Court said they would consider the question, and give judgment on Monday. On that day, accordingly, their lordships delivered judgment, but being divided in opinion, they delivered their judgments seriatim, commencing with the junior member of the bench. Three were of opinion that the Court had jurisdiction, and five sustained the objection of Sir Hugh Cairns, and were of opinion that the Court of Exchequer had exceeded its powers in granting the appeal, and that they had no jurisdiction in the matter. The Lord Chief Justice, who was one of the majority, intimated that the Crown could still carry the question to the House of Lords, where it must in any case have been finally decided.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT: The Piracy Case.—On Saturday George Carlos was placed upon his trial on another indictment, charging him with feloniously casting away and destroying the Flowery Land. The Jury found him Guilty, and he was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. When the sentence was explained to the prisoner, he became very excited, and exclaimed, in Italian, "I am innocent, I don't like your laws." Assault in a Railway Carriage.—William Whitehead, described as a labourer, but understood to be a gentleman of good connections, was charged with a gross insult to a married lady, named Richardson, while travelling from Slough to London on the Great Western Railway. The prisoner at first pleaded Not Guilty; but on the lady entering the witness box he said he would spare her the pain of repeating the evidence she had to give, and pleaded Guilty. In accordance with this plea the jury found him Guilty, and the Judge sentenced him to be imprisoned in Newgate for two months, to pay a fine of 25*l*., and to find good security, himself in 200*l*., and two sureties of 100*l*. each for his good conduct for 12 months.

Obituary.

LADY LOUISA LYGON, eldest daughter of the first Earl of Beauchamp, and sister of the three last Earls Beauchamp, died on the 5th inst. at her residence in Upper Brook Street. She was sister of the late Countess (Dowager) of Longford, and of Lady Emily Hesketh, and aunt of Lady Raglan.

THE HON. MRS. VESEY FITZGERALD FOSTER died on the 1st inst. at Bellevue, near Bray, Dublin, in her 76th year. She was the daughter of the first Baroness Fitzgerald and Vesci, by the Right Hon. James Fitzgerald, M.P., King's prime serjeant-at-law, who sacrificed all his offices and retired into private life from his indignation at the Union. She married in 1814 the Right Hon. John Leslie Foster, M.P., Speaker of the Irish House of Commons, afterwards a Baron of the Court of Exchequer, who died in 1842.

THE HON. MRS. LAW, mother of the heir presumptive to the Barony of Ellenborough, died on the 25th ult. She was born in 1790, and was the daughter of Sir Edward Nightingale, Bart., of Kneesworth Hall, Cambridgeshire. She married in 1811 the late Hon. Charles Ewan Law, Q.C., son of Lord Chief Justice Ellenborough, next brother to the present Earl of Ellenborough, and well known as Recorder of London, and M.P. for the University of Cambridge. By him the deceased lady leaves issue one son and three daughters. The eldest daughter is married to Lord Kilmaine, and the second is a nun, superior of a Franciscan convent at Gorey, Wexford. Her only son, Charles Edmund, heir presumptive to the Barony, is a Colonel in the army.

THE REV. SIR CHARLES HARDINGE, BART., rector of Tunbridge, died on the 3d inst., at his seat, Great Boundes Park, near Tunbridge Wells, in his 84th year. He was the eldest son of the Rev. Henry Hardinge, rector of Stanhope, Durham, and elder brother of Sir Henry Hardinge, Secretary for Ireland, Governor-General of India, and Commander-in-Chief, created Viscount Hardinge in 1846. He was educated at the Charter House, and University College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1801. He became rector of Crowhurst, near Battle, in 1804, but resigned that living in 1861. In 1809 he became rector of Tunbridge, but for many years past has been only the nominal incumbent. He married, in 1816, the daughter of Mr. Kenneth Callander, of Craigforth, and is succeeded in his title and estate by his eldest son Henry, born in 1830.

MAJOR-GENERAL MACPHERSON, Colonel of the 13th Regiment, died at Clifton, York, on the 2d inst., in his 73d year. He embarked for the Peninsula in 1809 as a volunteer in the 52d Light Infantry, and served in the advance to Talavera and the retreat from thence to Campo Mayor. He served with the Light Division until the end of the war in 1814. He was wounded on the head, in the trenches at Badajoz, by the bursting of a shell; and for his services throughout the war he received the war medal with eight clasps for Busaco, Fuentes d'Onor, Ciudad Rodrigo, Badajoz, Salamanca, Nivelle, Nive, and Toulouse. He served also as aide-de-camp and military secretary to Sir Charles Napier throughout the operations in Scinde, including the destruction of Imaumghur and the battles of Meeance and Hyderabad, and for which he was rewarded with a medal, made a C.B., and was twice mentioned in the official dispatches. He served also in the Crimea in command of the First Brigade of the Fourth Division, from Dec. 1854 to June 1855, when he was obliged to leave from ill health brought on from over-fatigue in the trenches.

MAJOR-GENERAL WYNYARD, C.B., Colonel of the 98th Regiment, died a few days since. He entered the army in 1819, and served with the forces in New Zealand from 184[illegible] until 1847 in command of the 58th Regiment. He commanded the advance division up the Kowa Kowa River, and through the interior to the position before Ruapekapeka, and entered the breach with the stormers in the assault on Kawiti's pah, in January, 1846. He was appointed to the command of the forces in New Zealand in 1851, and held her Majesty's commission as lieutenant governor of New Ulster from 1851 to 1853, and administered the government of the whole colony from December, 1853, to September, 1855. In 1859 he was appointed to the Cape command, and became soon afterwards lieutenant-governor of the colony. In 1859 he was appointed governor-in-chief, and retained that office till 1860, and again from 1861 to 1862. He was appointed colonel of the 98th Regiment in 1863.

ADMIRAL ADDERLEY died at his residence, Hams Lodge, Ryde, Isle of Wight, on the 15th ult. He was third son of the late Ralph Adderley, Esq., of Coton, and uncle of the Right Hon. C. B. Adderley, M.P. He entered the navy in 1796, and after serving with the Channel fleet for two years was employed on the Irish, West India, Home, and Mediterranean stations. As lieutenant, he shared in the action off St. Domingo, and after further service in the Channel, under Earl St. Vincent, became a commander in 1806. In 1809 he served on the north coast of Spain, and in 1811, while employed on the Downs station, he took the French privateer La Confiance, 16—a capture which was considered so important that the merchants at Lloyd's and Liverpool addressed a letter of thanks to him. He took command of the Crocus, 14, in 1811, and in the following year captured the Formica in the Mediterranean. He was posted in 1814 into the Swiftsure, 74, but left her in the following October. He accepted the retirement in 1846; became rear-admiral in 1850; and admiral in 1862.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, Feb. 8.

We have a larger supply of Beasts, and trade is slow consequently, as the average prices are rather lower, and it is difficult to effect a clearance. Sheep are also rather more plentiful; there is not much difference in prices, but trade is not quite so good as on Monday last. There are a few more Calves, and prices are lower. From Germany and Holland there are 980 Beasts, 1820 Sheep, and 200 Calves; from Spain, 135 Beasts; from Scotland, 300; from Ireland, 280; from Norfolk and Suffolk, 2400; and 150 from the Northern and Midland Counties.

Beasts, 4530; Sheep, 16,680; Calves, 218; Pigs, 380.

THURSDAY, Feb. 11.

The supply of Beasts is not large, yet fully equal to the demand. Trade is dull, and on the average prices are rather lower. The demand for Sheep is very inconsiderable, and the few on offer cannot be all disposed of. The choicest descriptions meet with purchasers at about Monday's rates. Calves are much more plentiful, and prices are lower. From Germany and Holland there are 170 Beasts, 860 Sheep, and 256 Calves; from Spain, 120 Beasts. Milch Cows, 120.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Feb. 8.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was moderate, and met a slow sale on the terms of this day se'nnight. The attendance was larger than of late, and the inquiry for foreign Wheat better, but without leading to any increase of business; prices continue to be nominal. Barley barely supported last week's prices. Beans were fully as dear. Peas unaltered in value. The Oat trade was very dull, and late rates scarcely obtainable. Flour was a steady sale.

FRIDAY, Feb. 12.

Since the 6th inst. the frost has continued to be severe, the thermometer on the morning of the 10th having, in the neighbourhood of London, fallen as low as 15 Fahr.; here there has been little snow, but it has fallen heavily along the East coast and in the Midland Counties. The inactivity we have experienced in the Wheat trade since the beginning of the year has if possible increased during the past week, being reported as very dull from all the chief markets of the kingdom, and from several a decline of 1s. per qr. is quoted. The same may be said of Barley, Oats, and Flour, but Beans and Peas have been steadier in price. Since Friday last 10 cargoes have been reported off the coast. The floating trade has been very inanimate during the whole week; only few transactions have taken place without any quotable change in prices. Paris, Feb. 11.—Flour after having been very firm during the last week closes neglected, and a few holders have submitted to a trifling reduction in price. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 33s. 3d. per 280 lbs; the present stock of Flour is estimated at 10,070 cwt. In Wheat there is only little doing, owing to higher prices being generally asked. The arrivals of English Oats and Barley this week are large, but of all other grain and Flour small. The attendance was unusually limited, and in the absence of buyers we do not alter our quotations for any article.

LIVERPOOL, February 9.—We have had a poor attendance of both millers and dealers at to-day's market, and all speculative buyers having disappeared, Wheat has remained very dull of sale, and we reduce our quotations 3d. per cental. Flour has given way 6d. per barrel and sack. Indian Corn meets only a retail inquiry, and is practically 6d. per qr. lower. Oats and Oatmeal are scarcely inquired after. Beans, Peas, and Barley each stand nominally at late currencies. The market is stagnant, and prices irregular. Weather very severe.

FRIDAY, Feb. 12.—There was a rather thin attendance. Wheat slow, 1d to 2d. lower. Indian Corn 6d. lower.

PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.—IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—

"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."

Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Bosses, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Toilet Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Calbotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

The GUTTA PERCHA COMPANY, Patentees, 18, Wharf Road, City Road, London, E.C.

Oil Paint no longer Necessary.

HILL AND SMITH'S PATENT BLACK VARNISH for preserving Iron Work, Wood, or Stone. This Varnish is an excellent substitute for oil paint on all out-door work, and is fully two-thirds cheaper. It may be applied by an ordinary labourer, requires no mixing or thinning, and is used cold. It is used in the grounds at Windsor Castle, Kew Gardens, and at the seats of many hundreds of the nobility and gentry, from whom the most flattering testimonials have been received, which HILL & SMITH will forward on application.

Sold in casks of about 30 gallons each, at 1*s.* 6*d.* per gallon, at the Manufactory, or 1*s.* 8*d.* per gallon paid to any Station in the kingdom.

Apply to HILL & SMITH, Brierley Hill Iron Works, near Dudley, and 22, Cannon Street, E.C., from whom only it can be obtained.

THE PERFECT SUBSTITUTE for SILVER.—The REAL NICKEL SILVER, introduced more than 30 years ago by WILLIAM S. BURTON, when PLATED by the patent process of Messrs. Elkington & Co., is beyond all comparison the very best article next to sterling silver that can be employed as such, either usefully or ornamentally, as by no possible test can it be distinguished from real silver. A small useful set, guaranteed of first quality for finish and durability, as follows:—

DAY, SON, AND HEWITT, Inventors of the "Stock Breeder's Medicine Chest;" containing DAY'S EXTRACT and GASEOUS FLUID, which are to the Stock Breeder and Farmer of the most inconceivable value, inasmuch as paining in Ewes in the lambing, Cows in bad calving, swollen udders, sore teats, all bad wounds, bruises, and swellings in all Animals, are dissipated and finally annihilated by the "Extract," while "Gaseous Fluid" for Ewes weakly after bad lambing, Cows after bad calving, Mares after bad foaling, by its balsamic electrical influence imparts the greatest life and animation. It is proverbial for its marvellous cure of the Fret, Colic or Gripes in Horses, and for Diarrhœa (or Scour) in Calves, Sheep and Lambs. Such is the permeation of the "Extract" by rubbing in, and of the "Gaseous Fluid" by dosing, that they draw the acrid humours which cause disease out of the part affected, and excite the curative powers of nature into action when life, vigour, and the soundest health ensue. This is the secret of their wonderful popularity. Price of "Extract," 2*s.* 6*d.* and 7*s.* per bottle; or quarter of dozen in wood 5*s.* 7*s.* 6*d.* "Gaseous Fluid," 1*s.* 8*d.* per bottle, or 20*s.* per dozen in wooden box. Plain directions for use given with every Article.

☞ Caution. Counterfeits are being hawked about the markets, some as "DAY'S," and others as "DAY & Co.'s," to avoid which be sure and ask the person soliciting orders, "Are you travelling for DAY, SON, & HEWITT?"

A MONOGRAPH of ODONTOGLOSSUM.

By JAMES BATEMAN, Esq., F.R.S., F.L.S., &c.,

Author of "The Orchidaceæ of Mexico and Guatemala."

Although founded by Humboldt and Bonpland early in the present century, it is only of late years that the genus Odontoglossum has received any considerable attention, either from the botanist or the cultivator. Not more than five species were assigned to it by Professor Lindley in 1832 ("Genera et Species Orchidearum," Part III.), these however had increased to 65 on the publication of the first Part of the same author's "Folia Orchidacea," in 1852, while they are now known to exceed a hundred, and we may expect to see that number doubled by the time that the favourite homes of the genus in the Mexican and Peruvian Andes shall have been thoroughly explored. In this case, Odontoglossum will become—next to Oncidium—the most extensive genus in the "Vandeous" Section of the great Orchideous family, and might therefore almost seem entitled to a separate Work even if it had no other claims to independent treatment. Such, however, may be readily found; for

(1.) Its species affect exclusively the mountain-chains of Mexico, Central America, New Grenada, and Peru; not a single straggler having yet been discovered either in the West Indian Isles or in the low and sultry latitudes of the South American continent. In this remarkable fact we have clear indications of a distinct group.

(2.) A large proportion are eminently beautiful. They are usually of compact growth; their flowers are always exceedingly durable, and often deliciously sweet.

(3.) They do not require—indeed they will not endure—the great heat of most Orchid-houses; but they will thrive, with proper treatment, in a mean temperature of about 60°, which is that of an ordinary greenhouse.

Unfortunately, it was long before this latter peculiarity in their habits—and consequently the secret of their cultivation—came to be fully understood; what wonder, then, if the labours of a Karwinski or a Galeotti, a Linden or a Schlim, a Purdie or a Warscewicz, should have added little to our collections of living plants, and that many of their most brilliant discoveries should at present be only known to us from dried specimens in our herbaria! The principle of cool treatment having at length however been fully established, the most strenuous efforts are being made by nurserymen and others to obtain fresh supplies of what we formerly lost, as well to search out new forms, and with this object, not fewer than seven collectors are now (January, 1864) busily engaged in ransacking such portions of the New World as seem to promise the richest harvest of novelty or beauty.

As the various collections arrive, they will doubtless be found to comprise many fine Odontoglossa, the most remarkable of which it is proposed to figure in a Monograph, specially dedicated to the genus; and the Parts of which will appear with greater or less frequency, as the materials for illustration can be had. Not more, however, than Four Parts will ever be published in a single year.

Full descriptions of the plants (in Latin and English), as well as careful directions for their cultivation, will accompany the Plates; and with the concluding Parts an Analysis of the Genus, and Conspectus of all its known Species, will be given.

The first Part is expected to be ready in April, and will contain figures of O. nebulosum, O. Uro Skinneri, O. Insleayii, O. Phalænopsis, and O. auro purpureum.

The Plates will be beautifully coloured, after drawings by Fitch and other eminent Artists. In particular cases, where the living habit of a species may prevent its being adequately rendered on the Coloured Plate, supplements will be added, giving, on a reduced scale, the general appearance of the entire plant.

Subscribers are invited to send their names to the Publishers, Messrs. LOVELL REEVE & Co., 5, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

THE LANDOWNERS' WEST of ENGLAND and SOUTH WALES LAND DRAINAGE and INCLOSURE COMPANY. Established in the year 1844, and Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament, 11 & 12 Vict., Cap. cxlii.

Chairman—The Right Hon. the EARL of DEVON, Powderham Castle.

Deputy Chairman—WILLIAM PORTER, Esq., Hembury Fort, near Honiton.

Landowners having limited interests, such as Tenants for Life, Tenants in Tail, Mortgagors, and others, can Drain and improve their Lands without any expense to themselves personally,—as the Company's Act does not require Proprietors to liquidate the cost, the amount may remain permanently charged on the property, at interest, or be paid off when convenient, or be made redeemable over any term of years.

The works are undertaken by the Company, who keep in constant employ a very extensive and experienced staff of Engineers, Surveyors, and workmen; or Proprietors may avail themselves of the powers of the Act only, and get the works executed under their own superintendence, or by Agents appointed by themselves.

Outfalls through adjoining lands are obtainable under the Company's Act.

Works are also executed by the Company for Parties advancing their own capital, or not wishing to borrow the money.

Every information may be obtained on application to

FREDERICK BRODIE, Secretary.
Castle Street, Exeter.

THE GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY,

Offices: 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

HENRY KER SEYMER, Esq., M.P., Chairman.
Sir J. VILLIERS SHELLEY, Bart., M.P., Vice-Chairman.
J. BAILEY DENTON, Principal Engineer.

Under this Company's Act tenants for life, trustees, mortgagees, guardians, committees of incompetent persons, beneficial lessees, corporations (ecclesiastical or municipal), incumbents, charitable trustees, &c., may effect the following land improvements, and charge the outlay and expenses on the estate improved, by way of rentcharge, to be paid by half-yearly instalments, viz:—

1. All works of Drainage, Irrigation, Warping, and Embankment.
2. The Erection of Farmhouses, Cottages for Agricultural Labourers, and all kinds of Farm Buildings.
3. The Construction of Roads.
4. The Grubbing and Clearing of Old Woodlands, Enclosure Fencing, and Reclaiming Land.

The owners of estates, not entailed, who may be desirous to avoid the expense or inconvenience of a legal mortgage, may also charge their Estates with an outlay in improvements under the simple and inexpensive process of the Company's Act.

The term of years for the rentcharge is fixed by the landowner, so as to adapt the amount of annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants, the term for building works being limited to 31 years.

No investigation of title being required, and the charge not being affected by encumbrances, no legal expenses are incurred.

The arrangements for effecting improvements are threefold:—

No. 1. The works may be designed and executed entirely by the landowner's agent, and the Company employed only to supply the loan and conduct the matter through all the official forms for charging the outlay on the estate.

No. 2. The Company will supply plans, specifications, and estimates for any improvements to be executed by the landowner's agent as under No. 1. In each of these cases the landowner will be solely under the control of the Enclosure Commissioners.

No. 3. The Company will undertake the entire responsibility of the improvements, prepare the plans, execute the works, and finally charge on the estate the actual amount expended, with their commission thereon, approved by the Enclosure Commissioners.

Landowners may thus obtain what assistance they require from the Company, and no more, in effecting the objects in view.

Works of Drainage and other improvements are also executed on commission for landowners who merely require the skill and experience of the Company's officers and a staff in constant practice.

Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Office of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.

22, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

Land Drainage, and other Agricultural Improvements.

MR. BAILEY DENTON, C.E., maintains a large Staff for the execution of Land Improvements by a commission of 5*s.* per acre for Under Drainage, and a fixed charge for Outfall and other works.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.

TO LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

ALEXANDRA PARK COMPANY, LIMITED.
Registered under "The Companies' Act, 1862."

The Alexandra Park is situated 15 minutes from London, and contains 480 acres of well-timbered and beautifully undulating land, 200 of which will be laid out as a Park, and the remainder sold for building purposes.

Share Capital, 500,000*l.*, in 50,000 "A" Shares and 50,000 "B" Shares of 5*l.* each. Debenture Capital, 300,000*l.*

The Debenture Capital has been created principally for the purpose of paying for the Estates, and for the purchase of the International Exhibition Building of 1862, now erecting in the Park by Messrs Kelk and Lucas, Contractors; and it is anticipated that the whole of this Capital will be redeemed by the sale of the Surplus Lands.

The holders of "A" Shares are entitled to Dividend out of the net divisible profits of the Company, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and of 1-5th of the remaining profits in priority to and before payment of any dividend to the holders of "B" Shares. The holders of "B" Shares then receive all the remaining divisible profits of the Company. The original Allottee of five "A" Shares, so long as he shall retain them, will be entitled to a Season Ticket, admitting the holder to the Park and Building, when the same are open to the Public, but subject to the Rules and Regulations of the Company, which Ticket will be forwarded on the payment for allotment.

1*l.* per Share to be paid on application and 1*l.* on Allotment.

News of the Week.

IN the House of Lords on Monday, Earl RUSSELL read extracts from the correspondence with Mr. ADAMS, the United States' Minister, and, by a comparison of dates, proved that the decision of the Government as to detaining the iron-clad rams could not have been influenced by any representations of Mr. ADAMS. Lord CAMPBELL called attention to the treaties and conventions by which the possession of Schleswig had been guaranteed to Denmark by Great Britain, in 1715, 1720, and 1726, and contended that as these guarantees had never been forfeited by any act of Denmark they were still binding on this country. Earl RUSSELL declined to express a positive opinion as to the guarantees, and thought that for the sake of the peace of Europe everything that could be done by conference and negotiation ought to be done before taking any step which might produce hostilities between the Great Powers. His lordship added that the most recent declarations of Prussia and Austria proved that those Powers did not contemplate a dismemberment of Denmark. On Tuesday the Earl of CARNARVON moved for a return of claims by British subjects upon the United States' Government since the secession of the Southern States, and also of the claims made by the United States' Government on that of Great Britain for damages to American ships by the Alabama and other Confederate cruisers. Earl RUSSELL said that her Majesty's Government had from the beginning contended, and did still contend, that it was in no way responsible for the alleged losses by the Alabama. He had held out no hope that the English Government would change its opinion, but he trusted that the Federal Government would, on further consideration, modify its views. He was willing to produce the returns relating to the case of the Saxon, and the motion thus amended was agreed to. On Thursday, in answer to the Earl of POWIS, Earl GRANVILLE said that the establishment of a museum and library for patents was under the consideration of the Government. In answer to the Earl of ROMNEY, the Lord CHANCELLOR said he would consult the Home Secretary in regard to the state of the law affecting the removal of clerks of the peace.

In the Commons on Friday Mr. S. FITZGERALD called attention to the circumstances attending the capture of British vessels by the Federal cruisers, and especially to the murder of the mate of the Saxon by a Federal lieutenant. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL and Lord PALMERSTON stated that representatives had been made to the Cabinet of Washington on the subject, and as the questions were still pending, it would not be consistent with the public service to produce the papers at present. After a long discussion the motion was withdrawn. Mr. HUNT obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law relating to election petitions. Sir R. PEEL obtained leave to bring in a Bill to abolish vestry cess in Ireland: and Mr. DODSON obtained leave to bring in a Bill to abolish certain tests connected with academical degrees in the University of Oxford. On Monday, in answer to Mr. DISRAELI, Mr. LAYARD said that an answer to their proposition for an armistice between the contending forces in Schleswig had been received by the Government, but it was not of a satisfactory nature, and there was no reason to believe that an armistice would be agreed to. The Insane Prisoners' Act Amendment Bill, the Conveyancers, &c. (Ireland), Bill; the Malt for Cattle Bill, the Collection of Taxes Bill, and the Government Annuities Bill, were read a second time. The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the laws relating to the warehousing of British and foreign spirits duty free. On Tuesday Mr. M. GIBSON moved a series of resolutions for regulating the proceedings of committees on railway and canal Bills. One of the resolutions, providing that Committees on Private Bills be ordered to meet at 11 o'clock, met with strong opposition, and was ultimately withdrawn. The resolution relating to the charges for Parliamentary agents was also withdrawn. The other resolutions were agreed to. Mr. MILNER GIBSON obtained leave to bring in Bills to facilitate the obtaining of powers for the construction of railways, and the obtaining of further powers by railway companies. On Wednesday, on the motion of Mr. LAIRD, the Chain Cables and Anchors Bill was read a second time. Mr. T. BERNARD moved for leave to bring in a Bill for a more equitable distribution of the poor's rate, with a view to substitute union rating for parochial rating. After some discussion the motion was withdrawn. On Friday Sir GEORGE GREY moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Penal Servitude Acts. He said that it was founded mainly on the recommendations of the Royal Commissioners, but the Government had determined, in deference to the wishes of the Australian Colonies, to abandon the proposition to send all male convicts to Western Australia, continuing the system at present in force with certain modifications. They had also determined to adopt the term of five years as the minimum of penal servitude, with a remission of punishment in case of good conduct. After some discussion leave was given to bring in the Bill. Mr. EWART obtained leave to bring in a Bill to render permissive the use of the metric system of weights and measures.

From the seat of war in the North we learn that Austria and Prussia have refused to accept the armistice, and that the allied forces in Schleswig are preparing to attack the Danish entrenchments at Düppel. On Thursday a Danish iron-clad attempted to destroy the bridge constructed by the allies before Egensund, but was obliged to retire without accomplishing her object. The recent occupation of Altona by the Prussian troops has given great dissatisfaction to the smaller States of Germany. In the sitting of the Federal Diet on Saturday, various protests were handed in against the proceedings of the Prussian troops, the Saxon Minister especially complaining that they were in direct contradiction to the express promises of Austria and Prussia. It is now announced that the two Great Powers have addressed a note to the minor States, declaring that they do not recognise the necessity of a Federal reserve being stationed in Holstein, and that if such a necessity should arise, they will themselves place at the disposal of the Diet a sufficient reserve for execution purposes.

Home News.

RETURN OF THE QUEEN TO WINDSOR.—Her Majesty the Queen, accompanied by the younger members of the Royal family, was expected to return to Windsor Castle yesterday from Osborne. The Court will probably remain at Windsor Castle for about three months.

THE COURT AT OSBORNE.—On Thursday the 11th, Vice-Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, and Major-General Lord William Paulet, commanding the South-Western District, arrived at Osborne, and had an interview with her Majesty to present the reports of their respective commands. On Friday the Queen drove out with the Princess Helena. On Saturday Dr. Jenner arrived from London on a visit. On Sunday morning the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Princess Hohenlohe, attended Divine service at Osborne. The Rev. G. Prothero officiated. On Monday the Queen and Royal family drove out. Dr. Jenner returned to London. On Tuesday the Queen drove out, accompanied by Princess Beatrice. Princess Helena rode on horseback. Captain Sir Leopold M'Clintock, commanding her Majesty's ship Aurora, in Cowes Roads, had an interview with the Queen. On Wednesday Prince Leiningen arrived on a visit to her Majesty. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone arrived from London, and had an audience of her Majesty. In the evening Mr. Gladstone had the honour of dining with the Queen and Royal family.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES and the infant Prince continue at St. Leonard's. On Saturday the Princess took a drive to Fairlight. The Prince walked to Hastings and visited the ruins of the Castle. On Sunday morning the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the parish church. In the afternoon the Prince drove the Princess in an open phaeton to Beauport Park, the seat of Mr. T. Brassey, jun., returning by the old London road through Hastings. On Monday morning the Prince hunted with the Bexhill harriers. The Princess went to the Subscription Gardens, and in the afternoon walked on the Parade towards Hastings. Her Royal Highness afterwards drove along the Marina, and went to meet the Prince on his return from hunting. On Tuesday the Prince hunted with the East Sussex foxhounds. The Princess drove to the meet in a ragonette. On Wednesday morning the Prince and Princess visited Battle Abbey and Bodiam Castle. In the evening Mr. Curteis, formerly M.P. for East Sussex, and master of the East Sussex foxhounds, had the honour of dining with their Royal Highnesses. On Thursday morning the Prince and Princess drove to Bexhill, where his Royal Highness again hunted with the harriers; the Princess returned to St. Leonard's after witnessing the start. In the afternoon the Prince walked to the East Hill.

THE APPROACHING VISIT OF THE KING OF THE BELGIANS.—King Leopold has deferred his visit to her Majesty until the christening of the infant Duke of Cornwall.

LEVEES AND DRAWING ROOMS.—In consequence of the inconvenience experienced at the levées and drawing-rooms from the overcrowded state of the apartments, it is announced that ladies or gentlemen will not be expected to attend at Court upon more than one occasion during the season. This does not apply to those who are present in an official capacity.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street. Another Council was held on Wednesday.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—The nomination for Brighton took place on Saturday, when five candidates were put in nomination—Mr. Henry Moor, Conservative, Mr. Francis Kuper Dumas, Liberal, Mr. Henry Fawcett, Liberal, Mr. Julian Goldsmid, Liberal, and Mr. Edward Harper, Protestant. The show of hands was declared to be in favour of Mr. Fawcett. The other candidates thereupon demanded a poll, which took place on Monday, and terminated in the return of Mr. Moor, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of 195, the numbers being for Mr. Moor, 1663; Mr. Fawcett, 1468; Mr. Goldsmid, 775; Mr. Dumas, 246; Mr. Harper, 82. There is a vacancy for Dorset, caused by the retirement of Mr. Ker Seymer on account of ill health. Mr. Floyer, who formerly represented the county in the Conservative interest, is a candidate for the vacant seat. There is a vacancy for Hertfordshire, caused by the death of Mr. Puller. The Hon. H. F. Cowper, brother of Earl Cowper, is mentioned as a candidate for the vacant seat in the Liberal interest.

THE CHURCH.—Since the refusal of the Government to create a bishopric of Cornwall, the Bishop of Exeter has applied for the appointment of the Rev. F. C. Cook as a suffragan bishop, but the Government have declined to accede to the proposal on the ground that it cannot be done without an Act of Parliament.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—A decree has been issued, convoking the electors of the seventh circumscription of the department du Nord to elect a deputy on the 6th and 7th of March. The Emperor has placed a French man-of-war at the disposal of the Duc de Brabant to convey his Royal Highness from Corsica to Nice. The Patrie asserts that Austria was willing to accept the armistice upon condition of the Danes evacuating Düppel and Alsen. Prussia refused, plainly and categorically. The Nord contains a communiqué, declaring the statement entirely incorrect that a French army of observation was about to be placed upon the Rhine frontier. Notwithstanding this declaration, it is still said that the Imperial Guard has received orders to be in readiness to march towards the Rhine at the shortest notice as a measure of precaution. The legal papers of Tuesday state that an order has been issued by the Chambre de Mises en Accusation sending the case of Mazzini and the four Italians before the Court of Assizes of the Department of the Seine, upon the charge of conspiracy against the life of the Emperor. The case will probably come on for hearing on the 25th inst.

SPAIN.—The Queen was delivered of a Princess on Friday morning. The Queen and the Royal infant are in good health. The baptism of the Infanta took place on Sunday, when her Royal Highness received the names of Maria-Eulalia Francisca-Margarita, &c., the whole number of names being, according to the Madrid journals, above 80. The papers report that the ceremony of the betrothal of Dona Maria, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Montpensier, to the Count de Paris, will take place in Seville, and that the marriage will afterwards be solemnised in England. The Budget has been presented to Congress. It estimates the revenue at 2,146,000,000 reals, and the expenditure at 2,143,000,000 reals. The extraordinary Budget amounts to 469,000,000 reals. A Bill has been brought into Congress calling out 35,000 men. Another Bill has been introduced authorising credit operations on the guarantee of the bonds given by the purchasers of national property.

PORTUGAL.—The infant Prince Don Carlos has been solemnly recognised as the successor to the Crown in a special Session of the Cortes. A levée was subsequently held at the Palace, and the city was illuminated. A rumour is current at Lisbon that the Duke de Saldanha is about to be transferred as Ambassador from Rome to London. The railway to Beja was successfully opened on Sunday.

HOLLAND.—On Tuesday at 6 A.M. the greatest consternation was caused among the citizens of Rotterdam by the outbreak of a dreadful fire at the museum and picture gallery in the Schieland Palace. The picture gallery formed one of the most interesting exhibitions in the city. No particulars could be obtained as to the cause of the fire. The fire brigade and engines were soon on the spot, but from the first it was seen to be impossible to check the flames. All that now remains of the old palace are the bare blackened walls. The loss is irreparable.

SWEDEN.—The official Post Tidning of Stockholm states that Sweden does not support the proposal of an armistice between the Austrians and Prussians and the Danes, and has not recommended the withdrawal of the November Constitution. Count Hamilton, Swedish Minister at Copenhagen, has been summoned to Stockholm to confer with his Government.

DENMARK.—The official journals state that an armistice involving the evacuation of the mainland of Schleswig will not be accepted by the Danish Government, and that such a measure would be inadmissible unless the enemy evacuates Schleswig and re-establishes in that duchy the rule of the King and the status quo of the 31st of January. The King of Denmark has addressed the following proclamation to the army:—

"Soldiers!—Not alone by valour on the battle field, but also by enduring with patience want of rest, cold, and all sorts of privations and exertions, the soldier has to prove his fidelity to his King and his love for his country. There are few among you who have not proved in battle against an overwhelming foe that you have not degenerated since Fredericia and Idstedt. You have all had ample opportunity to give brilliant proofs of efficiency and endurance, and you have preserved a cheerful courage under long and severe hardships. 'Soldiers! Receive for this the thanks of your King. The Dannewirke has been abandoned. The guns which were to have curbed the arrogance of the enemy are in their hands. The country lies open to the enemy. I deeply feel with you what we have thereby lost. But, my friends, I have but this one army for the defence of the country, and your military leaders were of opinion that I would no longer have an army if I did not withdraw you. They therefore came to the determination to retreat. Soldiers! I stand alone in the world with my people. Up to the present time no Power has declared that it will support us by acts. But I depend upon you and my fleet. You are ready to shed your blood; but we are few against many, and it must therefore be dearly purchased. May the Almighty grant that the hour of revenge may soon strike for all the violence and injustice which has been done to me and my people."

Official notice has been given by the Danish Government that their ships of war have received orders to capture all vessels belonging to all the States of the German Confederation. This measure contradicts the report that Denmark had decided upon exempting from capture the ships of some of the States. It is rumoured that General de Meza will be reinstated in his command, public opinion being now convinced that if an attempt had been made to defend the Dannewerke, the entire army would have been cut off.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—Marshal von Wrangel has given the Danes a very short delay to evacuate Düppel and the island of Alsen, with an intimation that in the event of their not evacuating these positions, the Prussian army will immediately occupy Jutland. The attack on Düppel had not commenced on Wednesday, in consequence of the thaw which had occurred, the marshy nature of the country having rendered the movement of heavy artillery difficult. Frost, however, has since set in, and the attack was expected to commence yesterday. The attack is reserved for the Prussian division of Guards, under Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, while the Austrians will remain at Flensburg and in the Bau as a reserve. The Hamburgh papers publish a despatch from Düppel, stating that the 1st Regiment of Danish Foot had sallied from their intrenchments and attacked two Prussian batteries, and that the Danes were almost destroyed. On the other hand, trustworthy advices received at Hamburg from a private source state that the Danes have made two sorties from Düppel, and inflicted considerable loss on the Prussians. The accounts of the Danish force at Düppel are contradictory. It is stated from Flensburg that it is not considerable, and that it is short of provisions. The French papers on the other hand publish a telegram from Copenhagen, dated the 18th inst., asserting that the position at Düppel is defended by 40,000 men and 200 guns. Three intrenchments on the high road have been strongly palisaded. An Austrian pontoon bridge, the Prussian Guard, and a Hussar regiment passed through Flensburg on Tuesday on the direct road to Düppel. A Prussian battery of heavy artillery has gone to Glücksburg, and is probably destined for Holnis, from which place the harbour of Flensburg and the intrenchments of Düppel can be bombarded. The Danish gunboat Husby has fired upon an unfinished Prussian land battery. Six 12-pounders were, however, placed in position and fired on the gunboat, which subsequently withdrew. The Germans on Wednesday threw a bridge across the Egensund, and occupied the Braagar Peninsula in considerable force. On Thursday the Danish Monitor (iron clad) Hrolf Krake attempted to destroy the bridge. The Monitor could not get near enough owing to the shallow water. She fired 72 shots and the German batteries fired 150. One shot went through her funnel. After an hour's engagement she retired without having obtained her object. The Germans drove the Danish pickets from Stendrup and Nübel woods, killing five and wounding 30. The Danish sallied in force, when the Germans retired without resistance. The position of the Germans in Braagerland is very dangerous. The Germans in Sandbjerg and the Danes in Roehave have fired at each other across the Sound without effect. The Austrians and Prussians have collected a large number of boats, to be used in attempting a landing on the island of Alsen, the fortifications of which are being strengthened. Prussian light cavalry have been despatched along the Pomeranian coasts to watch the sea-board, and give notice of hostile approach. The signal lights in the lighthouses have been extinguished to mislead the Danish ships. One light, only known to natives of the country, is still kept up. The Prussians have occupied Friedericksort, at the entrance to the Bay of Kiel, and two Prussian battalions marched into Kiel on Monday. The Danish cavalry have retired into Jutland. The Danes have captured a Prussian brig in the Sound, and another at Sonderburg. Prussian vessels have been placed under embargo at Copenhagen, and two vessels at Aalborg, one of which is a passenger ship from Hamburg. A detachment of sappers is on the way to the Dannewerk for the purpose of blowing up the fortifications. The Crown Prince of Prussia left Flensburg on Friday for Schleswig, and Marshal von Wrangel has since left Flensburg for Gravenstein, after taking an affectionate farewell of the principal inhabitants, and expressing a hope that Schleswig would soon be free from the evils of war. The Austrian and Prussian Commissioners have left Flensburg for Apenrade. The Austrian Civil Commissioner, in a speech made at Flensburg, said that all the wishes of the Schleswig-Holsteiners would be satisfied, although a personal union of the Duchies with Denmark could not be given up. It is stated that an order to suspend the occupation of the Holstein towns by the Prussian troops was forwarded from Berlin, but arrived too late to be of use. A proclamation of the Federal Commissioners was published on Saturday at Altona. It enters into details of the recent occurrence, and gives the text of the Commissioners' protest against the Prussian occupation of Altona, Neumünster, and Rendsburg in opposition to the declaration of the great German Powers that Holstein should continue to be occupied solely by Federal troops. The Commissioners have also stated in reply to a communication from the committee on the affairs of that Duchy, that they would resign should they have lost the confidence of the Federal Diet. A deputation from a meeting of the members of the Schleswig Estates has since left Schleswig with an address to the King of Prussia and the Emperor of Austria. The Federal Commissioners have strictly prohibited the formation of a Schleswig-Holstein army. Prince Frederick has been proclaimed in Flensburg, Eckenforde, Apenrade, and Tondern, from which place the Danish officials were expelled. The Austrian General von Gablenz has proposed a collection of a fund for the support of the widows and orphans of the fallen, and has opened the subscription by giving one year's stipend of the Maria Theresa Order, conferred upon him by the Emperor. The reported execution of the Amptmann Blauenfeld is contradicted. He is still in prison at Rendsburg.

SAXONY.—Adjutant-General Manteuffel arrived at Dresden from Berlin on Monday night, and was received next morning by the King. He subsequently had a long interview with Baron von Beust. The object of General Manteuffel's visit was to make arrangements with the Saxon Government relative to the position of the Saxon and Prussian troops in Holstein. His mission has however failed, and he has now returned to Berlin. Baron von Beust left on Tuesday evening for Würzburg.

BAVARIA.—The Conference of German Ministers summoned by Bavaria was opened on Thursday at Wurzburg. The kingdoms of Saxony, Hanover, Wurtemburg, and Bavaria, the two Hesses, Saxe-Weimar, Nassau, and Baden, were represented. The programme to be adopted includes decision upon common action in the two following cases:—

1. Provided the reception of the Duke of Augustenburg's representative at the Diet should encounter obstacles from members of the Confederation. 2. Provided the occupation of Schleswig by the great German Powers should not effect the separation of that province from Denmark.

The Bavarian Government further desires, though with no prospect of success, to arrange a mutual obligation to recognise the Duke of Augustenburg.

FRANKFORT.—The Presse of Thursday says that the great German Powers have addressed a note to the minor States, declaring that they do not recognise the necessity of a Federal reserve being stationed in Holstein. Should such a want arise the great Powers would place at the disposal of the Diet a sufficient reserve for execution purposes. At the sitting of the Federal Diet on Saturday the representative of Oldenburg brought in a motion referring to the march of Prussian troops through the principality of Lübeck, in spite of the protest of the authorities. The motion was appointed to be debated at the next sitting of the Diet. Notice was received from General von Hake, commanding the Federal troops in Holstein, and from the Federal Commissioners in that duchy, of the occupation of Altona by two battalions of Prussian troops. Protests were handed in by various members against the occupation of Altona by Prussian troops. The Saxon representative complained that the measures adopted were in direct contradiction to the express promises of Austria and Prussia, and without the consent of the Diet. He moved that these promises should be fulfilled, the authority of the Confederation be secured, and that the reserves (Austria and Prussia) which had left the Army of Execution should be replaced by the Federal troops. The Austrian and Prussian representatives declared that the promises made should in no way be infringed by the Prussian occupation. The explanations of Austria and Prussia upon the subject, the protest referring thereto, and a motion of Saxony on the matter, were referred to the united committees upon the affairs of Holstein. In the sitting of Thursday it was resolved that an embargo should be placed on Danish shipping in German ports, in consequence of the embargo laid by the Danes on German shipping not belonging to Austria and Prussia. The Diet also decided to appoint a committee to examine the complaint made by the Grand Duke of Oldenburg against Prussia for infraction of territory. The members of the committee will be elected at the next sitting.

PRUSSIA.—The Neue Preussische (Kreuz) Zeitung of Saturday says:—

"The expectation we expressed yesterday that the proposition of England, France, Russia, and Sweden for an armistice, leaving Alsen to the Danes, would not find acceptance here, is confirmed."

Adjutant-General Manteuffel has arrived in Berlin from Dresden, having failed in his mission to the Saxon Government. The King gave audience on Saturday to the Kiel Professors Forchammer and Behn, in the presence of M. von Bismark. It is stated on good authority that the 6th Army Corps is about to be mobilized. It will be quartered in Lausitz.

AUSTRIA. — In the Upper House of the Reichsrath on Saturday a debate took place on the credit demanded by Government to cover the expenses of Federal Execution. Cardinal Rauscher and Count Hartig advocated the maintenance of the London Protocol. They declared that it must be respected similarly to other treaties. Both speakers considered that Germany should be thankful to the great German Powers for undertaking the occupation of Schleswig in the interests of European peace. Count Rechberg asserted that the credit already granted would suffice, as nothing more was to be apprehended in Schleswig from the enemy. The Lower House at its last sitting consented that 40,000,000 florins should be provided by loan towards the expenses of 1864. The session was closed on Monday by the Emperor in person. His Majesty delivered a Speech from the Throne, of which the following is a summary:—

"In these eventful times I was desirous of seeing the representatives of the country before the close of the Session. I have derived particular satisfaction from the presence of the Transylvanian deputies in the Reichsrath. I have also observed with real pleasure the material and intellectual progress made by Austria during the past Session. The distress in some parts of Hungary has filled my heart with grief. I am thankful for the support and sympathy I have received from the whole monarchy. Although the Session has not been remarkable for the work accomplished, it has not been unfruitful, some important Bills having already been sanctioned. Eastern Galicia and the Bukowina will have the advantage of railways, and a line will also be constructed in Transylvania. The Financial Law has been passed, and the increase of taxes and dues for the extraordinary wants of the State has been agreed to by you. Financial reforms are reserved for the next Session. Most serious events have directed our attention to the state of affairs abroad I have neglected nothing in order to maintain the precious blessing of peace. The mission of Austria is to be strong against any attack, but to raise the voice of peace in the council of nations. Our friendly relations with the great Powers of Europe promise the complete attainment of this object. The crisis which for years threatened to occur between Germany and Denmark has resulted in war, notwithstanding the endeavours of my Government to exercise a conciliatory influence. In conformity with the vote of the Federal Diet, I have, as a German Prince, taken part in the Federal execution, and, in concert with the King of Prussia, the Duchy of Schleswig has been occupied as a pledge. The excellent conduct and bravery of the allied armies have achieved brilliant results. My joy on this account does not spring from ambition and love of conquest, but from the attainment of the just objects which are known to Europe. I confidently hope that the results achieved will secure a happy future to countries the rights of which have long been violated, and will not endanger the peace of Europe in a more extended sphere. Austria has shown that in her rejuvenated form she preserves her good old spirit, and that the inheritance of her strength and glory abides with her on the new path of liberty which she has entered."

ITALY.—The King and Ministers have returned to Turin. The stay of the King in Milan was one long prolonged course of festivity. The Italian Parliament resumed its sittings on Monday, and commenced the discussions of the Bill relative to the taxes on landed property. In the Chamber of Deputies on Tuesday, Signor Sineo expressed regret at the condition of the Italians serving in the Federal army who had been taken prisoners by the Confederates, and asked if it were not possible to obtain their release. The Minister of Foreign Affairs replied that he could not employ official means, the Government of the South being unrecognised. He would, however, use other means to obtain their liberty or ameliorate their condition. The reports of armaments and levies being carried on are confirmed. The Minister of the Interior has issued orders to the Prefects to push on the armament of the National Guards. Large quantities of material of war continue to be forwarded to Ancona and Bologna. General Cialdini has had several audiences of the King, and Admiral Persano has been summoned to Turin. It is thought that a squadron will soon receive orders to proceed to the Adriatic.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—The Confederate cruiser Tuscaloosa was seized in Simon's Bay on the 27th Dec. by Admiral Sir Baldwin Walker, in accordance with special instructions from the English Government, the alleged ground for doing so being that she was still an uncondemned prize. She is detained until she is claimed by her owners. Her commander has made a protest against the capture. The Duke of Newcastle's reply to the petition of the inhabitants of Cape Town on the subject of alternate parliaments in the colony had been made public. It approves of the Governor assembling the next Parliament in Graham's Town. The inhabitants were making preparations for securing a full representation during the whole of the session.

NEW ZEALAND.—The victory of the military and naval forces at Rangiriri has been followed by the occupation of the Maori capital. General Cameron has telegraphed to the Governor that the Queen's flag is flying at Ngaruawahia. A division under his command was conveyed up the river in the Pioneer, and landed at Ngaruawahia without opposition or seeing any natives. A salute of 21 guns was fired in Auckland in honour of the event.

UNITED STATES.—Mr. Lincoln, under date of the 1st inst., has ordered a draught for 500,000 men to serve for three years, or during the war, to take place on the 10th of March. From this number are to be deducted all volunteers and draughted men not accredited upon any other call. The proclamation has taken the public by surprise, and is asserted to have been rendered imperatively necessary by recent news received from the South, or by the probability of a war with France and England. The news from East Tennessee continues to be contradictory, but is evidently of a nature to alarm, if not embarrass, the Government. Despatches from Russellville of the 27th ult. to the Richmond journals state that the Federals evacuated Tazewell on the previous day and retreated to Cumberland Gap. The Confederates occupied the town immediately afterwards. General Forster, at his own request, was relieved from the command at Knoxville on the 28th. General Schofield has been ordered to succeed him. Southern advices from Longstreet's army to the 30th state that General Martin attacked the Federals on the 28th, and after a stubborn fight drove them from the field. The Federals retreated in the direction of Sevierville. The Confederates under General Early, in Western Virginia, have resumed activity. On the 30th a Federal commissary train of 80 waggons, proceeding to Petersburg, was captured after a severe fight, lasting four hours. Petersburg was evacuated by the Federals on the night of the 30th, and was occupied by General Early on the following day. Burlington was also occupied by the Confederates on the afternoon of the 1st. The Federal outposts at Batchelor's Creek, North Carolina, were attacked on the same day, and driven back to Newbern with the loss of 100 men and a battery of artillery, besides the destruction of their camps and stores. Simultaneously an attack was made upon the Federals south of the Trent River, but was repulsed. On the 4th the Federal General Early made a stand at Moorfield. Six hours' skirmishing ensued, at the end of which time the Confederates fell back to the south fork of the Potomac, followed by the Federals. The Confederates advanced to Newbern, North Carolina, and took possession of the railway to Moorhead City on the 2d inst. On the same day they captured and destroyed the gunboat Underwriter. They also made a raid along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, burning the bridges across the Potomac at the north branch of Patterson's Creek. The Federals drove them off and pursued them with cavalry, and the railroad is again in working order. The Confederates also burnt the steamer Levi, running between Gallipoli, Ohio, and Charlestown, Western Virginia, capturing General Scammor, who was on board. They have since retired from Burlington and Newbern, and both towns are again occupied by the Federals. The Nashville Union says that the Federal army has crossed the Tennessee River, near Larkinsville, and surmises that its object may be to attack Rome, Georgia. The steamer Flambeau, from Charleston on the 1st inst., reports the bombardment of the city to be still in progress, but that as yet there is little evidence of its destructiveness. The recent shelling of Fort Sumter was in consequence of the discovery that the Confederates had remounted five guns in the fort, and were opening embrasures through the rubbish for their service. Confederate despatches of the 31st ult. state that no damage of consequence had been done to the fort. The Tribune asserts that General W. F. Smith will probably succeed General Meade in the command of the army of the Potomac. The House of Representatives has passed the confiscation resolution by 82 to 74 votes. By this resolution the lands of the Confederates may be confiscated in fee, and not merely for life. The Boston Advertiser of the 30th ult. states that the Secretary of the Navy has ordered a court of inquiry to assemble at Boston for the purpose of investigating the charge against the master's mate of the Vanderbilt for shooting Mr. Gray, of the Saxon, after the capture of the vessel. All officers and men who witnessed the occurrence are ordered to attend the trial. The perpetrator says that the affair was accidental. The judge of the Admiralty Court, at Halifax, has decided to restore the Chesapeake and cargo to her owners, subject to conditions respecting the payment of such expenses as the Attorney-General may exact. The Attorney-General demands a surety against latent claims, but the owners of the Chesapeake demur to this. The steamer Rosita has been captured off Tortugas. The A. D. Vance was run ashore off Wilmington to prevent her capture, and has become a total wreck.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.—The American Despatches.—Earl RUSSELL, recurring to the seizure of the steam rams at Birkenhead, and the remark of the Earl of Derby on a former evening that the conduct of the Government had been influenced by the remonstrances contained in Mr. Adams's notes of the 4th and 5th of September, said that so far from that being the case, the decision to prevent the departure of the rams was taken on the 3d of that month, and that if Mr. Adams's language had been of an intemperate character, he should not have taken that course. With regard to the threat of Mr. Seward to follow certain vessels into British ports, if ever made, it had not been communicated to him. — The Earl of DERBY wished to know how it was that no steps had been taken to detain the rams until the 8th of September. He also thought that some explanation was due from the American Government of the extraordinary circumstance that a despatch purporting to be addressed to her Majesty's Government had been laid before Congress, although it had never been delivered. — Earl RUSSELL replied that the question of the steam rams was under consideration from the 3d until the 8th of September, and a correspondence ensued with Messrs. Laird respecting it. With reference to the despatch of Mr. Seward, it was a matter that affected the conduct of the Federal Government towards Congress and the people of the Northern States rather than her Majesty's Government. The Danish Duchies. — Lord CAMPBELL called attention to the treaties and conventions by which the possession of Schleswig was guaranteed to Denmark in 1715, 1720, 1726, and 1848, and said that if it could be shown that Great Britain was bound by treaties as well as by policy to guarantee the possession of Schleswig to Denmark, it might have some effect in leading to the earlier restoration of peace. He contended that the Treaty of 1852 did not supersede or annul previous treaties, and that the maintenance of the Danish monarchy was essential to the balance of power in Europe. —Earl RUSSELL said it would be rash for the Government to come to any positive judgment upon such important questions without the most careful examination. That examination had been given; but it would be injudicious at the moment to state the opinion at which they had arrived. The relations of Austria and Prussia with Denmark were very differently affected to those of the other German Powers, some of whom, and especially Bavaria, had declared that they thought the Prince of Augustenburg was entitled to be acknowledged as Duke of Schleswig and Holstein; and it followed from that that they would endeavour to put him in possession. On such an attempt being made, however, it would also follow that England must declare whether or not she felt bound by the Treaty of 1720; and if so, it would be her duty at once to go to the support of Denmark. With regard to Austria and Prussia, their identical communication of the 31st of January distinctly asserted that they did not contemplate the dismemberment of Denmark; but, on the contrary, that they had entered Schleswig to maintain the integrity of the Danish monarchy; and that the very cause of their entrance was to obtain the fulfilment of engagements which the King of Denmark had undertaken as Duke of Schleswig, and in no other capacity. In this difficult and complicated state of affairs they had gone to Schleswig to hold it as a material guarantee, and he thought it was desirable to endeavour to settle all these questions by pacific means rather than resort precipitately to anything in the nature of a threat founded on the guarantee of 1720. Austria and Prussia were conscious, as indeed all the principal Powers must be, that the Duchies could not be transferred to any other Power than the King of Denmark without the general concert and assent of all the great Powers. He admitted that the Government must make up their mind with the best advice they could obtain as to the binding nature of the treaty of 1720; but for the sake of the peace of Europe everything that could be done by conference and negotiation ought to be done before any step was taken which might produce an attitude of hostility between any of the great Powers of Europe.

TUESDAY.—The LORD CHANCELLOR, in laying upon the table returns relating to the working of the Augmentation of Benefices Act, stated that proposals had been accepted for the sale of 67 livings in his gift, and that of these 37 had been actually sold for £65,300*l*. Negotiations for the sale of 53 more were under consideration. Seizure of British Ships.—The Earl of CARNARVON moved for a return of the claims of three British subjects upon the Government of the United States since the secession of the Southern Confederacy. He said that great allowance ought to be made for the position of the American Government, and he had no wish to prejudice any of these cases; still there were many cases in which great hardship had been inflicted upon innocent persons, and it was the duty of her Majesty's Ministers to see that they were fully compensated. There were other cases in which vessels, engaged in legitimate commerce, had been seized in a manner altogether unwarranted by international law. It was, therefore, a mistake to allege that if the positions of the two countries were reversed the United States would be bound by these precedents. He thought that explanations were necessary with regard to the ship Saxon, the circumstances under which her chief mate was killed, the seizure of the Confederate cruiser Tuscaloosa at the Cape, and the several claims which had been made upon this country for damage inflicted on Federal ships by the Alabama and other vessels of that character, the amount of which he calculated at 2,500,000*l*. Unfortunately the Federal States had so identified themselves with these demands that they would be unable to resist the pressure which would be put upon them to insist on their being satisfied.—Earl RUSSELL expressed himself willing to furnish the returns asked for, though if they were printed they might somewhat prejudice the claims.

With regard to the Saxon, she was captured in foreign, not British, waters, on the charge of having received part of her cargo from the Alabama. As to the murder of Mr. Gray, the mate of the Saxon, all the Government could do was to demand that the offender should be brought to trial for murder. That they had done, and the man had since been put on his trial. With reference to the Tuscaloosa, the law officers of the Crown had given their opinion that she ought to be detained on entering a British port, and she had been seized accordingly. He repudiated all responsibility on behalf of the Alabama, and on such a question no Government could consent to arbitration. Considerable irritation not unnaturally prevailed in the Federal States owing to the proceedings of the Alabama, and her Majesty's Government therefore preferred waiting until calmer feelings had come over the public mind. In the meantime the Federal Government said they would continue on terms of friendship with us, and he hoped that on further consideration they would modify their views.—The Earl of CARNARVON having stated he did not want the correspondence, the motion for returns was agreed to.

THURSDAY.—The Danish Duchies.—Lord HOUGHTON presented a petition from Manchester against any interference by England in the German and Danish war.—Earl POWIS asked whether any steps would be taken, in the present year, to provide a proper Museum and Library of Patents.—Earl GRANVILLE was not, at present, prepared to give an answer to the question, but the subject was under consideration.—The Earl of ROMNEY called attention to the present state of the law with regard to the Removal of Clerks of the Peace, and asked whether the Government would consider the subject with a view to amend the law.—The LORD CHANCELLOR admitted, from the manner in which Clerks of the Peace were appointed, that there was a difficulty in removing them for misconduct in private life. The grounds of removal must be misbehaviour in their office. He would confer with the Secretary of State as to the means of remedying the defect of the law.—Lord CRANWORTH suggested that these officers should be removable on an address from the magistrates in Quarter Sessions—a proceeding analogous to an address from the Houses of Parliament in the case of the judges.

FRIDAY.—The Cranley Court-martial.—Lord COLVILLE gave notice that on Monday he would ask a question touching the conduct of the Judge Advocate in reference to this Court-martial, The Irish Church.—The Archbishop of ARMAGH moved for various returns connected with the Irish Church. The motion was agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—Capture of British Vessels.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD called attention to the recent capture of British vessels by Federal cruisers, viz., the Springbok and the Science, captured at Matamoras; the Margaret and Jessie, and the Saxon, captured within the jurisdiction of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope. He detailed the circumstances under which the vessels were captured, and dwelt especially on the murder of the mate of the Saxon, when unarmed and unresisting, by a Federal lieutenant, declaring that if all Earl Russell had done in the matter was to express an opinion to Mr. Seward that the offending lieutenant ought to be put upon his trial for murder, such conduct was utterly unworthy the Government of Great Britain. In conclusion he moved for papers.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated that the evidence in reference to the Springbok and Science was conflicting, but that the correspondence of the Federal Government showed that they were not insensible of what it was incumbent upon them to do in the event of the evidence being against them. The principle, whether right or wrong, upon which the Federal prize courts had proceeded was precisely similar to those which had governed our own courts during our war with France. With regard to the Saxon, Captain Baldwin, who commanded the Federal cruiser, had expressed his deep regret at the outrage committed by one of his officers on the mate of that vessel, and Lord Lyons had informed Mr. Seward that if the facts, as represented to Her Majesty's Government, were correct, the offender ought to be put on his trial for murder. As all the questions in reference to the seizure of the vessels were still subject of litigation, it would not be consistent with the public service to produce them at present.—Lord R. CECIL expressed his opinion that the statement of the Attorney-General would not give satisfaction to the mercantile community. It appeared to him that the policy of the Government on many recent occasions was humiliating to this country, whose character as a nation was rapidly falling.—Colonel SYKES, Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, and Mr. C. BENTINCK spoke strongly against what they termed the apathy and timidity of the Government in not putting greater pressure upon the Federal Government to prevent a recurrence of outrages upon British shipping.—Mr. CRAWFORD denied that Lord R. CECIL had any claim to represent the opinions of the mercantile classes on this subject. Their views in reference to contraband trade were very different from those of the noble lord.—Lord J. MANNERS questioned very much whether Mr. Crawford himself was the exponent of the mercantile classes. He complained of the want of vigour on the part of the Government in repelling Federal outrages, and said that a feeling was growing up in our colonial dependencies that the Government was not so alert as it ought to be.—Lord PALMERSTON denied the charge that the Government was in the habit of bullying the weak and succumbing to the strong. They were always prepared to assert the rights and the dignity of the country. They had no reason to distrust the equity of the tribunals of the United States, and that Government had invariably received our representations with fairness.—After a few remarks from Lord LOVAINE, Sir J. WALSH, the SOLICITOR-GENERAL, and Mr. MALINS, Mr. FITZGERALD withdrew his motion. The House went pro formâ into a Committee of Supply. The report on the Bank Acts (Scotland) was brought up and agreed to, and leave was given to bring in a Bill. Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill passed through Committee. Mr. HUNT obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law relating to Election Petitions. Sir R. PEEL obtained leave to bring in a Bill to abolish Vestry Cess in Ireland. In committee of the whole House, Mr. DODSON obtained leave to bring in a Bill to provide for the abolition of Certain Tests in connection with Academical Degrees in the University of Oxford.

MONDAY: Government Measures.—In answer to questions from Viscount ENFIELD and Mr. CAIRD, Sir G. GREY said it was in the contemplation of the Government to introduce a measure with reference to the Employment of Children, another in relation to the Herring Fishery of Scotland, and another for the better protection of the Metropolis from Fire.—In reply to Mr. W. EWART, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that three officers had been deputed to investigate the efficiency of all improvements and alterations in the Artillery in Use in North America, and report thereon. The Armistice.—Mr. DISRAELI asked whether the Government had received any answer from the German Powers as to the proposition of an armistice in Denmark.—Mr. LAYARD replied that an answer had been received, but that it was not of a satisfactory nature; and that her Majesty's Government had no reason to believe that an armistice was likely to be agreed to at present.—On the motion for the second reading of the Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill, Mr. G. HARDY criticised the measure as in some respects unequal to deal satisfactorily with the state of circumstances to which it was to apply. He suggested that whenever the visiting justices of a gaol expressed an opinion that a prisoner was insane, the Secretary of State should appoint a committee, who should institute an inquiry into the facts, and who should publicly report the result, and that, whatever that result might be, it should be binding upon the Secretary of State.—Mr. MACDONOGH said that the effect of the passing of the Bill would be to assent to the construction put on the existing statute by the Secretary of State; and that consequently the words "it shall be lawful" would be absolutely mandatory.—Sir C. O'LOGHLEN, while prepared to give his assent to the Bill, deprecated patchwork legislation, and recommended that clauses should be introduced in committee to extend the measure to the whole of the United Kingdom.—After some remarks by Mr. SCOURFIELD, Mr. W. D. SEYMOUR, Mr. HUNT, Lord ENFIELD, Mr. M. SMITH, Mr. EVANS, Sir G. BOWYER, Sir F. GOLDSMID, and Sir W. JOLLIFFE, Sir F. KELLY expressed his hope that capital cases would not be included in the Bill at all, and that in any case where insanity was suggested it should be sufficient to report or represent to the Secretary of State or the visiting justices that a prisoner was supposed to be insane in order to secure a proper inquiry.—Sir G. GREY answered the various objections and suggestions which had been made in the course of the debate, and said that in his opinion the inquiry ought not to be by medical men exclusively, but that it would be more advisable to leave the responsibility to the Secretary of State to order an inquiry in cases in which there was fair ground for believing that a prisoner was insane. The law respecting criminal lunatics was not in a satisfactory state in Scotland and Ireland, but at present he thought it inexpedient to extend the Bill to those parts of the United Kingdom. The Bill was then read a second time.—The Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.—On the order of the day for the second reading of the Malt for Cattle Bill, Sir H. STRACEY thought the Bill a harmless and innocent measure, intended by the Chancellor of the Exchequer as a sop to the agricultural Cerberus.—Mr. BENTINCK contended that the Bill would not allay the agitation against the malt duty, and that as a boon to the landed interest it was simply absurd.—Mr. BRISCOE, on the contrary, was of opinion that the agricultural classes would hail the measure as a valuable concession, and as an admission of the injustice so long inflicted on them.—Mr. PACKE regarded the measure as a mere trifle when compared to the burdens which the landed interest had to bear.—Sir E. DERING considered the Bill a great boon to agriculture.—Mr. MORRITT expressed his opinion that a free-trade Chancellor of the Exchequer might forego two-fifths of the malt tax, and yet not lose any revenue. He believed that the measure, so far from being a step in the right direction, could never be carried out without fraud.—Mr. R. LONG bore testimony to the good faith with which the Chancellor of the Exchequer had redeemed his promise with reference to allowing the use of malt for feeding cattle, but recommended the right hon. gentleman to see whether he could not reduce the malt tax at once.—Lord R. MONTAGU was willing to accept the Bill as a substantial instalment of justice. The only blemish in the measure was the unavoidable interference of the exciseman on the premises of the farmer.—Sir F. CROSSLEY doubted whether the repeal of the malt tax would be really advantageous to the farmer, for the immediate result would be the introduction of inferior qualities of barley to compete with our own produce.—Mr. HENLEY, though admitting that it was ungracious to look a gift-horse in the mouth, could not help giving his opinion that the Bill would not solve the vexed question as to whether malt was beneficial or not for the feeding of cattle.—Mr. DUTTON feared that in practice the measure would become a dead letter.—After a few words from Sir F. KELLY, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that the report of the experiments made under the superintendence of Government agents would be produced as early as possible. He did not anticipate any magical effects from the measure, nor could he hold it out as an instalment or a step in the direction of the abolition or reduction of the malt tax. The Bill was then read a second time. The Collection of Taxes Bill and the Government Annuities Bill were read a second time.—In the Committee of the whole House the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the laws relating to the Warehousing of British and Foreign Spirits Duty free. Certain other Bills were brought in.

TUESDAY.—The House was occupied for some hours in debating motions for the second reading of opposed Railway Bills, which however, were eventually agreed to. Private Bill Business.—Mr. M. GIBSON moved a series of resolutions empowering the Committee of Selection and the General Committee on Railway and Canal Bills, after committal of such Bills, to refer them to the chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, who, together with the Committee on Unopposed Bills, shall hear the parties promoting or opposing such Bills, and report to the House; fixing the scale of fees to be paid by promoters and opponents; authorising the Speaker to revise the list of charges for Parliamentary agents and solicitors; ordering that copies of the minutes of evidence on opposed private Bills be printed at the cost of the parties requiring it, and directing that Private Bill Committees should meet at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.—Lord R. CECIL moved an amendment to the first resolution, that the duty of ascertaining the facts upon which legislation in respect to private Bills was to proceed should be discharged by some tribunal external to the House. He regarded the general scheme of the Government as a step in the right direction, but only at a snail's pace. He complained that the general conduct of private business was tedious, costly, and inefficient, and that Parliament was in the main responsible for the enormous preliminary expenditure incurred by railway companies, together with all the evils consequent upon it. The amendment was seconded by Mr. PAULL.—Mr. GIBSON opposed the amendment, contending that, so far from meeting the evil, it would tend to aggravate it by instituting another tribunal, the decisions of which would not be final. After some discussion, in which Lord H. VANE, Mr. MASSEY, Colonel WILSON PATTEN, Mr. B. CARTER, and other members took part, the amendment was withdrawn, and the first resolution was carried. The subsequent resolutions relating to the fees to be paid by the promoters of private bills, and the charges to be allowed to Parliamentary agents, solicitors, &c., led to a lengthened debate, in the course of which the fees paid to counsel practising at the Parliamentary bar were brought under review.—Mr. M. GIBSON stated that the subject of the excessive fees now payable to counsel for attending committees was under the consideration of the Parliamentary bar, with the view of making them more conformable to those paid in the courts of law and equity, and he hoped that a considerable modification would take place. He then moved a resolution to the effect that committees on private bills be in future ordered to meet at 11 o'clock, instead of 12, as at present.—Lord R. CECIL protested against the proposition, which he described as cruel and inhuman to those members who had private business to attend to in addition to lengthened attendance in Parliament, often protracted until a very late hour of the night.—Colonel W. PATTEN approved of the proposition, but expressed his opinion that it would be most unpopular in the House.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE suggested that the rule should be relaxed which provided that committees should rise at a quarter to 4 o'clock, when the Speaker took the chair. After some further discussion, Mr. M. GIBSON withdrew the motion, in deference to the feeling of the House.—Mr. F. D. FORTESCUE gave notice that he would, on the 15th of March, call attention to the Court Martial on Colonel Crawley, and move for papers.—Mr. H. B. SHERIDAN gave notice of his intention to move on an early day for leave to bring in a Bill to reduce the Duty on Fire Insurances.—Mr. M. GIBSON obtained leave to bring in a Bill to facilitate, in certain cases, the obtaining of powers for the Construction of Railways; and also a bill to facilitate, in certain cases, the obtaining of further powers by railway companies.

WEDNESDAY.—M. LAIRD moved the second reading of the Chain Cables and Anchors Bill, the object of which was the protection of the property of shipowners, and of the lives of crews and passengers in merchant and emigrant ships, by making the manufacturers of chain cables and anchors responsible for their efficiency. The Bill had received the approval of Lloyd's committee, of the London Shipowners Society, of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, and of the great shipping firms throughout the country.—Sir J. ELPHINSTONE seconded the motion.—Mr. HUTT said that the Government would not oppose the second reading, but some important alterations would have to be made in committee.—Alderman ROSE, Mr. BENTINCK, and Mr. HORSFALL supported the Bill.—Mr. LINDSAY said that the measure in its present shape would prove destructive to the interests of small manufacturers by throwing the trade into the hands of the large manufacturers in Scotland and in Wales.—After a short discussion, in which Mr. CAVE, Mr. LEFEVRE, and Mr. HASSARD took part, the Bill was read a second time. Union Rating.—Mr. BERNARD moved for leave to bring in a Bill for a more equitable distribution of the charge on landed property for the relief of the sick and destitute known by the name of poor's rate. He said that its object was to substitute union rating for parochial rating.—Mr. COX seconded the motion.—After some remarks by Mr. PACKE, Mr. WARNER, and Sir B. LEIGHTON, Mr. VILLIERS said he was not disposed to oppose the introduction of the Bill. It would, however, involve a change in the law of settlement and a revaluation of rateable property.—Mr. HENLEY said that the effect of the Bill on the cottages question would be the very reverse of what was expected; for proprietors of land would be driven not to increase but to lessen the number of cottages on their estates. It would not only make the condition of the poor worse, but, by shifting the burden, persons would take steps to recoup themselves as well as they could, and eventually a cry would be raised, which it would be impossible to resist, for the adoption of a national rate. Such an alteration of the law would, in his opinion, be a great curse to the poor.—Mr. BARROW condemned any attempt to introduce the system of union rating.—Mr. BERNARD withdrew the motion, in the hope that the Government would themselves bring in a measure on the subject.

THURSDAY.—Sir R. PEEL moved the second reading of the Vestry Cess Abolition (Ireland) Bill, and stated that the object of the Bill was to take away the power of making assessments from parish vestries. He thought the measure a wise one; that it would promote harmony and good feeling and banish contention in parish vestries. After a short discussion the Bill was read a second time.—Sir G. GREY moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Penal Servitude Acts. The Bill, he said, was founded upon certain recommendations of the Commissioners appointed about a year ago to inquire into the operation of the Acts under which sentences of penal servitude were passed, and into the mode in which they were carried into effect. The Commissioners had recommended that sentences of penal servitude should not be for a shorter period than seven years, and that certain of the male convicts should be sent to Australia. This suggestion, however, had awakened so much alarm and opposition in those colonies that her Majesty's Government thought that, under all the circumstances, it would be undesirable, for the sake of a remote advantage (while asserting the undoubted right of the Crown), to enter into a contest with the colonies and to insist on doing what was distasteful to them. The Government had thought it expedient to adopt five years as the minimum term of a sentence of penal servitude. Another recommendation in favour of remissions of parts of sentences, as a reward for good conduct, had been dissented from by the Lord Chief Justice, but he thought the preponderance of the evidence was in favour of the principle; the Government, therefore, thought that it would not be expedient to alter the existing practice of granting licences, revocable in cases of misconduct. Another recommendation related to the consequences that should attach to a breach of a licence, and the Bill specified the conditions which they proposed to annex to the grant of licences. He explained, in conclusion, some of the minor details of the Bill.—Mr. ADDERLEY objected to the continuance of tickets of leave.—Mr. NEWDEGATE and Lord NAAS deprecated the abandonment of transportation, at the dictation of the colonists.—Sir J. PAKINGTON, Mr. WALPOLE, and other members gave their cordial approbation to the Bill. After a short reply from Sir G. GREY, leave was given to introduce the Bill.—Mr. W. EWART obtained leave to bring in a Bill to render permissive the use of the Metric System of Weights and Measures in this country.

FRIDAY.—Germany and Denmark.—In answer to Mr. NEWDEGATE, Lord PALMERSTON said that no doubt the entrance into Jutland by the Austrian and Prussian troops would be an aggravation of that violent outrage which, in the opinion of the British Government, they had committed, involving a great sacrifice of life and shedding of blood, for which those two Governments were responsible. As to the course her Majesty's Government had taken, he was quite sure that he would not be considered guilty of any want of respect if he declined to give an answer pledging the Government to any future course of action. The Northern Circuit.—Sir J. HAY moved an address to the Queen, praying her Majesty to nominate the town of Wakefield as the assize town for the West Riding.—Mr. LEATHAM seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY opposed it on the ground that the matter rested with the Queen in Council.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

THE SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL.—A meeting of the Shakespeare National Commemoration Committee was held on Monday, the Duke of Manchester in the chair, when a report from the site and monument committee was presented by the Right Hon. W. Cowper, M.P., who had acted as the chairman. The report recommended that an architectural monument, open at the sides, and affording opportunity for artistic illustrations of Shakespeare's works, should be erected on the high ground of the Green Park, abutting on Piccadilly. The report was unanimously agreed to, and the Duke of Manchester, the Right Hon. W. Cowper, M.P.; Sir J. Paxton, M.P.; Mr. Tite, M.P.; Mr. Beresford Hope, Mr. Machse, and Professor Donaldson, were appointed an executive committee to carry it into effect. Numerous schemes for raising funds were suggested and approved of.

CITY COMMISSION OF SEWERS.—At a recent Court of Common Council the proposition to allow every member of the Court to sit and vote in the Commission of Sewers, which was defeated at a previous meeting, in consequence of the votes on both sides being equal, was again brought up. A long discussion ensued, but the proposition was rejected by 71 to 63 votes.

THE CONDEMNED PIRATES.—After the statement of Sir G. Grey in the House of Commons on Friday evening, it is now beyond all doubt that the seven men now under sentence of death in Newgate, will be executed in the Old Bailey, in conformity with the sentence. The scaffold is being adapted for the occasion by having 6 ft. added to its length, and it is understood that each convict will be pinioned separately and taken to the place of execution alone.

THE GALES.—From Friday night to Monday night gales prevailed in all parts of England and Scotland, and wrecks are reported from every part of the coast. The storm appears to have raged with the greatest violence on Saturday in the north of England and in Scotland, where great damage was done to house property as well as to shipping.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths registered in London in the week that ended Saturday, Feb. 13, were 1647. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63, the average number, corrected for increase of population, was 1452. The present return is therefore 195 above the average. During the week the births of 1009 boys and 996 girls, in all 2005 children, were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2116.

Provincial.

ABERDARE.—A boiler explosion took place on Wednesday at Aberaman Ironworks, the property of Mr. Crawshay Bailey, M.P. Nine persons were killed and about 14 injured. The damage is said to exceed 10,000*l*.

HAYLE.—The Cornish papers state that a writ has been served upon the prosecutors of Mr. Richard Millett, of Hayle, in the late charge of poisoning at Penpol House. The action will be brought at the next assizes at Bodmin, for false imprisonment and malicious libel, the damages being laid at 5000*l*.

SAFFRON WALDEN.—Mr. Sinclair, the engineer of the Great Eastern Railway Company, has decided upon following the wishes of the Archæological Institute by diverting the line which menaced the Bartlow Tumuli with destruction.

Markets.

COVENT GARDEN, Feb. 20.

Vegetables and Fruit in season continue to be pretty well kept up. Retarded Hothouse Grapes are, however, scarce, but some good new ones may now be had. Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained; likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 6s. to 10s. per 100. Cornish Broccoli is still largely supplied. Continental arrivals are heavy; among them are French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

HOPS.—BOROUGH MARKET, FRIDAY, Feb. 19.

Messrs. Pattenden & Smith report the demand for consumption steady at fair prices. Stocks were never in a more reduced state at this period.

POTATOS.—SOUTHWARK, Monday, Feb. 15.

During the past week the arrivals both coastwise and by rail have been very large, and still much in excess of the demand; and last week's prices could not be maintained. Second-rate and inferior sorts unsaleable except to cow-keepers. Quotations:—Yorkshire Flukes, 70s. to 90s. per ton; do. Regents, 50s. to 70s.; do. METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, Feb. 15.

The number of Beasts is very small, and consequently late prices are well supported, yet trade is not brisk. The supply of Sheep is also smaller, but quite equal to the demand. The dead markets being well supplied makes buyers very cautious here to-day. There is a considerable reduction in the price of Calves. From Germany and Holland there are 760 Beasts, 1040 Sheep, and 196 Calves; from Scotland, 330 Beasts; from Ireland, 170; from Norfolk and Suffolk, 2020; and 100 from the Northern and Midland Counties.

THURSDAY, Feb. 18.

The number of Beasts is small, so also is the demand. Trade is very dull, and Monday's quotations are barely maintained. The supply of Sheep is about the same as of late. They are with difficulty disposed of at about Monday's prices. Calves are not quite so plentiful as on Thursday last, but trade is not better. Our foreign supply consists of 295 Beasts, 770 Sheep, and 223 Calves.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Feb. 15.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and the condition of some of it affected by the weather; it met a slow sale, and damp samples must be written 1s. per qr. lower. There was a moderate attendance, but foreign Wheat continues to be neglected, and to have forced sales a reduction of price must have been submitted to. Barley sold slowly at last week's quotations. Beans and Peas were unaltered in value. The Oat trade was quiet at late rates. In Flour there was no change.

FRIDAY, Feb. 19.

The weather from the 12th to the 16th inclusive was damp with heavy showers and S.W. gales, excepting on the 14th, when it was fine. We are unable to report any improvement either in the demand or prices of Wheat, the latter in the majority of markets being written 1s. per qr. lower. The value of Barley, Oats, Beans, and Peas continue to decline, and that of Flour has a similar tendency. Since Friday last 10 vessels have been reported off the coast. The floating trade has been very quiet during the week; Wheat has declined 1s. to 2s. per qr., and prices for all descriptions of Spring Corn are barely maintained. Paris, Feb. 18.—Flour: the trade has been slow, and prices are barely supported. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 32s. 9d. per 280 lbs; the present stock of Flour is estimated at 10,800 cwt. Wheat is very quiet, and in some instances a decline of 0½. per qr. has been submitted to. The arrivals of Irish Oats and foreign Barley are large, of all other grain and Flour small. The attendance at to-day's market was again very limited, and all articles of the trade were neglected. We do not alter our quotations of last Monday.

LIVERPOOL, February 16.—We have had a very full attendance of both town and country millers and dealers at to-day's market, who have evidently come in the expectation of finding a further decline in Wheat; holders, however, insist on the full rates of Friday, and only a very limited amount of business consequently has resulted. Flour remains dull of sale at former prices. Indian Corn must be quoted quite 3d per quarter cheaper, with only a retail inquiry. Oats and Oatmeal are no lower. Beans, Peas, and Barley may each be called the turn in buyers' favour. The market closes very tame.

FRIDAY, Feb. 19.—The market is fairly attended. A moderate business was done in Wheat at Tuesday's rates. Flour in slow demand; quotations quite nominal. Indian Corn steady; mixed 29s. Egyptian Beans, Oats, and Oatmeal dull and unchanged.

DENNIS'S PATENT METALLIC HORTICULTURAL BUILDINGS are made from the best Wrought Iron, upon an entirely new principle. The combination of Iron and Glass under this patent is perfect; the possibility of fracture is prevented, and a permanently Water-tight Roof insured.

The leading practical advantages are extreme smallness of Framing, admitting a maximum of light and heat, great strength, durability, and perfect ventilation. They are speedily erected, partake of more desirable outline, and do not exceed the cost of a perishable wooden structure.

THE PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASES

SOLE MANUFACTURER,

JAMES GRAY, HORTICULTURAL WORKS,

DANVERS STREET, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

The PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASE is one of the most useful of the Gardening novelties of the day. It is a handsome ornament for the Drawing Room or Sitting Room, and at all times forms a fresh, pleasant, and interesting object to the mind and eye. It is always under command, and will preserve many of the most tender Exotic Plants through the severest winter with comparatively little of the trouble and annoyance attending the use of Lamps, Gas, and Heating appliances of any other kind.

To all who have a taste for the cultivation of In-door Plants, for raising Seedlings, striking Cuttings, &c the Plant Cases will be found an inestimable boon.

The Cases are highly approved and recommended by Professor Lindley, and by Messrs. Veitch, of The Royal Exotic Nursery, King's Road, Chelsea.

Larger sizes of any of the above.

By an improved and new action of the handle, this Pump is so constructed that a great deal of friction is avoided; an air vessel is secured, and by introducing a brass lining into the barrel, with brass bucket and sucker, many of the objections to iron pumps are overcome. By this Pump ONE MAN WILL FORCE THE WATER in a continuous stream TO A HEIGHT OF 50 FEET.

When mounted on a barrow it forms a cheap, useful, and portable Fire Engine or Garden and Field Irrigator. The simplicity of its construction enables it to be offered to the public at a less price than any other Pump of equal capabilities.

PLANS and ESTIMATES for LABOURERS' COTTAGES. By Lady CAROLINE KERRISON.

"There is here sufficient material given for an estimate of cost, and in the simple elegance of the designs and well packed arrangement of the accommodation which they give, is evidence of the thorough fitness of the Authoress for the benevolent work she has undertaken. Nothing can be more simple, or, in better taste than the style of the building here recommended, and an examination of the designs will show that Lady Kerrison has here made a very useful contribution to the efforts now being made to improve the condition of the Labourer." Gardeners' Chronicle.

Mr. G. J. Whyte Melville's Last Novel.

On Monday, March 14, will be published, complete in One Volume, crown 8vo, with Frontispiece, price 5*s.* cloth,

THE GLADIATORS: a Tale of Rome and Judæa.

By G. J. WHYTE MELVILLE.

"The novel is clever, it is even brilliant, it is written with a warm and vigorous eloquence, and the reader is carried on from scene to scene, and crisis to crisis, amused, interested, excited. If he takes up the book, he will read on to the end of the third volume and the destruction of the Temple."

The Times

"A strong interest is infused into the 'Gladiators' by the glimpses it gives us of the infant Christian Church..... The result is a book which clothes the dry bones of history with forms of beauty and strength, and animates them with the various movements and passions of humanity."

Daily News.

"The school or Family of Gladiators is the centre round which the plot mainly revolves; and with which Mr. Melville is thoroughly at home. The distinctness with which he has set these people before us amounts to a positive service to classical literature. .....A book, prepared with so much care, dealing with such great events, and abounding in brilliant scenes and striking situations, well deserves a careful perusal." Guardian.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.

22, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY

Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.

2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.

TO LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent-charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

THE LANDOWNERS' WEST of ENGLAND and SOUTH WALES LAND DRAINAGE and INCLOSURE COMPANY. Established in the year 1844, and Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament, 11 & 12 Vict., Cap. cxlii.

Chairman—The Right Hon. the EARL of DEVON, Powderham Castle.

Deputy Chairman—WILLIAM PORTER, Esq., Hembury Fort, near Honiton.

Landowners having limited interests, such as Tenants for Life, Tenants in Tail, Mortgagors, and others, can Drain and improve their Lands without any expense to themselves personally,—as the Company's Act does not require Proprietors to liquidate the cost, the amount may remain permanently charged on the property, at interest, or be paid off when convenient, or be made redeemable over any term of years.

The works are undertaken by the Company, who keep in constant employ a very extensive and experienced staff of Engineers, Surveyors, and workmen; or Proprietors may avail themselves of the powers of the Act only, and get the works executed under their own superintendence, or by Agents appointed by themselves.

Outfalls through adjoining lands are obtainable under the Company's Act.

Works are also executed by the Company for Parties advancing their own capital, or not wishing to borrow the money.

Every information may be obtained on application to

FREDERICK BRODIE, Secretary.
Castle Street, Exeter.

30, Parliament Street, Westminster.

DRAINAGE LOANS are made by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY to the Owners of Freehold Estates, Life Tenants, Trustees, Incumbents, Bodies Corporate, &c., for all works of Agricultural Drainage as well as Irrigation, Enclosing, Road Making, Wood Grubbing, and Farm Buildings, sanctioned by the Inclosure Commissioners.

The advances are repaid by way of Rent Charge on the Estate created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual charge to the circumstances of the Tenants.

No investigation of title being required, or notices given to Remaindermen or Mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.

The Company either supply the money expended by landowners in works designed and executed by their own Agents, or they undertake the entire improvement by their experienced staff, supply the weekly advances required, and charge on the estate the actual outlay in the works, and their commission thereon.

Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, London, S.W.

PROF. TYNDALL, F.R.S., will COMMENCE a COURSE of THIRTY-TWO LECTURES on MAGNETISM, ELECTRICITY, SOUND, LIGHT, and HEAT, on MONDAY NEXT, February 29, at half-past 10 A.M., at the Royal School of Mines, Jermyn Street, W.; to be continued on every WEEK DAY but Saturday at the same hour. Fee for the course, 3*l*. TRENHAM REEKS, Registrar.

News of the Week.

In the House of Lords on Monday, on the motion for the second reading of the Royal Arcade Bill, for making an arcade from Regent Street to Bond Street, the Earl of DERBY moved, as an amendment, that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. The amendment was carried without a division, and the Bill was consequently lost. On Tuesday the Marquis of SALISBURY moved for returns of the number of convicts under sentence of penal servitude. After a discussion, in which Earl GRANVILLE, the Earl of CARNARVON, Lord WODEHOUSE, and Earl GREY took part, the motion was agreed to. On Thursday the Earl of DERBY complained that in the House of Commons on Tuesday the ATTORNEY-GENERAL had consented to produce a portion of the correspondence with the United States Government, which Earl RUSSELL had declined to lay before the House of Lords. Earl RUSSELL, in reply, said that in declining to produce these papers in the first instance, he had acted upon the opinion expressed by the law officers of the Crown that their production would be injurious to the public interests, but on subsequent consideration the ATTORNEY-GENERAL had come to the conclusion that some of the papers might be produced without risk.

In the Commons on Friday, Sir J. HAY's motion for an address to the QUEEN, praying that Wakefield might be nominated as the assize town for the West Riding of Yorkshire, was negatived by 138 to 113. The Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill passed through committee. On Monday, on the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. DISRAELI complained of the delay in the production of the papers on the Danish question, and charged the Government with not acting fairly towards the House. The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that the papers would be produced as soon as possible. Mr. OSBORNE moved that in the absence of the papers the navy estimates should be postponed for three weeks. The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER accepted the interpretation put on the motion by Mr. ROEBUCK, that if carried it would be a vote of censure on the Government. Mr. DISRAELI and Mr. HENLEY recommended Mr. OSBORNE to withdraw the motion, on the ground that it was not desirable that so important a decision on the foreign policy of the Government should be taken without notice, and in the absence of the Prime Minister from illness. The motion, however, went to a division, and was negatived by 220 to 47. On Tuesday Mr. LOCKE KING obtained leave to bring in a Bill to extend the franchise to 10*l*. occupiers in the counties of England and Wales. Mr. HIBBERT called attention to the demoralising effects of public executions, and moved for papers to show the advantages of private over public executions. Sir G. GREY said he was not prepared to consent to any alteration of the law, and after a short discussion the motion was withdrawn. Mr. S. FITZGERALD moved for papers and correspondence relating to the seizure of the steam rams at Birkenhead, for the purpose of showing whether before the seizure took place the conduct of the Government was consistent with the law or not. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL said that the Government did not object to furnish those papers which were of a diplomatic character, but were not prepared to publish those which contained the evidence to be produced at the approaching trial. He stated that the Government had good grounds for what they had done, and had acted upon their own responsibility, in order that the law should not be violated and injury done to a friendly Power. Sir HUGH CAIRNS charged the Government with having done, on their own confession, what was illegal and without excuse, as well as without law or constitutional practice. After a long discussion, the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 178 to 153. Mr. BLACK obtained leave to bring in a Bill for the consolidation of the Acts relating to copyright in works of literature and the fine arts. On Wednesday, on the motion for going into committee on the Malt for Cattle Bill, Mr. BASS, Mr. DUCANE, Mr. NEWDEGATE, Sir F. KELLY, Mr. HENLEY, and other members urged objections to the Bill, and recommended a reduction of the malt tax as a measure more likely to be acceptable to a large portion of the people. The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that appeals for the remission of taxes had already been made to him involving a total loss of nineteen and a half millions, while his surplus would probably not exceed one or two millions. After answering various objections he suggested that the best course would be to go into committee pro formâ, and at once report progress. This suggestion was agreed to, and the Committee was adjourned to Friday. The Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed. On Thursday in answer to Mr. D. GRIFFITHS, Lord PALMERSTON said that HER MAJESTY'S Government having failed in obtaining an armistice between Germany and Denmark as the foundation of a Conference, had proposed a Conference without an armistice. Austria and Prussia had agreed to the proposal, and he believed that France and Russia would do the same, but no answer had yet been received from Sweden, Denmark, and the German Confederation. In answer to Lord J. MANNERS, Lord PALMERSTON added that the Cabinet of Berlin had informed HER MAJESTY'S Government that the invasion of Jutland was not only not according to orders, but against positive instructions, and that the commander of the invading force would be reprimanded. The Prussian Government, however, added that the occupation of Kolding, in Jutland, being of great strategical value, would nevertheless be continued. The House then went into committee of supply, and Lord C. PAGET moved the Navy Estimates for the ensuing year. A long discussion ensued, and the Chairman was ultimately ordered to report progress before any vote was agreed to.

From the seat of war in the North we learn that the Prussian troops have received orders from Berlin not to advance further into Jutland, but still continue to occupy Kolding. The Prussians commenced their attack on the Danish outposts at Düppel on the 18th, and after several hours' fighting succeeded in driving the Danes to their entrenchments. The Danes, however, subsequently recovered all their former positions. On Monday three brigades of Prussians, with artillery, again attacked and drove in the Danish outposts, and took possession of the village of Düppel. After maintaining their ground for four hours they were dislodged by the cannonade from the fortifications at Düppel, and compelled to retire with heavy loss. The CROWN PRINCE and PRINCE FREDERICK CHARLES OF PRUSSIA were on the field.

It is announced that England has proposed a Conference on the basis of the integrity of the Danish monarchy, and that Austria and Prussia have consented to take part in it on the understanding that there is to be no suspension of hostilities. France also has officially accepted the proposal, and it is believed that Russia will do so likewise, but no reply has yet been received from Sweden or Denmark, though it was reported yesterday that Denmark will accede to the proposal.

The differences between the two great German Powers and the smaller States are rapidly becoming more serious. The Wurzburg Conference has agreed to the proposition of Saxony, recommending that the minor States should combine to prevent the two great German Powers disposing of Holstein without the assent of the Federal Diet; and has also resolved that the Diet alone can decide on the succession question. To give effect to these resolutions the Conference decided on sending more Federal troops into Holstein, and on making preparations for the mobilisation of the armies of the minor States.

Home News.

THE COURT.—The Queen, accompanied by the Princesses Helena, Louisa, and Beatrice, Prince Leopold and Princess Holenlohe, arrived at Windsor Castle on Saturday afternoon from Osborne. Prince Arthur arrived from Greenwich Park. Sir George Grey also arrived and had an audience of the Queen. On Sunday morning the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, Prince Arthur, Prince Leopold, and Princess Holenlohe attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Dean of Windsor officiated. On Monday morning the Queen walked in the grounds, accompanied by Princess Helena. Prince Arthur left the Castle for Greenwich Park. Sir George Grey left the Castle for London. On Tuesday morning the Queen came to London and honoured the Countess of Elgin with a visit. Her Majesty afterwards returned to Windsor. Prince Edward of Saxe Weimar dined with Her Majesty. On Wednesday morning the Queen walked and drove in the grounds, accompanied by Princess Helena. On Thursday morning the Queen walked in the grounds. In the evening Earl de Grey and Ripon arrived at the Castle, and had an audience of the Queen.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES arrived at Marlborough House on Tuesday afternoon, from St. Leonard's. On Friday morning the Prince had made arrangements to hunt with the East Sussex foxhounds, but the sharp frost and frequent falls of snow rendered it necessary to postpone the hunt. The Princess took a drive along the coast in a close carriage. The Prince took walking exercise to the eastern part of Hastings, both morning and afternoon. In the evening the volunteer rifles and artillery assembled in front of the hotel, and went through various movements in the presence of their Royal Highnesses. On Saturday the Princess took a drive along the sea front of the town; the Prince walked to the Priory. On Sunday morning their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service at the parish church. The Prince afterwards walked on the esplanade to Carlisle parade. In the afternoon the Princess drove out for a short time, and the Prince promenaded the parade and went into the older portion of the town. On Monday morning the Prince walked into Hastings, and honoured Messrs. Ayles by sitting for his portrait at their photographic establishment. In the afternoon the Prince drove the Princess to the Caves. On Tuesday morning their Royal Highnesses with the infant Prince and suite left St. Leonard's for Marlborough House, travelling by the South-Eastern Railway to the Charing Cross terminus. On Wednesday morning the Prince rode out on horseback. The Duke of Cambridge visited His Royal Highness at Marlborough House. In the afternoon the Princess drove out. In the evening the Prince honoured the performance at the Princess's Theatre with his presence. On Monday morning the Prince rode on horseback. Prince Gustav of Saxe Weimar visited his Royal Highness. In the afternoon the Prince visited Prince Gustav, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duchess of Inverness. The Princess took a carriage drive. The Duchess of Cambridge, the Duchess of Mecklenburg Strelitz, and the Princess Mary, visited the Princess at Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, went to Christ's Hospital, to witness the public supper of the boys.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, in Downing Street. Another Council was held on Wednesday, at Cambridge-house, the private residence of Lord Palmerston.

THE CHANNEL FLEET.—Orders were sent to Lisbon last week for the Channel fleet to return to Portland Roads, there to await further orders. The fleet will accordingly leave the Tagus to-day for Portland.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The King and Queen of Portugal are shortly expected to arrive in Paris. The Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between France and Italy has been promulgated. According to an imperial decree issued on Sunday, Belgian ships coming from British possessions in Europe are to be treated as French, English, and Italian ships coming from the same possessions. The ports of Toulon and Cette are declared open for the importation and clearing of pure and mixed fabrics taxed ad valorem. The stipulations of the Treaty of Commerce between France and Italy are also applicable to England and Belgium. An Imperial decree was issued on Friday appointing a Committee to draw up the regulations in connexion with the Sugar Bill, which has been submitted to the Corps Législatif. M. Corta, member of the Corps Législatif, embarked on Thursday for Mexico. He has been intrusted with a mission, and will be invested with authority over all financial functionaries and agents. A decree has been issued, convoking the electors of the seventh circumscription of the department du Nord to elect a deputy on the 6th and 7th of March. The invasion of Jutland by the Austro-Prussian armies has excited great interest in Paris, and the Ministerial papers state that the Ambassadors of Austria and Prussia at Paris and London have given explanations tending to show that the invasion was necessary for strategic purposes, and had no political significance. The Nord of Thursday announces that the proposition made by England for a Conference has been officially accepted by France. It fears, however, that this Conference, which will shortly assemble in London, offers few chances of bringing about a pacific solution of the conflict. The Patrie of Thursday says:—

"France, in spite of her sympathy for Denmark, ought not to hesitate in recognizing the wishes of the German populations of Holstein and Schleswig to be incorporated with the German nation. Our policy on the Elbe ought not to be different to that we have on the Vistula and the Mincio. Should Germany obtain this satisfaction, the other Danish provinces would be united to Sweden, for the purpose of guarding the entrance to the Baltic. The principle of nationalities being thus established, Germany would have no reason not to apply it to Poland and Italy."

SPAIN.—A royal decree of amnesty for political offences was issued on Sunday at Madrid, in commemoration of her Majesty's happy delivery and return to the direction of public affairs. The British steamer Princess, which touched at Malaga to take in coal, has been seized by the authorities of that port. It was discovered that she carried in her hold several rifled cannon, muskets, ammunition, and other warlike effects. The vessel was from London and bound to Ancona.

DENMARK.—It is officially announced that England has invited the German Confederation and the Powers which signed the Treaty of 1852 to a Conference in London, for the settlement of the Dano-German question. The political bases of the proposed Conference are as follow:—"1. The European Powers guarantee the the autonomy as well as the indivisibility of the Duchies. 2. The territorial arrangements hitherto existing are to undergo no change." Prussia and Austria have accepted the principle of the proposal, provided, however, that the German Diet and France also assent, and that the negociations should not interfere with the prosecution of hostilities. It was announced in Paris on Thursday, that France has given her adhesion to the proposal, and there is reason to believe that Russia will likewise consent, but from Denmark and Sweden no reply has as yet been received; though it was reported yesterday at Weimar that Denmark has also consented. The resolution of the Federal Diet will be taken as soon as possible. The Secretaries of the Danish Legations at Berlin and Vienna have been re-called. The Secretary of the Austrian Legation at Copenhagen has already left.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—The Prussian troops on Friday occupied Kolding, in Jutland. A cavalry engagement subsequently took place at Gudsoe, without result. The Prussian Guards on Sunday received orders from Berlin not to advance further into Jutland, but to occupy Kolding as a strategical position. Danish outposts are now stationed opposite the Prussian Guards at Gudsoe. Unimportant skirmishes are continually taking place. The Danish force occupying Fredericia numbers 6000 men, many of whom are said to be Schleswigers. On Monday morning at 7 o'clock the Prussians drove in the Danish outposts and occupied the village of Düppel. Marshal Wrangel, the Crown Prince of Prussia and Prince Frederick Charles were on the field. They were dislodged by a cannonade from the bastions. The action lasted four hours. Two Danish regiments were engaged, 200 men were killed and wounded, with many officers on the side of the Danes. The Prussians left many dead and wounded on the field. The Danish army is in high spirits. The Prussian account on the other hand says that their loss was only three killed and 20 wounded; and that they took several officers and 200 rank and file of the Danes prisoners with several flags. The Prussians have arrested at Braager the rector Schleppegrel, the parish warden Bülow, and the parish clerk Hausen. The Mayor of Hadersleben has also been arrested by the Prussian officer commanding the forces in that town. The Germans in Sandbjerg and the Danes in Roehave have fired at each other across the Sound without effect. The fortifications of the island of Alsen are being strengthened. A Prussian battalion has arrived at Kiel. The Prussians are fortifying the Bay of Kiel. A panic prevails at Stralsund on account of the appearance of five Danish ships near Rugen. Several Danish ironclads, among which were the Esbern-Snare and Absalon, appeared on the 18th inst. in the Flensburg Fiord, and exchanged shots with the allied artillery. A Prussian garrison has prevented a landing of the Danes to the north of Friederichsort which had been attempted in the boats of the Esbern, Snare and Thor. A blockade will be declared by Denmark of all ports on the eastern coast of Holstein and Schleswig, except Neudstadt, from the 25th inst. 100 sappers have commenced the razing of the Dannewerk. 400 labourers are assisting in the work of demolition. A monster deputation from the whole of Schleswig is expected at Kiel to do homage to the Duke of Augustenburg. Marshal von Wrangel has issued an order, stating that persons committing hostile acts towards the allied troops, or refusing to render them assistance, will be subject to martial law. On the 17th inst. the Civil Commissioners issued a decree abrogating the Constitution of the 18th of November, and another on the 19th inst., annulling the ordinance of the late King of Denmark relative to the use of the Danish language. On the 19th the Civil Commissioners issued an order, announcing that the language to be used in the schools and places of public worship in Schleswig will be German, with the exception of the parish of Wieshard, where inquiries respecting the language are being made. In certain religious ceremonies the language may be Danish, if desired by the parties concerned. From the 1st of April next the currency in Holstein will consist of courant-marks, instead of rigsmünze. Prince Frederick Charles in reply to a deputation of citizens from Flensburg, said that it was of course understood that all the Danish officers in Schleswig would be dismissed. The object in temporarily maintaining them in office was to avoid anarchy.

HAMBURG.—The authorities of Hamburg have seized the money in the Danish post-office in that city. According to an announcement of the Danish Consul-General, Holstein and Schleswig ships carrying the Danish flag and Danish papers and signals will retain the rights of Danish ships.

BAVARIA.—The conference of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the minor German States met at Wurtzburg last week, and was attended by the Ministers of Bavaria, Saxony, Wurtemburg, Baden, Hesse-Darmstadt, Brunswick, Nassau, Weimar, Saxe-Gotha, and Saxe-Meiningen. The Conference unanimously agreed to the proposition of Saxony that the minor States should be united in their attitude in the event of the Great German Powers endeavouring to withdraw forcibly from the Federal Diet the right of disposing of Holstein. It was also resolved not to sanction any convention affecting the rights of the Duchies, and that the Federal Diet alone has to decide on the succession question. The Conference further resolved that more Federal troops should be sent to secure Holstein, and that preparations be made for the mobilisation of the armies of the minor States. It was also decided that the resolutions passed at the Conference should not be communicated to the press.

FRANKFORT.—At the sitting of the Federal Diet on Thursday, Austria and Prussia proposed that the commander-in-chief of the army in Holstein should be transferred to Prussia They also moved that two new civil commissioners should be appointed by the two great German Powers. The propositions were referred to the committee, and are to be put to the vote within eight days. The report of the committee upon the succession question then came on for debate. Articles 1 and 2, declaring that the Treaty of London is not binding on the Confederation, and that the Diet cannot take the treaty as the basis of its resolutions, were rejected. Article 3, refusing to accept the proxy of King Christian, and Article 4 requesting the committee on the succession question to present their report with all possible celerity without taking as its basis the Treaty of 1852, were adopted. The Governments which have taken part in the Würzburg Conference proposed that the Diet should convoke the Holstein Estates. The Hanse Towns requested that measures of reprisal should be taken for the capture of German shipping by Denmark.

AUSTRIA.—The General Correspondenz of Wednesday, confirming the statement that the two great German Powers have accepted in theory the Conference proposed by England, says:—

"Both Powers thereby prove their readiness at any moment to take whatever steps may be compatible with their just demands towards a peaceful solution of the difficulty."

Count Degenfeld, Minister of War, has at his repeated request, been relieved of his functions, and Lieut. Field-Marshal Chevalier von Frank has been appointed to the vacant Ministry. Orders have been sent by telegraph to Pola to get ready the Austrian line-of-battle ship Kaiser and the screw corvette, Freidrich, to proceed to the German Ocean to protect merchantmen against Danish cruisers. Another squadron of 12 Austrian men-of-war has received orders to put to sea for the protection of German merchantmen against Danish cruisers. Part of the fleet has already sailed. The Austrian Government has addressed a circular despatch, under date of the 13th inst., to all the members of the German Confederation. The following is a summary of this document:—

"It is admitted that the London Treaty is not binding upon the Federal Diet. A vote on that treaty taken by the Diet in conformity with the propositions of the Committee would not be decisive with regard to that question, but might possibly induce the non-German Powers to make counter-declarations in favour of the treaty, thereby aggravating the critical state of affairs. Austria, therefore, requests the German Governments not to assent to the different propositions of the Committee, but to instruct that body to make a fresh report which should treat solely of the succession question."

PRUSSIA.—A rumour is current that 60,000 Prussian troops will be concentrated on the frontier of the kingdom of Poland. The Government journals explain the entry of the allied armies into Jutland by stating that the invasion had a military reason, which was to prevent the Danes from concentrating all their troops behind the fortifications of Düppel and in the Island of Alsen, and that the province will continue to be occupied as a guarantee for the payment by Denmark of the expenses of the war.

POLAND.—Advices from Warsaw state that from the 22d of March next all persons of either sex above the age of 14 must, on leaving their houses, be provided with a passport, and any one unable to produce such a document will be punished. The Government officials have been ordered to present an address protesting against the insurrection. Great excitement has been created in Warsaw by the forcible abduction of Miss Neumann, the sister of the surgeon Neumann by two Russian officers, under pretence of a domiciliary visit. On the 18th the insurgents blew up a goods train near Wloclawek, destroying 16 waggons. A passenger train met with an accident on the following day near Lazy, in consequence of some of the rails having been taken up. The municipal treasury of Czersk has been seized by the insurgents. The Russian Major Butkiewicz, who marched with three infantry companies against the insurgents under Dombrowski, had been utterly routed at Kurzewo, in the government of Radom. Only 80 Russians escaped. A report was current that several Russian soldiers had deserted to the insurgents.

TURKEY.—A convention between the English and Turkish Governments relative to the portion of the new Indian telegraph line which is to pass through the Ottoman dominions was signed on the 17th inst. The Levant Herald reports the arrival of a quantity of arms from England and Vienna. It states that they have been distributed by the Sultan to the Imperial Guard and other troops, and remarks upon this activity in keeping the defences of Turkey in good order.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—The Governor was to leave Table Bay on the 21st inst. in the Narcissus, for Algoa Bay, on his way to Graham's Town, where his visit was to be celebrated by triumphal arches, bonfires, and illuminations. It was not known what measures the Governor intended to bring before the Parliament. A batch of new taxation Bills was expected, but on what interest the imposts were to be laid had not been announced. The Governor had ordered the stoppage of all public works, the insufficient supplies provided by Parliament last year being exhausted. The condition of colonial finances was beginning to attract attention. It was expected that, notwithstanding every possible curtailment of the current expenditure, the temporary loans necessary to eke out the Treasurer's resources would be increased by June next to at least 100,000*l*. The Commander of the Forces was to accompany the Governor and make a tour of inspection of the various military stations and outposts. It was expected that the head-quarters would again be established at Graham's Town. Telegraphic intelligence received at Graham's Town on the 8th of January states that all was quiet on the frontier, but that another Caffre prophet had arisen, advising the Caffres to sow plentifully for three years, and not dispose of the crops, but to store them up, as after three years no corn would grow. This was thought to be a design to provide food for campaigning purposes. Fresh disturbances had occurred in the Transvaal province, in which Pretorius was said to have had a share. An attempt had been made to oust Van Reusbung from the Presidency in favour of Pretorius, but was expected to fail. There is no news of Dr. Livingstone. Dr. Meller, of the Zambezi exploring expedition, has returned to England by this mail.

INDIA.—Sir John Lawrence held his first levee on the 16th ult., and it was most numerously and brilliantly attended. On the 18th his excellency opened the Calcutta Agricultural Exhibition. The natives of high rank, the Mysore princes, some talookdars from Oude, and many of the Baboos and gentlemen of Calcutta attended the ceremony. The Viceroy will remain in Calcutta till the next cold season. There are serious disturbances in Cabool among the contending factions. The brothers Azim Khan and Afzul Khan are in arms against Sher Ali Khan, whom our government during the Sittana war recognised as the legitimate ruler of Affghanistan. Captain Sherard Osborn, with the Anglo-Chinese squadron, arrived in Bombay on the 13th ult. The squadron has been entirely disbanded, and all the ships with the exception of the Keangsoo and the Keang tung, both of which are lying in the harbour of Bombay, are on their way home. The Bombay government has consented to relieve Captain Osborn of the charge of these two steamers, until he learns the views of the English government. The first ships with the Persian Gulf Telegraph cable have left Bombay. On the 21st of December the Confederate steamer Alabama steamed out of New Harbour, Singapore, towards the Straits of Malacca; on the same day she burned the Martaban, formerly the Texan Star, laden with rice from Moulmein to Singapore. On the 26th she burned the Sonora and the Highlander, and the 14th ult. she burned the Emma Jane at Anjengo.

JAPAN.—Tranquillity prevails in Japan.

UNITED STATES.—The Army of the Potomac under General Sedgwick, who has temporarily taken the command in consequence of the illness of General Meade, made a reconnaissance in force on the 6th inst.

to the south side of the Rapidan. General Lee was found in full force in the Federal front. After heavy skirmishing, in which the Federals are reported to have lost from 200 to 300 men, they returned to their old quarters. The Federal communication between Knoxville and Cumberland Gap was cut off by the Confederates on the 10th. An express train has been captured eight miles from Harper's Ferry, and the passengers robbed. It is not known whether the attack was made by the Confederates or by gangs of Federal deserters. Knoxville despatches of the 31st report that the Federal cavalry was defeated in an engagement near Marysville, and was retreating upon Knoxville, with the Confederates in pursuit. Seven Federal officers were killed. No other particulars are given. The Confederates had occupied Liverville, and are again threatening Newbern and Washington, North Carolina. The Confederate ironclad gunboat at Kingstown is completed, and will co-operate with the land forces. The Nashville Union says that the Federal army has crossed the Tennessee River, near Larkinsville, and surmises that its object may be to attack Rome, Georgia, to which General Johnstone's main army has retired. Telegrams from Mobile of the 6th report that Gen. Sherman's Federal force—infantry, cavalry, and artillery, 30,000 strong—crossed the Big Black River on the previous day, and was expected to advance to Meridan, and unite with a cavalry force moving along the line of the Mississippi and an infantry force advancing from Natchez. Sherman's movement is said to be made in order to flank Johnston and Hardee in Alabama and Georgia, rather than to attack Mobile. Despatches from Fortress Monroe report the complete failure of a secret expedition, organised by General Butler and commanded by General Wistar, on the 6th and 7th, for the liberation of the Federal prisoners at Richmond. Information of the design was conveyed to Richmond by Federal deserters, and the Confederates were enabled to provide against the intended surprise. The siege of Charleston has been raised, and Admiral Dahlgren has left Charleston in the flag-ship for St. John's, Florida. A large Federal expedition, with three gun boats, left Port Royal on the 5th inst., and landed at Jacksonville, Florida, on the 8th, from which place it was reported they would proceed to Tallahassee. General Gillmore left Port Royal on the 7th to join this expedition. Admiral Porter is fitting out a formidable fleet on the Mississippi. The British gun boat Petrel arrived at Charleston on the 5th, wishing to communicate with the British consul at Savannah. Admiral Dahlgren refused permission, and the Petrel put to sea. It is said that the Petrel brought dispatches for the Confederate Secretary Benjamin. On the night of the 2d a large steamer entered Charleston Harbour, unobserved by the Federal fleet, and was not discovered until the morning of the 3d, when she had run aground, and was landing her cargo under the guns of Fort Moultrie. The Federal batteries opened on her, and shortly afterwards she sank. The Conscription Bill has passed Congress, Slaves between the ages of 14 and 45 are liable to be drafted; loyal owners to be compensated. General Meade has made a speech at Philadelphia, stating that since March, 1861, 100,000 men of the Potomac army have been killed and wounded. The German Republicans of New Jersey have declared in favour of Butler, Fremont, or any other Radical candidate for the Presidency who will guarantee an emancipation and confiscation policy. The Halifax Admiralty Court has restored the Chesapeake and her cargo to the owners on the payment of the legal expenses.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.—Metropolitan Railways.—In reply to the Earl of DONOUGHMORE, Earl GRANVILLE said that the Select Committee on Metropolitan Railways had not yet agreed to any report, and that a statement to that effect which had appeared in one of the journals was incorrect. On the motion for the second reading of the Royal Arcade Bill, the Earl of DERBY opposed the measure, on the ground that it was a purely commercial speculation, got up by architects and builders, and that, instead of being an ornament to the metropolis, it was likely to do a great injury to the neighbouring property, and to become a rendezvous for the most objectionable characters. He moved as an amendment that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. — Earl GRANVILLE said that as the Bill was opposed so generally by the owners of property in the neighbourhood, he thought it might be better to agree to the amendment.—After a few words from Earl GREY and the Earl of MALMESBURY, the amendment was agreed to without a division, and the Bill was consequently thrown out. The American Armies.—In reply to Lord CAMPBELL, Earl DE GREY and RIPON said that it was not the intention of the Government to send military commissioners to report on the operations of the Federal and Confederate armies; but that three officers, an engineer, an artillery officer, and an army officer had been deputed to report on the artillery and iron-clads. For obvious reasons no officers had been sent to the Confederate States.

TUESDAY.—Penal Servitude. — The Marquis of SALISBURY moved for returns of the number of convicts under sentence of penal servitude confined in gaols other than Government prisons in 1862 and 1863, and in doing so criticised at some length the Bill of the Government introduced into the House of Commons on the subject.—Earl GRANVILLE said that the Bill referred to would speedily come before the House, and until then he trusted their lordships would withhold any expression of opinion respecting it. The Government had carefully considered the report of the commissioners, and their measure was based on its recommendations, so far as it was thought expedient to carry them out.—The Earl of CARNARVON was of opinion that the whole system of penal servitude rested on a wrong basis, and the result was that, as a punishment for heinous crimes, it was practically lighter than imprisonment for minor offences. He believed it was possible to ensure a certainty of punishment with remissions of the sentence, which would be most useful as holding out a reward for good conduct; but it was essential to exercise a supervision over such convicts as might have their sentences remitted.—Lord WODEHOUSE thought that the want of certainty of punishment deprived the existing system of any deterring influence, but the reformation of the criminal ought to be a secondary consideration to that.—Earl GREY doubted whether a strict supervision by the police of a convict on ticket of leave was incompatible with the slightest chance of his ever obtaining employment. They could not go back to the system of a fixed and certain punishment, for that system had been condemned, and it was impossible under it to put the prisoner to any useful labour, or turn him to any good purpose, without resorting to a most degrading, demoralising, and futile coercion. The motion for returns was then agreed to.

THURSDAY.—The Seizure of the Steam Rams.—The Earl of DERBY complained that in answer to an application for the papers relating to the steam rams in the Mersey, the Alabama and Saxon, the Foreign Secretary had given him a refusal, on the ground that their production whilst legal proceedings were pending would be prejudicial to the public interests. He now found, from a debate which took place in the House of Commons on Tuesday, that the Attorney-General promised to furnish some of the papers, and intimated that there never had been any objection to their production. He wished to know whether it was intended to lay the papers upon the table now. —Earl RUSSELL said there was no objection to produce a portion of the papers referred to. In declining to furnish them in the first instance he had acted upon the opinion expressed by the Attorney-General, that their production would be injurious to the public interests; but on subsequent consideration the Attorney-General came to the conclusion that some of the papers might be produced without risk.—Lord CHELMSFORD inquired when the Attorney-General changed his opinion.—Earl RUSSELL replied that the communication of the Attorney-General was a privileged one. He should, therefore, decline to state when it was made.—The Earl of MALMESBURY asked the noble earl to include amongst the Danish papers about to be supplied to Parliament a copy of the correspondence which had led to the Treaty of 1852.—Earl RUSSELL said there would be no difficulty in including those papers in the next instalment to be laid upon the table. Case of Captain Whyte.—In answer to the Marquis of CLANRICARDE, Earl RUSSELL said that the claim of Captain Melville Whyte on the Government of Peru had been referred to the Senate of Hamburg for arbitration.

FRIDAY.—The Invasion of Jutland.—In answer to the Earl of MALMESBURY, Earl RUSSELL said that he had gathered from a conversation with the Prussian Minister that the invasion of Jutland took place without the sanction of the Prussian Commander-in-Chief, and that as Denmark had made the war general by ordering the seizure of German ships, the Prussian Government might be obliged to demand compensation, not for the general expenses of the war, but for the value of the cargoes of those ships, and retain "the material guarantee" until their claim was satisfied.—In reply to the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, Earl RUSSELL said that he had reason to believe that the Austrian Government would endeavour to moderate the actions of their generals.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—The Northern Circuit.—Sir J. HAY moved an address to the Queen, praying her Majesty to nominate the town of Wakefield as the assize town for the West Riding.—Mr. LEATHAM seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY opposed it on the ground that the matter rested with the Queen in Council.—After some discussion, in which the claims of Leeds were advocated by Mr. BEECROFT, Mr. ROEBUCK, Mr. BAINES, and Mr. HADFIELD, and those of Wakefield by Colonel SMYTH and Sir J. PAKINGTON, the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 138 to 119. Colonelcy of the 2nd Dragoons —Colonel BARTTELOT asked on what principle Lieut.-General Gough, C.B., had been appointed to the 2nd Dragoons, stating his opinion that the command of a regiment of cavalry should not have been conferred upon an officer, however high his services and character, who had never done a day's duty with a dragoon regiment. —Colonel DICKSON remarked that this constant interference with military matters struck a heavy blow at discipline —Mr. OSBORNE vindicated the appointment, which, he thought did equal credit to the Horse Guards and to General Gough.—Mr. DAWSON also spoke in favour of the appointment.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the appointment was justified not only by the distinguished services of the gallant officer, but by the strictest rule of precedent. The subject them dropped. Capture of British Ships.—Mr. HALIBURTON called attention to the capture of a ship under the Confederate flag, by a Federal vessel of war, within the harbour of Pankbar, in Nova Scotia, and under the guns of the fort; and asked whether complaint had been made of this outrage to the Government of the United States; and, if so, what answer had been given thereto.—Mr. LAYARD replied that as soon as information was received by her Majesty's Government of what had taken place, instructions were forwarded to Lord Lyons, directing him to ask for immediate explanation and redress from the American Government. He was happy to state that, long before those instructions were received, Mr. Seward, having heard of the seizure of the vessel, communicated with Lord Lyons on the subject, expressing his regret, making a full apology, and offering reparation. Denmark and Russia —Mr. KINGLAKE called attention to the way in which the operation of the Treaty of London of May 8, 1852, was affected by a note addressed on the same day by Baron Brunnow to the Danish Minister at the Court of St. James's, and which appeared to him equivalent to a secret article to that treaty in the interest of the Russian pretensions to the throne of Denmark.—Mr. LAYARD said that the note in question had been laid on the table of the House several years ago, and no correspondence had taken place on the subject.—Mr. ROEBUCK observed that Mr. Kinglake had evidently discovered a "mare's nest." The House then went into committee of supply pro formâ, and immediately resumed, when The Banks Act (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. The House then went into committee on the Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill.—Mr. G. HARDY moved an amendment to the second clause, to the effect that in the case of prisoners under sentence of death, and certified by two or more visiting justices to have become insane since conviction, the truth of such certificate should be inquired into by three commissioners to be appointed for the purpose. The amendment was supported by Mr. MACDONOGH, and opposed by Sir GEORGE GREY. After considerable discussion the House divided, when the amendment was negatived by 32 to 26. The clauses of the Bill were then agreed to, and the Chairman was ordered to report the Bill to the House. The Warehousing of British Spirits Bill was read a second time.—Mr. H. BRUCE obtained leave to bring in a Bill for the amendment of the law relating to the Importation of Diseased Cattle; a Bill to confirm certain provisional orders under the Land Drainage Act, and a Bill to authorise the Enclosure of Certain Lands, in pursuance of a report of the Enclosure Commissioners. Poor-law Board.—Mr VILLIERS moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the administration of the relief of the poor under the orders, rules, and regulations issued by the Poor-law Commissioners and the Poor-law Board, pursuant to the provisions of the Poor-law Amendment Act, and into the operation of the laws relating to the relief of the poor. The motion was agreed to.

MONDAY.—The Danish Papers.—On the motion for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. DISRAELI complained that the Government were not acting fairly by the House in delaying to furnish the Danish papers. He failed to perceive in his place the chief of the Treasury bench, who was to be congratulated on having established a name that bore terror to no country save his own. Only the previous day it was reported that the Prussians had repented of their proceedings, and had withdrawn from Jutland. It did not appear, however, that they had heard of the language used by the noble lord on Friday, as, if so they would probably have altered their minds, and remained in the province. The House naturally enough wished to know if there were any truth in the announcement, but the Premier was absent, and the House was left in the dark. But this was not the only matter on which the House had been treated scurvily by the Government. What, he asked, were the grounds on which they had rested their hope that their late offer of mediation would be accepted by the contending Powers, and which of the contending parties had refused it? To the members of the Government it might be matter of indifference that they were the objects of derision by every Court in Europe. The advisers of her Majesty might not object to be in that undignified position, but the House of Commons did not wish to be made the laughing-stock of its own constituents. Some means must therefore be devised to obtain the Danish papers and to extract explanations from the Government.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that he would not follow the right hon. gentleman's brilliant periods, which were intended to catch the cheers of those behind him, but would refer to the real point at issue, the non-production of the Danish papers and the circumstance that they were not ready at the opening of Parliament. An explanation on the subject was given on the first night of the session by the noble earl at the head of the Foreign Office when describing the uniform rules of the department with regard to negotiations still pending. A promise had been given that the papers would be produced as soon as possible, and that promise would be kept. With regard to the Government not having given the House information as to the evacuation of Jutland by Austria and Prussia, the only reason they had not done so was that they were still in ignorance of the circumstance.—Lord R. CECIL complained that the House was kept in the dark as to how far the honour of England had been pledged to Denmark.—Mr. B. OSBORNE maintained that the Government were not justified in asking for a vote for the number of men and boys to serve in the navy until they knew what were the precise relations of the country in reference to Denmark and the German Powers. In order to test the sense of the House on this point, he would move that, instead of going into committee of supply that evening, the consideration of the navy estimates should be postponed for three weeks.—Sir F. SMITH thought that the navy estimates ought to be postponed —Mr. ROEBUCK said that the real question before the House was simply this—whether they had confidence in the Government as regards its foreign policy. In his opinion the Government was not entitled to that confidence —The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that the proposition of Mr. Osborne was not consistent with the rules or proceedings of Parliament. So far as her Majesty's Government were concerned they were quite ready, on due notice given, to take the sense of the House on their foreign policy.—Mr. DISRAELI condemned any proposal to divide the House on the foreign policy of the Government without giving them notice, and in the absence of the noble lord at the head of the Government. Supposing the majority were against the Government, it would not be satisfactory for the House to find that it was gained by a surprise.—Sir G. GREY said there was nothing which the Government would welcome with greater pleasure than a challenge to take the sense of the House on their foreign policy.—Mr. CLAY (on behalf of Mr. Osborne) disclaimed any intention by his motion to censure the foreign policy of the Government.—Mr. KINGLAKE repudiated altogether the construction put by Mr. Roebuck upon Mr. Osborne's motion. — Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH and Lord R. MONTAGU recommended the withdrawal of the motion. — Lord DUNKELLIN considered it but reasonable that before the House was asked to vote the men for the navy it should know what that navy might have to do. — Lord INGESTRE was willing to take a division on the narrow issue as to whether it was desirable to postpone the estimates. — Mr. WALTER and Mr. NEATE deprecated a division —Mr. LAIRD was in favour of postponement.—Mr. HENLEY recommended the withdrawal of the motion, in the hope that the other business on the paper would be protracted to so late an hour that the navy estimates could not come on until Thursday, and thus give time for the production of the Danish papers. On a division, the motion for postponement was negatived by 220 to 47. Malta Docks.—Captain TALBOT moved a resolution that the project of constructing a dock at the head of the Marsa at Malta be abandoned, and that the site at the head of the French Creek, recommended by Admirals Martin and Codrington, be selected for that purpose.—Lord C. PAGET said that it would be a breach of faith towards the Maltese Government to make any alteration in the arrangement contemplated and which had received the sanction of the most eminent engineers.—Sir J. PAKINGTON and Captain JERVIS supported the motion, and Mr. WHITBREAD defended the Admiralty. The motion was withdrawn. Naval Yards.—Mr. LINDSAY called attention to the report of the commissioners appointed by her Majesty in 1860 to inquire into the control and management of her Majesty's naval yards, and insisted that the recommendations of the commissioners ought to be carried into effect.—Mr. BENTINCK said that the greatest recommendation would be the reconstitution of the Board of Admiralty. After some remarks by Sir F. SMITH, Mr. FERRAND, and Mr. DALGLISH, the House went into committee of supply pro formâ. Scottish Law Courts.—The LORD ADVOCATE obtained leave to bring in a Bill to make provision for uniformity of process in summary criminal prosecutions, and prosecutions for penalties in the inferior courts in Scotland; also a Bill to provide for the alteration of the circuits of the Court of Justiciary in Scotland, and for holding additional circuit courts.

TUESDAY.—The Franchise.—Mr. LOCKE KING moved for leave to bring in a Bill to extend the franchise in counties in England and Wales. He gave a history of the various measures which had been introduced from time to time to reduce the county franchise from 50*l.* to 10*l.*, and repeated the arguments he had used in his annual efforts to accomplish that object. Connected as he was himself with land, he entirely repudiated the idea that an enlargement of the county franchise would tend to render property less secure than at present.—Mr. HASTINGS RUSSELL seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY would not oppose the introduction of the Bill, but would reserve his opinion upon it until the second reading. Leave was given to bring in the Bill.—Mr. HIBBERT called attention to the demoralising effects of Public Executions, and moved for papers in relation thereto. He read extracts from descriptions of various public executions to show that they had no deterring influence on the public, but the contrary, and that it would be far more desirable that capital punishment should in future be carried out within the gaol.—Mr. HADFIELD seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY was not disposed to come to the conclusion that capital punishment

the same possessions. The ports of Toulon and Cette are declared open for the importation and clearing of pure and mixed fabrics taxed ad valorem. The stipulations of the Treaty of Commerce between France and Italy are also applicable to England and Belgium. An Imperial decree was issued on Friday appointing a Committee to draw up the regulations in connexion with the Sugar Bill, which has been submitted to the Corps Législatif. M. Corta, member of the Corps Législatif, embarked on Thursday for Mexico. He has been intrusted with a mission, and will be invested with authority over all financial functionaries and agents. A decree has been issued, convoking the electors of the seventh circumscription of the department du Nord to elect a deputy on the 6th and 7th of March. The invasion of Jutland by the Austro-Prussian armies has excited great interest in Paris, and the Ministerial papers state that the Ambassadors of Austria and Prussia at Paris and London have given explanations tending to show that the invasion was necessary for strategic purposes, and had no political significance. The Nord of Thursday announces that the proposition made by England for a Conference has been officially accepted by France. It fears, however, that this Conference, which will shortly assemble in London, offers few chances of bringing about a pacific solution of the conflict. The Patrie of Thursday says:—

"France, in spite of her sympathy for Denmark, ought not to hesitate in recognizing the wishes of the German populations of Holstein and Schleswig to be incorporated with the German nation. Our policy on the Elbe ought not to be different to that we have on the Vistula and the Mincio. Should Germany obtain this satisfaction, the other Danish provinces would be united to Sweden, for the purpose of guarding the entrance to the Baltic. The principle of nationalities being thus established, Germany would have no reason not to apply it to Poland and Italy."

SPAIN.—A royal decree of amnesty for political offences was issued on Sunday at Madrid, in commemoration of her Majesty's happy delivery and return to the direction of public affairs. The British steamer Princess, which touched at Malaga to take in coal, has been seized by the authorities of that port. It was discovered that she carried in her hold several rifled cannon, muskets, ammunition, and other warlike effects. The vessel was from London and bound to Ancona.

DENMARK.—It is officially announced that England has invited the German Confederation and the Powers which signed the Treaty of 1852 to a Conference in London, for the settlement of the Dano-German question. The political bases of the proposed Conference are as follow:—"1. The European Powers guarantee the the autonomy as well as the indivisibility of the Duchies. 2. The territorial arrangements hitherto existing are to undergo no change." Prussia and Austria have accepted the principle of the proposal, provided, however, that the German Diet and France also assent, and that the negociations should not interfere with the prosecution of hostilities. It was announced in Paris on Thursday, that France has given her adhesion to the proposal, and there is reason to believe that Russia will likewise consent, but from Denmark and Sweden no reply has as yet been received; though it was reported yesterday at Weimar that Denmark has also consented. The resolution of the Federal Diet will be taken as soon as possible. The Secretaries of the Danish Legations at Berlin and Vienna have been re-called. The Secretary of the Austrian Legation at Copenhagen has already left.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—The Prussian troops on Friday occupied Kolding, in Jutland. A cavalry engagement subsequently took place at Gudsoe, without result. The Prussian Guards on Sunday received orders from Berlin not to advance further into Jutland, but to occupy Kolding as a strategical position. Danish outposts are now stationed opposite the Prussian Guards at Gudsoe. Unimportant skirmishes are continually taking place. The Danish force occupying Fredericia numbers 6000 men, many of whom are said to be Schleswigers. On Monday morning at 7 o'clock the Prussians drove in the Danish outposts and occupied the village of Düppel. Marshal Wrangel, the Crown Prince of Prussia and Prince Frederick Charles were on the field. They were dislodged by a cannonade from the bastions. The action lasted four hours. Two Danish regiments were engaged, 200 men were killed and wounded, with many officers on the side of the Danes. The Prussians left many dead and wounded on the field. The Danish army is in high spirits. The Prussian account on the other hand says that their loss was only three killed and 20 wounded; and that they took several officers and 200 rank and file of the Danes prisoners with several flags. The Prussians have arrested at Braager the rector Schleppegrel, the parish warden Bülow, and the parish clerk Hansen. The Mayor of Hadersleben has also been arrested by the Prussian officer commanding the forces in that town. The Germans in Sandbjerg and the Danes in Roehave have fired at each other across the Sound without effect. The fortifications of the island of Alsen are being strengthened. A Prussian battalion has arrived at Kiel. The Prussians are fortifying the Bay of Kiel. A panic prevails at Stralsund on account of the appearance of five Danish ships near Rugen. Several Danish ironclads, among which were the Esbern-Snare and Absalon, appeared on the 18th inst. in the Flensburg Fiord, and exchanged shots with the allied artillery. A Prussian garrison has prevented a landing of the Danes to the north of Friederichsort which had been attempted in the boats of the Esbern, Snare and Thor. A blockade will be declared by Denmark of all ports on the eastern coast of Holstein and Schleswig, except Neudstadt, from the 25th inst. 100 sappers have commenced the razing of the Dannewerk. 400 labourers are assisting in the work of demolition. A monster deputation from the whole of Schleswig is expected at Kiel to do homage to the Duke of Augustenburg. Marshal von Wrangel has issued an order, stating that persons committing hostile acts towards the allied troops, or refusing to render them assistance, will be subject to martial law. On the 17th inst. the Civil Commissioners issued a decree abrogating the Constitution of the 18th of November, and another on the 19th inst., annulling the ordinance of the late King of Denmark relative to the use of the Danish language. On the 19th the Civil Commissioners issued an order, announcing that the language to be used in the schools and places of public worship in Schleswig will be German, with the exception of the parish of Wieshard, where inquiries respecting the language are being made. In certain religious ceremonies the language may be Danish, if desired by the parties concerned. From the 1st of April next the currency in Holstein will consist of courant-marks, instead of rigsmünze. Prince Frederick Charles in reply to a deputation of citizens from Flensburg, said that it was of course understood that all the Danish officers in Schleswig would be dismissed. The object in temporarily maintaining them in office was to avoid anarchy.

HAMBURG.—The authorities of Hamburg have seized the money in the Danish post-office in that city. According to an announcement of the Danish Consul-General, Holstein and Schleswig ships carrying the Danish flag and Danish papers and signals will retain the rights of Danish ships.

BAVARIA.—The conference of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the minor German States met at Wurtzburg last week, and was attended by the Ministers of Bavaria, Saxony, Wurtemburg, Baden, Hesse-Darmstadt, Brunswick, Nassau, Weimar, Saxe-Gotha, and Saxe-Meiningen. The Conference unanimously agreed to the proposition of Saxony that the minor States should be united in their attitude in the event of the Great German Powers endeavouring to withdraw forcibly from the Federal Diet the right of disposing of Holstein. It was also resolved not to sanction any convention affecting the rights of the Duchies, and that the Federal Diet alone has to decide on the succession question. The Conference further resolved that more Federal troops should be sent to secure Holstein, and that preparations be made for the mobilisation of the armies of the minor States. It was also decided that the resolutions passed at the Conference should not be communicated to the press.

FRANKFORT.—At the sitting of the Federal Diet on Thursday, Austria and Prussia proposed that the commander-in-chief of the army in Holstein should be transferred to Prussia They also moved that two new civil commissioners should be appointed by the two great German Powers. The propositions were referred to the committee, and are to be put to the vote within eight days. The report of the committee upon the succession question then came on for debate. Articles 1 and 2, declaring that the Treaty of London is not binding on the Confederation, and that the Diet cannot take the treaty as the basis of its resolutions, were rejected. Article 3, refusing to accept the proxy of King Christian, and Article 4 requesting the committee on the succession question to present their report with all possible celerity without taking as its basis the Treaty of 1852, were adopted. The Governments which have taken part in the Würzburg Conference proposed that the Diet should convoke the Holstein Estates. The Hanse Towns requested that measures of reprisal should be taken for the capture of German shipping by Denmark.

AUSTRIA.—The General Correspondenz of Wednesday, confirming the statement that the two great German Powers have accepted in theory the Conference proposed by England, says:—

"Both Powers thereby prove their readiness at any moment to take whatever steps may be compatible with their just demands towards a peaceful solution of the difficulty."

Count Degenfeld, Minister of War, has at his repeated request, been relieved of his functions, and Lieut. Field-Marshal Chevalier von Frank has been appointed to the vacant Ministry. Orders have been sent by telegraph to Pola to get ready the Austrian line-of-battle ship Kaiser and the screw corvette, Freidrich, to proceed to the German Ocean to protect merchantmen against Danish cruisers. Another squadron of 12 Austrian men-of-war has received orders to put to sea for the protection of German merchantmen against Danish cruisers. Part of the fleet has already sailed. The Austrian Government has addressed a circular despatch, under date of the 13th inst., to all the members of the German Confederation. The following is a summary of this document:—

"It is admitted that the London Treaty is not binding upon the Federal Diet. A vote on that treaty taken by the Diet in conformity with the propositions of the Committee would not be decisive with regard to that question, but might possibly induce the non German Powers to make counter declarations in favour of the treaty, thereby aggravating the critical state of affairs. Austria, therefore, requests the German Governments not to assent to the different propositions of the Committee, but to instruct that body to make a fresh report which should treat solely of the succession question."

PRUSSIA.—A rumour is current that 60,000 Prussian troops will be concentrated on the frontier of the kingdom of Poland. The Government journals explain the entry of the allied armies into Jutland by stating that the invasion had a military reason, which was to prevent the Danes from concentrating all their troops behind the fortifications of Düppel and in the Island of Alsen, and that the province will continue to be occupied as a guarantee for the payment by Denmark of the expenses of the war.

POLAND.—Advices from Warsaw state that from the 22d of March next all persons of either sex above the age of 14 must, on leaving their houses, be provided with a passport, and any one unable to produce such a document will be punished. The Government officials have been ordered to present an address protesting against the insurrection. Great excitement has been created in Warsaw by the forcible abduction of Miss Neumann, the sister of the surgeon Neumann by two Russian officers, under pretence of a domiciliary visit. On the 18th the insurgents blew up a goods train near Wloclawek, destroying 16 waggons. A passenger train met with an accident on the following day near Lazy, in consequence of some of the rails having been taken up. The municipal treasury of Czersk has been seized by the insurgents. The Russian Major Butkiewicz, who marched with three infantry companies against the insurgents under Dombrowski, had been utterly routed at Kurzewo, in the government of Radom. Only 80 Russians escaped. A report was current that several Russian soldiers had deserted to the insurgents.

TURKEY.—A convention between the English and Turkish Governments relative to the portion of the new Indian telegraph line which is to pass through the Ottoman dominions was signed on the 17th inst. The Levant Herald reports the arrival of a quantity of arms from England and Vienna. It states that they have been distributed by the Sultan to the Imperial Guard and other troops, and remarks upon this activity as keeping the defences of Turkey in good order.

CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.—The Governor was to leave Table Bay on the 21st inst. in the Narcissus, for Algoa Bay, on his way to Graham's Town, where his visit was to be celebrated by triumphal arches, bonfires, and illuminations. It was not known what measures the Governor intended to bring before the Parliament. A batch of new taxation Bills was expected, but on what interest the imposts were to be laid had not been announced. The Governor had ordered the stoppage of all public works, the insufficient supplies provided by Parliament last year being exhausted. The condition of colonial finances was beginning to attract attention. It was expected that, notwithstanding every possible curtailment of the current expenditure, the temporary loans necessary to eke out the Treasurer's resources would be increased by June next to at least 100,000*l*. The Commander of the Forces was to accompany the Governor and make a tour of inspection of the various military stations and outposts. It was expected that the head-quarters would again be established at Graham's Town. Telegraphic intelligence received at Graham's Town on the 8th of January states that all was quiet on the frontier, but that another Caffre prophet had arisen, advising the Caffres to sow plentifully for three years, and not dispose of the crops, but to store them up, as after three years no corn would grow. This was thought to be a design to provide food for campaigning purposes. Fresh disturbances had occurred in the Transvaal province, in which Pretorius was said to have had a share. An attempt had been made to oust Van Reusbung from the Presidency in favour of Pretorius, but was expected to fail. There was no news of Dr. Livingstone. Dr. Meller, of the Zambezi exploring expedition, has returned to England by this mail.

INDIA.—Sir John Lawrence held his first levee on the 16th ult., and it was most numerously and brilliantly attended. On the 18th his excellency opened the Calcutta Agricultural Exhibition. The natives of high rank, the Mysore princes, some talookdars from Oude, and many of the Baboos and gentlemen of Calcutta attended the ceremony. The Viceroy will remain in Calcutta during the next cold season. There are serious disturbances at Cabool among the contending factions. The brothers Azim Khan and Afzul Khan are in arms against Sher Ali Khan, whom our government during the Sittana war recognised as the legitimate ruler of Affghanistan. Captain Sherard Osborn, with the Anglo-Chinese squadron, arrived in Bombay on the 13th ult. The squadron has been entirely disbanded, and all the ships with the exception of the Keangsoo and the Keangtung, both of which are lying in the harbour of Bombay, are on their way home. The Bombay government has consented to relieve Captain Osborn of the charge of these two steamers, until he learns the views of the English government. The first ships with the Persian Gulf Telegraph cable have left Bombay. On the 21st December the Confederate steamer Alabama steamed out of New Harbour, Singapore, towards the Straits of Malacca; on the same day she burned the Martaban, formerly the Texan Star, laden with rice from Moulmein to Singapore. On the 26th she burned the Sonora and the Highlander, and the 14th ult. she burned the Emma Jane at Anjengo.

JAPAN.—Tranquillity prevails in Japan.

UNITED STATES.—The Army of the Potomac under General Sedgwick, who has temporarily taken the command in consequence of the illness of General Meade, made a reconnaissance in force on the 6th inst.

to the south side of the Rapidan. General Lee was found in full force in the Federal front. After heavy skirmishing, in which the Federals are reported to have lost from 200 to 300 men, they returned to their old quarters. The Federal communication between Knoxville and Cumberland Gap was cut off by the Confederates on the 10th. An express train has been captured eight miles from Harper's Ferry, and the passengers robbed. It is not known whether the attack was made by the Confederates or by gangs of Federal deserters. Knoxville despatches of the 31st report that the Federal cavalry was defeated in an engagement near Marysville, and was retreating upon Knoxville, with the Confederates in pursuit. Seven Federal officers were killed. No other particulars are given. The Confederates had occupied Liverville, and are again threatening Newbern and Washington, North Carolina. The Confederate ironclad gunboat at Kingstown is completed, and will co-operate with the land forces. The Nashville Union says that the Federal army has crossed the Tennessee River, near Larkinsville, and surmises that its object may be to attack Rome, Georgia, to which General Johnstone's main army has retired. Telegrams from Mobile of the 6th report that Gen. Sherman's Federal force—infantry, cavalry, and artillery, 30,000 strong—crossed the Big Black River on the previous day, and was expected to advance to Meridan, and unite with a cavalry force moving along the line of the Mississippi and an infantry force advancing from Natchez. Sherman's movement is said to be made in order to flank Johnston and Hardee in Alabama and Georgia, rather than to attack Mobile. Despatches from Fortress Monroe report the complete failure of a secret expedition, organised by General Butler and commanded by General Wistar, on the 6th and 7th, for the liberation of the Federal prisoners at Richmond. Information of the design was conveyed to Richmond by Federal deserters, and the Confederates were enabled to provide against the intended surprise. The siege of Charleston has been raised, and Admiral Dahlgren has left Charleston in the flag-ship for St. John's, Florida. A large Federal expedition, with three gun boats, left Port Royal on the 5th inst., and landed at Jacksonville, Florida, on the 8th, from which place it was reported they would proceed to Tallahassee. General Gillmore left Port Royal on the 7th to join this expedition. Admiral Porter is fitting out a formidable fleet on the Mississippi. The British gun boat Petrel arrived at Charleston on the 5th, wishing to communicate with the British consul at Savannah. Admiral Dahlgren refused permission, and the Petrel put to sea. It is said that the Petrel brought dispatches for the Confederate Secretary Benjamin. On the night of the 2d a large steamer entered Charleston Harbour, unobserved by the Federal fleet, and was not discovered until the morning of the 3d, when she had run aground, and was landing her cargo under the guns of Fort Moultrie. The Federal batteries opened on her, and shortly afterwards she sank. The Conscription Bill has passed Congress, Slaves between the ages of 14 and 45 are liable to be drafted; loyal owners to be compensated. General Meade has made a speech at Philadelphia, stating that since March, 1861, 100,000 men of the Potomac army have been killed and wounded. The German Republicans of New Jersey have declared in favour of Butler, Fremont, or any other Radical candidate for the Presidency who will guarantee an emancipation and confiscation policy. The Halifax Admiralty Court has restored the Chesapeake and her cargo to the owners on the payment of the legal expenses.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.—Metropolitan Railways.—In reply to the Earl of DONOUGHMORE, Earl GRANVILLE said that the Select Committee on Metropolitan Railways had not yet agreed to any report, and that a statement to that effect which had appeared in one of the journals was incorrect. On the motion for the second reading of the Royal Arcade Bill, the Earl of DERBY opposed the measure, on the ground that it was a purely commercial speculation, got up by architects and builders, and that, instead of being an ornament to the metropolis, it was likely to do a great injury to the neighbouring property, and to become a rendezvous for the most objectionable characters. He moved as an amendment that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. — Earl GRANVILLE said that as the Bill was opposed so generally by the owners of property in the neighbourhood, he thought it might be better to agree to the amendment.—After a few words from Earl GREY and the Earl of MALMESBURY, the amendment was agreed to without a division, and the Bill was consequently thrown out. The American Armies.—In reply to Lord CAMPBELL, Earl DE GREY and RIPON said that it was not the intention of the Government to send military commissioners to report on the operations of the Federal and Confederate armies; but that three officers, an engineer, an artillery officer, and an army officer had been deputed to report on the artillery and iron-clads. For obvious reasons no officers had been sent to the Confederate States.

TUESDAY.—Penal Servitude. — The Marquis of SALISBURY moved for returns of the number of convicts under sentence of penal servitude confined in gaols other than Government prisons in 1862 and 1863, and in doing so criticised at some length the Bill of the Government introduced into the House of Commons on the subject.—Earl GRANVILLE said that the Bill referred to would speedily come before the House, and until then he trusted their lordships would withhold any expression of opinion respecting it. The Government had carefully considered the report of the commissioners, and their measure was based on its recommendations, so far as it was thought expedient to carry them out.—The Earl of CARNARVON was of opinion that the whole system of penal servitude rested on a wrong basis, and the result was that, as a punishment for heinous crimes, it was practically lighter than imprisonment for minor offences. He believed it was possible to ensure a certainty of punishment with remissions of the sentence, which would be most useful as holding out a reward for good conduct; but it was essential to exercise a supervision over such convicts as might have their sentences remitted.—Lord WODEHOUSE thought that the want of certainty of punishment deprived the existing system of any deterring influence, but the reformation of the criminal ought to be a secondary consideration to that.—Earl GREY doubted whether a strict supervision by the police of a convict on ticket of leave was incompatible with the slightest chance of his ever obtaining employment. They could not go back to the system of a fixed and certain punishment, for that system had been condemned, and it was impossible under it to put the prisoner to any useful labour, or turn him to any good purpose, without resorting to a most degrading, demoralising, and futile coercion. The motion for returns was then agreed to.

THURSDAY.—The Seizure of the Steam Rams.—The Earl of DERBY complained that in answer to an application for the papers relating to the steam rams in the Mersey, the Alabama and Saxon, the Foreign Secretary had given him a refusal, on the ground that their production whilst legal proceedings were pending would be prejudicial to the public interests. He now found, from a debate which took place in the House of Commons on Tuesday, that the Attorney-General promised to furnish some of the papers, and intimated that there never had been any objection to their production. He wished to know whether it was intended to lay the papers upon the table now. —Earl RUSSELL said there was no objection to produce a portion of the papers referred to. In declining to furnish them in the first instance he had acted upon the opinion expressed by the Attorney-General, that their production would be injurious to the public interests; but on subsequent consideration the Attorney-General came to the conclusion that some of the papers might be produced without risk.—Lord CHELMSFORD inquired when the Attorney-General changed his opinion.—Earl RUSSELL replied that the communication of the Attorney-General was a privileged one. He should, therefore, decline to state when it was made.—The Earl of MALMESBURY asked the noble earl to include amongst the Danish papers about to be supplied to Parliament a copy of the correspondence which had led to the Treaty of 1852.—Earl RUSSELL said there would be no difficulty in including those papers in the next instalment to be laid upon the table. Case of Captain Whyte.—In answer to the Marquis of CLANRICARDE, Earl RUSSELL said that the claim of Captain Melville Whyte on the Government of Peru had been referred to the Senate of Hamburg for arbitration.

FRIDAY.—The Invasion of Jutland.—In answer to the Earl of MALMESBURY, Earl RUSSELL said that he had gathered from a conversation with the Prussian Minister that the invasion of Jutland took place without the sanction of the Prussian Commander-in-Chief, and that as Denmark had made the war general by ordering the seizure of German ships, the Prussian Government might be obliged to demand compensation, not for the general expenses of the war, but for the value of the cargoes of those ships, and retain "the material guarantee" until their claim was satisfied.—In reply to the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, Earl RUSSELL said that he had reason to believe that the Austrian Government would endeavour to moderate the actions of their generals.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—The Northern Circuit.—Sir J. HAY moved an address to the Queen, praying her Majesty to nominate the town of Wakefield as the assize town for the West Riding.—Mr. LEATHAM seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY opposed it on the ground that the matter rested with the Queen in Council.—After some discussion, in which the claims of Leeds were advocated by Mr. BEECROFT, Mr. ROEBUCK, Mr. BAINES, and Mr. HADFIELD, and those of Wakefield by Colonel SMYTH and Sir J. PAKINGTON, the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 138 to 119. Colonelcy of the 2nd Dragoons.—Colonel BARTTELOT asked on what principle Lieut.-General Gough, C.B., had been appointed to the 2nd Dragoons, stating his opinion that the command of a regiment of cavalry should not have been conferred upon an officer, however high his services and character, who had never done a day's duty with a dragoon regiment.—Colonel DICKSON remarked that this constant interference with military matters struck a heavy blow at discipline.—Mr. OSBORNE vindicated the appointment, which, he thought did equal credit to the Horse Guards and to General Gough.—Mr. DAWSON also spoke in favour of the appointment.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the appointment was justified not only by the distinguished services of the gallant officer, but by the strictest rule of precedent. The subject then dropped. Capture of British Ships.—Mr. HALIBURTON called attention to the capture of a ship under the Confederate flag, by a Federal vessel of war, within the harbour of Pankbar, in Nova Scotia, and under the guns of the fort; and asked whether complaint had been made of this outrage to the Government of the United States; and, if so, what answer had been given thereto.—Mr. LAYARD replied that as soon as information was received by her Majesty's Government of what had taken place, instructions were forwarded to Lord Lyons, directing him to ask for immediate explanation and redress from the American Government. He was happy to state that, long before those instructions were received, Mr. Seward, having heard of the seizure of the vessel, communicated with Lord Lyons on the subject, expressing his regret, making a full apology, and offering reparation. Denmark and Russia.—Mr. KINGLAKE called attention to the way in which the operation of the Treaty of London of May 8, 1852, was affected by a note addressed on the same day by Baron Brunnow to the Danish Minister at the Court of St. James's, and which appeared to him equivalent to a secret article to that treaty in the interest of the Russian pretensions to the throne of Denmark.—Mr. LAYARD said that the note in question had been laid on the table of the House several years ago, and no correspondence had taken place on the subject.—Mr. ROEBUCK observed that Mr. Kinglake had evidently discovered a "mare's nest." The House then went into committee of supply pro formâ, and immediately resumed, when The Banks Act (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. The House then went into committee on the Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill.—Mr. G. HARDY moved an amendment to the second clause, to the effect that in the case of prisoners under sentence of death, and certified by two or more visiting justices to have become insane since conviction, the truth of such certificate should be inquired into by three commissioners to be appointed for the purpose. The amendment was supported by Mr. MACDONOGH, and opposed by Sir GEORGE GREY. After considerable discussion the House divided, when the amendment was negatived by 32 to 26. The clauses of the Bill were then agreed to, and the Chairman was ordered to report the Bill to the House. The Warehousing of British Spirits Bill was read a second time.—Mr. H. BRUCE obtained leave to bring in a Bill for the amendment of the law relating to the Importation of Diseased Cattle; a Bill to confirm certain provisional orders under the Land Drainage Act, and a Bill to authorise the Enclosure of Certain Lands, in pursuance of a report of the Enclosure Commissioners. Poor-law Board.—Mr VILLIERS moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the administration of the relief of the poor under the orders, rules, and regulations issued by the Poor-law Commissioners and the Poor-law Board, pursuant to the provisions of the Poor-law Amendment Act, and into the operation of the laws relating to the relief of the poor. The motion was agreed to.

MONDAY.—The Danish Papers.—On the motion for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. DISRAELI complained that the Government were not acting fairly by the House in delaying to furnish the Danish papers. He failed to perceive in his place the chief of the Treasury bench, who was to be congratulated on having established a name that bore terror to no country save his own. Only the previous day it was reported that the Prussians had repented of their proceedings, and had withdrawn from Jutland. It did not appear, however, that they had heard of the language used by the noble lord on Friday, as, if so they would probably have altered their minds, and remained in the province. The House naturally enough wished to know if there were any truth in the announcement, but the Premier was absent, and the House was left in the dark. But this was not the only matter on which the House had been treated scurvily by the Government. What, he asked, were the grounds on which they had rested their hope that their late offer of mediation would be accepted by the contending Powers, and which of the contending parties had refused it? To the members of the Government it might be matter of indifference that they were the objects of derision by every Court in Europe. The advisers of her Majesty might not object to be in that undignified position, but the House of Commons did not wish to be made the laughing stock of its own constituents. Some means must therefore be devised to obtain the Danish papers and to extract explanations from the Government.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that he would not follow the right hon. gentleman's brilliant periods, which were intended to catch the cheers of those behind him, but would refer to the real point at issue, the non-production of the Danish papers and the circumstance that they were not ready at the opening of Parliament. An explanation on the subject was given on the first night of the session by the noble earl at the head of the Foreign Office when describing the uniform rules of the department with regard to negotiations still pending. A promise had been given that the papers would be produced as soon as possible, and that promise would be kept. With regard to the Government not having given the House information as to the evacuation of Jutland by Austria and Prussia, the only reason they had not done so was that they were still in ignorance of the circumstance.—Lord R. CECIL complained that the House was kept in the dark as to how far the honour of England had been pledged to Denmark.—Mr. B. OSBORNE maintained that the Government were not justified in asking for a vote for the number of men and boys to serve in the navy until they knew what were the precise relations of the country in reference to Denmark and the German Powers. In order to test the sense of the House on this point, he would move that, instead of going into committee of supply that evening, the consideration of the navy estimates should be postponed for three weeks.—Sir F. SMITH thought that the navy estimates ought to be postponed.—Mr. ROEBUCK said that the real question before the House was simply this—whether they had confidence in the Government as regards its foreign policy. In his opinion the Government was not entitled to that confidence.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that the proposition of Mr. Osborne was not consistent with the rules or proceedings of Parliament. So far as her Majesty's Government were concerned they were quite ready, on due notice given, to take the sense of the House on their foreign policy.—Mr. DISRAELI condemned any proposal to divide the House on the foreign policy of the Government without giving them notice, and in the absence of the noble lord at the head of the Government. Supposing the majority were against the Government, it would not be satisfactory for the House to find that it was gained by a surprise.—Sir G. GREY said there was nothing which the Government would welcome with greater pleasure than a challenge to take the sense of the House on their foreign policy.—Mr. CLAY (on behalf of Mr. Osborne) disclaimed any intention by his motion to censure the foreign policy of the Government.—Mr. KINGLAKE repudiated altogether the construction put by Mr. Roebuck upon Mr. Osborne's motion.—Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH and Lord R. MONTAGU recommended the withdrawal of the motion.—Lord DUNKELLIN considered it but reasonable that before the House was asked to vote the men for the navy it should know what that navy might have to do.—Lord INGESTRE was willing to take a division on the narrow issue as to whether it was desirable to postpone the estimates.—Mr. WALTER and Mr. NEATE deprecated a division.—Mr. LAIRD was in favour of postponement.—Mr. HENLEY recommended the withdrawal of the motion, in the hope that the other business on the paper would be protracted to so late an hour that the navy estimates could not come on until Thursday, and thus give time for the production of the Danish papers. On a division, the motion for postponement was negatived by 220 to 47. Malta Docks.—Captain TALBOT moved a resolution that the project of constructing a dock at the head of the Marsa at Malta be abandoned, and that the site at the head of the French Creek, recommended by Admirals Martin and Codrington, be selected for that purpose.—Lord C. PAGET said that it would be a breach of faith towards the Maltese Government to make any alteration in the arrangement contemplated and which had received the sanction of the most eminent engineers.—Sir J. PAKINGTON and Captain JERVIS supported the motion, and Mr. WHITBREAD defended the Admiralty. The motion was withdrawn. Naval Yards.—Mr. LINDSAY called attention to the report of the commissioners appointed by her Majesty in 1860 to inquire into the control and management of her Majesty's naval yards, and insisted that the recommendations of the commissioners ought to be carried into effect.—Mr. BENTINCK said that the greatest recommendation would be the reconstitution of the Board of Admiralty. After some remarks by Sir F. SMITH, Mr. FERRAND, and Mr. DALGLISH, the House went into committee of supply pro formâ. Scottish Law Courts.—The LORD ADVOCATE obtained leave to bring in a Bill to make provision for uniformity of process in summary criminal prosecutions, and prosecutions for penalties in the inferior courts in Scotland; also a Bill to provide for the alteration of the circuits of the Court of Justiciary in Scotland, and for holding additional circuit courts.

TUESDAY.—The Franchise.—Mr. LOCKE KING moved for leave to bring in a Bill to extend the franchise in counties in England and Wales. He gave a history of the various measures which had been introduced from time to time to reduce the county franchise from 50*l.* to 10*l.*, and repeated the arguments he had used in his annual efforts to accomplish that object. Connected as he was himself with land, he entirely repudiated the idea that an enlargement of the county franchise would tend to render property less secure than at present.—Mr. HASTINGS RUSSELL seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY would not oppose the introduction of the Bill, but would reserve his opinion upon it until the second reading. Leave was given to bring in the Bill.—Mr. HIBBERT called attention to the demoralising effects of Public Executions, and moved for papers in relation thereto. He read extracts from descriptions of various public executions to show that they had no deterring influence on the public, but the contrary, and that it would be far more desirable that capital punishment should in future be carried out within the gaol.—Mr. HADFIELD seconded the motion.—Sir G. GREY was not disposed to come to the conclusion that capital punishment hould be inflicted in private. He believed that publicity alone would satisfy the public, and that, however revolting the scene was, it inspired the beholder with the salutary impression that punishment was sure to overtake the evil-doer.—Lord H. LENNOX admitted that he had been a witness of the execution on Monday morning, and that a more disgraceful scene of obscenity and blasphemy could not be imagined. He hoped that the Home Secretary would in future direct that executions in the metropolis might be fixed for any day but Monday, as the selection of that day led to a needless desecration of the Sabbath. He also suggested that as in the case of executions in the provinces, the day and hour should not be published beforehand.—After some remarks by Mr. B. CARTER and Lord GREY DE WILTON, the motion was withdrawn. The Birkenhead Rams.—Mr. SEYMOUR FITZGERALD moved an address for copies of all correspondence between the various departments of her Majesty's Government, or officers in her Majesty's service, and Messrs. Laird of Birkenhead relating to the two iron-clad vessels, the El Tousson and El Monassir, building by that firm, and seized by order of her Majesty's Government; and of any papers or correspondence that have passed between her Majesty's Government and the Government of the United States, or their representative, Mr. Adams, relating to the said vessels. He asked under what law the seizure had been sanctioned, and said that the Government having no legal authority to do so, had seized the vessels in consequence of Mr. Adams having used language so forcible as almost to be menacing.—The ATTORNEY-GENERAL, without entering into a legal argument, contended that it was the duty of Great Britain, as a friendly Power, to interfere to prevent the building of vessels of war to be used against the Federal Government. Her Majesty's Government had not seized the rams in the Mersey without what they believed to be good information as to their destination. They had acted on their own responsibility, and as the question was still the subject of judicial investigation, the premature publication of the papers might defeat the ends of justice. He considered the Government would have been grossly wanting in their duty if, after the experience of the Alabama, they had not done towards a foreign country what we ourselves would have wished had been done towards ourselves.—Mr. HORSFALL thought the entire proceedings of the Government in reference to the Alexandra, and of the Messrs. Laird, was a cruel injustice to our commercial interests.—Lord R. CECIL said that if the House of Commons allowed the Government to act in this way it would deserve what had been said of it—namely, that it was the most subservient and sneaking Parliament in the world.—Mr. W. E. FORSTER challenged the Opposition, if they disapproved the policy of the Government, to test the matter by a vote of censure.—Sir HUGH CAIRNS denied that the production of the papers moved for by Mr. Fitzgerald would prejudice the case that was now sub judice. The Government had by their own admission violated the law in order to vindicate the law. He demanded to know what was the authority under which the Government had acted when they detained the steam-rams on the 9th of September. With a full conviction of the gravity of the accusation which he made, he charged the Government with doing that which was illegal and unconstitutional, without justification, without law, and without excuse.—The SOLICITOR-GENERAL said it was absurd to deny that there was not a general belief that the steam-rams were for the Confederates. The Government had in their possession what they believed to be proofs of the fact, but the House could not expect him to explain what they were. He was not presumptuous enough to state that the Government were always right, but they had endeavoured to act in accordance with what they believed to be the law of the land without sympathy for the weak or fear of the strong.—Mr. WALPOLE contended that the law-officers of the Crown were not justified in endeavouring to draw a distinction between the principles of municipal and international law. The rights of neutrals were not to be compromised by the existence of war between two belligerents, and the commercial citizens of a neutral Power were authorised in supplying contraband of war so long as they took the risk of its being confiscated. The greatest American jurists had themselves laid this down as law. When he found the Government inviting evidence against the builders of the rams, detaining them illegally, and keeping them several months without bringing the question to an issue, he asked whether the great merchants in the House would allow themselves to be trifled with by such arguments as those adduced by the law advisers of the Crown.—Mr. T. BARING took exception to the arguments of Mr. Walpole, and urged that the steam-rams were in themselves armed vessels, and that no one could deny that they were intended for the Confederate Government. Speaking as one of the community of merchants whose interests were bound up in peace, he thanked the Government for the vigour which they had shown in seizing vessels which were clearly intended to prey upon the commerce of a friendly Power.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD, in reply, disclaimed that the party with which he acted were desirous of fanning the flame of war. On the contrary, they were anxious to avoid giving the slightest excuse for it by enforcing a policy in conformity with the strictest principles of international law.—Sir G. GREY said that the Government had no objection to produce the papers mentioned in the latter portion of the motion. The Opposition, however, declined to accept this compromise, and the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 178 to 153. The Copyright Acts.—Mr. BLACK obtained leave to bring in a Bill for the consolidation of the acts relating to copyright in works of literature and the fine arts. The Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill was considered as amended. The Warehousing of British Spirits Bill was read a second time.

WEDNESDAY.—The Rents (Ireland) Bill was withdrawn. On the order for going into Committee on the Malt for Cattle Bill, Mr. BASS said that the farmers were very ill-satisfied with the measure; they wanted more, and he thought they were entitled to more. He believed that the whole of the malt-tax could not be spared, but that it could be reduced one-half without losing a quarter of the revenue.—Mr. DU CANE said that the more his constituents looked at this measure the less they liked it. As to the value of malt as a fattening matter for cattle, considerable difference of opinion existed; and the measure was so fettered by restrictions that he believed it would be a dead letter. A reduction of the malt-tax by one-half or two-fifths would so increase consumption as considerably to diminish the loss of revenue, and the farmers would regard it as a guarantee that they were on the road to a total repeal of the tax.—Mr. PACKE suggested the addition in the Bill of cotton cake, or rape cake, to linseed meal.—Mr. BAGWELL, Mr STANHOPE, Colonel DICKSON, Mr. HENLEY, Lord J. MANNERS, and other members opposed the Bill; while Mr. COBBETT, Mr. NEWDEGATE, Sir F. KELLY, Mr. P. URQUHART, Mr. DODSON, Mr. WALTER, and Lord R. MONTAGU gave it a qualified support.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said a reduction of the malt duty by 50 per cent., would entail a loss of three millions, and that the claims already made upon them affected no less than 20,000,000*l.* of revenue. He then proceeded to discuss and reply to the objections made to the measure—namely, that it would be inefficient, demoralising, an obstacle to the repeal of the Malt Tax, and dangerous to the revenue. With regard to the restrictions in the Bill, the Government were bound, he said, to take every security for guarding the revenue, and, though some of these restrictions might be inconvenient to the farmer, they would not be to the maltster. Whether this experiment were successful or not, he showed that it could not operate as an obstacle to a reduction or repeal of the Malt Duty.—The House then went into Committee pro formâ, and the Chairman was immediately ordered to report progress. The Committee was then adjourned to Friday. The Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill was read a third time and passed. The Committee on the Poor Laws was nominated.

THURSDAY.—The Archway and Kentish Town Junction Road Bill, the object of which was to obtain a further term of twenty-one years to levy tolls on certain roads, and additional powers, was negatived without a division. Seizure of the Tuscaloosa.—In answer to Mr. PEACOCKE, Lord PALMERSTON said that the Confederate cruiser Tuscaloosa had been seized at the Cape in conformity with instructions sent to the Government of that colony some time since on a supposed former condition of things, but that instructions had since been forwarded to set her free. The Danish Treaties.—In answer to Mr. M'EVOY, Mr. LAYARD said that the Danish Government had no ground under the Treaty of London for calling upon her Majesty's Government for active assistance, and that as no case had arisen under the guarantee of 1720 her Majesty's Government had not considered it necessary to give an opinion upon the subject. The Proposed Conference.—In answer to Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH, Lord PALMERSTON said that her Majesty's Government, in order to bring about a friendly settlement between Germany and Denmark, had proposed an armistice as a foundation for a conference, but conditions were required by both parties which rendered it impossible. Her Majesty's Government had now proposed a conference without an armistice, in the hope that, if all the parties interested could be brought together, some solution of the difficulty might be arrived at. Austria and Prussia had agreed to the conference without an armistice, and he believed that France and Russia would also be willing to join it. With regard to Sweden, he was not quite sure, and no answer had yet been received from Denmark. Invasion of Jutland.—In answer to Lord J. MANNERS, Lord PALMERSTON said it was true that some light troops had passed the frontier between Schleswig and Jutland, and had taken up a position in the latter. Upon a representation made to the Court of Berlin on the subject, her Majesty's Government had been informed that the movement had been not only without orders, but against positive instructions, and that the commander of the force would be reprimanded for his conduct. At the same time her Majesty's Government were informed that as the place in Jutland occupied by the allied armies was of great strategical importance, the occupation would nevertheless be continued. He might also remark, in connection with this subject, that Austria and Prussia still affirmed that they acknowledged the Treaty of 1852, and the maintenance of the integrity of the Danish monarchy; and therefore, even if it were desirable to raise the question of the guarantee of 1720, it did not apply to the present state of things. With regard to the German Diet, he apprehended that they had nothing to do with the armistice; they had, however, been asked to send a representative to the conference proposed, but he was unable to state what reply they had made. The Dockyards.—On the order for going into committee of supply, Mr. LINDSAY called attention to the report of the Dockyard commissioners appointed in 1860, and moved that the recommendations of the commissioners ought to be carried into effect.—Sir J. WALSH moved that the great changes in naval warfare, and the critical state of our foreign relations, required the most vigorous and immediate national efforts on a scale calculated to maintain our maritime supremacy. After a short discussion both motions were withdrawn. The House then went into committee on the Navy Estimates. Lord C. PAGET, in moving the vote of men and boys for the year 1864-5, described the alterations which had been made in the preparation of the estimates in consequence of the recommendation of the Committee on Public Accounts. The total sum required to be voted by Parliament for the navy for the year 1864-5 was 10,433,610*l.* against 10,736,032*l.* in the year 1863-4, being a reduction of 303,422*l.* The total number of men and boys was 71,050, against 76,000 in the current year, being a reduction of 4050. Of seamen there would be 500 less than last year; of coastguard men 1550; and of boys 2000. The marines would remain as at present at 18,000. The money reduction would be brought about by a saving in the number of men and of materials used, modified, however, by an increase of expenditure under the head of workmanship and wages. Experience showed that as we increased our armour-plated fleet, we should be able to diminish the number of seamen. It was proposed to build six gunboats on the twin screw principle, at a cost of 120,000*l.* With regard to iron-clads, we had now seven of those vessels in commission, six more would be ready by the middle of this year, six more by the end of the year, and six more in the course of next year; making a total of 25. It was also intended to build a vessel of extraordinary speed on the principle of the Alabama, to be iron-plated, and to take the place of some of our small cruisers. The full force of the fleet this year would be 243 vessels, as against 236 last year. With reference to the question of the gun to be used in the navy, experiments had been made as to the best ship gun, and that the Government had arrived at the conclusion that guns of six or six tons and a half were quite as heavy as a vessel could carry on a broadside. In this belief they had ordered a smooth-bore gun of about the weight he had mentioned, which he was persuaded was the most serviceable for general use in the large ships in the navy. There would be some increase of charge on account of improved pay of various classes of officers, including petty officers, amounting to about 15,000*l.*, and this he hoped would meet the approbation of the committee.—Sir J. PAKINGTON expressed his astonishment that in the present state of the Continent and America the Government should have thought it desirable to propose a reduction of 4050 men and boys. Any diminution of force was calculated to impress on the Great Powers the belief, already too general, that the louder we talked the less disposed were we to act; and no mistake could be greater than that of reducing the boys, who were likely to become the most valuable class of seamen in the navy.—A long discussion on the various items of naval and dockyard management ensued, and at one o'clock Mr. LINDSAY moved that the Chairman report progress.—The motion was opposed by Lord PALMERSTON, but was carried on a division by 31 to 28. Progress was then reported.—On the motion of Lord C. PAGET a select Committee was appointed on royal dockyards in the United Kingdom, with reference especially to the proposed extension of that at Portsmouth.—Mr. BLAKE obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the Grand Jury Laws of Ireland.—Mr. ADDERLEY obtained leave to bring in a Bill to consolidate the Penal Servitude Acts for England and Scotland.

FRIDAY.—Townley's Case.—In answer to Mr. MORRITT, Sir G. GREY said, that persons under sentence of death would not be entitled to any remission of that sentence. The Conference.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD asked what were the bases of the Conference suggested by the Government.—Lord PALMERSTON said that no arrangements had been completed. The Slave Trade.—Mr. CAVE asked whether it was intended to carry out the treaty with the United States for the suppression of the slave trade by stationing cruisers off Cuba.—Lord PALMERSTON said that no doubt the provisions of the treaty had been colourably evaded, so far as related to the French interest in the matter, but he really thought it was without design. Great progress had been made in the suppression of the traffic, and it might be depended upon that no inactivity would be exhibited. Taxation in Ireland.—Colonel DUNNE called attention to the subject of taxation in Ireland.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

EXECUTION OF THE CONDEMNED PIRATES.—Five of these men, namely Lyons, Blanco, Duranno, Watto, and Lopez, were executed on Monday morning at the Old Bailey, in conformity with the sentence; the two others, Marsalino and Los Santos, having been reprieved during her Majesty's pleasure. The numbers assembled to witness the spectacle were great beyond all precedent, and extraordinary precautions were taken to prevent accidents. The crowd began to assemble at an early hour on Sunday. Throughout the day the street was all but impassable, and at 10 o'clock on Sunday night as great a crowd had assembled in front of the gaol as at an ordinary execution. The excitement was not confined to the lower classes; the windows of a small house opposite the scaffold having been let for 75*l.*, and a single window in another house for 25*l.* All the culprits were Manilla men except Watto, who was a Levantine Greek. On the arrival of the Sheriffs and other officials at the condemned cells, the first who was called forth to be pinioned by the hangman was Watto, a slight, fair, and good looking young man of 21 or 22, of mild appearance and meek bearing; who was, however, proved at the trial to have been one of the most ruthless of all the set—the foremost among the plotters, and the most merciless of the assassins. After the pinioning had been completed he seemed resigned and wished to kiss the turnkey, but was shocked at being refused until the Greek priest told him that such salutes were not customary in England among men. The next to step forth from his cell was Lopez—the adviser of all the murders, and the determined perpetrator of at least one of them—the worst-looking in countenance, and to the very moment of his death the most defiant in gesture and in bearing of them all, but in spite of his assumed carelessness his lips trembled, and he tried almost incessantly to wet them with his parched tongue, but in vain. Duranno, who so cruelly assassinated the mate, was the next to come out, and was the first who showed signs of fear. His face seemed blanched by his fear to a dull clayey hue that was worse to look upon than the pallor of death itself. Still, though his lips kept shivering, and his eyes reeled, he bore up till the hangman removed the sailor's necktie and undid the collar of his shirt. Then the nearness of death seemed to come upon him in all its bitterness, and he crept together with his limbs, and spoke a few words, in almost piteous tones, to the Roman Catholic clergyman who was with him. Blanco was the next called out. He was larger than all the rest in stature, an overmatch for almost all of them in mere brute strength. He was also the most conspicuous and relentless in all the murders, the one who struck down the mate, and boasted of having thrown him while praying for mercy into the sea, stabbed the captain in his sleep, and beat the captain's brother till his very corpse was shapeless. He came out from his cell as if the very agony of death was on him, so strongly did he show his fear. He seemed helpless as he was being pinioned, and sighed heavily. He, like Duranno, shuddered as his necktie was removed, but seemed gratified that two little copper crucifixes, which he wore round his neck, were allowed to remain, and then, speaking to the priest, asked to be permitted to carry with him two little "holy pictures," as they are called on the Continent, one of the Crucifixion, the other of the Ascension. Both were of course at once placed in his hands, but though he asked for them he seemed not to heed them when he had them, but kept trying to wet his lips with his tongue and rolling his eyes on every side, looking apparently for the scaffold. Leone, or Lyons, as he was called, was the last called out. Without any show of fear, but with much sorrow, he stepped into the corridor and was pinioned, looking, as he showed himself throughout, a resigned and apparently repentant man. He spoke English tolerably well, and when his hands and elbows were closely fastened to his side he leant forward and in a few broken words said to the Sheriff that he quite admitted the justice of his punishment, but until then he had never seen how wicked his crime had been or how deserving it was of death. This was the only approach to a public confession made by any of the men. The hangman then left, and in a minute afterwards a signal was given, and one after another the five men were brought out, each between two warders, towards the front of the gaol, over the walls of which could be heard reverberating the dismal tolling of St. Sepulchre's bell, and, worse than all, the impatient, clamorous, roaring hum of the crowd outside. Within a heavy iron grate they were thus led to a form, and there, for the first time since their trial, they sat down side by side, and almost as they did so the bell of Newgate, with a loud discordant boom, began to toll above their heads. Beyond where they were sitting was a narrow passage, which led to the scaffold. But it needed nothing to tell the men that within a few feet of where they sat they were to die a violent death, for with the first boom of the bell came in the hoarse murmur that a multitude makes when talking, mingled with an indescribable tramng sound, and cries of "hats offpli, hats off," "they are coming," amid all which, and the noise and sway of a great crowd, the bell above went tolling rapidly on. Duranno and Blanco leant back faint, and the others seemed to listen with dreadful faces, now looking up to where the clang of the bell came down upon them, then glancing with quivering lips through the passage which just let in the daylight and the noise of the crowd, but allowed nothing to be seen beyond. The hangman now left to take a glimpse at the scaffold and see that all was ready, and one or two officials followed, furtively glancing at the mass of human beings which swarmed through Newgate Street into Smithfield, which thronged the house tops and windows far and near, all looking with white up-turned faces to where the gibbet with its five short links of chain stood in front of the Debtors' Door. Scarcely a minute was thus passed when the hangman returned and hurried out with young Watto, at the sight of whom there was a renewed cry from the multitude outside. Perhaps at the sight of his comrade thus borne away, perhaps at the sound of the mob without, Duranno turned pale and faint, and asked for water, Water and brandy both were brought, and Duranno and Blanco both drank a little of the spirit raw, and were then hurried off. Lopez was called next, but as he rose there was a half shout, half scream from the crowd outside, for Blanco, the most powerful of all the murderers, and supposed to have been the most hardened, had fainted with the rope round his neck, and was, in fact, hanging till the warders ran back to fetch a chair, in which he was propped up till the drop fell. Lopez and Leone now remained alone on the bench, Lopez careless as usual, though quiet; Leone resigned, and apparently absorbed in thought and prayer. Again Lopez was told to rise, but again there was a delay, of which he took advantage to ask for something to drink. Water was put to his mouth, but he spat it out and turned away his head, though the feverish eagerness with which he swallowed some brandy was awful to behold. Then he rose, and as he stood hearing the bell toll, his desperate spirit at last gave way, and his eyes filled with tears, which he tried in vain to raise his pinioned hands to wipe away. Then he, too, went out with a light, jaunty step, and was almost immediately followed by Leone. There was deep silence now within and without the gaol, and none of the officials compelled to be present looked out, for the hangman had left the men standing in a row and was busy beneath the scaffold. In another instant there was a heavy sound, and all turned away, while the gibbet creaked audibly, for the five murderers hung dying side by side. At 9 o'clock the Sheriffs were again summoned to witness the cutting down of the bodies, and to receive the surgeon's certificate that they were dead. The cutting down of the corpses was almost more repulsive than the hanging. The noises from the crowd which accompanied the severance of each rope, the heavy lump with which the corpses fell into its shell, the speed with which it was borne in, unpinioned, cast loose from its halter, and pronounced dead, made this a painful, though fortunately a very quick business. The countenance only of Watto was slightly changed; the rest lay tumbled in their shells as the hangman had left them, precisely as though they slept. At 2 P.M. their clothes were cut off them to the last fragment, and burnt. The shells were then filled up with quicklime, and at 3 o'clock they were buried in one of the passages of the prison, without form or ceremony of any kind. The excellence of the arrangements for preserving order during the execution may be estimated from the fact that 330 men, 7 inspectors, and 37 sergeants of the City force were stationed in the immediate proximity of the scaffold, while 300 men belonging to the Metropolitan force, kept the great thoroughfares leading to Newgate. There were only two slight accidents, scarcely worthy of notice.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's weekly return states that the deaths in London in the week that ended Saturday, Feb. 19, were 1586, the lowest return since the commencement of the year. The average number in corresponding weeks of 10 years—1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1409. The present return is therefore 177 above the average. During the week the births of 1086 boys and 1036 girls, in all 2122 children, were registered in London. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2044.

COWES.—During the recent stay of the Court at Osborne the Queen superintended the placing of a monument in the chancel of Whippingham Church to the memory of the Prince Consort, the design for which was previously submitted to and highly approved of by her Majesty. The upper portion of the design, executed in white marble, consists of a medallion of the Prince encircled in a wreath of laurel. The lower portion is divided into three panels, enclosed in arches of alabaster, supported on small columns of red Portuguese marble, and surmounted by a cornice of alabaster richly carved. In the side panels are the arms of the Queen and Prince, and in the centre an inscription commemorative of his Royal Highness. The monument, the joint production of Mr. Theed and Mr. Humbert, the architect of the church, which was rebuilt by order and under the superintendence of the Prince Consort, corresponds in style with the architecture of the building, which is about the commencement of the 13th century.

RHYL.—On Friday night Pengwern Castle, the family seat of the late Lord Mostyn, and the recent residence of the Hon. T. P. Lloyd and the Misses Lloyd, was totally destroyed by fire. Since the time when Kimmel Hall, the seat of Lord Dinorben, met with a similar fate some years ago, no event has caused such general excitement throughout the Vale of Clwyd. The fire was discovered in the early part of the evening, and from that time until a late hour at night every attempt was made by the neighbours, as well as by many of the inhabitants of Rhyl, St. Asaph, and Rhuddlan, to suppress the flames, but all to no avail. Most of the furniture was saved; but, in addition to costly ornaments and family paintings, including some of the choicest productions of the Dutch, Italian, and English schools, most, if not all of the rare and valuable library of Welsh records and manuscripts known as the "Mostyn Collection," were seriously damaged.

ACCIDENT TO THE EARL OF ROSSE.—On Saturday Lord Rosse, accompanied by Lord Oxmantown and his two younger sons, was superintending the cutting down of some trees at Parsonstown. Three trees were being cut down simultaneously, when one of them struck against another as they fell, and rebounding in an opposite direction, struck his lordship violently on the side of the head, and along the back. He fell to the ground, and remained insensible 10 or 15 minutes. His son Randal ran to the castle for assistance, and on returning, the horse took fright, upset the carriage, and threw him out on his head, where he also remained insensible, suffering from severe contusion. Lord Rosse, after some little time, gradually recovered his senses, and was conveyed to the castle. Fortunately no bones were broken, and no symptoms of internal injuries have appeared. His lordship is now progressing favourably.

THE DUBLIN MEMORIAL TO THE PRINCE CONSORT.—On Monday the 15th a discussion took place in the town council respecting the site of the statue to the Prince Consort. The sculptor, Mr. Foley, had recommended a spot on College Green, fronting the University and the Bank of Ireland and commanding four of the leading thoroughfares in the city; and the Memorial Committee, acting on the suggestion of Mr. Foley, had applied for the ground to the corporation through their chairman, the Lord Chancellor. The application was referred to the Committee having charge of such matters, and they agreed by a majority to recommend that the ground should be granted, and on the 15th the matter was brought before the council for their final decision. The Hon. Mr. Vereker, the late Lord Mayor, in a complimentary speech, moved that the site asked for should be granted. The motion was seconded by Alderman Moylan, another ex-Lord Mayor. Mr. Sullivan, of the Nation, moved an amendment that the letter of the Lord Chancellor, with other documents of a similar nature, including a letter from himself asking the site for a statue to Henry Grattan, be referred back to the committee. In the course of a violent speech he said that the inhabitants of Dublin would hate the statue and hiss at it as they passed, because his Royal Highness had said that "Irishmen were no more deserving of sympathy than Poles." Mr. Devitt seconded the amendment, but disclaimed any disrespect to her Majesty. An animated discussion ensued, in the course of which the attacks on the memory of the Prince were indignantly repelled by Sir John Gray, Alderman Reynolds, Mr. Martin, and Mr. Byrne. The amendment was ultimately rejected, and the resolution for placing the statue in College Green was then carried by 32 to 14. On Monday last an immense meeting was convened in the Rotunda by The O'Donoghue and Mr. Sullivan, to protest against the decision for the erection of the statue in College Green. Mr. Gill opened the proceedings by saying that they were assembled to repudiate the insult offered by the Corporation in preferring the Prince Consort to Henry Grattan. He called upon them to express their feelings like men, and to be like brothers banded for fatherland under their gifted leader The O'Donoghue. He concluded by moving that Mr. Crotty should take the chair. The O'Donoghue then came forward to move the first resolution. He said he had never seen such a glorious, magnificent meeting in that room. The moment he read the proceedings in the City Hall about the statue he wrote to Mr. Sullivan that he would attend this meeting. Here the speaker was cut short by a burst of cheers for Sullivan, with a counter torrent of groans. A person on the platform, alluding to an informer named Goulah, and to some former controversy between Mr. Sullivan and the Fenian men, cried out "Goulah!" This was evidently a preconcerted signal, as Goulah was one of the Fenian Brotherhood. There was an attempt to put him down; he resisted, and a regular fight commenced on the platform and in several parts of the house. The whole mass on the platform were instantly engaged in a terrific struggle, flourishing shillelahs, boxing, throttling, tumbling over the chairs and forms, sprawling on the boards, kicking and yelling. The Fenian men being well drilled and commanded pressed on in such overwhelming force that they carried the platform in about ten minutes. The O'Donoghue, Mr. Sullivan, and some priests fled; the chairs and tables were broken up and converted into weapons; the reporters were knocked about and quickly lost in the agitated mass. The victors seized a piece of green cloth that covered the table and waved it as a flag of triumph. This put an end to the fighting throughout the room. The Fenians kept waving their flag, amid all sorts of noise and uproar, for about an hour. The speaking altogether did not occupy more than 15 minutes, but it was two hours before the multitude dispersed. Many of these "fighting men" have been soldiers in the United States, and wore the American uniform, and it is understood that they are busy drilling their brethren at home.

THE PAMPERO CASE.—On Tuesday Lord Ormidale issued an interlocutor appointing Tuesday, the 5th of April, within the Parliament-house, Edinburgh, for trying the matters put in issue by the information, at the instance of the Crown, against the owners and builders of the Pampero, lately seized in the Clyde.

Markets.

COVENT GARDEN, Feb. 27.

Vegetables and Fruit in season continue to be pretty well kept up. Retarded Hothouse Grapes are, however, scarce, but some good new ones may now be had. Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained; likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 6s. to 10s. per 100. Cornish Broccoli is still largely supplied. Continental arrivals are heavy; among them are French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, Feb. 22.

We have a few more Beasts than on Monday last, but the demand is good, and prices are well maintained. In a few instances our top quotations have been exceeded. Sheep are more plentiful, and trade for them is slow; on the average prices are scarcely as good as of late. Good Calves are rather dearer. From Germany and Holland there are 730 Beasts, 1520 Sheep, and 102 Calves; from Spain, 71 Beasts; from Scotland, 320; from Ireland, 140; from Norfolk and Suffolk 2310; and 60 from the Northern and Midland Counties.

THURSDAY, Feb. 25.

We have a larger supply of Beasts than on Thursday last, and trade is slow for them. The weather is, however, favourable, and prices are not much altered from Monday last. The number of Sheep is not large, but quite equal to the demand. A clearance can scarcely be effected at Monday's quotations. Calves are selling about the same as on Monday. From Germany and Holland there are 375 Beasts, 940 Sheep, and 229 Calves; from Spain, 82 Beasts. Milch Cows, 90.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Feb. 22.

The supply of Wheat from Essex to this morning's market was small, from Kent fair, but being held for a slight advance no progress could be made with the sale, and the bulk remained unsold towards the close of the market. The attendance was very limited, and foreign Wheat was neglected. Prices unaltered. Barley was a slow sale at last week's rates. Beans and Peas were 1s. per qr. cheaper. The Oat trade was dull, but we do not alter our quotations. Flour was neglected.

FRIDAY, Feb. 26.

Since the 19th inst. the weather has been extremely wintery, with frost and daily snow storms, and an occasional thaw; since yesterday it has been damp and raw. During the above period the same want of activity which has been the predominant characteristic of the Wheat trade during the present year has continued to prevail, and prices are nominally unaltered, but to force sales lower rates must have been accepted. The same may be said of Barley, Oats, Beans, Peas and Flour. Since Friday last no further arrivals have been reported off the coast, and only 6 cargoes remained on sale yesterday. The floating trade has remained exceedingly quiet during the week; there was no inclination at all to buy Wheat or Spring Corn, and with very little offering, no alteration in prices has to be quoted. Paris, Feb. 25.—Business has been inactive, and Wheat as well as Flour has remained unchanged in value. The present stock of Flour is estimated at 12,450 cwt. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 33s. per 280 lbs. The arrivals of English and foreign Wheat and Barley and foreign Oats during the week have been small, of English and Irish Oats large. A portion of the English Wheat left over from Monday remained unsold towards the close of the market, factors holding for the prices of that day. In foreign Wheat and all descriptions of Spring Corn scarcely any business was transacted, and our quotations remain nominally unaltered.

LIVERPOOL, February 23.—At our market to-day there was rather more disposition to buy Wheat, and a very fair business was effected in red American, at about the currency of this day week. Flour was very dull, and prices tended in favour of buyers. Oats unchanged. Barley, Beans, and Peas unsaleable in retail at last quotations. Indian Corn was pressed, and a moderate business was done in American, at 29s. per 480 lbs. Oatmeal the turn cheaper.

FRIDAY, Feb. 26.—The market continues in the same dull state as of late, and prices of most articles are slightly easier. Wheat 1d. lower. Indian Corn 3d. lower. Flour unchanged; prices nominal.

PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.—IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—

"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."

Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Bosses, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Toilet Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Calbotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

It is an entirely new invention, and consists of large MEAT ROASTER, PASTRY OVEN, and WROUGHT-IRON BOILER. The top forms a HOT PLATE for BOILING, STEWING, &c. The whole Heated by ONE SMALL FIRE. One 5 feet wide is equal to an ordinary Range 8 feet wide.
Extracted from the London Daily Telegraph, May 19, 1862.
"INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class 31.
"Of the most recent inventions it should be said that Messrs. JONES & ROWE'S Patent Worcestershire Range has attracted very special attention, and has been commended by the best authorities. A valuable peculiarity of their Ranges is the placing of the OVEN and ROASTER one above the other instead of side by side; and the ROASTER is constantly replenished with fresh air."

TESTIMONIALS of CUPISS'S CONSTITUTION BALLS, for HORSES and NEAT CATTLE.
Hawking Down House, Wiltshire,
To Mr. F. CUPISS, May 4, 1860.
SIR,—In answer to yours of the 1st, I beg to say you are quite at liberty to publish my opinion of your Constitution Balls, which I very much approve of for getting Horses in fine condition. They are also good for Sheep, especially Lambs when they are in a pining state, by making them into balls about the size of a nut, and giving two or three occasionally, the animal soon becomes strong and healthy.—I remain, yours respectfully, MORALITY RAWLINGS
Mains of Arisay, Fortwilliam, N.B., Oct. 26, 1859.
SIR,—I have given your Constitution Balls to Horses and Cattle for the last four years, and have always been satisfied with their effect. I consider it a boon to any one keeping Stock to be able to get Balls so good and so sure in their effect.—I remain, yours obediently, JOHN CARTER.
From Capt. H. BURTON, Grange Farm, Rock Ferry, Chester.
"No Grazier or Horsekeeper ought ever to be without Cupiss's Constitution Balls."
From Mr. PRATT, King's Arms Hotel, Lancaster.
"I have found the Constitutional Balls most valuable for horses when taken up from Grass, and very beneficial to give them occasionally to horses when turned out."
The Balls are prepared by FRANCIS CUPISS, Diss, Norfolk, Author of the Prize Essay of the Diseases of the Liver of the Horse. And may be had of all Patent Medicine Vendors. Packets of 3 Balls, 1*s.* 9*d.*; and 6 Balls, 3*s.* 6*d.*; or 4 small Packets, 10*s.* 6*d.*; or 7 large Packets, 21*s.*; with full directions.
Persons using the Balls may consult the Proprietor gratuitously by enclosing a Stamp in a prepaid letter.

GRAY'S OVAL TUBULAR BOILER.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class IX., No. 2119.

Mr. GRAY begs to call the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, Nurserymen, Gardeners, &c., to his acknowledged by practical judges to be a great improvement on every form of Tubular Boiler yet introduced. It has proved itself superior to all other Boilers for quickness of action and economy of Fuel, doing its work with one-third less the amount required by any other.

Extract from Report in Gardeners' Chronicle of International Exhibition, May 24, page 476.

"The upright form of Boiler is usually made on a circular plan, but the oval form given to Mr. GRAY'S variety of it is said to be preferable in consequence of its bringing the tubes in closer contact with the fire. The usual form of a furnace being a parallelogram rather than a square, it seems feasible that the Boilers on the oval plan should bring the tubes more completely within range of the burning fuel; and this being so, the change, though a slight one, is no doubt an improvement."

They are made of all sizes, which, with prices, may be had on application.

LAND DRAINAGE.—WORKS of DRAINAGE of any extent are EXECUTED by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY, on all descriptions of property, whether freehold, entailed, mortgaged, trust, ecclesiastical, corporate, or collegiate.

Repayment may be made by the Landowner as successive portions of the Works are completed, or the outlay and expenses may be charged on the estate by way of rent charge created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants.

No investigation of title being required, or notices given to reversioners or mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.

Works of irrigation, enclosing, wood grubbing, road-making, and farm buildings are executed in a similar manner.

Landowners desirous to execute any of the improvements by their own agents, and charge the outlay and expenses on the Estate, may obtain loans for the purpose.

Applications to be made to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY, Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.

To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5s. per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

News of the Week.

IN the House of Lords on Friday, Lord COLVILLE called attention to the proceedings of the CRAWLEY court-martial, and complained that the DEPUTY JUDGE ADVOCATE had prepared the articles of the prosecution, acted as legal adviser to the prosecutor, and drawn up the reply to the defence. Earl DE GREY said that the proceedings were conducted in accordance with precedents, but the question was now under the consideration of the Government whether the existing practice might not be improved. On Monday, in reply to the Marquis of WESTMEATH, Earl RUSSELL said that he had no reason to suppose that M. MAZZINI or any other person living in this country was guilty of plotting against the life of the EMPEROR of the FRENCH, and that, therefore, the Government were not prepared to take any steps in the matter. Earl GRANVILLE laid on the table the report of the joint committee on metropolitan railways, and stated that all the recommendations it contained, except one, had been agreed to unanimously. The Insane Prisoners Act Amendment Bill was read a second time. On Tuesday, the Marquis of Clanricarde moved for papers relating to recruiting in Ireland for the army of the United States, and asked whether any remonstrances against such proceedings had been addressed to the Federal Government. Earl Russell, in reply, said that any attempt on the part of the Federals to enlist recruits for their army in Ireland would be a breach of neutrality and an offence against our own municipal laws, which, if detected, would subject the offenders to punishment, and justify strong complaints to the Government of the United States. On more than one occasion he had complained to the American Minister that such practices were going on in Ireland, but Mr. Adams had indignantly denied the truth of the allegations; and having received that denial, he felt obliged to wait until some case had occurred in which proof was forthcoming. In reply to a question by the Earl of Derby as to the reported movements of the Fenian Brotherhood, Earl Granville stated that their proceedings were watched, but he believed, on investigation, they would prove to be of the most contemptible character. Lord Clanricarde withdrew his motion. On Thursday the Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.

In the Commons on Friday, on the motion of Colonel Dunne, a select committee on Irish taxation was agreed to. The Malt Tax Bill passed through committee after some debate on the motion of Sir E. Dering for the addition of a clause permitting agriculturists to malt barley for the consumption of their own stock without taking out a maltster's licence, the clause being ultimately withdrawn. The Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill passed through committee. The Land Drainage (Provisional Orders) Bill, the Inclosure Bill, and the County Courts (Ireland) Bill were read a second time. On Monday Mr. Cox called attention to the statement made by the Procureur Imperial at the late trial of the conspirators in Paris, that a letter written by Greco to a M. Flowers, was addressed to 35, Thurloe Square, the residence of a member of the British Parliament. Mr. Stansfeld indignantly denied that there was any particle of truth in the statement, and also pledged his personal knowledge of M. Mazzini for the conviction that he was incapable of having had any concern in the base conspiracy. Mr. Disraeli asked for information respecting the state of our relations with the Continent, and the success of their new proposition of a Conference. Lord Palmerston, in reply, said that the papers which would shortly be laid before the House would show that the object of the Government in receiving proposals and answering proposals had been to conciliate differences, to mollify exasperation, and to bring about, if possible, a peaceable settlement of a dispute which threatened to bring on a European war. The House then went into committee of supply on the Navy Estimates, and agreed to several of the votes. On Tuesday Mr. Marsh moved a resolution that the civil service and miscellaneous estimates have been for many years rapidly increasing, and ought to be reduced. Mr. F. Peel admitted that the increase in these estimates was very large, but argued that it was due to causes over which the Government had no control, and which the House itself could not check unless it resorted to a policy totally different to that which had been pursued for many years past. If they reduced the education vote and the grants for the reformation of criminals, and swept away the vote for putting down the slave trade, they might be able to reduce taxation, and possibly dispense with the necessity for the income tax; but to the adoption of this course he believed the House of Commons would be the first to object. After some discussion the motion was withdrawn. The Court of Justiciary (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. The Malt for Cattle Bill, and the Conveyancers, &c. (Ireland) Bill, were read a third time and passed. On Wednesday, on the order for going into committee on the Chain Cable and Anchors Bill, Mr. Milner Gibson moved that it be referred to a select committee. After a short discussion, Mr. Lindsay assented to the motion, and the Bill was referred to a select committee. On Thursday Colonel Edwards moved a resolution that the proposed discontinuance in the present year of the usual six days' training of the Yeomanry Cavalry was detrimental to the efficiency of the force. The motion was opposed by Lord Palmerston, and was only lost on a division by a majority of one, the numbers being 158 to 157. Mr. Ferrand called attention to the alleged interference of the Admiralty officials in the Devonport election of 1859. After an animated discussion the subject dropped. The House went into committee of supply, when the Marquis of Hartington moved the Army Estimates, the first vote of which was agreed to. Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill was read a third time and passed. The Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.

The Danish Rigsdag on Saturday presented an address to the King expressing their confidence that his Majesty would uphold the liberty and independence of the country, and would not permit it to be dismembered. The King in reply personally thanked the members for the expression of their fidelity, and assured them that he would firmly adhere to his policy, hold out to the utmost of his power, and admit of no abolition of the political connection between the kingdom and Schleswig.

The Federal Diet on Thursday came to a vote on the Austro-Prussian proposition that the command in chief of the forces in Holstein should be transferred to Prussia. Only six votes were given in its favour. Three Powers moved counter resolutions, and seven voted for referring the proposition to a committee. This latter course was adopted.

A despatch from Vienna announces that in consequence of an apprehended rising of the Poles in Galicia, an Imperial manifesto has been published in Cracow, declaring the whole province to be in a state of siege.

The trial of the four Italians charged with conspiring against the life of the Emperor terminated on Friday in the conviction of all the conspirators. Greco and Trabuco were sentenced to transportation for life, and Imperatori and Scaglioni to twenty years' imprisonment.

The Court.—The Queen and Royal family continue at Windsor Castle. On Friday morning the Queen drove out. The Princesses Helena and Louisa came to London. The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg Strelitz and Prince Edward and Prince Gustav of Saxe Weimar visited the Queen, and remained to luncheon. On Saturday morning Sir George Grey arrived at the Castle and had an audience of her Majesty. The Queen received deputations from the Corporation of the City of London, the Court of Lieutenancy, the city of Edinburgh, the city of Dublin, and the English Presbyterian Ministers of London and Westminster, who presented addresses of congratulation on the birth of a Prince to the Prince and Princess of Wales, to all of which her Majesty returned gracious answers. Luncheon was afterwards served for the deputations in the dining room. In the evening Prince Arthur arrived from Greenwich Park. The Hon. Alice Jocelyn and the Hon. Edith Jocelyn arrived on a visit. On Sunday morning the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Dean of Windsor officiated. On Monday morning the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Hohenlohe, came to London by a special train on the Great Western Railway, and visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. Her Majesty afterwards visited the Duchess of Cambridge and the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg at St. James's Palace. Her Majesty then drove to Buckingham Palace, and returned to Windsor in the afternoon. Prince Arthur returned to Greenwich Park. The Dean of Westminster and Lady Augusta Stanley arrived at the Castle, and had the honour of dining with the Queen. On Tuesday morning the Queen walked and drove in the grounds. In the afternoon the Queen held a Council, at which some alterations were made in the Roll of Sheriffs. Earl Granville and the Duke of Somerset had audiences of the Queen. The Marquis of Tweeddale had an audience, and received from her Majesty the Gold Stick, as Colonel of the 2d Regiment of Life Guards. Prince Leopold took a carriage drive. On Wednesday morning the Princess Helena returned from Marlborough House. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked in the grounds. The Princess Augustus of Saxe Coburg, with Princess Clotilde and Princess Amelie, visited the Queen and remained to luncheon. The Mayor and Town Clerk of Windsor had an interview with the Queen, and presented an Address congratulating her Majesty on the birth of the infant Prince. On Thursday the King of the Belgians arrived at Windsor Castle on a visit to the Queen. The Prince of Wales met the King at the Waterloo station in London, and accompanied his Majesty to Windsor. The Queen, with the Princess Helena, drove down to the station at Windsor to receive the King, who immediately got into one of her Majesty's carriages, with the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and Princess Helena, and proceeded to the Castle. In the afternoon the Prince of Wales returned to London.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Marlborough House. On Friday morning the Prince rode out. The Princess drove out. The Princesses Helena and Louisa visited the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House. In the afternoon the Prince visited the exhibition of Carl Werner's drawings of Jerusalem, Bethlehem, and the Holy Places. His Royal Highness afterwards attended the debate in the House of Lords. In the evening the Prince and Princess dined with the Duchess of Cambridge at St. James's Palace. On Saturday afternoon the Prince and Princess of Wales took a carriage drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold, went to the Princess's Theatre. On Sunday morning the Prince and Princess attended Divine Service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Bishop of Bath and Wells preached the sermon. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses took a carriage drive. On Monday morning the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Helena and the Princess Hohenlohe, visited the Prince and Princess and remained till noon. In the afternoon the Lord Mayor of London, the Sheriffs, and a deputation from the Courts of Aldermen and Common Council, with a deputation from the Court of Lieutenancy, the Lord Mayor of Dublin with a deputation; the Lord Provost of the City of Edinburgh with a deputation, and the Lord Mayor of York, with a deputation, had an audience of the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House, and presented addresses of congratulation to their Royal Highnesses on the birth of the infant Prince. The Prince afterwards rode out on horseback. On Tuesday morning the Princess Helena arrived on a visit to the Prince and Princess. The Duke de Nemours and the Princess Marguerite visited their Royal Highnesses. The Jewelled National Token from South Wales to the Princess was presented to her Royal Highness by the Countess Dowager of Dunraven, accompanied by the Lady Llanover, Lady Frances Pratt, Lady Jane Walsh, and Mrs. Saunders Davis. The jewels consist of a badge in emeralds and diamonds, with the leek, surmounted by a bouquet composed of the trefoil, oak, wheat, and mistletoe, the bardic emblems of the four seasons, and a motto in Welsh, "From South Wales to their Princess." A bracelet with fine emeralds and diamond centre, the leek in pearls, emeralds and diamonds composing the band, with a motto in Welsh, "God Preserve our own Princess." The casket containing the jewels is richly mounted in gold, and bears a suitable inscription in the Welsh language. An offering to her Royal Highness from the Province of North Jutland was presented by M. de Bille, the Danish Minister. An offering of a richly sculptured vase in silver, from the Danish inhabitants of London, was presented by a committee of Danish gentlemen. Lord Harris presented to her Royal Highness three offerings from South Australia, transmitted through the Secretary of State for the Colonies. 1. A flower stand, composed of five emu's eggs set in pure gold, and supported by a pedestal of pure gold, from Lady Berkly and the ladies of Victoria. 2. A casket richly wrought in pure silver, from Sir James F. Palmer, President of the Legislative Council of Victoria. 3. A casket formed of a large emu's egg set in pure gold, supported by a pedestal of pure gold, from Lady Daly and the ladies of South Australia. The Princess afterwards took a carriage drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess had a dinner party. On Wednesday the Prince held a Levée on behalf of her Majesty at St. James's Palace. The Prince afterwards took a ride. The Princess drove out In the evening their Royal Highnesses honoured the Haymarket Theatre with their presence. On Thursday the Prince went to the Waterloo Station to meet the King of the Belgians, and accompanied his Majesty to Windsor. His Royal Highness returned to London in the afternoon.

The King of the Belgians arrived at Dover on Wednesday evening, in a Belgian Government steamer, from Ostend. His Majesty passed the night at Birmingham's Lord Warden Hotel, and left Dover on Thursday morning for Windsor, on a visit to the Queen.

The Royal Christening.—The baptism of the infant son of the Prince and Princess of Wales is fixed for the 10th inst. at the Royal Chapel, Buckingham Palace. Invitations to attend the solemnity were issued on Wednesday to all the Cabinet Ministers and great Officers of State.

Prince Alfred left Edinburgh on Friday for the Hirsel, near Coldstream, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Home. His Royal Highness is expected to visit the Earl of Dunmore, at Dunmore Park, in a few days.

Drawing Room.—The Queen has commanded that a Drawing-room shall be held on Saturday, the 19th of March, by the Princess of Wales, on behalf of her Majesty. All presentations will be considered as being made to her Majesty. It is not expected that gentlemen will go to the Drawing-room, except in attendance on the ladies of their families.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—Mr. John Floyer was elected for Dorsetshire on Saturday in the room of Mr. Ker Seymer, without opposition. The election for Hertfordshire takes place on Tuesday, March 8. Mr. Surtees has announced himself a candidate in the Conservative interest in opposition to Mr. H. Cowper.

THE SHERIFFS.—At the Privy Council on Tuesday, the Queen was pleased to appoint Thomas Thorneycroft, Esq., of Tottenhall Wood, Wolverhampton, to be Sheriff of Staffordshire, in the room of George Briscoe, Esq., of Elmhurst Hall, Lichfield; and Boscawen Trevor Griffith, Esq., of Trevalyn Hall, Wrexham, to be Sheriff of Denbighshire, in the room of John Lloyd Wynne, Esq., of Coedcoch, Abergele. The Queen has appointed Sir James Phillips Kay-Shuttleworth, of Gawthorpe Hall, Bart., to be Sheriff of the County Palatine of Lancaster; and the Prince of Wales has appointed Day Perry Le Grice, of Trereife, Penzance, Esq., to be Sheriff of Cornwall for the year ensuing.

CONVOCATION OF YORK.—Both Houses of Convocation for the province of York met on the 23d ult. The Archbishop, as president, formally opened the proceedings, and stated the questions which had to be considered, one being a suggestion that the houses should sit together and hold their deliberations in common, which was afterwards agreed to. A series of resolutions, in reference to the disabilities of the Scottish Episcopal clergy, were agreed to. The report of a committee appointed to consider whether any alteration should take place in the Burial Service having been read, the two Houses proceeded to consider it, but were unable to come to any satisfactory understanding on the subject. In the Lower House a resolution against any alteration in the service was adopted by a large majority, but a similar resolution was rejected by two to one in the Upper House—the Bishops of Durham and Carlisle voting against the Archbishop.

THE CHANNEL FLEET left the Tagus on Saturday for Portland.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The Moniteur of Thursday publishes a Ministerial report and a decree appointing a committee for the organisation of a scientific expedition to Mexico. The Cherbourg papers assert that the Minister of Marine has sent orders for filling up the crews of the iron-clad vessels before the 15th of March, and the arming of those vessels within the shortest possible time. The France of Tuesday says that this statement is entirely incorrect, and that several of the iron-clads are in dock. The Constitutionnel, in an article signed by M. Limayrac, says that France could not accept the proposition for a Conference, which has not yet been made to her. It also points out, in another article, the difference between the attitude and interests of Prussia and Austria in the Dano-German question. La France says that the consent of Denmark and the German Diet is daily becoming less probable. The Constitutionnel, in quoting these words, adds:—

"France will offer no obstacles. Though deeply regretting that England should have to encounter so many difficulties, and rejoiced as we should be to assist her in overcoming them, yet we cannot give way to false hopes. Truth is, after all, the best policy."

The Mémorial Diplomatique of Sunday, in an article referring to the Conference on the Dano-German question, says:—

"Count Rechberg proposes the following combination:—The German portion of Schleswig should, with Holstein, be incorporated with the German Confederation, having only a personal union with Denmark, while the Danish portion of Schleswig should be incorporated with the Danish monarchy. The districts where the inhabitants are mixed should be called upon to elect whether they prefer entering the German Confederation or being annexed with Denmark."

The same journal states that the Italian Government had offered England and Sweden the co-operation of its army and its fleet in the event of these Powers making up their mind to assist Denmark; and that the offer was refused with thanks. The Charivari has a caricature of John Bull in convulsions of grief by the side of the British lion, crouching like a cur, with a tin kettle, labelled "Schleswig-Holstein," fastened to his tail. Mr. Bull is exclaiming that the poor lion is "bien malade." The visit of the Archduke Maximilian to Paris has been delayed by a severe attack of influenza caught by his Imperial Highness on his journey to Brussels. He is expected to arrive in Paris in the course of a few days, accompanied by the Archduchess, but it is doubtful whether his intended visit to London to be present at the christening of the infant Prince will be carried out, the importance of the affairs to be discussed with the Emperor, and the necessity of starting for Mexico before the setting in of the unhealthy season, scarcely leaving sufficient time for an excursion to England. Marshal M'Mahon will have the command of the camp at Châlons this year. A few days ago the papers published a letter from Cardinal de Bonald, Archbishop of Lyons, giving an account of the Pope's reception of a deputation of curés of his diocese who had some request to prefer regarding their liturgy. In the course of his reply the Pope is reported by the Cardinal to have said that he was profoundly afflicted on reading in the newspapers that the civil authorities had been applied to to alter their breviary; and that the Minister had written to the Ambassador, "as if the civil authorities had any concern in the matter." The Moniteur says that "these terms" appeared to the Government very extraordinary, and that the Ambassador had been instructed to inform Cardinal Antonelli that they had excited in the Imperial Government a feeling of painful astonishment. The following was the reply of his Eminence:

"His Holiness was astonished when he saw Cardinal de Bonald's letter in print; he considered its publication deplorable—that an indiscretion which did not even respect what took place within the four walls of the Pontiff's Cabinet was calculated to deprive him of all freedom of mind in conversing with the faithful, and that, moreover, his Holiness had requested the Cardinal Secretary of State to convey to Cardinal de Bonald the expression of his dissatisfaction."

The trial of Greco, Imperatori, Trabuco, and Scaglioni, the four Italians arrested about six weeks ago on the charge of conspiring against the Emperor's life, commenced on Thursday week. The court was filled to overflowing, although no admission could be obtained except by ticket. The "acte d'accusation" described with great minuteness the movements of the prisoners, who had been watched by the secret police day and night, from the time of their arrival in Paris down to their arrest; and also strongly dwelt on the facts which were considered to establish the complicity of Mazzini. The prisoners were examined by the judge at great length, and admitted their guilt. Greco confessed that he had been engaged in the conspiracy by Mazzini, and the letters found upon him were sworn to be in Mazzini's handwriting. The other prisoners said that they had been induced by Greco to join in the plot. The hand grenades and other instruments with which they were provided, were proved to be of the most deadly character. The trial terminated on Friday evening in a verdict of Guilty against all the conspirators. Greco and Trabuco were sentenced to transportation; Imperatori and Scaglioni to 20 years' imprisonment each. The Procureur Imperial in the course of his concluding address to the jury said that when Greco was in want of money he was ordered to write to M. Flowers, 35, Thurloe Square, London, and on looking in the London Directory he recognised with great pain, as living at that residence, the name of a member of Parliament, who had in 1857 been appointed by Mazzini to be the banker of the Tebaldi conspiracy against the Emperor's life. (The member referred to is Mr. Stansfeld, member for Halifax, and Junior Lord of the Admiralty.) In the Senate on Saturday, during a discussion on a petition against "vivisection," reference was made to the proceedings of the London Society for the Protection of Animals. M. Le Verrier, the astronomer, moved the order of the day, and said that he was tired of always hearing people praise England and English institutions, and that he was still more so when London Societies permitted themselves to give Frenchmen lessons on humanity. "I remind England," continued M. Le Verrier, "of a situation much more grave, and which would be sought for in vain elsewhere. It is only there (in England) that members of Parliament are found who can be accused, documents in hand, of hiring assassins." The Marquis de Boissy thought there was no reason for rejecting a measure, if it were good, though it came from England. He agreed that, in general, what came from that country was bad; and though it was the refuge of assassins, "who were kept as ferrets are kept in a cask by sportsmen for the chase," if by chance a sensible proposal came from London, he thought they should not reject it on that ground. M. de Verrier's motion was then adopted. M. Pietri, Senator and former Prefect of Police, one of the most zealous supporters of the Empire, died in Paris on Sunday afternoon; he was born in Corsica in 1810. The Federal war steamer Kearsage is at anchor off Boulogne, and has taken a supply of coals on board. The fact of the Confederate vessel Rappahannock, now lying at Calais, being nearly ready for sea, will probably explain the Kearsage's presence in these waters. M. Coquerel, jun., the Protestant clergyman of the French Church, has been deposed from his office on the charge of heresy by the Presbyteral Council. This removal has excited deep regret, not only among persons of his own persuasion, but among his friends of every belief. The interest excited by Prince Napoleon's speech at the Suez Canal banquet, which we noticed in a previous Number, has not yet subsided. It has now been published at length in the daily papers, of which it fills about ten columns, and the delay in its publication is accounted for by a report that it was submitted to the Emperor before its appearance in print. The following extracts contain the Prince's remarks on England:—

"The opponents of the Canal rely on England. Well, let us speak about England, though the subject be a delicate one, and by no means agreeable to touch upon—but I think that, with great prudence and frankness, I may succeed in conveying my meaning. In the first place, and I say so though my frankness may be objectionable to some few amongst the present company, I do not intend to say a single word against the English nation, and I always make a great difference between that great country and its Government. There is something in that country which has attractions for me. Yes! there is a mirage on the other side of the Channel that greatly fascinates me—the mirage of liberty, to which I am so deeply attached. Yes! it is the mirage of liberty. I love liberty, among all those who enjoy it. But by the side of the English nation and of public opinion in England I find the British Government. Do not let us be too severe, gentlemen, even for the British Government. It is unfavourable to your undertaking. I will not say that I think it quite natural that it should be so; I do not approve, but I can understand it. The British Government does not attack you openly. It likes in this case to use indirect means. Never fear an opposition from it. It has never put forth a diplomatic note against you. It has always put the Porte forward. Mon Dieu! I think it was quite right in doing so. But there is an explanation to be found for the policy of England. That explanation, do you know where I find it? It is not in the blue book, but in the 'Peerage,' which as you know, tells us the ages of all the lords in England. When you open the 'Peerage' and see that the lords in power are 70, 75, 80 years old, you can easily understand that with their old experience their hearts should be rather cold—you can understand how calm their feelings are for the most generous causes. You can understand how it happens that England should announce she will not give a man or a shilling for the greatest and justest of causes, for Italy or for Poland! Do not believe, however, that that Government will go as far as the ultima ratio to oppose a perfectly just cause. Do not imagine that England will fight against the Isthmus of Suez! Allons donc! The British Government, which has abandoned rights founded on treaties and history; the British Government, which may one day feel remorse at having deserted the two great causes I have just mentioned; the British Government, which has abandoned Poland, would go to war about the Isthmus of Suez! Absurd! Shall I tell you what I think? If it dared to do so (and it will never dare), we should not have to fight against it, but it would have to protect itself against the English people. It would succumb beneath its burden of contempt. The supposition is not serious. You have right on your side. As for that bugbear of England, do not trouble yourselves about it. I defy the Government of that great country to involve it in serious hostilities against the Suez Canal."

The French Academy of Moral and Political Sciences have elected Mr. Grote, of London, as a foreign associate, in the room of the late Lord Macaulay; and Mr. Edwin Chadwick, of London, as corresponding member, in the room of the late Archbishop Whately. The great Cuvier prize, founded in honour of the illustrious naturalist, and triennially given by the French Institute, was recently awarded to Sir Roderick Murchison, author of "The Silurian System of Rocks." M. Guizot has read to the French Academy an interesting fragment from the volume of his "Memoirs," which is to be published shortly. This extract contains an account of M. Guizot's entry into the Ministry in 1840, and a relation of the conveyance of the remains of the Emperor Napoleon I. to Paris. M. Guizot, in referring to the profound security which Louis Philippe appeared to enjoy at that period, admits the imprudent confidence which governments often place in themselves. Telegrams received in Paris announce that enormous quantities of snow have fallen in the departments of Herault, Aude, Ardèche, Rhone, and Drôme, and that the railway traffic is interrupted in consequence.

PORTUGAL.—It is stated that Senhor Antonio José d'Avila, lately elevated to the peerage under the title of Count d'Avila, will be sent to Paris as Minister Plenipotentiary, the Viscount de Paiva being transferred to Madrid. Senhor Soveral, the Minister at Madrid, is to remain for the present out of office. It is also added that the Duke de Saldanha, at present Ambassador at Rome, will be transferred to London. Senhor Carlos Ramiro Continho has been created Baron de Barcellinhos. It is said that other nominations are about to be made. The Diario publishes the decree giving the concession to the Portugal Iron and Coal Company.

SPAIN.—Señor Mon and the Marquis of Novaliches have been charged by the Queen to form a new Ministry, the members of which are all to be chosen from the Liberal and Conservative fractions of the Cortes. The following is a list of the new Cabinet:—Señor Mon, President of the Council without portfolio; Señor Pacheco, Minister of State; Señor Mayans, Minister of Justice; Señor Marahesi, Minister of War; Señor Salaverria, Minister of Finance; Señor Canovas, Minister of Interior; Señor Pareja, Minister of Marine; Señor Ballesteros, Minister of Public Works; Señor Ulloa, Minister of Colonies. The Cabinet will have the support of Marshal O'Donnell and other principal personages belonging to the different parties in both Chambers. In the sitting of the Cortes on Thursday Senor Mon declared that he would govern with the co-operation of the Cortes, settle the constitutional question, and abolish the measures introduced in 1858.

SWEDEN.—La France asserts that several Swedish Ministers, on hearing of the entry of the Prussians into Jutland, demanded that a Swedish squadron should be sent to Gothenburg in the event of the Austro-Prussian army occupying Fredericia. Count Hamilton, the Swedish Ambassador at Copenhagen, has asked to be recalled. His request has been complied with by his Government, and Count Bjoerstjerna, who was formerly Minister at Constantinople, is to be appointed his successor. The appointment of a new Minister of War is expected. A large popular meeting is to take place at Stockholm to-morrow in favour of an alliance with Denmark. Numbers of Swedish volunteers for the Danish army have left Stockholm for Copenhagen. Most of them are immediately despatched to the quarters on the island of Alsen, and as many of them have before served in the Swedish army they at once enter the ranks, either as privates or non-commissioned officers.

DENMARK.—An Address to the King was adopted on Friday night almost unanimously by both Houses of the Rigsdag. It concludes as follows:—

"Our consolation in this most serious time is that the King will uphold our liberty and independence, and not allow Denmark to be weakened by dissolving our union with Schleswig. The people reckon on the declaration of the Government that the war should be energetically prosecuted, and they trust that the King will convince the nations of Europe that the Danes are willing to make any sacrifice to preserve their nationality and their right to govern themselves."

The Address was presented to the King on Saturday. His Majesty desired the presence of all the members on that occasion. In reply to the Address his Majesty said:—

"I thank you for the expression of your fidelity. Relying upon you and upon the loyalty of the Danish people, I shall firmly adhere to my policy, and hold out to the utmost of my power. I shall make every effort to obtain such conditions of peace as may be beneficial to Denmark. I will admit of no abolition of the existing political connection between the Kingdom and Schleswig. I wish to be a free King over a free people. A King is only free when his country is independent and when the constitutional condition is maintained and developed. God grant that at my death this epitaph may deservedly be inscribed upon my tomb,—'A truer heart never beat for Denmark.'"

The Berlingske Tidende of Monday semi-officially contradicts the announcement that Denmark has accepted the proposal for a Conference, and says that if the basis of a Conference should be a political union between Schleswig and Holstein, or a personal union of the Duchies with Denmark, the Government will not accept the proposal. The Dagbladet of Sunday publishes an article in which it says:—

"The English Government opposes by empty demonstrations the violent acts of Germany. It accepts the sophisms of Germany in order to avoid war. A Conference on the basis of a personal union between Denmark and Schleswig and Holstein would be the destruction of Denmark's freedom and independence. Under such circumstances, the integrity of Denmark is worthless. The Danish people must before all look for deliverance from their own exertions, and prosecute the war with the greatest energy. The fall of Denmark must be bought with blood. Diplomatic strokes of the pen shall not wipe out a nation of a thousand years' standing."

General Gerlach has been intrusted with the command-in-chief of the army, in place of General de Meza, who has been definitively dismissed. Major Stjernholm has been appointed chief of his Staff.

The Danish Duchies.—Kolding has been rendered defensible by the vanguard of the combined division of the infantry of the Guard, and the Prussian outposts have been placed in a more northerly direction. Prince Frederick Charles has arrived at Field Marshal von Wrangel's head-quarters. A decision was expected from Berlin on Monday whether the troops are to be quartered in scattered cantonments, upon Denmark giving a guarantee to respect the frontier, or whether they will be marched forward into Jutland. On the 29th ult. a squadron of Danish Dragoons encountered two squadrons of the Prussian Hussars between Varde and Fredericia. The Danish loss in the engagement amounted to nine men wounded and missing. The Danes captured one officer, a surgeon, and 28 Hussars. On the 1st inst. the Danes burned down all the farms on the line of their outposts. On the following day the allies made a reconnaissance towards Düppel. The Military Attaché of the French Embassy at Berlin has arrived at the Prussian head-quarters. Danish troops have been brought by a Danish steamer from Seeland to Fehmern. A Danish gunboat is stationed in Fehmern Sound, which enables the Danes to take up a similar flank position towards Holstein as they occupy upon Alsen towards Schleswig. Hanoverian sappers have been ordered to proceed from Rendsburg to erect batteries at Gluckstadt, there being reason to suppose that the Niels Juel will blockade the Elbe. Neustadt, in Holstein, is now blockaded. The making of uniforms for the proposed Schleswig-Holstein army was stopped on Monday, but on whose authority is not known. The working establishment has been removed from Kiel and transferred to some other place. On Friday Duke Frederick of Augustenburg received an address presented by a deputation from all parts of Schleswig. The Address stated that the people of Schleswig would accept no other Prince as their Sovereign than the Duke. In reply the Prince declared his intention of never surrendering his rights. The deputation consisted of 1600 members, some of whom were elected (on the principle of one member representing about 400 inhabitants of the province), while the rest had joined voluntarily. The Flensburger Zeitung publishes its Copenhagen news under the head of "Foreign Intelligence."

Oldenburg.—A treaty was signed on the 15th ult. between Prussia and Oldenburg, granting to Prussia the right of forming new commercial and military establishments in the Bay of Jahde. This treaty, which has long been opposed by the Duke of Oldenburg, is regarded as a sign of new combinations of great importance.

Hesse Darmstadt.—In the sitting of the Lower House on the 14th ult., the Government was called upon to press for the settlement in the Federal Diet of the Schleswig-Holstein succession question, which had been unaccountably delayed. It was also demanded that the Government should in any case at once recognise Duke Frederick of Augustenburg on its own behalf, and, in concert with the other Governments faithful to the Confederation, maintain the rights of the Diet and those of the Duchies and their Prince even by the adoption of extreme measures. The Chamber further desired that the Federal force occupying Holstein should be increased, and that the Diet should send troops to occupy Schleswig in common with the two great German Powers.

Wurtemberg.—In the sitting of the Second Chamber on Saturday the Minister, Herr von Hügel, said:—

"According to the most reliable intelligence a speedy termination of the war in Schleswig is not to be expected. Denmark is firmly resolved to oppose the most determined resistance to the claims both of Austria and Prussia and the Federal Diet."

Herr Hölder proposed:—

"That every facility be offered to the Government to enable it by the strongest measures, and especially by a union of the middle States, to bring the national cause to a successful issue." He also proposed that the discussion of the extraordinary military credit of 680,000 florins be postponed until the middle States really determine to take active proceedings.

The military credit was granted by a majority of 65 to 15.

Frankfort.—The Austro-Prussian proposition, that the command-in-chief of the army in Holstein should be transferred to Prussia, and that two new Civil Commissioners should be appointed by the two great German Powers, was put to the vote in the sitting of the Federal Diet on Thursday. Six votes only were given in its favour. Three votes, among which was Bavaria, proposed counter propositions, and seven were in favour of the proposition being referred to a committee. The latter course was adopted by the Diet.

Prussia.—The semi-official Nord-Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says:—

"The despatch of England inviting Prussia to a Conference was dated the 20th of January. The Prussian Cabinet replied in a Note dated the 31st ult., not rejecting in principle the propositions of England, but stipulating, as a preliminary condition to sending a representative to the Conference, the complete evacuation of Schleswig by the Danes."

The same journal of Monday says that there is a complete understanding between the two great German Powers on the Danish question, and that the Emperor of Austria has expressed to General Manteuffel his approval of the policy of Prussia, and his satisfaction that the friendly relations between the Cabinets of Vienna and Berlin are so fully re-established. It adds:—

"This understanding guarantees the energetic continuation of the policy which the two great Powers consider it right to pursue towards Denmark. It is, therefore, of minor importance whether the Conference takes place or not."

The Cross Journal publishes some remarks on the attitude of the French Cabinet, which it believes to be less peaceable and unbiassed than it was a short time ago. Observing the sudden change in the French press, which has occurred as by word of command, it expresses an opinion that it is necessary for Prussia to be on her guard:—

"The French papers speak of a pretended obscurity as to the aim of the war; of a survey of Kiel harbour and of the works of fortification there carried on; of ambitious tendencies of Prussia with respect to the German States, and of the traditional policy of France with respect to German freedom! At the same time Austria is manifestly spared and Prussia attacked. Whoever is acquainted with the circumstances of the French press knows what these indications mean; also at the French Court a disposition is said to have been lately shown to distinguish the Austrian Ambassador and treat the Prussian coolly."

Austria.—The Emperor received the popular deputation from Schleswig on Sunday. His Majesty, in reply to their Address, said:—

"I rejoice with you at the successes attained by the valour of the allied armies, whereby an end has been put to your and your compatriots' sufferings. The greatness of the sacrifices made in the interest of your cause affords you a fresh guarantee that not merely passing alleviation, but also lasting satisfaction, will be given to the just claims of your country. Providence has imposed duties upon me which I cannot permit desires threatening the general peace to override. I confidently hope that an honourable and assured future may be attained, in every way corresponding to the principles of right and the conditions of your welfare."

Galicia.—A telegram from Cracow, dated on Monday, states that Galicia and Cracow have been placed in a state of siege, and the laws for the protection of personal liberty and inviolability of domicile have been suspended. The reasons assigned for this measure are the existence of treasonable societies within the Austrian frontier, and the enlistments made for and assistance given to the Polish insurrection. An ordinance issued by the Governor on Monday orders all persons not entitled to wear arms to deliver them, together with all ammunition, to the public authorities within a fortnight, under penalty of fine or imprisonment. All persons not belonging to Cracow are ordered to obtain permission for their stay from the police within 48 hours.

Venetia.—A letter from Venice of the 25th ult., states that a proclamation from Kossuth is circulating among the Hungarians who form part of the Austrian army in Venetia. The ex-Dictator prays his countrymen to desert the Austrian flag, declaring that the Hungarians are about to be freed by an alliance with Italy. The proclamation adds that the King of Italy, who has merited the title of "gallant man" from his people, is preparing to lead his brave army against Austria, and that all Hungarians who desire the emancipation of their country from Austrian tyranny should rally round his flag. Kossuth tells them in conclusion, that there is a Hungarian Legion forming in Italy, and that is of pressing necessity to fill its ranks with devoted patriots. Some copies of this proclamation have fallen into the hands of the Austrian authorities, and are said to have spread so much alarm among them, that the Austrian Government has determined to increase the army corps in Venetia to 160,000 men. The semi-official General Correspondenz of Thursday, however, denies this statement, and positively declares that Austria has not the remotest intention of assuming the offensive.

Italy.—In the Chamber of Deputies on the 25th ult., the Minister for Foreign Affairs, in reply to a question, said that Denmark had adhered to the maritime rights agreed upon by the Treaty of Paris. The Italtan Government had been informed that Denmark had blockaded the ports of Schleswig and Holstein. The Minister assured the Chamber that nothing would be neglected for the protection of Italian subjects. In the sitting of Saturday the Minister of Finance brought in a bill providing for 1,500,000 lire of the debt incurred by the Bourbon Government in the Neapolitan provinces.

Greece.—The Greek National Assembly has empowered the Finance Minister to issue credit bonds for 3,000,000 drachmas, which will have a forced currency. Riots have taken place in Athens, owing to the editor of one of the papers having been insulted by the son of Chamberlain Sontzo. The Chamberlain has been dismissed from his post as implicated in the affair. Instructions have been sent to the Greek Ambassador in London to procure a modification of the treaty for the cession of the Ionian Islands.

Poland.—Fifteen hundred insurgents, under the command of Bossak, having occupied the town at Opatow, in the government of Radom, were attacked on the morning of the 22d ult. by a considerable Russian force. The engagement lasted the whole day. The Poles, who had barricaded themselves in the houses, inflicted a heavy loss upon the Russians. The latter received considerable reinforcements towards the evening, when the Poles retreated in good order under cover of the night to the forest of St. Croix. 40 houses in the town were reduced to ashes.

China.—Sir Harry Parkes has arrived at Point de Galle, on his way to Shanghai. Major Gordon's forces are inactive. Major Gordon has published his account of the capitulation of Soochow, and of a gross act of perfidy subsequently committed by the Footai. It states that just before the capitulation the Chung Wong, who may be called the Taiping Commander-in-Chief, held a council of war at Soochow, at which all the Taiping chiefs (or Wongs) were present. He suggested that as it was useless to fight against the English, both Soochow and Nanking should be evacuated, and that they should retire to the fastnesses of Kwangsi. This all agreed to except the Mo Wong, who had charge of the defence of Soochow, and who was determined to defend the city to the death. The Chung Wong then withdrew with all his men, and the other Wongs, excepting the Mo Wong, made overtures of surrender, promising to deliver the Mo Wong a prisoner. At a council of war, however, they came to a different conclusion, and slew the Mo Wong on his presidential seat. They then made terms, which were distinctly understood and agreed to by the Footai, General Ching, and Major Gordon. These terms embraced a full pardon for the Taiping chiefs and their followers. The city being entered under this capitulation, the Footai decapitated all the Wongs and gave the city over to plunder, which, to a certain extent, was indiscriminate massacre. It is thought that the treachery of the Imperialists will make the Taipings desperate, and encourage them in their resistance.

Brazils.—A change of Ministry has taken place at Rio. Senhor Zacarias, President of the Chamber, has been intrusted with the formation of a new Cabinet, which is composed as follows:—Zacarias, President of the Council and Minister of Justice; Carvalho, Minister of War; José Bonifacio, Minister of Interior; Paco Barreto, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Dias Viera, Minister of Marine; José Mariano de Mattos, Minister of War; Domiciano Leito Ribeiro, Minister of Agriculture and Public Works.

San Domingo.—Advices from St. Domingo represent the insurgents to be much discouraged. Fresh reinforcements were constantly arriving, and great hopes were entertained of reducing the insurgents to subjection.

Japan.—Advices from Japan to the 7th January state that the Tycoon's Palace at Jeddo had been burnt. It was set on fire on Christmas day. A large portion of the town was destroyed by another fire on the 1st January.

United States.—General Meade left Washington on the 15th ult. to resume the permanent command of the army of the Potomac. It is said that all idea of change during the campaign has been abandoned. It is feared at Washington that General Lee meditates another movement against that city and Pennsylvania. Refugees assert that the Confederates in Western Virginia threaten a raid into Ohio. After slight skirmishing, General Sherman occupied Jackson, Mississippi, on the 5th, and has since advanced beyond Meridian, between Bishop Polk's army and Montgomery and Marietta, and destroyed the bridges on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, severing the connection between Polk's forces. A severe engagement occurred on the 13th at Enterprise, the result of which is unknown. The Federal cavalry has defeated the Confederates between Jackson and Meridian. Johnston has concentrated his forces at Dalton, and advanced his pickets to Ringold. The Confederates have been twice repulsed in an attack upon the Federals opposite Natchez. Polk, however, is believed to have received reinforcements from Dalton. General Longstreet is reported to be retreating beyond Frenchbroad River. The Governor of Georgia has ordered the citizens to move with their property to the east side of Chattahonga River. General Gilmore has returned from Florida to Port Royal. The Florida expedition was successful. The Federals advanced into the interior, capturing 8 guns, 100 prisoners, and a large amount of cotton property. General Banks, in an order dated the 3d ult., re-establishes a system of compulsory negro labour in Louisiana, under specified conditions. He also declares that in the approaching State elections all persons in his department must vote for the Union candidates; that indifference will be treated as crime, and faction as treason. President Davis has issued an address to the army thanking the troops for their alacrity. He said that "The spring campaign opens under auspices well calculated to sustain their hopes. Assured success awaits their struggle for liberty and independence, and for the preservation of all that renders life desirable to honourable men." President Davis has signed a bill prohibiting the export of tobacco, rice, sugar, and molasses, except by special permit; also a bill prohibiting the import of luxuries after the present month, and fixing the maximum price at which articles of silk, wool, flax, and cotton may be imported. 110 Federal officers who had escaped from Richmond Prison have arrived at Fort Monroe. The House of Representatives had passed, by a majority of 21, a resolution favouring an amendment to the constitution by abolishing slavery wherever it now exists in the United States, and prohibiting its extension in any part thereof for ever. The New York Herald asserts that President Lincoln will issue a proclamation of universal emancipation, including the Border States, on the 22d inst. The Supreme Court has decided against Mr. Vallandigham's application to annul the sentence passed upon him by the military court. Several Republican members of Congress have denounced President Lincoln's policy of establishing State Governments under the amnesty proclamation as illegal. The committee of ways and means has reported against the bill authorising the Secretary of the Treasury to sell gold, provided he retains a sufficient amount to pay the interest of the public debt. The steam-blockade runners Nutfield, Spunkie, Dee, Fanny and Jennie, Wild Dayrell, and Denbigh, have been run ashore and destroyed, and the City of Petersburg, Emily, and Cumberland, have been captured off Wilmington. A brig, with 700 slaves on board, was captured on the 9th off North Side, Cuba. It is reported that the Federal Government has received information that Confederate vessels have left Asia for the Pacific. An attack on San Francisco is feared. President Lincoln has declared Brownsville, Texas, open to trade; the entry of spirits and articles contraband of war are forbidden. American consuls will grant licences to foreign vessels for Brownsville.

MEXICO.—Advices from Vera Cruz to the 1st of February state that the insurrection in favour of French intervention had triumphed at all points in Yucatan, and General Bazaine was returning to the city of Mexico. The adherents of Juarez had almost everywhere been dispersed. Campeachy has capitulated, and the ruin of the Juarez party, which had its last resource in that city, has been the consequence. Letters from Matamoras give accounts of another revolution in that city on the 13th of January, which had placed Cortinas in power. Ruiz and his followers fled to Texas. During the contest the Federal General Herron, at Brownsville, sent three regiments of soldiers and a battery of artillery to Matamoras to protect American citizens there.

HAWAII.—The King of Hawaii, who had been in ill health for some months, died unexpectedly from the exhaustion produced by diarrhœa on November 30. He was the mainstay of the English mission, which went out a year ago at his request, and which he regarded as the great means of their regeneration. Prince Lot Kamehameha, the brother of the late King, has succeeded under the title of Kamehameha V. He has confirmed the Prime Minister, Mr. Wylhe, in his office, and given assurances to the bishop of his support of the mission.

Parliament.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

FRIDAY.—The Crawley Court Martial.—Lord COLVILLE called attention to the proceedings of the Deputy Judge-Advocate at the late court martial, and complained that he had not only prepared the articles of the prosecution, but had acted as legal adviser to the prosecutor, and drawn up the reply to the defence.—Earl DE GREY and RIPON said that the proceedings were conducted in accordance with precedent, and that both Mr. Denison and Sir A. Horsford had discharged a painful and difficult duty in an honourable and impartial manner. In 1860 the Judge Advocate-General advised a change of the system, and the question was now under the consideration of the Government whether the practice might not be improved.—The Duke of CAMBRIDGE said that officially the Deputy Judge-Advocate was counsel to the military prosecutor, and he thought that the trial had been fairly and ably conducted. He took the opportunity of disclaiming any intention of reflecting upon Sir Hugh Rose or Sir William Mansfield, and expressed his regret that they should have put any other construction upon his orders.—Lord CHELMSFORD was of opinion that an assessor who ought to have been perfectly impartial had been converted into a vehement prosecutor.—The Earl of LONGFORD thought that Colonel Crawley was entitled to generous sympathy for the obloquy which had been cast upon him.—The Earl of SHAFTESBURY did not regret the course he had taken in insisting on the trial, especially as the result had been so satisfactory, and the humblest soldier must now feel that any wrong done to him would be rigidly inquired into. West Hartlepool Railway.—In answer to the Earl of DONOUGHMORE, the LORD CHANCELLOR said that the Attorney-General was of opinion that, under all the circumstances of the case against the late directors of the West Hartlepool Railway Company, no conviction could be expected on a trial, and as the parties had in some respects condoned the offence by the compromise of last session, he had not thought it advisable to institute a Government prosecution.

MONDAY.—Sale of Benefices Act.—The Earl of DERBY called the attention of the Lord Chancellor to a short statement in reference to the Sale of Benefices Act, in order to counteract an erroneous impression on the subject which appeared to prevail out of doors. A portion of the money realised from the sale of small benefices was, he understood, paid over to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and there was an impression that the commissioners could dispose of it as they pleased. This, however, was not the fact, as they were required to apply the whole of it to the augmentation of the livings sold under the Act, and could not apply it to the augmentation of small benefices generally.—The LORD CHANCELLOR said that Lord Derby had correctly stated the facts with regard to the provisions of the Act. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners were merely trustees for the money paid into their hands. The Paris Conspiracy.—The Marquis of WESTMEATH called attention to the case of the four prisoners charged with an intention to assassinate the Emperor of the French, and inquired whether, if the Government were morally convinced that Mazzini or any other person in this country had aided the conspirators in that detestable crime, they had such a power under the Alien Act as would enable them to deal with the matter.—Earl RUSSELL said that he was not justified in stating that Mazzini, or any other person living in this country, was guilty of the detestable crime of plotting against the life of the Emperor of the French. Knowing nothing whatever of the existence of any plot in this country, and having no such powers under the Alien Act as the noble marquis supposed, the only answer he could give him was that he had no intention of taking any steps in the matter.—Earl GRANVILLE laid upon the table the report of the Committee on Metropolitan Railways, and in doing so stated that all the recommendations contained in the document, save one, were unanimous. He also bore testimony to the satisfactory manner in which the Committee had co-operated to attain the object in view.—On the motion for the second reading of the Insane Prisoners Bill, Lord ST. LEONARDS referred to the case of Townley at some length, contending that he was perfectly sane when he committed the murder, and had never been otherwise.—Lord WODEHOUSE objected to the visiting justices being required to put the machinery of the Bill in action, and thought it would be better for the Secretary of State to issue a special commission to ascertain the condition of an insane criminal. The Bill was then read a second time.

TUESDAY.—Federal Recruiting in Ireland.—The Marquis of CLANRICARDE, in moving for copies of any papers that might have been received by the Government relative to recruiting in Ireland for the army of the Federal States, inquired whether any remonstrance against such a proceeding had been addressed to the authorities at Washington. It was, he said, notorious that American agents had been enlisting recruits in Ireland, and as it was in violation of the principle of neutrality and a breach of international law, he urged that it was the duty of the Government to put a stop to it.—Earl RUSSELL said he had no doubt that any attempt on the part of the Federals to enlist recruits for their army in Ireland would be a breach of the principle of neutrality, and that it was an offence against our own municipal laws, which, if detected, would subject the offender to punishment, and justify strong complaints to the Government of the United States. On more than one occasion he had already complained that such practices were going on on behalf of the Federal Government in Ireland, and he had opened a correspondence with the United States Minister on the subject. Mr. Adams had, however, indignantly denied the truth of such allegations; and having received that denial, he felt obliged to wait until some case occurred in which proof was forthcoming.—The Earl of DONOUGHMORE said that the conduct of the Foreign Office in this matter contrasted most unfavourably with the course they had adopted in reference to the steam rams.—The Fenian Brotherhood.—The Earl of DERBY inquired whether the Government had received any information from the authorities at Cork and Dublin that persons were in the habit of assembling in those places for the purpose of going through military drill and exercise; and if so, whether they had taken any measures to put down such illegal proceedings.—Earl GRANVILLE replied that the Dublin authorities had directed the attention of the police to the proceedings of the Fenian Brotherhood, and there was reason to believe that it was a perfectly contemptible organisation. The motion for papers was then withdrawn.

THURSDAY.—The Danish Question.—The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH postponed till Monday the question he had placed on the paper on the Danish question. The Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.

FRIDAY.—The Rolls' Court.—The LORD CHANCELLOR brought in a Bill to amend a Bill passed in 1861 for appointing an additional chief clerk to the Master of the Rolls. The gentleman appointed by the Act of 1861 had been promoted, and it was necessary to appoint a successor. The Bill was read a first time. Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill was read a first time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—Taxation in Ireland.—Colonel DUNNE called attention to the subject of taxation in Ireland, and moved for a select committee to consider how far it is in accordance with the provisions of the treaty of union or just in reference to the resources of the country. The motion was seconded by Mr. HENNESSY, and supported by Sir E. GROGAN and Mr. LONGFIELD.—After a short discussion, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that the Government would not oppose an inquiry demanded by so many Irish members, but the committee would have to inquire not only into the taxation borne by Ireland, but into that from which she is exempt, the amount of which was considerable. The motion was then agreed to. The House went into committee on the Malt for Cattle Bill, the clauses of which were agreed to with amendments, a clause moved by Sir E. DERING, allowing persons engaged in agriculture to malt barley for the consumption of their own stock, without taking out a maltster's license, being, after a long discussion, withdrawn. The Land Drainage (Provisional Orders) Bill was read a second time. The Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill passed through committee; and the Inclosure Bill and the County Court (Ireland) Bill were read a second time. Kertch Prize Money.—Sir JOHN HAY moved for a return of the names of the flag officers to whom the Kertch grant had been distributed, with the proportions in which it was divided.—Lord CLARENCE PAGET consented to produce the papers, and said that the Duke of Somerset could not, with regard to precedent, have acted in any manner other than that which he had done. The return was ordered. The select committee on Dockyards was nominated.

MONDAY.—The Duty on Malt.—Mr. MORRITT gave notice that on Tuesday week he would move that the duty on malt ought to be reduced, and that the subject had an imperative claim on the attention of the Government. The Paris Conspiracy.—Mr. COX called attention to a statement made by the Procureur-Imperial in the late trial of the conspirators against the life of the Emperor of the French, from which it appeared that a letter written by Greco, one of the accused, to a M. Flowers was addressed to that person at a house in Thurloe Square, which was the private residence of Mr. Stansfeld, the member for Halifax. Some explanation was, he thought, due to the House in reference to this subject.—Mr. STANSFELD said he was surprised and indignant at the speech which had been delivered by the Procureur-Imperial, and by which it appeared that the Crown prosecutor of a friendly Power had insinuated that a member of the British Parliament, and a Minister of the Crown, could have any knowledge of, much less participation in, the atrocious crime with which the prisoners were charged. It was quite true that he lived at Number 34, Thurloe Square, but he knew nothing whatever of the prisoner Greco, or of the M. Flowers whose letters were addressed to his house. He had, however, been on intimate terms with M. Mazzini for 18 years, and he was persuaded that no man had ever been more cruelly or wrongfully maligned than he was. As regarded the allegation that Mazzini had incited to assassination, he was satisfied that no baser libel could be pronounced.—Mr. HENNESSY, Mr. BENTINCK, and Mr. Alderman ROSE asked for further information with reference to the friendly relations between Mr. Stansfeld and M. Mazzini, but Mr. STANSFELD declined to make any further statement. The Danish Question.—Mr. DISRAELI called attention to the position of the country in reference to the Dano-German question. He severely censured the conduct of Earl Russell at the Conference at Vienna in 1853, and argued that from the experience of the past, under circumstances of an analogous character, it was not to be expected that he would appear in a very favourable character in reference to the present question. So much inconsistency and contrariety was to be found in the policy of the noble lord, that the country was naturally anxious to know what was its real position with regard to the affairs of Europe. The papers on the table threw no light whatever on the engagements into which it was rumoured the Government had entered with Denmark, or with France. What did her Majesty's Government mean to do, for at present there was nothing to guide, enlighten, or animate the country. The Government appeared to be in the position of drivers who had lost the road—the reins had fallen from their hands and the horses were wild.—Lord PALMERSTON said that Mr. Disraeli never was so great, and, in his own opinion, so successful as when he had an opportunity of attacking an absent man. What had happened at Vienna in 1853 had redounded to the credit of Earl Russell, and did not furnish any material for the hostile criticisms passed upon it. Mr. Disraeli appeared to think that if he and his friends had been in office, instead of her Majesty's present advisers, things would be very different. This was perfectly true, for a state of war would probably have been substituted for the peace and prosperity which now prevailed throughout the country. Further papers in reference to the Danish question would be laid upon the table next day, and Mr. Disraeli might derive from them some information of a nature calculated to modify his hastily-conceived opinions. All he could say was that the object of the Government from first to last had been to conciliate differences, modify exasperations, and, if possible, bring about the peaceable settlement of a question which threatened to end in a European war.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD complained that Lord Palmerston, while professing to reply to Mr. Disraeli, had in fact refused to give the House that information which the right hon. gentleman had invited him to give, and which Parliament wished to ascertain. He denied that the Opposition wanted war. But they mistrusted a Government which had brought the country to the edge of war, and whose alternate bragging and subserviency had placed it in a position of unparalleled humiliation. The Budget.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that as the accounts of the financial year would not terminate until the 5th of April, it would be impossible to fix an earlier day for the budget than Thursday, the 7th of April. Navy Estimates.—The House then went into committee of supply and resumed the consideration of the navy estimates. The votes for 71,950 seamen and marines, and for their wages, victuals, and clothing, were agreed to after considerable discussion, involving the chief points in reference to naval administration which formed the topic of debate on Friday evening. On the motion that 168,605*l.* be granted to defray the salaries of the officers and contingent expenses of the Board of Admiralty, Mr. LINDSAY moved to reduce the vote by 5800*l.* the salaries of the five junior Lords, but after some discussion the proposition was negatived by 109 to 10. On the vote of 71,276*l.* for the scientific branch of the navy, Mr. A. SMITH moved to reduce the amount by 2300*l.* for the School of Naval Architecture. The amendment was negatived on a division by 100 to 15. Several other votes were agreed to, and the Chairman reported progress and obtained leave to sit again. The Vestry Cess Abolition (Ireland) Bill passed through committee with amendments.—Sir R. PEEL obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law relating to Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes in Ireland.

TUESDAY.—Civil Service Estimates.—Mr. MARSH moved a resolution, "That the Civil Service and Miscellaneous Estimates have been for many years rapidly increasing and ought to be reduced." He observed that between the years 1835 and 1863 the Estimates had acquired an augmentation of 5,412,000*l.*, a sum that would furnish the means of a very sensible reduction of the taxation of the country. He considered that the nation did not get a full equivalent for the increase, and that nothing but necessity would warrant it. He analysed the Estimates, and suggested instances in which that rule was not observed, as in the matter of compensations for loss of offices, and in some cases of superannuations. He objected to the large sum paid out of the Imperial Exchequer for the Irish police, and to the increasing expenditure for Science and Art, which in his opinion would thrive better without Government encouragement. Too much, he thought, was expended by the Government upon education, the vote having risen from 65,000*l.* in 1835 to 1,110,000*l.* in 1863. Under the present system, although the material condition of the people had been greatly ameliorated, their moral condition had not improved so much as it ought to have done. A needless expenditure too, he believed, was incurred for the suppression of the slave trade.—Mr. PEEL said he was not surprised at the desire of Mr. Marsh to see the amount of these Estimates reduced, and no doubt if his views could be carried out, the Civil Service Estimates might be very greatly reduced indeed. But he could not think that the House would adopt those views without considerable hesitation. Much of the increase in the Civil Service Estimates was more apparent than real, and so far from its being a matter of regret, it should be viewed with satisfaction, since it arose from the carrying out the principle of bringing as much as possible of the expenditure of the country under the eye of Parliament. He explained in detail the transfers of charge which had been made from other branches of the revenue accounts to the Civil Service Estimates, and other arrangements in the public accounts, which, while they relieved other heads of the expenditure, enhanced the apparent produce of the revenue, augmented the Civil Service charges, showing, as he proceeded, the actual sum of each transfer, or that thrown by each new financial arrangement upon the Civil Service, the aggregate amount leaving only 600,000*l.* as the debateable increase of these Estimates, part of which arose from exceptional charges.—Mr. Torrens adverted to the heavy judicial charges at the Cape of Good Hope connected with the suppression of the slave trade.—After some remarks by Mr. Newdegate and Mr. W. Ewart, Mr. Marsh said he was satisfied with the discussion, and withdrew his motion.—Lord C. Paget obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the law relating to Naval Prize; a Bill to provide for agency and distribution of Naval Prize; and a Bill to repeal certain Naval Prize Acts.—The Court of Judiciary (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. The report of the Committee of Supply was brought up and agreed to. The Malt for Cattle Bill and the Conveyancers, &c. (Ireland) Bill were read a third time and passed.

Wednesday.—On the order for going into committee on the Chain Cables and Anchors Bill, moved by Mr. Laird, Mr. M. Gibson moved that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee.—Mr. Crawford seconded the motion. After some remarks by Mr Jackson, Mr. Laird assented, and, after a short conversation, the Bill was referred to a Select Committee.

Thursday. Military Force.—On the order for going into a Committee of Supply, Mr. Baillie called attention to the reduction of our military forces, contending that the army was not at the present time large enough to permit of the ordinary relief to troops serving abroad; and that its reduction impaired the influence of the country, which ought to be prepared for war, while it crippled the foreign policy of the Government.—Colonel Edwards moved a resolution that the discontinuance in the present year of the assembling of the Yeomanry Cavalry for the accustomed period of six days' training on permanent duty, would be detrimental to the efficiency of the force, and contrary to the recommendation of the Committee appointed by Lord Herbert in 1861, and is inexpedient. He complained of the injustice done to the gallant Yeomanry force of 14,000 men, and appealed to both sides of the House to support the resolution.—Sir M. W. Ridley seconded the motion, which was opposed by the Marquis of Hartington and supported by General Peel and Sir W. Miles.—Lord Palmerston said the Government were fully sensible of the value of the Yeomanry force, and the determination not to call them out this year did not imply any want of consideration for their services. He hoped the House would not forbid this saving of 46,000*l.* On a division the resolution was negatived by a single vote, the numbers being 158 to 157. Police Espionage.—Mr. Roebuck called attention to the report of the inspectors of constabulary, ordered to be printed on the 9th ult., stating that the police in the country were employed by the conductors of those modern nuisances styled private inquiry offices and trade protection societies, to investigate the private affairs of individuals. He asked if the Home Office had taken any steps to prevent this scandalous system of espionage.—Sir G. Grey said the practice was a most objectionable one, and he read the circular he had issued on the subject. Admiralty Interference with Elections.—Mr. Ferrand called attention to the presence of the present Controller of the Navy in the uniform of his rank, when Captain of the Steam Reserve, at the Devonport election in 1859, and to his having taken an active part in its proceedings. He also referred to what he considered the persecution of the late Mr A. Stafford, to a placard issued by Sir Baldwin Walker in 1859, and to other topics connected with election matters at Devonport, commenting at great length on those topics, and especially upon the appearance in uniform of Admiral Robinson at the election of 1859.—Sir J. Hay read a letter from Admiral Robinson stating that there was not a word of truth in the allegation.—Lord C. Paget, after giving explanations respecting promotions in the dockyards, defended Admiral Robinson and Sir B. Walker from the attacks of Mr. Ferrand, declaring that his charges were unfounded and slanderous, and he would rather believe the word of Sir Baldwin Walker than the oath of Mr. Ferrand.—Mr. Ferrand moved that the words "unfounded and slanderous" be taken down by the clerk of the table as unparliamentary.—At the suggestion of Sir J. Pakington, however, Lord C. Paget withdrew the obnoxious words, and the discussion was continued.—After some remarks by Sir A. Buller, Sir J. Pakington, Lord J. Manners, and Mr. Osborne, the subject dropped. Army Estimates.—The House having at length gone into Committee, the Marquis of Hartington moved that a number of land forces, not exceeding 146,766 (including 9347 of all ranks to be employed in the United Kingdom with the depôts of regiments serving in India, but exclusive of the numbers actually serving within her Majesty's Indian possessions), be maintained during the year ending the 31st of March, 1865. He observed that the estimate professed to be a peace estimate, and was not framed upon the expectation of any immediate prospect of the country going to war. The Government had therefore felt themselves at liberty to reduce the force where it was possible without impairing its efficiency, or the power of increasing its numbers if necessary; and he was happy to say that that reduction had been accomplished, not by diminishing the battalions of infantry or diminishing the infantry force at all, for, on the contrary, that branch of the service would be increased by 1000 men. The number of battalions at home would be 41; in the colonies 45; and in India, 55. At present there were only 34 battalions at home, but four more were on their way from the Ionian Islands, and three from India. He detailed at some length the steps which had been taken to improve the condition of the soldier, and to make the service generally as efficient as possible, regard being had to the judicious distribution of the army, and the economical administration of the department.—General Peel criticised the estimates, and after some remarks by Mr. Bentinck, Mr. Williams, Colonel Sykes, Colonel North, Mr. Childers, and other members, the vote for the number of men for the service of the year was agreed to. The House having resumed, Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill was read a third time and passed. The Bills of Exchange (Ireland) Bill was read a second time.

Friday.—Captain Speke's Discoveries.—In answer to Sir W. Mills, Lord Palmerston said that her Majesty's Government while doing every justice to Captain Speke, did not think that he had accomplished more than other successful travellers, so as to warrant the Government in conferring on him any special mark of favour. Railways.—In answer to Mr. Hassard, Mr. M. Gibson said that he should next week call the attention of the House to the report of the joint Committee, and move that certain Railway Bills should not be proceeded with during the present session. Public Business.—In answer to Sir J. Pakington, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that he proposed to take the contested part of the Annuities Bill on Monday. China.—Colonel Sykes rose to move a resolution on China.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

The Metropolitan Railway Schemes.—The joint committee of both Houses of Parliament appointed to consider the best method of dealing with the railway schemes proposed to be sanctioned within the limits of the metropolis have presented their report, from which the following are extracts:—

"The railway schemes that have been referred for the consideration of the joint committee are of extraordinary magnitude for so limited an area as the metropolitan railway district, extending over a length of 174 miles in the aggregate, involving the raising a capital of nearly 33,000,000*l.* in shares and of 11,000,000*l.* by loan, creating alarm among the holders of a vast amount of property, and interfering during the construction of the proposed works, with many important public thoroughfares. They include the construction of not less than four new railway bridges across the Thames, two of them of gigantic size, below London Bridge. It is stated by the surveyor to the Commissioners of Sewers of the city of London that the lands and buildings scheduled in the city of London for the proposed railway schemes comprise about one-fourth of the entire area of the city. The committee are of opinion that the following Bills or parts of Bills should not be proceeded with during the present Session:—Victoria Station and Thames Embankment, Oxford Street and City, London Main Trunk, Underground Metropolitan Grand Union (the portion south of Thames Street), Charing Cross (Northern), Charing Cross (Western), London Union, Metropolitan District (a portion forming the outer circuit), Tottenham and Farringdon Street. The committee recommend that the fees which have been incurred in respect of the said Bills be remitted. The two first-named of these lines are proposed to be worked on the pneumatic principle—a principle hitherto untried as applied to railway passenger carriages, and it seems undesirable that the experiment should first be made in an important public thoroughfare. They are passenger railways, and are intended to relieve the streets of omnibuses and cab traffic. The necessity for any such lines has been to some extent lessened, supposing the railways forming the inner circuit scheme, referred to in a subsequent part of this report, be sanctioned. The London Main Trunk Underground Railway proposes to provide a more central station for the Great Eastern, an object which is also sought to be accomplished by the Great Eastern itself by the Great Eastern Metropolitan Station and Railway Bill. The Select Committee of the House of Lords on metropolitan railway communication of last Session recommended that the Great Eastern should be allowed to establish a more central station than it has at present. The portion of the Metropolitan Grand Union south of Thames Street which the committee recommend should not be proceeded with involves a high-level bridge over the river below London Bridge. The connexion between the railways north and south of the river at the end of the metropolis might, it appears to the committee, be better effected by the East London through the Thames Tunnel and the proposed abandonment approved by the promoters, and the committee recommend that they should be allowed to amend their estimate, and be permitted to withdraw a portion of their deposit. Three schemes on this list, the Charing Cross (Western), the London Union, and the portions of the metropolitan district railways proposed to be postponed, in addition to other objections, require the construction of bridges across the Thames, one of them being a high level bridge below London Bridge. It is further to be observed with reference to these schemes that railway communication between the lines north and south of the Thames already exists on the Westminster side of the metropolis by means of the West London and West London extension railways, and another line is in course of construction through the centre of London by the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, which when completed will unite their south London system with the Metropolitan Railway at the Farringdon Street Station, thereby giving them a communication with the Great Northern line, and thus of necessity connecting the Charing Cross and South Eastern Railways at Charing Cross with any of the main lines to the north, as proposed by any of the last-mentioned schemes, is not urgent. The Tottenham and Farringdon Street Railway, by which it is proposed to connect the Cambridge line of the Great Eastern with the station at Farringdon Street, is open to the same objection urged against the Charing Cross (Northern), and the Tottenham and Hampstead (extension to Charing Cross) in that it tends to create a great central station, inasmuch as the Great Northern, the Midland, and the London, Chatham and Dover Railway, are already brought in direct station communication with the Metropolitan Railway at Farringdon Street. As the Great Eastern Railway is another scheme for an approved station, which the committee recommend should proceed, it appears desirable that this Bill should be postponed, at all events until it can be known by experience whether any inconvenient amount of traffic will be concentrated at Farringdon Street by the lines already to meet there. The estimated capital required for the construction of the schemes above proposed to be postponed amounts to 18,500,000*l.* in the aggregate, exclusive of what was proposed to be raised by loan for the purpose of the undertaking. The remainder of the sum of estimated expenditure above referred to may be expected to be reduced by the rejection of some of the schemes allowed to proceed.

Without expressing any opinion as to the merits of the following Bills, the committee recommend that they should be proceeded with in the ordinary course, being only improvements of existing lines or works connecting links of a very limited extent, for enlargement of stations in no way conflicting with any comprehensive system of metropolitan railways, viz.:—Great Northern and Victoria Station, London and Blackwall (Extension); London, Brighton, and South Coast (new lines in Battersea); Great Northern (No. 1 Barnet Branch); London and North-Western (additional powers); London and South-Western (additional works); North London (additional powers); London, Chatham, and Dover (No. 1); London, Chatham, and Dover (No. 2); Great Eastern (junctions, except junction No. 8); Midland and St. Pancras branch; Metropolitan (additional powers). The committee also recommend that the Metropolitan and St. John's Wood should be allowed to proceed, as it is a line that passes through a not very populous but increasing district without interfering with much property, and in no way competing with any other scheme. The committee might here remark that it is proposed to be constructed as a single line only. The committee also recommend that the Hammersmith, Midland, and North-Western, and Charing Cross Junction shall be allowed to proceed. This scheme is in some degree open to an objection already referred to, that it tends to create a central station at Charing Cross. It, however, proposes an addition to the railway, which is to be constructed wholly in tunnel, to form three new streets, one of them of a very important character, in continuation of Tottenham Court Road from Oxford Street, in a direct line to St. Martin's Lane, near Aldridge's Repository, and from thence to the Thames Embankment, near the Charing Cross Railway Station. This new line of thoroughfare would be a substitute for the present objectionable road through Seven Dials and High Street, St. Giles, and be a great public improvement. The combination of new streets in crowded parts of the metropolis, with the construction of new railways, was recommended in the report of the Lords' Committee last Session. The committee are of opinion that if the Select Committee to which the Bill for these schemes may be referred should see fit to sanction the scheme, they should do so only on condition that the new streets above referred to should be constructed contemporaneously with the railway, and that provision should be made in the Bill for insuring its completion. The Committee concur in the opinion expressed by the Select Committee of the House of Lords on metropolitan railway communication last Session in their third report, that, with a view to the distribution of passenger traffic arriving by the main lines of railway coming within the metropolis, and also the relieving the crowded streets by the absorption of a large portion of the omnibus and cab traffic, the completion of the inner circuit of railways is desirable. It was estimated by the evidence before the committee that great additional accommodation, especially for the labouring classes, is daily becoming more necessary, while there is no prospect of the present ordinary means of conveyance being at all adequate to future wants, and they are of opinion that the following schemes which contribute towards the formation of such a circuit may properly be proceeded with. Metropolitan District Railways (the portion forming the inner circuit 32, 33, 34, and junctions 7, 8, and 9). Metropolitan Railway (Trinity Square, Extension). Metropolitan Railway (Notting Hill and Brompton Extension) Metropolitan Grand Union (portion North of the Thames). The committee are also of opinion that the following schemes—viz., the East London, Great Eastern (Metropolitan stations and railways) Great Eastern (junction No. 8), North London (Kingsland and Tottenham line), Walthamstow, Clapton, and City may be properly proceeded with, and as the schemes more or less enter into communication with, or compete or conflict in levels with these schemes above referred to, as designed to form the inner circuit, and with each other, the committee are of opinion that all the above schemes may with advantage be grouped together, and be referred to the same select committee. In making the recommendations the committee are of opinion that the greatest accommodation to the public will not be secured by treating the two schemes which pursue almost the same line from Kensington to Brompton to the City merely as competing schemes, one of which is to be preferred to the exclusion of the other. The Committee are of opinion that the promoters of these schemes should be recommended to communicate together and with the surveyors of the City and Metropolitan Board of Works, and devise the most perfect line which their several plans will admit of. By a relaxation of the standing orders such revised plan may be embodied in one Bill. The Metropolitan Railway (Trinity Square Extension), and the Western branches of the East London Railway should also be part of the proposed consultation. By such a course much useless expenditure would be saved, and the interests of the Metropolis far better secured than by taking the chance of selection of one among the competing lines. The committee observe with regret that two of the schemes which they have recommended should be allowed to proceed through Finsbury Circus in open cutting. They are, however, informed that the promoters of both are willing to substitute a covered way for the open cutting. In the event of the select committee finding it desirable to adopt either of these lines in preference to those which do not interfere with the Circus, the committee recommend that effectual provision shall be made by which the time to elapse between the breaking up of any part of the garden and the completion of the works there and the proper restoration of the enclosure shall be as short as possible. Although the committee have recommended that those portions of the metropolitan district railways scheme which are designed to form the outer circuit shall not be proceeded with, they concur with the House of Lords' Committee of last Session in thinking an outer circuit desirable, and they are of opinion that this object might be accomplished by uniting the existing railways on the eastern side of the metropolis with one another, and connecting those of them which are situate on the north side of the Thames with the railways on the south side, making use for this purpose of the Thames Tunnel. For this purpose it would be necessary for the East London to be in connection with the North London, the Great Eastern, and London and Blackwall Railways. This combination, taken in connection with the existing lines on the west and south of the metropolis, as suggested by the secretary of the London and North-Western Railway Company in his evidence before the committee, would complete the outer circuit, but it would be further necessary that mutual facilities to be secured by legislative enactment should be afforded by the several companies for interchange of traffic. In order to give the public the full extent of the system of intercommunication such as that which has been suggested, it would be desirable that the select committee to whom the metropolitan schemes in question may be referred should require that such modifications may be made in the schemes that may be sanctioned as may be necessary for effecting the proposed combination, and also that a clause should be inserted in the Bills of all railway companies having termini within the metropolitan district, for securing a mutual interchange of facilities for working the traffic upon railways in that district on equitable terms among themselves, and without any undue preference, the terms to be settled in case of difference by the Board of Trade, or an arbitrator to be appointed by that department. A clause should also, they think, be inserted in each of the Bills providing that railways having their termini within the metropolis shall be subject to the provisions of any Act to be passed in the present or any future Session for the regulation of railways within the metropolis. The committee are of opinion that some of the provisions of the Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, require provisions in relation to the metropolitan arrangements, and they recommend the introduction of a Bill for that purpose. They desire also to direct attention to a suggestion of Colonel Yolland's report to the Board of Trade as to the expediency of requiring all plans for railways within the Metropolitan Railway district being drawn to the same datum line. The committee are of opinion that in the present Session such of the Bills proposing to sanction railway communication within the limits of the metropolis as are to be proceeded with should commence in the House of Commons." The report concludes by stating that a map, showing the existing and proposed railways in the metropolis, accompanies the report, and that the Committee have directed the minutes of evidence taken before them, together with the appendix, to be reported.

THE MISSION OF SIR MOSES MONTEFIORE TO MOROCCO.—Sir Moses Montefiore returned to Gibraltar from the coast of Barbary in her Majesty's ship Magicienne on the 17th ult. His efforts on behalf of the Jews in the Sultan's dominions have been fully successful. He has obtained an Imperial edict, the effect of which cannot fail to improve the position of the Jews of the interior, and otherwise to advance the cause of civilisation.

ELECTION OF CITY ARCHITECT.—A Court of Common Council was held on Friday, to elect an architect as successor to the late Mr. Bunning. There were 12 candidates, but in consequence of resignation or ineligibility the number was reduced to six, and eventually the contest lay between Mr. Horace Jones and Mr. Richard Bell. The final result of the poll was a majority of 13 for Mr. Jones, who was declared duly elected. The salary of the office is 1500*l.* a-year.

ST. THOMAS'S HOSPITAL.—The selection of Stangate and the conditional contract for the purchase of the new ground to be gained by the Southern Embankment of the Thames as a site for the new Hospital, received the sanction of Vice Chancellor Page Wood on Saturday. By the act of Parliament which authorised the sale of the old hospital to the Charing Cross Railway the governors of the hospital were empowered to select a site for another, subject to the approval of the Court of Chancery. They accordingly selected, with the sanction of their medical officers, the land to be recovered from the river at Stangate, abutting on the south end of Westminster Bridge, and nearly opposite the Houses of Parliament. Against this selection the corporation of the City of London appealed to the Court of Chancery, alleging that by ancient charter they had the control over the hospital, and objecting to the proposed site as unhealthy. The Vice-Chancellor held that the rights of the City were, so far as the selection of site was concerned, set aside by the terms of the Act of Parliament authorising the sale of the old hospital; and that no such presumption of unhealthiness in the site had been made out as to warrant the interference of the Court on that score. One great hospital of Europe, the Hôtel Dieu at Paris, was on the banks of a river, and that was confessedly healthier than many which seemed to have greater advantages. The result would be that the choice of site already made would be approved, and the contract confirmed.

NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting of this Association was held on Saturday at Willis's Rooms, the Duke of Cambridge, as president of the Association, in the chair. There was an unusually large attendance of members, and great interest appeared to be taken in the proceedings. His Royal Highness congratulated the members on their position and prospects. Though their income was small they had always contrived to keep their expenditure within it, and he was happy to say it continued to expand yearly. The prizes for shooting had also been increased last year, and he found that the number of competitors for those prizes had also considerably increased. Altogether he thought the association was in an excellent position. The meeting was afterwards addressed by several volunteer officers, and various practical suggestions were made and favourably received by the meeting.

SALE OF THE GREAT EASTERN AND HER STORES.—The sale of the stores of the Great Ship terminated on Tuesday. All the articles realised high prices, and it is estimated that the proceeds of the sale will amount to nearly 4000*l.* The ship herself had previously been sold by auction to Mr. Yates on behalf of the Great Eastern Steam-ship Company (Limited). Mr. John Rae had first bid the same amount, but as he declined to make a deposit of 10 per cent., the ship was knocked down to Mr. Yates. Mr. Rae has since tendered the money to the auctioneer, on the ground that he was the first bidder; and if his claim be refused, which is almost certain, the Great Eastern will no doubt again be the subject of an action in a court of law.

THE SUBWAYS IN THE NEW STREETS.—At a recent meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works, a deputation from the gas companies presented a memorial against laying the gas pipes in subways. They stated that gas was always escaping, and would fill these subways so that if men ever entered them with lights, which they must do, an explosion would ensue, which would blow up the street. The Chairman, in reply, said, that at an early period in the existence of the Board their attention had been called to the evil of the streets being so frequently broken up, causing not only damage to the roads, but interruption to the traffic. Their attention was also drawn to another, but not less evil, which was that the escaped gas became mixed with the subsoil, and which was thus rendered dangerous to public health. The Board had not rushed into this subject without the fullest inquiry, for they offered premiums for the best designs for a subway, and those designs were referred to a committee, among whom were the late Mr. Robert Stephenson, Mr. Hawkshaw, Mr. Wyatt, Mr. W. Cubitt, the late Mr. Alexander Wright, Mr. Bazalgette, and Mr. Marrable, who all gave the fullest consideration to the subject. They believed that they should be able to prevent the escape of gas, as the pipes would be painted and the joints could be frequently examined. They also considered that there would be the additional advantage in an economical point of view, of enabling gas companies to lay down their pipes without disturbing the roadway, and thus save the expense of relaying the road. The Board, however, would take every precaution to prevent the evils which had been referred to.

THE ROYAL ENTERTAINMENT AT GUILDHALL.—At a special Court of Common Council on Friday week, the proceedings of the Royal Entertainment Committee were again brought under discussion. It will be remembered that at former meetings of the council, the members appointed to superintend the ball and banquet to the Prince and Princess of Wales were charged with having spent large sums of money on luncheons and wine for themselves during the progress of the arrangements, and with having divided valuable articles among themselves at its close. At the meeting on Friday, on the motion that the report of the Entertainment Committee be received and agreed to, Deputy Burnell moved, as an amendment, that the committee be dissolved, and that the Court regretted to find that several articles, the property of the Corporation, had been appropriated by certain members of the committee in contravention of the standing orders of the Court, and impairing the dignity of its members. The amendment having been negatived, Deputy Elliott moved another amendment to the effect that the subject be referred to a special committee to consider and report how far the Entertainment Committee was justified by ancient usages and customs in appropriating to their own use various costly goods the property of the corporation; and also by what means the expenditure of special committees may in future be under the same control as that to which all other committees are subject. On a division, the amendment was negatived by 67 to 52. The original motion, that the report of the committee be received and agreed to, was then put and carried unanimously.

NEW SOUTHWARK STREET.—The foot pavement of the new street was completed last week. Since its opening both passenger and carriage traffic from the south-east to the south-west has been very great, proving the new route to be a great success and public convenience. The numerous plots of land along the line have been let this week on building leases by the Metropolitan Board of Works. The great bulk of the traffic from the London Bridge railways to the West-end now takes the new route.

LOSS OF TWO LONDON PACKETS.—The well-known London and Leith steamship Caledonia, one of the fleet of the General Steam Navigation Company, was driven ashore in a gale of wind off Flamborough Head, on Sunday afternoon. The crew and passengers were saved in the boats, but all efforts failed in getting the ship off, and the latest telegram announces that the steamer had gone to pieces, and the shore was strewn with portions of wreck and cargo. The ship Golden Age, belonging to the Black Ball line of packets, was driven ashore on the 19th ult. in the neighbourhood of Dungeness. She was on her voyage home from Madras with a cargo valued at 200,000*l.*, and insured at various offices for that sum. It seems that she had reached as far as the North Foreland in tow of a tug, which was not powerful enough to contend against the storm, and the ship drifted down channel and finally went ashore. The crew were saved with some difficulty, but the vessel has gone to pieces on the beach.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths in London in the week that ended Saturday, Feb. 27, were 1677, being a higher rate than has occurred since January. The average number in the corresponding week of the ten years, 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1467. The present return is therefore 210 above the average. During the week the births of 1019 boys and 981 girls, in all 2000 children, were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2057.

Provincial.

ABERAMAN.—Three of the men injured by the recent boiler explosion have died since the accident, making 12 fatal cases. The majority of them were married, and had large families depending upon them for support. Mr. Crawshaw Bailey, M.P., the proprietor of the works, has however expressed his intention to provide for the injured men and the bereaved families, and, consequently, there will be no necessity for making an appeal to the public. It is expected that a competent engineer will be directed by the Home Office to report to the coroner's jury as to the cause of the accident.

CLAYDON.—The Rev. G. Drury, rector of Claydon, whose extraordinary clerical proceedings have lately attracted so much attention, has given an affirmative issue to each of the charges alleged against him, and in consideration of the Bishop of Norwich consenting to waive the further prosecution of the suit, he has engaged to discontinue all the processions, ceremonies, and observances complained of, and to submit to the judgment of his lordship in the arrangements, ornaments, and furniture of his church, and in all matters connected with the services. The defendant has also undertaken to pay costs. In consequence of this submission, the Bishop has withdrawn from the suit instituted against Mr. Drury.

Keighley.—A horrible murder took place at Greenhouse farm on the 12th ult., a woman named Sarah Terry, 35 years of age, having been murdered by her husband. For ten months he has been in a low and desponding state of mind, and at times his wife has been so alarmed lest he might do something serious that she has frequently expressed a desire that he should be removed to an asylum. On Tuesday night the family had occasion to remain up later than usual in consequence of a cow calving. A neighbour, Mrs. Milner, not knowing the cause why they remained up so late, and beginning to feel afraid that something was amiss, went to the door and found it fast, but deceased answered her that all was right, and that her husband was much better. Mrs. Milner went in a second time before she retired to bed, being anxious on account of Mrs. Terry being near her confinement, but finding that all was quiet she returned to bed. On the following afternoon Mrs. Terry called to her to say she would leave a child with her whilst she went to serve the calf. Her husband followed her, and after waiting for some time without either of them returning, Mrs. Milner went out to look for them, but finding no trace of them she went in another direction to give an alarm. She then learnt from one of Terry's children who was returning from school that he had seen his father going across the field with a spade on his shoulder. Shortly afterwards on entering the house the neighbours found the poor woman lying dead with her head almost severed from her body; the blow, which appeared to have been given with a sharp spade, had been dealt with such force that the cut extended from above the ear down to her breast. The husband absconded, but was apprehended on the same night, and has since been committed for trial on the charge of Wilful Murder.

Leicester.—A very shocking crime has been discovered in this town. The body of a lad 16 years of age, named William Upton, was found in the canal, stripped of its clothing, with the exception of the trousers, which were turned back over the knees, as if some person had been in the act of dragging them off. At first it was thought that the injuries had been caused by boats, but a closer examination proved that the youth had been murdered in a most brutal manner, and then thrown into the canal. The deceased had been in the service of a chemist, and had disappeared about three weeks. The police have arrested the boy's father, who lived at the time of the boy's disappearance near to the canal, but had since removed. The evidence at the inquest clearly proved that deceased had been murdered, and the inquiry has been adjourned. The accused is a framework-knitter, about 40 years of age.

Lincoln.—The renovation and repair of Lincoln Cathedral is steadily proceeding. Nearly the whole of the south side has now been restored, and the noble west front, with the niches containing eleven figures of early English kings over the entrance, will be thoroughly reinstated.

Liverpool.—A shocking murder was committed in this town on the 19th ult. Two men, one a sailor named Early, and the other a man called James Robinson, of no settled occupation, bore each other a grudge, on account of a dissolute woman, with whom they were both acquainted. They met on the night of the 19th, and had a quarrel, when the sailor was stabbed by Robinson in the region of the heart, and died almost immediately. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against the prisoner, who has also been committed for trial by the magistrates.—Two sailors were charged at the Borough Police Court last week with piracy. It appears that they, with others, were passengers on board the United States schooner L. Genity, from Matamoras to New York, and when the vessel was at sea they overpowered the captain and crew and sent them adrift in a boat, while they hoisted Confederate colours, but ultimately ran into Belise under the British flag, where they sold the ship and cargo. The captain of the ship, who had found his way to the shore, came to England, where he traced the two men and gave information to the police, who took the prisoners into custody. The case is still under investigation.

Lynn.—A discovery has been made of a valuable stratum of ironstone on the Sandringham estate, recently purchased by the Prince of Wales. The discovery has been effected by Mr. J. Wright, of Lynn, who has sent samples of the ore obtained to some analytical chemists in the north of England. These gentlemen state that the ironstone found contains nearly 41 per cent. of metallic iron, so that the ore appears to be even richer than that of the Cleveland district. It is believed that the deposit covers at least 500 acres, commencing at Wolferton church and extending inland past the Lynn and Hunstanton road. Mr. Wright has communicated his discovery to the Prince through General Knollys, and has applied for permission to work the ore on payment of a royalty. His Royal Highness has appointed a duly qualified gentleman to visit the estate, in company with Mr. Wight, and draw up a report upon the subject. If the hopes entertained with regard to the discovery should prove well-founded, the matter will prove one of much importance to the whole surrounding district, and especially to the town and port of Lynn; but many persons in the county who are said to have been aware of the existence of the ironstone, believe that it will not pay to work it.

Oxford.—In a Convocation held in the Sheldonian Theatre on the 25th ult. the new Examination Statute was submitted to a very full House. A scrutiny having been demanded, the votes were taken by the two proctors at the two side doors of the theatre, and, after a short pause, were announced by the senior proctor to be in favour of the Statute. 524 members of Convocation voted, of whom 281 voted for and 243 against the Statute, giving a majority in its favour of 38.

Preston.—A most extraordinary system of dog poisoning has recently prevailed in this town. For some weeks past scores of dogs, some very valuable, have been poisoned in the town and neighbourhood. The dogs, while out in the streets and in the public walks with their owners, are in most cases taken ill suddenly and mysteriously, and frequently in a few minutes they die in the greatest apparent agony. Sundays, when most of them are out, are the most fatal days. No one seems to know by whom, or by what means, the animals are destroyed. In a few instances animals found dead have been analysed, and in their stomachs arsenic and strychnine have been discovered. It is supposed that the poisoning is carried on by a gang of burglars, who destroy as many house-dogs as possible, in order that they may follow their robberies unmolested. It is also conjectured that small pieces of meat, strongly flavoured with something tempting to the dogs, and containing poison, are dropped at night-time in the principal thoroughfares. The police have offered a reward for the discovery of the poisoners, but hitherto not the least clue has been obtained. A similar system of dog poisoning, which completely baffled every one anxious to fathom it, prevailed in Preston last year. Several parties have muzzled their dogs with wire netting as the only means of preventing the animals from being destroyed by the baits set for them.

Plymouth.—Two Danish men-of-war have been cruising for the last fortnight in this part of the Channel for the purpose of intercepting and capturing German merchantmen homeward bound. The first of these cruisers which made her appearance at this port was the steam frigate Niels Juel, of 46 guns, which landed the crew of the Irene, Prussian barque, from Memel, with timber for London, which she had captured in the Channel. The Niels Juel, after filling up with coal, began cruising for German vessels between the Start and the Lizard, and was sometimes seen off the harbour under canvas, and at others under steam and canvas, in the fairway track of all merchant vessels going up and down Channel. Two Austrian brigs, two Bremen barques, and one Prussian barque were lying at this time in the harbour and the captain candidly announced his intention to capture them, if he caught them three miles outside the English coast. While she was cruising off the Eddystone one of the Bremen barques left the Sound for Rotterdam, but on getting outside she observed the Danish frigate, and returned immediately. The frigate was observed to bring to and overhaul 10 or 12 merchant ships, including an American barque bound to London, while two of her boats were also sent out to cruise, each containing 30 men, well armed. She then ran westward and commenced cruising off Falmouth, where 14 Prussian vessels had taken refuge, and during her absence the Bremen barque managed to escape to the eastward, and get away for Rotterdam. The frigate ultimately returned without having made any prizes, and in consequence of orders from home, sailed on Friday morning for Copenhagen. The second cruiser, which made her appearance off the port on Monday, is a steam corvette, which is now watching the track of merchant vessels going up Channel, and is supposed to be the same which has cruised recently between Dungeness and the Isle of Wight. The Hamburg bark Venezuela from Macao, with a general cargo for Hamburg, took shelter in the Sound on Monday evening. During the morning she met an Antwerp steamer, commanded by a native of Hamburg, who gave her captain the first intelligence of the war. During the stay of the Niels Juel the Danish sailors composed an appeal to the English public to help their country, and forwarded it for publication to the Western Morning News. In this appeal they stated that the British Government knew in what way it should interfere, but was afraid to do so until ordered by England. In conclusion, they called upon the English nation to give that order.

Salisbury.—By direction of the Dean and Chapter the Cathedral of this city has been carefully surveyed by Mr. George Gilbert Scott, with the view to its entire restoration, both internally and externally. Certain substantial repairs essential to the security of the edifice are now in progress, towards which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have given 10,000*l*., but the general state of disrepair, and more particularly the safety of the tower and lofty spire, have induced the Cathedral authorities to take active measures to carry out Mr. Scott's recommendations. It is estimated that an outlay of between 35,000*l*. and 40,000*l*., exclusive of the 10,000*l*. voted by the Commissioners, will be required, and it has therefore been determined shortly to hold a public meeting in the city of Salisbury, to be presided over by the Marquis of Aylesbury as Lord-Lieutenant, and to appeal to the diocess for the requisite funds.

Shipton-on-Stour.—The village of Brailes, four miles from this town, was thrown into a state of consternation a few days since by the news that a man had been shot by one of Mr. Sheldon's keepers. The deceased, named Clifton, was returning from field work by a path which Mr. Sheldon had instructed the gamekeeper to prohibit. As soon as the latter saw him he tried to turn him back. There appears to have been some ill-feeling between the parties, as the keeper, whose name was Ditton, had deceased before the magistrates for an assault about a month ago, when the latter was fined 1*l*. Having refused to go back, deceased was collared by the keeper, whom he struck some severe blows across the shoulders with a formidable stick between 4 and 5 feet long, and as thick as an ordinary man's wrist. This brought the keeper to the ground, but, recovering himself, he deliberately levelled his gun at his assailant, and shot him in the left side. Clifton fell mortally wounded, and expired in about five minutes. There were four witnesses to the transaction, and another witness deposed to the keeper having said to him on the occasion of the former difference that if he had only had his pistol then he would certainly have shot deceased. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against Ditton, who was committed for trial at the assizes.

St. David's.—There is every probability that the proposed restoration of St. David's Cathedral will be eventually carried out, as subscriptions amounting to about 10,000*l*. have already been promised. Several local meetings have been held on the subject, and the proposal to restore the old cathedral, where so many of Britain's kings and eminent men are lying, has been received with universal favour throughout the principality. Mr. Gilbert Scott is the architect, and the work will be carried out under his supervision. The estimated cost is 30,000*l*.

Thrapstone.—On Thursday, the 4th ult., while a labourer was engaged in cleaning out a dyke, at the side of a lane leading from Denford to Keystone, in Northamptonshire, his spade came in contact with a skeleton. The remains were found to be those of a full-grown woman, of middle height, and have since been identified by the villagers as those of Lydia Astley, who mysteriously disappeared some 13 years since, and who had been in the habit of cohabiting with a married man named Weekly Ball, upon whom suspicion fell at the time; but, though a reward of 200*l*. was offered, nothing could be discovered, and Ball, who had been apprehended, was discharged. At the time the girl was missed a letter was received by one of the local magistrates stating that the writer had seen deceased in company with a strange man in Gold Street, Northampton; but this statement was not generally credited, in consequence of the condition in which the girl was. A witness has now voluntarily come forward for the purpose of declaring that this letter was written by him at the dictation of Weekly Ball himself. At the time of the girl's disappearing cries of "Murder" were heard in an orchard at the back of Ball's house, and there was abundant proof of his having been up all the night. The magistrates last week issued a warrant for the arrest of Ball, who was apprehended at Ramsay, where he has been living since the occurrence, and after hearing the evidence have committed the prisoner for trial on the charge of Wilful Murder.

Yarmouth.—A Danish gunboat and corvette are reported to be cruising in the offing on the look-out for Prussian vessels. No captures have yet taken place.

Ireland.

Lord Lieutenancy.—Lord Dufferin has been appointed lord-lieutenant of Downshire in the room of the Marquis of Londonderry, resigned. The Earl of Charlemont attended last week at the Court of Chancery, and took the oaths as lord-lieutenant of Tyrone.

The Prince Consort Memorial.—On Monday afternoon a meeting convened by The O'Donoghue and the Nation party, who were routed by the Phœnixites and Fenians a few evenings since in their attempt to get up a protest against the grant of a site in College Green to the Prince Consort Memorial, held a meeting at the Rotunda to carry out the object of the former meeting. There was an immense crowd outside, but none were admitted who did not satisfy the appointed scrutineers that they would support the resolutions to be proposed. About 500 persons passed this ordeal, and as there was no opposition, the proceedings were conducted with some degree of order. The chair was taken by Mr. Matthew O'Farrell. The first resolution, declaring that Ireland was not entitled to erect a memorial to the Prince Consort, was moved by The O'Donoghue, M.P., who assailed the majority of the Corporation for granting the site for the statue, and disparaged the public character of the Prince Consort, who never, he said, did anything for Ireland, and had no right to a national statue. He declared, "in the name of that great meeting, which was a faithful representation of the true Irish feeling of the country, that no man was entitled to a statue in College Green who had not proved his fidelity to the sacred cause of Irish independence." He reprobated those who would erect a statue to the late Prince because he had expressed his admiration of the character of William of Orange, and called him the greatest monarch that ever sat on the English throne—the model of an English King. Dr. Moran seconded the motion. Mr. Ryan then moved that a memorial be drawn up, and signed by the chairman of the meeting, requesting that the vote of the Corporation of Monday, 15th February, be rescinded, and that College Green be the spot worthy of a national statue to Henry Grattan. The resolution was seconded by Mr. Sullivan, who maintained that College Green should be reserved for a statue of Grattan, the "patriot of humanity;" and that one to the late Prince Consort, who held the Poles and the Irish in equal contempt, should be the last to be raised upon a spot hallowed in Irish recollection by many events that minister to the pride and claim the gratitude of Irishmen. The resolutions were adopted unanimously, and the meeting terminated without any breach of the peace.

ABDUCTION OF PROTESTANT GIRLS.—The Rev. Mr. M'Loughlin, of Enniskillen, has been arrested and lodged in the county gaol in that town, on the charge of celebrating the illegal marriage between a young man named Peterson, a Roman Catholic, and Susanna Quinton, a Protestant, a minor, and a ward in Chancery. The case has since been removed by certiorari into the Court of Queen's Bench, on the ground that the accused believed he could not have an impartial trial in Fermanagh. A somewhat similar case is reported from Wexford. Susanna Bolton, a minor, daughter of a wealthy farmer at Ballycarnew, in that county, a Protestant, eloped with a Roman Catholic named Kavanagh, a carpenter, and went to Dublin for the purpose of getting married. Not being able to find a clergyman to perform the ceremony, they got a person named Collins to personate the girl's father in the Consistory Court, and they were subsequently married. Kavanagh then insisted that his wife should go to mass, which she refused to do; and the quarrel between them brought to light the fraud and perjury connected with the license. All the parties have been arrested. At the Rathdowney Sessions, Queen's County, the magistrates have committed for trial a young man named Nolan, a Roman Catholic, for the abduction of Miss Howard, a Protestant minor, the daughter of a farmer of respectability and ample means. The magistrates refused to accept bail, and Nolan was sent to prison.

MURDER IN LEITRIM.—At the Assizes at Carrick-on-Shannon, Mr. Justice Christian presiding, a man named Edward Stanford has been found guilty of murdering Michael M'Dermot at Mohill on the 14th of January, and sentenced to be hanged on the 24th of March.

Scotland.

THE PRECEDENCE QUESTION BETWEEN EDINBURGH AND DUBLIN.—The Committee of the Privy Council to whom her Majesty referred the consideration of the relative claims of the corporations of Edinburgh and Dublin for precedence in presenting addresses to the Sovereign, have decided that neither of the two corporations has established a claim to precedence. The first which arrives is to have right of pre-audience.

Law.

MIDLAND CIRCUIT, WARWICK.—The Birmingham Murder.—George Hall, 22, by trade a stamper and piercer of jewellery, was indicted for the wilful murder of Sarah Ann Hall, his wife, by shooting her, at Birmingham, on the 16th ult. The jury returned a verdict of Guilty, and Mr. Justice Byles passed sentence of Death in the usual form. The Leamington Murder.—Ann Heatwell, aged 20, was indicted for the wilful murder of her child, at Leamington, on the 29th of December. The jury returned a verdict of Guilty, with a recommendation to mercy. The judge passed sentence of Death, remarking that he was glad the jury had had the courage to do their duty.

Obituary.

THE RIGHT HON. BARONESS RUTHVEN died on the 13th ult. at Freeland, Perthshire. Mary Elizabeth Thornton Ruthven, of Freeland, in the county of Perth, in the peerage of Scotland, was daughter of the fourth baron, by the daughter of the sixth Earl of Leven. On the extinction of the male line by the death of her brother, fifth Lord Ruthven, the barony devolved on his only sister, the deceased lady. She married, in 1806, Mr. Walter Hore, of Harperstown, county Wexford, by whom she had a numerous issue. The barony devolves on her eldest son, an officer in the Rifle Brigade.

LADY LOUISA STUART died on the 14th ult., at her residence in Park Street, Grosvenor Square, in her 51st year. She was the youngest daughter of the tenth Earl of Moray, by his second marriage with the daughter of Sir Philip Ainslie, of Pilton.

THE HON. MRS. CARLETON, wife of the Hon. and Rev. Richard Carleton, died on the 21st ult. at the family residence in Grosvenor Place. She was the second daughter and co-heir of Eusebius Horton, Esq., of Catton Hall, county Derby, and was the mother of Colonel Dudley Carleton, of the Coldstream Guards, who is married to a daughter of Lord Broughton LADY CHARLOTTE BANKES died on the 22d ult. at the rectory, Corfe Castle, in her 29th year. She had given birth to a daughter four days previously, and was thought to be progressing favourably, when she was taken seriously ill, and died suddenly. Her ladyship was the eldest daughter of the second Earl of Eldon, and married, in 1856, the Rev. Edward Eldon Surtees Bankes, rector of Corfe Castle, and son of the Rev. Edward Bankes, Prebendary of Gloucester and Bristol, by his first wife, Lady Jane Scott, youngest daughter of Lord-Chancellor Eldon.

LADY ANNE WILBRAHAM died on the 28th ult., at Delamere House, Cheshire. She was the daughter of the first Earl Fortescue, and the widow of George Wilbraham, Esq., of Delamere, formerly M.P. for South Cheshire.

THE RIGHT REV. BISHOP GILLIS, virtually though not titularly the Roman Catholic Bishop of Edinburgh and the East of Scotland, died on the 24th ult., in his 62d year. He was ordained priest in 1827, consecrated Bishop of Limyra in 1838, acted for several years as coadjutor of the late Bishop Carruthers, and since that prelate's death has acted as Vicar Apostolic of the Eastern District of Scotland. His father was a native of the Scottish Highlands, his mother a French Canadian; and doubtless his lineage on the mother's side, along with his early training, contributed largely to make him so much of a Frenchman as he was in appearance and manner. He was eminent as an orator and preacher, not only in the English but in the French language. So highly was he esteemed as a French pulpit orator that he was lately selected by the French bishops to preach before the Emperor the sermon at the Commemoration of Joan of Arc.

SIR WILLIAM BROWN, BART., died on Thursday at his seat, Richmond Hill, near Liverpool, in his 80th year. He was of humble origin, notwithstanding which he became, through his aptitude for mercantile pursuits, great industry, and careful economy, a leading British merchant and one of the largest capitalists of the day. He was a Liberal in politics, and represented South Lancashire during the Corn Law struggle, but retired from Parliament owing to his advanced age. Last year he was High Sheriff of Lancashire. In 1857 he gave between 30,000*l.* and 40,000*l.* for the erection of a free library and museum, which are now largely attended by the working classes of Liverpool; and at different times he has given large sums for the promotion of benevolent objects. He had survived his wife and children, but is succeeded in the baronetcy by his grandson, Lieut.-Colonel Brown, of the 1st Lancashire Artillery Volunteers.

MR. GILES PULLER, M.P. for Hertfordshire, died at Youngsbury, his seat near Ware, on the 16th ult, after a short illness, in his 57th year. He was the son of Sir Christopher Giles-Puller, Chief Justice of Calcutta, by the daughter of Mr. Joseph King, of Taplow. He was educated at Eton, and took a double first class at Oxford, as a member of Christ Church, in 1828. In 1832 he was called to the bar, and practised in the Court of Chancery till 1841. He was elected for Hertfordshire in 1857, having been an unsuccessful candidate at the preceding election of 1852. He was a Whig in politics, but on several questions, especially on those connected with the Church, he voted with the Conservatives. He married, in 1831, the youngest daughter of Mr. William Blake, of Danesbury, Hertfordshire, by whom he had a large family.

GENERAL DOUGLAS, R.E., died on the 10th ult. at Hastings, aged 77. He retired from the Royal Engineers on full-pay, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, some years back. He entered the service in 1801, and attained the rank of lieutenant-general in 1858.

MAJOR-GENERAL SUTTON, C.B., Commanding the troops at Dover, died on the 20th ult. after a long illness. He entered the army in 1827, and was only 56 years of age at his death. He served throughout the Kaffir wars of 1834 and 1835, 1846, 1847, 1851 and 1852. At the commencement of the latter war he defeated a large force which made an attack on Fort Beaufort, a very important success at the time. In 1860 he served as a brigadier-general throughout the operations in the north of China, and was present in the action of Sinho, storming of Tangko, advance on Tien-tsin and Pekin, and the battles of Sept. 18 and 21. He received the war medal for the Kaffir war, and a medal and clasps, with the Companionship of the Bath for his services in China. Previously to his obtaining the rank of major-general, he was in command of a brigade at Shorncliffe.

MAJOR-GENERAL PORTLOCK, R.E., LL.D., F.R.S., died on the 14th ult., at Black Rock, near Dublin. He was a distinguished officer of the Royal Engineers, and by his works on geology and other subjects, contributed greatly to the advancement of science. In early life he was for many years on active military service in Canada, and on coming home in 1824 he was attached to the Ordnance Trigonometrical Survey, and was chief assistant of the director, Col. Colby. In 1856 and 1857 he was President of the Geological Society, and, until his health began to give way, he was actively employed as a member of the Council of Military Education, having previously acted as Inspector of Studies of the Military Academy of Woolwich.

MAJOR-GENERAL VICTOR, of the Royal Engineers, died on the 4th ult., at Edinburgh, in his 72d year. He obtained his first commission in 1810, and was two years afterwards sent to the Continent to take part in the war in the Peninsula. He served from 1812 to the end of the war, and was present at the battles of the Nive, Orthes, and Toulouse, for which he had received the war medal and three clasps. He became an honorary major-general in 1854.

REAR-ADMIRAL CORY died on the 13th ult. at Plymouth, in his 68th year. He entered the service in 1806, and for some years served in the West Indies, North Sea, Mediterranean, East Indies, and on the coast of France. He was subsequently Lieutenant of the Royal George yacht, where he obtained the rank of Commander. In 1836 he served on board the North Star, bearing the broad pendant of Commodore Lord John Hay, on the coast of Portugal. After paying off that vessel, in 1840, he was promoted to the rank of Captain, and in 1858, obtained flag rank, but not having served the necessary time as Captain to qualify him for active service, he was placed on the reserved list.

REAR-ADMIRAL WILLIAM ALLEN died recently at his residence, Bank House, Weymouth, in his 72d year. He entered the navy in 1805, and served on the Mediterranean and Baltic stations till 1810. While acting as midshipman he was present at the passage of the Dardanelles in 1807, and in the following year assisted in the capture of the Italian brig-of-war Friedland in the Adriatic. He afterwards co-operated in the reduction of Java, in 1811, and took part in a successful attack on the piratical settlement of Sambas, in Borneo, in 1813. He became a lieutenant in 1815, and in 1834 he was appointed to the William and Mary yacht, and served in that vessel till he was promoted to the rank of commander in 1836. He subsequently took part in the disastrous expedition to the Niger, whence he returned towards the end of 1842. His post rank was obtained in the same year, and in 1862 he became a retired rear-admiral.

MR. DYCE, R.A., died at Streatham on the 14th ult., in his 58th year. He was a native of Scotland, and was born in 1806. After passing through the usual curriculum in the University of Aberdeen, he proceeded in 1825 to Italy, where he devoted himself to the study of art. In 1828 he returned to Scotland, and for some time obtained his livelihood by portrait painting. In the interval of his business, however, he pursued the higher branches of art, and in 1828 made his first appearance on the walls of the Royal Academy in his picture entitled, "Bacchus Nursed by the Nymphs of Nysa." Between that period and 1838 he exhibited two pictures at the Academy, "The Descent of Venus," and a "Madonna and Child." In 1839 he was nominated Principal of the newly-constituted School of Design at Somerset House, and for some years devoted himself almost exclusively to the duties of his office; but in 1842 he resigned the post in consequence of some disagreement. Almost immediately afterwards he exhibited at the Royal Academy "King Joash Shooting the Arrow of Deliverance," a performance which secured for him the honour of being elected an associate of the Royal Academy. In 1844 he sent to Westminster Hall as examples of fresco—"The Heads," and part of a larger composition, "The Consecration of Archbishop Parker in Lambeth Palace, A.D. 1559." In the following year he received from the Prince Consort a commission to paint a series of frescoes for him in the summer house of Buckingham Palace. Subsequently he was similarly employed at Osborne. He was one of the first artists engaged in the New Palace of Westminster, and his "Baptism of Ethelbert" in the House of Lords is considered one of the best paintings in the chamber. In 1845 he was elected a Royal Academician, and he was also an honorary academician of the Royal Scottish Academy, and member of the Academy of Fine Arts of Philadelphia. Among his many works may be mentioned as best known—"St. Dunstan separating Edwy and Elgiva," "Titian and Irena da Spilemburgo," "Omnia Vanitas," "The Meeting of Jacob and Rachel," and "Lear in the Storm." Mr. Dyce was an author as well as artist. In 1844 he published an edition of the Common Prayer with its ancient Canto Fermo, accompanied by a disputation on the kind of music and its applicability to English words; and in 1851 a theological pamphlet entitled "Notes on Shepherds and Sheep," in reply to Mr. Ruskin's "Notes on the Construction of Sheepfolds." He was an extensive contributor to periodical literature, chiefly on subjects relating to ecclesiastical antiquities; and was the author of pamphlets on the subject of the future management of the National Gallery.

MR. WILLIAM HUNT, the well-known painter in water colours, died recently at his residence, Stanhope Street, Hampstead Road, at the age of 74. He has for 35 years exhibited in the gallery of the Society of Painters in Water Colours since 1824, where his works have lately formed one of the chief attractions of the annual exhibitions.

COVENT GARDEN, March 5.

Vegetables and Fruit in season continue to be pretty well kept up. Retarded Hothouse Grapes are, however, scarce, but some good new ones may now be had. Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained; likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 6s. to 10s. per 100. Cornish Broccoli is still largely supplied. Continental arrivals are heavy; among them are French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

HOPS.—BOROUGH MARKET, FRIDAY, March 4.

Messrs. Pattenden & Smith report the demand for consumption continues steady, without any alteration in prices.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, Feb. 29.

The supply of Beasts has considerably increased, and the weather is very unsettled; buyers are consequently very cautious. Prices are lower, and a clearance cannot be effected. The number of Sheep is not quite so large as on Monday last, but the demand is considerably smaller. Trade is very slow, and on the average prices are lower. There are a few more Calves, but there is very little alteration in the trade. From Germany and Holland there are 980 Beasts, 2340 Sheep, 155 Calves, and 90 Pigs; from Scotland, 320 Beasts; from Ireland, 195; and 2610 from Norfolk and Suffolk.,

THURSDAY, March 3.

The number of Beasts is rather smaller than on Thursday last; the demand is very limited, and Monday's quotations are barely maintained. The supply of Sheep is about the same as of late. A large proportion of the better descriptions are shorn, and the weather is very unfavourable for them. Trade generally is dull at our quotations. Calves are selling as on Monday. Our foreign supply consists of 370 Beasts, 1280 Sheep, and 204 Calves. Milch Cows, 90.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, Feb. 29.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and the condition generally affected by the weather. It met a slow sale at the prices of this day se'nnight. The market was only moderately attended, and business during the greater part of the day was interrupted by a dense fog. With the exception of a purchase or two of foreign Wheat on speculation, transactions were not general, and we do not alter our quotations. The quantity of Barley offering was large and the demand very limited; last week's prices were unobtainable. Beans and Peas were 1s. per qr. cheaper. The Oat trade was very heavy, and to effect sales it was necessary to submit to a decline of 6d. per qr. Flour met but little inquiry.

FRIDAY, March 4

The weather since the 26th ult., with the exception of a few hours of sunshine on two or three days, has been raw and damp or rainy with easterly winds, changing from N. to S., and back again to-day to S.W. During the above period speculative purchases to a considerable extent have been made of Wheat from the Black and Azov Seas, and also of Maize for shipment in June, July, and August; but the general trade to consumers has remained uninterruptedly dull throughout the kingdom, with a downward tendency in the prices of all grain and Flour. Since Friday last 8 vessels have been reported off the coast. There has been no inclination to purchase cargoes off the coast or near at hand, but Wheat for forward shipment is inquired after, and has been bought largely at improving rates; also in Maize some extensive transactions have taken place for future shipment at firm prices. Paris, March 3.—Flour: notwithstanding holders are willing to accept about 1s. per sack less money, very little business has been done. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 32s. 6d. per 280 lbs. The present stock is estimated at 14,610 cwt. Wheat is slow at 9d. to 1s. per 480 lbs. decline. The arrivals of British Oats during the week have been good, of all other grain small. The attendance at to-day's market was very limited, and the business transacted in all articles was insignificant, and at Monday's prices.

DENNIS'S PATENT METALLIC HORTICULTURAL BUILDINGS are made from the best Wrought Iron, upon an entirely new principle. The combination of Iron and Glass under this patent is perfect; the possibility of fracture is prevented, and a permanently Water-tight Roof insured.

The leading practical advantages are extreme smallness of Framing, admitting a maximum of light and heat, great strength, durability, and perfect ventilation. They are speedily erected, partake of more desirable outline, and do not exceed the cost of a perishable wooden structure.

LATEST IMPROVEMENTS IN

LAWN MOWING, ROLLING, and COLLECTING MACHINES.

THE CUTTERS of SHAW'S NEW PATENT LAWN MOWER follow all inequalities of the ground, however uneven it may be, independent of the Pushing Handles, which latter may be raised or lowered to suit the convenience of the workman, without stopping the cutting action or altering its height.

The MACHINE is convertible instantly into a ROLLER for GRASS, or GRAVEL, without chance of injury to the Cutters.

It is fitted with BOYD'S well-known PATENT SELF-CLEANING and SHARPENING BRUSH, for insuring a perfect cut, whether the Grass be wet or dry.

It occupies less than half the space of any other Mower of equal cutting width, when stowed away, and is therefore safer from accident.

In again submitting their LAWN MOWERS to the notice of purchasers, Messrs. SAMUELSON & Co. wish to state that they do not make annual changes in the principle of their LAWN MOWERS. Experience has fully proved that the general design on which their MACHINES have been built for many years past is the best, and their attention has been given therefore rather to substantial improvements in manufacture, reduction of the draught, and increase of durability by the use of malleable iron in place of cast metal, than to the production of ephemeral novelties. Their MACHINES are superior to all others for lightness of draught, elegance, and efficiency under all circumstances of ground and weather, being self-cleaning, and not liable to derangement in the gearing. PATENT WORCESTERSHIRE RANGE.

PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, AWARDED for EXCELLENCE.

The above RANGE is most complete, and strongly recommended for its unrivalled ECONOMY, CLEANLINESS, CONVENIENCE, DURABILITY, and is a certain CURE for SMOKY CHIMNEYS.

It is an entirely new invention, and consists of large MEAT ROASTER, PASTRY OVEN, and WROUGHT-IRON BOILER. The top forms a HOT PLATE for BOILING, STEWING, &c. The whole Heated by ONE SMALL FIRE. One 5 feet wide is equal to an ordinary Range 8 feet wide.

Extracted from the London Daily Telegraph, May 19, 1862.

"INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class 31.

"Of the most recent inventions it should be said that Messrs. JONES & ROWE'S Patent Worcestershire Range has attracted very special attention, and has been commended by the best authorities. A valuable peculiarity of their Ranges is the placing of the OVEN and ROASTER one above the other instead of side by side; and the ROASTER is constantly replenished with fresh air."

THE PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASES

SOLE MANUFACTURER,

JAMES GRAY, HORTICULTURAL WORKS,

DANVERS STREET, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

The PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASE is one of the most useful of the Gardening novelties of the day. It is a handsome ornament for the Drawing Room or Sitting Room, and at all times forms a fresh, pleasant, and interesting object to the mind and eye. It is always under command, and will preserve many of the most tender Exotic Plants through the severest winter with comparatively little of the trouble and annoyance attending the use of Lamps, Gas, and Heating appliances of any other kind.

To all who have a taste for the cultivation of In-door Plants, for raising Seedlings, striking Cuttings, &c., the Plant Cases will be found an inestimable boon.

The Cases are highly approved and recommended by Professor Lindley, and by Messrs. Veitch, of The Royal Exotic Nursery, King's Road, Chelsea.

PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.—IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—

"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."

Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Bosses, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Toilet Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Calbotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

Oil Paint no longer Necessary.

HILL AND SMITH'S PATENT BLACK VARNISH for preserving Iron Work, Wood, or Stone. This Varnish is an excellent substitute for oil paint on all out-door work, and is fully two-thirds cheaper. It may be applied by an ordinary labourer, requires no mixing or thinning, and is used cold. It is used in the grounds at Windsor Castle, Kew Gardens, and at the seats of many hundreds of the nobility and gentry, from whom the most flattering testimonials have been received, which HILL & SMITH will forward on application.

From SIR THOMAS DE TRAFFORD, BART., Trafford Park, Lancashire.

"Sir Thomas de Trafford begs to inform Messrs. HILL & Co. that he has now used their Black Varnish for many years, and he finds it stand out-door work on either wood or iron much better than any other description of paint he has ever made use of. It is more durable than other sorts, and also cheaper than he can get it from Manchester or other places. Messrs. HILL will please to send him two more barrels. Sir Thomas considers that whoever uses it should also have the Iron Barrow, with Apparatus, for convenience of applying it to lines of Fencing, &c."

Sold in casks of about 80 gallons each, at 1*s.* 6*d.* per gallon, at the Manufactory, or 1*s.* 8*d.* per gallon paid to any Station in the kingdom.

Apply to HILL & SMITH, Brierley Hill Iron Works, near Dudley, and 22, Cannon Street West, E.C., from whom only it can be obtained.

The Prize Essay on

"THE REARING of CALVES."
By THOMAS BOWICK, Britannia Farms, Bedford (late Stoneleigh Abbey Farm).

By special permission of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a reprint from their Journal of the above Essay is now before the public, by Messrs. DAY, SON, & HEWITT, 22, Dorset Street, Baker Street, London. Price, by post, Three Stamps, or Five Copies for Twelve Stamps. This celebrated Essay should be in the hands of all Breeders, from the large Dairy Farmer down to the Cottager with his One Cow.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Bowick's Essay, in a concise way, goes into the question of the construction of the Calf-house, the condition of the Cow before Calving, the best season for Calving, the Feeding of Calves, the Quantity of Milk and other food, the Health and Disease of the Young Calf, the Spring and Summer Feeding, &c. We recommend the perusal of the Essay to those who are employed in rearing calves."—Mark Lane Express, November 1863.

"It is a cheap tract, well written, on a matter of great practical importance, and is certain to receive a wide circulation."—Agricultural Gazette, November 1863.

"The Essay will be very acceptable to farmers in general and a better two-penn'worth it would be impossible to recommend. It ought to be sown broadcast over England; and no farmer, bailiff, or servant in husbandry should be without it."—Worcester Herald, 2d January, 1864.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

The Company is formed with the object of enabling English capitalists to avail themselves of the eligible opportunities which are offered for investment in the colony of Queensland and Australia generally.

A provisional agreement has been secured by the Directors for the purchase of the leases of certain stations on the Darling Downs, now in full operation, comprising an area of upwards of 1500 square miles, with the sheep and cattle thereon; the vendors taking payment for a considerable portion of the purchase in the shares of the Company, which will thus commence operations with an investment yielding large returns, calculated to pay an early and satisfactory dividend, irrespective of an accumulated profit derived from the increase of the breeding flocks, which in ordinary seasons may be estimated at 80 per cent.

The Company have in contemplation the acquisition of further runs.

The Articles and Memorandum of Association may be inspected at the offices of the Company.

In the event of no allotment of shares being made the deposit will be returned in full.

Prospectuses, with forms of application, may be obtained at the temporary offices of the Company, 1, Cushion Court, Old Broad Street; at the Mercantile Credit Association (Limited), 21, Threadneedle Street; at the Agra and United Service Bank, 27, Cannon Street; at the Brokers of the Company, Messrs. ROBINS & BARBER, 29, Threadneedle Street; and Messrs. WALKER & LUMSDEN, 25, Austin Friars.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.

To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &C. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

THE GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY,

Offices: 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

HENRY KER SEYMER, Esq., M.P., Chairman.
Sir J. VILLIERS SHELLEY, Bart., M.P., Vice-Chairman.
J. BAILEY DENTON, Principal Engineer.

Under this Company's Act tenants for life, trustees, mortgagees, guardians, committees of incompetent persons, beneficial lessees, corporations (ecclesiastical or municipal), incumbents, charitable trustees, &c., may effect the following land improvements, and charge the outlay and expenses on the estate improved, by way of rentcharge, to be paid by half-yearly instalments, viz:—

1. All works of Drainage, Irrigation, Warping, and Embankment.
2. The Erection of Farmhouses, Cottages for Agricultural Labourers, and all kinds of Farm Buildings.
3. The Construction of Roads.
4. The Grubbing and Clearing of Old Woodlands, Enclosing, Fencing, and Reclaiming Land.

The owners of estates, not entailed, who may be desirous to avoid the expense or inconvenience of a legal mortgage, may also charge their Estates with an outlay in improvements under the simple and inexpensive process of the Company's Act.

The term of years for the rentcharge is fixed by the landowner, so as to adapt the amount of annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants, the term for building works being limited to 31 years.

No investigation of title being required, and the charge not being affected by encumbrances, no legal expenses are incurred.

The arrangements for effecting improvements are threefold:—

No. 1. The works may be designed and executed entirely by the landowner's agent, and the Company employed only to supply the loan and conduct the matter through all the official forms for charging the outlay on the estate.

No. 2. The Company will supply plans, specifications, and estimates for any improvements to be executed by the landowner's agent as under No. 1. In each of these cases the landowner will be solely under the control of the Enclosure Commissioners.

No. 3. The Company will undertake the entire resposibility of the improvements, prepare the plans, execute the works, and finally charge on the estate the actual amount expended, with their commission thereon, approved by the Enclosure Commissioners.

Landowners may thus obtain what assistance they require from the Company, and no more, in effecting the objects in view.

Works of Drainage and other improvements are also executed on commission for landowners, who merely require the skill and experience of the Company's officers and a staff in constant practice.

Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Office of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

ALFRED SIBSON, F.C.S., Author of "Agricultural Chemistry," &c., late First Assistant in Dr. Voelcker's laboratory, personally executes all ANALYSES entrusted to him, at reasonable fees. Opinion or information gratis. Pamphlet on "Superphosphate," with new report, terms, &c., free on application.

News of the Week.

THE christening of the infant PRINCE of the PRINCE and PRINCESS of WALES took place on Thursday, in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace. HER MAJESTY the QUEEN, the KING of the BELGIANS, and other Royal personages, officiated as sponsors, and the ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of CANTERBURY, assisted by the Bishops of LONDON, OXFORD, and CHESTER, the Deans of Westminster and Windsor, and by the Rector of St. George's, Hanover Square. The QUEEN held the infant PRINCE at the font, and gave his Royal Highness the names of ALBERT VICTOR CHRISTIAN EDWARD.

In the House of Lords on Monday Earl GRANVILLE called attention to the report of the Joint Committee on Metropolitan Railway Schemes, and, in accordance with their recommendation, moved that eight of the Bills introduced in the present session should not be proceeded with. The motion was agreed to. On Tuesday, in answer to the Earl of DERBY, Earl RUSSELL said that, in entering Schleswig at a time when Denmark was ready to concede their demands, Austria and Prussia had commenced a most unjustifiable war. By way of retaliation Denmark had captured German ships, and Austria and Prussia, regarding this as generalising the war, had extended their operations into Jutland. If Denmark acquiesced in the Congress, fresh negotiations would be entered upon; but if she should decline, the war would be continued on a new footing. The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH and Lord STRATFORD DE REDCLIFFE expressed a hope that before the Easter recess the Government would state what was the final decision they had arrived at. Earl GREY said he had read that portion of the papers already delivered with feelings of deep humiliation. Earl RUSSELL said that if Earl GREY thought the Government ought to have acted differently he could move a vote of censure; while, if he thought they ought to rush at once into war, he had only to propose a resolution to that effect. Her MAJESTY's Ministers would not make a war when the safety, interest, integrity, and independence of Denmark could be secured otherwise, and would neglect no means by which that security and independence could be maintained. On Thursday Sir J. LAWRENCE's Salary Bill was read a third time and passed. The Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill passed through committee. The Turnpike Roads Bill was read a second time.

In the Commons on Friday, on the order for the second reading of the Penal Servitude Acts Amendment Bill, Mr. ADDERLEY moved as an amendment that it be read a second time that day six months. After a long discussion the amendment was withdrawn, and the Bill was read a second time. On Monday the adjourned debate on the order for going into committee on the Government Annuities Bill was resumed by the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, who in a speech of great length answered the objections urged against the measure by persons connected with assurance offices, friendly societies, loan offices, and similar institutions. He hoped the House would receive the measure with favour, as he was confident going into Supply, Mr. Hennessy moved a resolution to the effect that it is just and expedient to extend to Ireland the beneficial provisions of the English Poor Law.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

The Government Annuities Scheme.—A public meeting of the working classes, chiefly connected with benefit and friendly societies, was held on Saturday night in Exeter Hall, to protest against the clause in the Government Annuities Bill authorising the Government to take assurances for sums payable at death to any amount under 100*l.* Mr. Potter, of the Joiners' Association, was in the chair, and after several speakers had addressed the meeting, a resolution was moved condemning the proposal, as involving the imputation that the working classes were unable to manage their own affairs. An amendment was moved approving of the scheme, and several speakers addressed the meeting in its support, but the original resolution was carried by a large majority.

Metropolitan Railway Schemes.—A meeting of the leading merchants in the City was held a few days since at the London Tavern to take measures for preventing the City from being inundated with the many railway schemes with which they were threatened; Mr. Crawford, M.P. in the chair. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting, and a general opinion was expressed that though the joint report of the Parliamentary committee, published in our last Number, was satisfactory as far as it went, it was too limited in the scope of its inquiries to be all that was required. A resolution was unanimously carried that in a space so limited and with such rapidly expanding business as the City of London, no railway ought to be constructed that was not absolutely necessary. A committee was appointed to carry out the objects of the meeting. At a meeting of the Court of Common Council on Thursday there was a unanimous expression of opinion against the railway invasion with which the City is threatened. The recent report of the joint parliamentary committee was not considered by them to go far enough, and it was remitted to a special committee to use every exertion to obtain the postponement of all the schemes for another year. In connection with this subject we may mention that an important report by Mr. Bazalgette, the engineer of the Metropolitan Board of Works, on all the metropolitan railway schemes going before Parliament this year, has been presented to the Board. As their engineer, Mr. Bazalgette was instructed to state fully wherever these proposed works, whether above or underground, interfere with streets, divert their routes, alter their levels, or trench upon the special works of the Board in sewers or subways. The report says that the schemes proposed for the metropolis this Session are more numerous, bolder, and more complicated than on any previous occasion. They involve the construction of 258 new lines of railway and branches, of 417½ miles in length; with 11 bridges over the Thames, and two lines passing through the Thames Tunnel; and the total capital proposed to be raised is about 70,000,000*l.* Hyde Park, the Green Park, St. James's Park, Kensington Gardens, Newington Park, Hackney Downs, Leyton Grange Park, Trinity Square, Finsbury Circus, Camden Square, Oakley Square, Ampthill Square, Euston Square, and Sloane Square, would all be cut through, and some of them in two or three places, and the same would be the fate of the following open commons:—Stoke Newington, Clapham, Tooting (invaded by seven different lines), Acton Back, Acton, Wimbledon, Fulham, Deptford, and Turnham Green. Bishopsgate Street would be crossed by railways 9 times; Whitechapel Road, 13 times; King William Street, City, 4 times; Strand, 4 times; Whitehall, twice; Palace Yard, Westminster, 4 times; Belgrave Road, 4 times; Uxbridge Road, Notting Hill, 5 times; Kensington Road, 3 times; Edgware Road, Kilburn, 4 times; Euston Road and Marylebone Road, 13 times; Deptford, Lower Road, 3 times; Acre Lane, Brixton, 5 times. St. Stephen's Churchyard and St. Pancras Burial Ground would also be invaded, the latter by no less than three different lines. There are no less than six competitors for constructing railways along the line of the Thames Embankment, and underneath a portion of the new street to the Mansion House; and in executing all these "improvements" it is proposed to divert the present course of no less than 37 streets, to lower the level of 18, to raise the level of 34, and to stop up 69; while 52 sewers are returned as partially destroyed by these works, and no less than 526 as entirely destroyed. The report contains a complete analysis of the mischief and destruction of property which would be caused by some of these lines.

The Holborn Valley Improvements.—At the last meeting of the Court of Common Council, the chairman of the Holborn Valley Improvement Committee brought up a report inviting the sanction of the Court to the plan agreed upon by the committee in connexion with the Bill in Parliament. The plan provides that the line of improvement from east to west shall commence at or near the Old Bailey, and terminate at a point 55 feet beyond the western side of Hatton Garden. The whole of the property on both sides is to be pulled down, and a high-level roadway formed 80 feet wide, and with an almost imperceptible gradient. Farringdon Street is to be crossed by a bridge with a minimum central headway of 21 feet. Two new streets are to be laid down, both starting from Farringdon Road, to afford communication for vehicles between the upper and lower levels; the western street to be 60 feet wide, and to start opposite New Market Street, now in course of formation by the corporation, joining the upper level at Hatton Garden, the gradient being 1 in 45; the eastern street to be 50 feet wide, to start a little north of the bridge over Farringdon Street, to join the upper level at St. Sepulchre's Church, with a gradient of 1 in 45. Farringdon Road is to be widened as far as West Street to the present width of Farringdon Street. To increase the convenience of access on the southern side of the improvement between the high and low levels, it is also proposed that Shoe Lane be carried on to the viaduct. The gradients will be improved in various places. Having consulted the Chamberlain of the corporation as to the sum which the extended coal duty is expected to produce, the committee feel that the foregoing works are all for which the corporation can safely make themselves liable under the London Wine and Coal Duty Continuance Act of the last Session. Deputy Fry moved the adoption of the report, and that it be referred back to the committee for execution. In reply to Deputy De Jersey and Mr. Hartridge he said the total estimate of the proposed improvement was about 500,000*l.*, and that the cost of carrying Shoe Lane on to the viaduct instead of under it, which was a deviation from the plan originally contemplated by the committee, would amount to about 75,000*l.* After some discussion, the report of the committee was agreed to, and referred back to them for execution, on the understanding that seven years instead of 10 should be the interval allowed for the completion of the whole work.

The Bishop of London's Fund.—A very numerous meeting of the clergy of London, convened by circular from the Bishop, was held on Friday at Willis's Rooms, to consider the religious condition of the metropolis. The Bishop took the chair. An elaborate report was first read, pointing out the deficiencies in the diocese with regard to clergymen, church room, lay agents, parsonages and endowments, and schools, with the remedies proposed to be applied by the fund. The Bishop of London then addressed the meeting at great length, and stated, as the result of the inquiries set on foot, that it had been considered desirable that every 2000 persons should have a clergymen to attend to them. If the present spiritual wants of the population were not cared for, and the evils at present existing remedied, he feared they would go on increasing till in this the centre of the Christian world such a moral wilderness would exist, and such a confusion of the political condition of society arise, as it would take years upon years to remedy. He was quite aware that to do all that was proposed would require an enormous sum, but he believed there would not be any difficulty in raising one-half at least, and he was sanguine in being able, by God's help, to obtain the whole. The lay members of the committee, however, felt that they were powerless, unless they had the assistance of the clergy. The Rev. Mr. Patterson moved a resolution that the committee should report what had already been done in the great work towards which the public had already provided a sum of 90,000*l.* The Rev. Mr. McCaul seconded the resolution, and wished not only to know what had been done, but what was intended to be done in the future. The Rev. Mr. Davies, of Christ Church, Marylebone, thought it was not desirable to increase the proportion of curates and incumbents. There were already too many curates, and it was more necessary to augment the stipends of the present curates than to make large additions to their numbers. He also deprecated the great extension of the lay teachers, and thought that the system, if carried out, would be attended with some inconvenience, and would be liable to produce unpleasant feelings by intruding themselves too frequently among the poor. The Bishop in reply said that of the sum already subscribed, 32,205*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.* had been received, and 62,056*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* had been promised, making a total of 94,262*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.* Of this sum 14,030*l.* had been voted or promised in the shape of grants for additional curates, missionary clergy, scripture readers, parochial mission women, schools, school churches or mission chapels, and churches, exclusive of 45,000*l.* voted for other objects during the next nine years. After some further business, a vote of thanks to the right rev. prelate for presiding was moved by Archdeacon Hale and seconded by Archdeacon Sinclair.

Fish Culture for the Thames.—To those who are interested in the artificial propagation of fish, a visit to the Thames Angling Preservation Society's apparatus at Hampton will well repay them. Under the management of Mr. F. Buckland and Mr. Stephen Ponder, in the greenhouse of the latter gentleman, where the hatching-boxes are placed, the process is going on most satisfactorily, and a keeper is always in attendance to exhibit them to those who are desirous of seeing them. The ova of salmon, salmon trout, char, rout, &c., are just now in their most interesting stages of development. In one trough there are 8000 young salmon recently hatched; in others the ova are in a vivifying state, and in others there are the simple eggs. Mr. F. Buckland has succeeded in bringing a live salmon from Worcester, and placing it in the pond with the sturgeon in the Zoological Gardens, and is now engaged in experimenting on salmon eggs with live trout from the Wandle, in the hope of producing a hybrid between the salmon and the trout, in which the non-migratory will predominate over the migratory instinct, so that the new fish will live in the Thames above bridge without the desire of paying an annual visit to the sea.

RESTORATION OF CHARING CROSS.—A monument as nearly as possible the same in size and feature as the original Eleanor Cross which stood in the village of Charing, is about to be erected in the Strand by the Charing Cross Railway Company, whose architect, Mr. Barry, has found a most convenient site in the open space in front of the terminus, very near the exact spot on which the ancient cross stood. The height of the edifice will be nearly 70 ft. Of the 10 crosses which marked the halting-places of the coffin of Queen Eleanor on the road from Grantham to Westminster Abbey only three are now in existence, the finest being that at Waltham.

FALL OF A HOUSE IN THE CITY.—In consequence, it is supposed, of the heavy rains which have lately fallen, the gable end of the Fountain Tavern in Castle Court, Cheapside, fell to the ground on Monday night. Some of the inmates, warned by the crackling of the timbers, escaped; others were left in the upper part of the house, but they were all rescued without injury.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths in London in the week ending Saturday, March 5, were 1766. The average number in the corresponding week of the 10 years 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1420. The present return is therefore 346 above the average. During the week the births of 1120 boys and 1019 girls, in all 2139 children, were registered in London. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2071.

Provincial.

BIRMINGHAM.—A memorial was transmitted to Sir George Grey on Monday, praying for the commutation of the sentence of death passed at the recent assizes on George Hall for the murder of his wife, on the ground of his previous good character and the great provocation he had received. The memorial had 50,366 signatures attached to it.—On Tuesday a barrel of ammunition stored in the magazine of the Dragoon barracks in this town, exploded, causing considerable damage to the roof and other parts of the building. The quartermaster of the depot was found on the premises stunned by the explosion, but without injuries of a serious character.

BURNLEY.—Mr. Samuel Howard, of Stanley, near Perth, formerly an inhabitant of this town, has placed in the hands of trustees, for the use of the town, 16 acres of land whereon to erect an infirmary, to be called "The Howard Institution." The land is situate behind the Habergham Eaves parsonage, and represents a value of 16,000*l*. The land not necessarily required for the Institution is to be let for building sites, the proceeds of which are to go towards its endowment.

HANLEY.—A colliery explosion took place a few days since in the neighbourhood of this town, but was not so fatal as those accidents generally are. Two lives were lost, and three men were seriously injured.

LIVERPOOL.—A decision of importance was given by Vice-Chancellor Wood a few days since, in connection with damages to houses in this town by the recent explosion of gunpowder on board the ship Lotty Sleigh. It appears that the Royal Insurance Company decided to reimburse the sufferers insured with them the entire amount of their losses. A shareholder having a small stake in the company contested the power of the directors to take this liberal step, and applied to the Court of Chancery to restrain them, on the ground of their policies exempting them from liability for damage by explosion. The Vice-Chancellor overruled this application, and sustained the directors in their proposed arrangement with the sufferers, making the shareholder pay the costs of the application.

MOLD.—A terrific explosion, causing the death of one man and the serious injury of several others, has occurred at the Coppa Colliery. Several men had descended into the pit, which is about 130 yards deep, when, after working awhile, they saw some water forced up a boring hole, down which it ran to an old level not now in use. A loud explosion followed, causing almost instantaneous death to one of the men. Two others had their thigh broken, and a third had his arm broken by the falling timber.

OXFORD.—In a Convocation held on Tuesday in the Sheldonian Theatre, the statute for assigning duties to Mr. Jowett, the Regius Professor of Greek, and at the same time increasing his stipend, was put to the House. Archdeacon Denison endeavoured to make a Latin address against the statute, but owing to the impatience of the House and the disapproval of the Undergraduates, who had occupied their gallery in some force, he could not be heard. The votes were then taken by the two Proctors and the Registrar. When the numbers were added up, the Senior Proctor, amid dead silence, pronounced the words,—"Majori parti placet." As the party in favour of the statute had not expected to be in a majority, a perfect tumult of applause followed, the Masters vieing with the Undergraduates in shouts and wavings of caps. Soon, however, it became apparent that something was wrong. The Vice-Chancellor made a signal for silence, which was with difficulty procured; whispers arose that there had been "a mistake"—and the shouts having subsided the Senior Proctor again got up and announced —"Majori parti non placet." It was now the turn for the opponents of the statute to cheer; which they did the more lustily on account of their previous disappointment. The numbers were understood to be—Non-placet, 467; Placet, 395. Majority against the statute, 72.

PORTSMOUTH. — The Royal Sovereign converted cupola ship was successfully floated out of her dock at Portsmouth on Tuesday, in the presence of Vice-Admiral Sir M. Seymour, Rear Admiral Elliott, Major-General Lord W Paulet, Sir James Elphinstone, Captain Cowper Coles, and a number of naval and military officers. The operation was attended with every success. The tide was very high, and the turret ship was taken alongside the sheer jetty in capital order. It will be remembered that the Royal Sovereign was a new three-decker; but has been cut down and converted into a cupola ship, with three turrets, on Captain Coles's principle. She is a powerful vessel, and will be most valuable for coast defence, floating much lighter than was expected.

ROTHERHAM.—A few days since a young man named Lyon, in revenge for some quarrel between a woman he lived with and a neighbour, went to the house and flung a quantity of cinders mixed with an arsenical compound into the room where the children were playing, in the absence of their mother. All of them suffered from the noxious fumes, and one, an infant, died. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of Manslaughter against Lyon, who was committed for trial. Two other persons against whom suspicions were entertained were acquitted by the jury, but are detained in prison to await an examination by the magistrates.

TENBY.—For some time past a subscription list has been opened in this town for the purpose of erecting a memorial to the Prince Consort. Various propositions had been made as to the form the memorial should assume, some suggesting a fellowship at Lampeter, others a cairn, but the general feeling being in favour of a statue; it has now been decided to erect a statue in Sicilian marble, 7 feet high, exclusive of the plinth, subject to the approval of the Prince of Wales. The Prince Consort will appear in Royal costume, and the execution of the design has been given to Mr. J. E. Thomas, the Welsh sculptor. The pedestal will be of polished mountain limestone.

WARWICK.—On Wednesday the High Sheriff received from Sir George Grey a respite for Ann Eatwell, who had been engaged by her mistress at a statute fair, after being seduced by a man who refused to marry her, and who was sentenced to death last week for murdering their child at Leamington immediately after its birth. The Secretary of State had been memorialised to give effect to the recommendation of the jury to mercy on the ground that there were "grave doubts as to the consciousness of the prisoner at the time she committed the offence."

WEST BROMWICH.—A fatal boiler explosion took place on the 1st inst. at the iron works of a Mr. Johnson, while 40 men were at work round it. The ends of the boiler were blown in contrary directions; the centre piece blew up through the roof and fell again near the spot where it had before stood, and several men and boys were suddenly buried in a confused mass of iron, wood, and brick work. When the rubbish was cleared away and the men picked up, it was found that 9 were killed and 13 others were shockingly injured.

ARCHDEACONRY OF DUBLIN.—The Archdeaconry of Dublin has been conferred on the Rev. Dr. William Lee, Lecturer of Divinity, and formerly Professor of Ecclesiastical History in the University of Dublin, author of a work upon the Inspiration of the Scriptures, an Essay on Miracles, and other works.

IRISH BRIGADE FOR DENMARK.—A Cork gentleman has proposed to raise an Irish brigade for the Danish service, and applications for sanction and acceptance have been addressed to the King of Denmark. The reply is expected to be favourable. Meanwhile it is said that congratulations and offers of co-operation are daily pouring in on the projector from all parts of the kingdom.

THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD.—Dr. Duggan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Chicago, in the United States, has issued a pastoral, solemnly denouncing the Brotherhood as practising delusion and fraud, refusing to give any of the members the sacraments till they abandon the confederation, and warning his people against it. After bearing testimony to the character of the combination and the evils it would bring upon Ireland if by any possibility it could succeed, the bishop states that he has consulted the Irish Roman Catholic bishops as well as the American, and speaking in the name of the Church, he condemns the brotherhood as a secret society, illegal and fraudulent. They have, he says, an inner secret, which he cannot learn, but he understands the object of the confederacy to be to wrest Ireland from England by violence, force of arms, and bloodshed. The Bishop says he cannot help recording his solemn conviction that the success of those men in their wild attempt would be the greatest misfortune that ever befell Ireland. He quotes the testimony of an Irish gentleman who has lost his estates and exposed his life for his country, and declares that he would do so again (evidently alluding to Mr. Smith O'Brien), who states of the leaders of the American organisation "that many of them are interested merely on acquiring salaries, and that men of no note make a handsome income by this traffic in the sympathies of their countrymen." He may, he adds, perhaps, say the same of the society, "existing under a milder form in Ireland, and known under the name of the 'National Brotherhood,' or the 'Brotherhood of St. Patrick.'" But with regard to the American Fenians, who have been threatening Ireland with an invasion when the war in America is over, he says that the whole thing is a delusion and a fraud, and that these men have no thought of being able to reach Ireland, but in the meantime appeal to the kindly sympathies of their countrymen, in order to induce them to open their purses.

Scotland.

PICTURES FOR HOLYROOD.—It is stated that her Majesty has approved 12 pictures connected with Scottish history, now in Hampton Court Palace, being removed to Holyrood, where they will be placed in such of the public apartments as may be judged most advantageous for their exhibition.

DANISH CRUISERS IN THE FRITH OF FORTH.—Two Danish steam cruisers have been off Dunbar for several days, watching the mouth of the Forth, and overhauling suspicious looking craft. One of them last week captured a schooner, supposed to be a Prussian vessel, and after taking her in tow, stood out to sea. On Friday last, as a large foreign vessel was entering the Forth between the Bass and the May, one of the cruisers gave chase, but a breeze springing up the ship spread every inch of canvas, and succeeded in getting into neutral water. The man of war fired a parting shot after the fugitive, and then stood off to the northward. Large numbers of the inhabitants assembled in the Castle Park to witness the chase.

JUDGES' CHAMBERS.—The Steam Rams.—Attorney-General v. Laird and Others.—Mr. Turner, for the Attorney-General, stated that these were informations against the defendants for equipping and fitting out two iron-clad steam rams for the Confederate Government, and he applied for a commission to Cairo and other places to examine the Pasha of Egypt and others whose evidence was material for the Crown. Mr. W. Williams for the defendants, stated that they courted the fullest investigation, as they had a complete answer to the case, but contended that this was a vexatious application adopted to delay the proceedings, and nothing else. The vessels were seized early in November, and no information was filed till February. The vessels had been detained all this time to the great loss of the defendants, and now this commission would seriously add to the delay, to their great loss and prejudice. Mr. Justice Mellor said it was sworn that the evidence was essential, and he could hardly refuse the application. Mr. W. Williams said, if so, the Attorney-General ought to give the names of the witnesses, as giving that of the Pasha of Egypt was merely illusory; they would scarcely examine him personally, but some Ministers or other persons. The facts also intended to be proved ought to be stated, and the commission returned in time to try the case at the sittings after Easter Term. Mr. Turner said they intended to bring on the case for trial at that time. Mr. Justice Mellor said he should make the order, both the names of witnesses, so far as practicable, should be given to the defendants, and also a statement of the matters of fact intended to be proved; the commission also to be returned into Court by the 10th May next.

Obituary.

THE HON. MRS. GRANTHAM died on the 27th ult. She was the widow of Captain Charles Grantham, R.N., of Kesteven Grange, Rutland, and was the second daughter of the Right Hon. James Fortescue, younger brother of the first Viscount Clermont, and brother of the second and last viscount, who died in 1829.

THE HON. THOMAS HATTON GEORGE FERMOR died on the 4th inst. suddenly, in his 31st year. He was the second son of the fourth Earl of Pomfret, by the eldest daughter of Sir Richard Borough, Bart. He was born in 1832, and was for some years in the 2d Life Guards. He was heir-presumptive to his brother, the Earl of Pomfret.

REAR-ADMIRAL MANLEY HALL DIXON died on the 3d inst. at his residence, Stoke, Devonport, in his 78th year. He was the son of the late Admiral Sir Manley Dixon, K.C.B., and entered the navy in June, 1794. After becoming a lieutenant he served in various ships on the Channel, North Sea, Irish, and Mediterranean stations. In 1798 he took part in the action off Carthagena, between the Lion and four Spanish frigates of 42 guns each, which terminated in the surrender of one of the latter. He assisted in the capture of the French 80-gun ship Guillaume Tell in 1800; and in August in the same year witnessed the capture of La Diane, of 42 guns, and in September following the surrender of the Island of Malta. In 1809, being first lieutenant of the Horatio frigate, he was badly wounded by a musket ball, while sharing in a long and severe action, which terminated in the capture of the French 40-gun frigate La Junon

For his gallantry on this occasion he was promoted to the rank of commander, received a gratuity from the Patriotic Fund and a pension of 250*l.* for his wounds. He attained post rank in 1811, and served under his father in the Baltic and South America. He subsequently commanded the Caledonia, 120, at Devonport, and shortly after attaining the rank of rear-admiral, was appointed to the command in chief at Cork, which was his last employment.

Sir Thomas Howland Roberts, Bart., died on the 1st inst. at his house in Burlington Road, St. Stephen's Square. He was the eldest son of Sir Walter Roberts, of Brightfieldstown, Cork, by the daughter of the Rev. Edmond Gilbert, of Bodmin, and was born in 1805. In 1831 he succeeded to the title, and in 1834 married the daughter of Mr. John Maitland, of Eccles, Dumfriesshire. In 1842 he married, secondly, the daughter of Mr. William Langdon, of Inwood Lodge, Somersetshire. He is succeeded by his only son by the first marriage, Randal Howland, born in 1837, formerly lieutenant in the 33d Foot, who married in 1861 the daughter of Colonel Turnbull, of the Bombay Artillery.

BIRTHS.—On the 9th inst, at 4, Belgrave Square, the Lady Boston, of a daughter—2d inst, at Charlton Park, Malmesbury, Lady Isabel Atherley, prematurely, of a daughter, stillborn—5th inst, at Onslow Square, S.W., Lady Anstruther, of a son—5th inst, at Farnham, Surrey, the wife of Lieut.-Colonel Patrick L. C. Paget, late Scots Fusilier Guards, of a daughter—22d ult, the wife of General Tom Thumb of a son and heir.

MARRIAGES.—On the 8th inst, at St. George's, Hanover Square, Reginald Dykes Marshall, Esq., of Cookridge Hall, Leeds, to Mary, eldest daughter of Rear-Admiral the Hon. Keith Stewart, C.B.—24th ult, at Chateau Babenwohl, near Bregenz Vorarlberg, John Sholto, eldest son of John Douglass, Esq., of Tilquhillie, Kincardineshire, to Vanda, Baronne de Poellnitz, eldest daughter of Baron Ernest de Poellnitz, and the Hon. Isabella Drummond—3d inst, at Mary's Abbey Church, Dublin, Samuel Gibson, Esq., Gordon Square, London, to Jane, third daughter of the late George McBride, Esq., of Leeson Street, Dublin.

DEATHS.—On the 5th inst, at Loton Park, Shropshire, Mary, wife of Sir Baldwin Leighton, Bart., M.P.—5th inst, suddenly, under premature confinement (the child stillborn), at Bodelwyddan Castle, the seat of her uncle, Sir Hugh Williams, Bart, Caroline, wife of Major Lane, of the 21st Hussars, and daughter of the late George Lucy, Esq., of Charlcote Park—6th inst, at Denmark Hill, Ann Spencer, widow of Vice-Admiral William Young, aged 94.—3d inst, at St. Leonard's-on-Sea, Lieut.-Colonel John C. Roberts, late deputy-inspector-general of constabulary, Ireland—5th inst, at Winchester, Gertrude Maria, wife of Lieut.-Colonel Ward, 60th Royal Rifles, aged 28—9th inst, at 61, Rutland Gate, Mary, wife of William Forsyth, Esq., Q.C.—3d inst, at Knowle, Salcombe Regis, Devon, John Marwood Wolcott, Esq., justice of the peace for the county of Devon, aged 49—23d ult, at Charterhouse, Dr. Jonathan Green, late of Great Marlborough Street, aged 76—27th ult, at the Charterhouse, Mr. William A. Chatto, Author of the History of Wood Engraving, aged 64.

Markets.

COVENT GARDEN, March 12.

Vegetables and Fruit in season continue to be pretty well kept up. Retarded Hothouse Grapes are, however, scarce, but some good new ones may now be had. Blenheim Orange, Nonpareil, and American New Town Pippin Apples may still be obtained; likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are plentiful; the best are realising from 6s. to 10s. per 100. Cornish Broccoli is getting scarcer. Continental arrivals are heavy; among them are French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

FRUIT.

Pine Apples, per lb., 6s to 10s	Oranges, per 100, 2s 6d to 8s

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, March 7.

The supply of Beasts is not quite so large as on Monday last, yet trade is not better, indeed on the average prices are scarcely as good. There are not quite so many Sheep; we have a demand for choicest descriptions at late prices, but other kinds are lower. Calves are selling the same as on Thursday. From Germany and Holland there are 760 Beasts, 1870 Sheep, and 133 Calves; from Spain, 542 Beasts; from Scotland, 330; from Ireland, 270; and 2260 from Norfolk and Suffolk.

THURSDAY, March 10.

The number of Beasts is about the same as on Thursday last. Trade is very dull; Monday's quotations are pretty well maintained, but a clearance cannot be effected. There are a few more Sheep, and the demand is smaller, consequently prices on the average are scarcely as good. Choice Calves are scarce and rather dearer. Our foreign supply consists of 425 Beasts, 1260 Sheep, and 145 Calves. Milch Cows, 80.

MARK LANE.—Monday, March 7.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and for the most part in bad condition; a few samples were disposed of at a decline of about 1s. per qr., but the bulk remained on hand towards the close. Foreign Wheat continues to be neglected, and on the few sales that could be effected rather lower prices had to be submitted to. Spring Corn of all descriptions was a very dull sale, and we must reduce our quotations 1s. per qr. on Barley, Beans, and Peas, and 6d. upon Oats. Flour was little inquired for and rather cheaper.

FRIDAY, March 11

Since the 4th inst. the weather has been very wet, with sleet and snow on the 9th, and sharp frost during that night. We are unable to report any marked amelioration of the dullness which has so long prevailed in the Wheat trade; in a few markets rather more disposition has been evinced to make purchases at reduced prices, which have been complied with. The sale of all kinds of Spring Corn continues to be very limited, and generally on easier terms, and the same remarks apply to Flour. Since Friday last 5 vessels have been reported off the coast. The floating trade is exceedingly quiet; and with the few new arrivals prices have remained nominally unaltered, only in Cottonseed and Linseed some good transactions have been done at fully late rates. Paris, March 10.—The Flour trade has been very slow, and prices are declining. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 32s. 6d. per 280 lbs; the present stock is estimated at 16,000 cwt. Buyers of Wheat generally press for a decline of 1s. per qr., and a few transactions only have taken place at about 6d. per qr. under last week's prices. The arrivals of English and foreign Wheat this week have been limited, of English Barley and English and foreign Oats good, and foreign Barley very large. The attendance at to-day's market was very limited, and both English and foreign Wheat met a dull sale at Monday's quotations. Barley was a little more inquired for without alteration in price. Beans and Peas were unaltered in value. Oats were 6d. per qr. cheaper.

Liverpool, March 8.—At our market to-day there was rather more doing in red American Wheat at Friday's decline of 2d. per cental. Oats unsaleable. Barley and Peas dull. Egyptian Beans 6d. to 9d. per qr. dearer. Indian Corn 3d. per qr. cheaper. Oatmeal neglected. Flour was offered at Friday's decline, but holders showed no disposition to submit to any further abatement.

Friday, March 11.—The market was moderately attended. Wheat in better demand at rather improving rates. Flour improving, chiefly western canals. Indian Corn closes firm at 28s. 6d. for mixed. Egyptian Beans scarce and rather dearer. Oats and Oatmeal unaltered.

Heating by Hot-water.

THE ORIGINAL SADDLE BOILER, with Improved Tubular Check Draft, Flued Ends, and Ribbed Sides, for Heating Greenhouses, Vineries, Forcing Pits, Public Buildings, &c. These Boilers possess increased heating surface capacity, power, economy in fuel, and are the only class of Boilers, all points considered, when properly fixed, that can be relied upon with safety for Heating Greenhouses, &c., of any extent by hot-water, and at a moderate price.

Gardeners interested in such work should write for LIST of TESTIMONIALS, sent Post Free on application to FREDERICK WILLIAM BUTT (late of London), Portadown, Ireland.

DENNIS'S PATENT METALLIC HORTICULTURAL BUILDINGS are made from the best Wrought Iron, upon an entirely new principle. The combination of Iron and Glass under this patent is perfect; the possibility of fracture is prevented, and a permanently Water-tight Roof insured.

The leading practical advantages are extreme smallness o Framing, admitting a maximum of light and heat, great strength, durability, and perfect ventilation. They are speedily erected, partake of more desirable outline, and do not exceed the cost of a perishable wooden structure.

For Prospectus, &c., address T. H. P DENNIS, Horticultural Builder, Hot-Water Engineer, &c., High St. Chelmsford, Essex

STRAWBERRIES FOR THE MILLION.

NOTICE.

ON SATURDAY NEXT WILL APPEAR IN THE "GARDENERS' CHRONICLE" AN ILLUSTRATION OF

INGRAM'S IMPROVED STRAWBERRY HOUSE.

THE WANT of a HOUSE or PIT specially adapted to the purpose of FORCING STRAWBERRIES has long been felt both by Professional Gardeners and Amateurs. Unprovided with really suitable Places, the Gardener is often obliged to introduce his Strawberry Plants into his Vinery, Peach House, or Plant House, at a period when the temperature is not in every respect congenial.

There are also serious objections to such practices when it is considered how particularly subject the Strawberry Plant is to those insect pests, Red Spider and Green Fly.

It is for the remedy of these and many other disadvantages of the present system, and to supply a light structure in every respect adapted to the cultivation of Strawberries, that this superior invention is most strongly recommended.

Every information as to Construction, Price, &c., can be obtained of

A New Boiler.

THE PATENT UPRIGHT-CELLED BOILER, combining efficiency, economy, durability, and the possibility of cleaning every part.

The Patentee begs to bring to the notice of the public this Boiler, which is new in principle, and is constructed to give the greatest possible amount of heating surface in a given space. It has been in use for some years by amateurs and professional gardeners, as well as for heating large public buildings, and has never failed to give entire satisfaction.

The cost (which is less than that of any patent Boiler of equal power yet out) together with the great saving it effects, in fuel, bring it within the reach of all classes.

Testimonials and particulars as to price, the various sizes, &c. to be had on application to Messrs. CLARKE & HOPE, Horticultural Engineers, Lionel Street, Birmingham.

GRAY'S OVAL TUBULAR BOILER.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class IX., No. 2119.

Mr. GRAY begs to call the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, Nurserymen, Gardeners, &c., to his acknowledged by practical judges to be a great improvement on every form of Tubular Boiler yet introduced. It has proved itself superior to all other Boilers for quickness of action and economy of Fuel, doing its work with one-third less the amount required by any other.

Extract from Report in Gardeners' Chronicle of International Exhibition, May 24, page 476.

"The upright form of Boiler is usually made on a circular plan, but the oval form given to Mr. GRAY'S variety of it is said to be preferable in consequence of its bringing the tubes in closer contact with the fire. The usual form of a furnace being a parallelogram rather than a square, it seems feasible that the Boilers on the oval plan should bring the tubes more completely within range of the burning fuel; and this being so, the change, though a slight one, is no doubt an improvement."

They are made of all sizes, which, with prices, may be had on application.

In again submitting their LAWN MOWERS to the notice of purchasers, Messrs. SAMUELSON & Co. wish to state that they do not make annual changes in the principle of their LAWN MOWERS. Experience has fully proved that the general design on which their MACHINES have been built for many years past is the best, and their attention has been given therefore rather to substantial improvements in manufacture, reduction of the draught, and increase of durability by the use of malleable iron in place of cast metal, than to the production of ephemeral novelties. Their MACHINES are superior to all others in lightness of draught, elegance, and efficiency under all circumstances of ground and weather, being self-cleaning, and not liable to derangement in the gearing. PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.— IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—

"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."

Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Bosses, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Toilet Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Calbotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

Fergusson's Modern Architecture.
Now Ready, with 312 Illustrations, One Vol. 8vo, 31*s.* 6*d.*,

A HISTORY of the MODERN STYLES of ARCHITECTURE. By JAMES FERGUSSON, F.R.S.

"This volume forms one of the best comprehensive accounts of architecture extant in any language. The conciseness and clearness of the style, shows the author to be thoroughly master of his subject, and the portable size of the volume, together with the excellence and number of the illustrations, make it a book which must find a place on the shelves of every architect's library."—Civil Engineer and Architect's Journal.

"A volume which those who have travelled, and to whom the greater part of the buildings cited are well known, will appreciate as a convenient hand-book for reference, either to refresh their memories, or for the purpose of comparison, and one which will be even more valuable to those who have never wandered from home, and who find here a convenient and accessible storehouse of information."—Christian Remembrancer.

"Mr. Fergusson has now completed the 'History of Architecture' of which he published two volumes some three or four years back. The present volume is, nevertheless, a distinct work, because it is confined exclusively to the architecture of the last three centuries; and it is no less novel than distinct, for, practically speaking, we may affirm that no one previously has treated of modern architecture as a whole, or has attempted to criticise its miscellaneous examples from a comprehensive point of view."—Times.

THE RIVER AMAZONS; a Record of Adventure, with Sketches of Brazilian and Indian Life, during Eleven Years of Travel. By HENRY WALTER BATES.

"We have never seen a more graceful record of struggle-of-the-world experience. It imparts the fascination which the great river exercised on the writer himself, and makes the reader his absorbed companion to the end."—Times.

"Replete with interest and novelty from the beginning to the end."—British Quarterly.

"A mine of Natural History wealth."—Zoologist.

"Mr. Bates belongs to the small class of men who deserve the earnest gratitude not only of their own country, but of the civilised world."—Spectator.

"The keenness of Mr. Bates's powers of observation appears to rival even that of the great Humboldt."—Popular Science Review.

"We hail Mr. Bates as a worthy naturalist traveller."—Journal of Science.

"Mr. Bates opens up to us a new, wild, and beautiful world, and we close the book with a feeling of regret akin to that with which the traveller himself sailed out of the mouth of the mighty river."—Guardian.

"Mr. Bates's is one of the most important works of its kind that has appeared."—Annals and Mag. of Nat. History.

The Prize Essay on

"THE REARING of CALVES." By THOMAS BOWICK, Britannia Farms, Bedford (late Stoneleigh Abbey Farm).

By special permission of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a reprint from their Journal of the above Essay is now before the public, by Messrs. DAY, SON, & HEWITT, 22, Dorset Street, Baker Street, London. Price, by post, Three Stamps, or Five Copies for Twelve Stamps. The celebrated Essay should be in the hands of all Breeders, from the large Dairy Farmer down to the Cottager with his One Cow.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Bowick's Essay, in a concise way, goes into the question of the construction of the Calf-house, the condition of the Cow before Calving, the best season for Calving, the Feeding of Calves, the Quantity of Milk and other food, the Health and Disease of the Young Calf, the Spring and Summer Feeding, &c. We recommend the perusal of the Essay to those who are employed in rearing calves."—Mark Lane Express, November 1863.

"It is a cheap tract, well written, on a matter of great practical importance, and is certain to receive a wide circulation."—Agricultural Gazette, November 1863.

"The Essay will be very acceptable to farmers in general, and a better two-penn'worth it would be impossible to recommend. It ought to be sown broadcast over England; and let every farmer, bailiff, or servant in husbandry should be without it."—Worcester Herald, 2d January, 1864.

Land Drainage, and other Agricultural Improvements.
MR. BAILEY DENTON, C.E., maintains a large Staff for the execution of Land Improvements by a commission of 5s. per acre for Under Drainage, and a fixed charge for Outfall and other works.
For particulars apply to him, at 52, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

Drainage, &c.
MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.
Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.
22, Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

DRAINAGE LOANS are made by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY to the Owners of Freehold Estates, Life Tenants, Trustees, Incumbents, Bodies Corporate, &c., for all works of Agricultural Drainage, as well as Irrigation, Enclosing, Road Making, Wood Grubbing, and Farm Buildings, sanctioned by the Inclosure Commissioners.
The advances are repaid by way of Rent Charge on the Estate created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual charge to the circumstances of the Tenants.
No investigation of title being required, or notices given to Reversioners or Mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.
The Company either supply the money expended by landowners in works designed and executed by their own Agents, or they undertake the entire improvement by their experienced staff, supply the weekly advances required, and charge on the estate the actual outlay in the works, and their commission thereon.
Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, London, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.
To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.
The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.
1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.
No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.
For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

News of the Week.

IN the House of Lords on Monday, in answer to the Earl of DERBY, Lord WODEHOUSE explained that in his recent conversation with M. HALL, the late Prime Minister of Denmark, his remark that no measures of the Danish Government would avert Federal execution applied solely to the Duchy of Holstein, for the simple reason that he did not then know the intentions of the German Powers with respect to Schleswig. Earl GRANVILLE, in answer to Lord CAMPBELL, said that the statement of Prince GORTSCHAKOFF as to Russia, Austria, Great Britain, and Prussia, acting in harmony on a question more important than that of Schleswig Holstein, must have referred to a supposed agreement to decline the suggestion for a general European Congress. It could not have meant that her Majesty's Government had entered into a combination against France, for they were most anxious to act in concert with the French Government on all European questions. On Tuesday the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH asked whether the identical note from Austria and Prussia to the Danish Government, which had appeared in the daily papers, containing an amended proposal for an armistice, was genuine. The Duke of SOMERSET said that the document was substantially correct. The Malt for Cattle Bill and the Marine Mutiny Bill were read a second time. The Insane Prisoners' Act Amendment Bill was referred to a Select Committee. The Vestry Cess Abolition (Ireland) Bill passed through committee, after a division on clause 4, which was thrown out by a majority of 7, the numbers being 34 to 27. On Wednesday the Mutiny Bill was read a second time. The Inclosure Bill was read a third time and passed. The Marine Mutiny Bill passed through committee. The Consolidated Fund Bills were brought up from the Commons and read a first time. On Thursday, in answer to the Earl of DESART, Earl DE GREY gave explanations as to the probable operation of the Ten Years' Enlistment Act, by the provisions of which a large number of men will be entitled to their discharge from the army next year. In answer to a question from the Earl of DONOUGHMORE respecting the Irish constabulary,

Earl GRANVILLE said that the Government were engaged in consulting the public officials in Ireland with the view of improving the character of that body as a detective force.

In the Commons on Friday, on the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. HENNESSY moved a resolution to the effect that it was just and expedient to extend to Ireland the beneficial provisions of the English poor law. The motion led to a long debate, but was ultimately withdrawn. On Monday Mr. ROEBUCK asked whether the Government intended to remonstrate with the Government of the Federal States on their employment of agents in Ireland for the purpose of enlisting HER MAJESTY'S subjects, and accompanied the question with a severe censure on the foreign policy of Earl RUSSELL. Lord PALMERSTON defended Earl RUSSELL, and said that the Government had not yet obtained any evidence against Federal recruiting agents in Ireland, but if any such evidence could be procured, immediate steps would be taken to vindicate the law. Sir L. PALK called attention to the statement made by the late PROCUREUR-GENERAL in Paris with regard to the alleged connection of M. MAZZINI with Mr. STANSFELD, and asked if any communications had passed between the French and English Governments on the subject. Mr. LAYARD replied that no communication had been received from the French Government, and that her Majesty's Government had no intention whatever to take any notice of the statement. The House then went into Committee of Supply, and Mr. STANSFELD moved the votes for wages of artificers and workmen in the dockyards, and entered into a long explanation of the state of those establishments. Mr. LINDSAY moved to reduce the vote by 244,979*l.*, being the excess in the estimate over that of last year. On a division the motion was negatived by 110 to 29. The vote was then agreed to, as was a vote for 69,105*l.* for wages of artificers in the dockyards abroad. The Mutiny Bill was read a third time and passed. The Consolidated Fund (4,500,000*l.*) Bill and the Consolidated Fund Bill (584,650*l.*) were read a second time. On Tuesday Mr. DUDLEY FORTESCUE moved for various papers connected with the late court-martial on Colonel CRAWLEY, and entered into a long justification of the course he had taken on the subject. General PEEL moved as an amendment, that the production of any further papers was inexpedient. After a long debate the amendment was agreed to without a division. Mr. BAINES obtained leave to bring in a Bill to extend the franchise to 6*l.* occupiers in boroughs. On Wednesday the Judgments, &c., Law Amendment Bill was read a second time and referred to a select committee. Mr. DODSON moved the second reading of the Tests Abolition (Oxford) Bill, the object of which is to abolish the subscription now required for University degrees. Sir W. HEATHCOTE moved as an amendment that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. On a division, the second reading was carried by 211 to 189. The Election Petitions Bill and the Metropolitan Subways Bill were read a second time, the latter being referred to a Select Committee. On Thursday, in answer to Lord R. MONTAGU, Lord PALMERSTON said that her Majesty's Government had obtained the consent of Austria and Prussia to a Conference, and that they had good reason to hope that the Danish Government would also consent to it. On the order for resuming the adjourned debate on the motion for going into Committee on the Government Annuities Bill, an animated discussion took place between the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER and Mr. H. B. SHERIDAN, with regard to the representations made by the right hon. gentleman relative to the British Provident Institution and its management. The adjourned debate was then resumed by Sir M. FARQUHAR, who moved as an amendment that the Bill be referred to a select committee. After a long discussion, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he had no objection to refer the Bill to a select committee, provided the committee confined itself to the consideration of the clauses. Lord STANLEY suggested that the compromise should be accepted. The debate was then adjourned. On the order for going into committee of supply, Sir H. STRACEY moved that the statement made by the PROCUREUR-GENERAL on the recent trial of GRECO for conspiracy against the EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH, respecting the connection of M. MAZZINI with Mr. STANSFELD, deserved the serious consideration of the House. Mr. STANSFELD defended himself at some length and gave a direct denial to every part of GRECO's statement, though he admitted that letters had been addressed to M. MAZZINI at his house under the name of "M. FLOWER." After a long debate the House divided, when the motion was negatived by a majority of 10, the numbers being 171 to 161.

THE COURT.—The Queen and Royal family continue at Windsor Castle. On Friday Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa left London for Windsor. On Saturday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds. Prince Alfred came to London, and was present at the Levée at St. James's Palace. His Royal Highness afterwards returned to the Castle. In the afternoon, the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out. On Sunday morning the Queen, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Dean of Windsor officiated. On Monday morning the Queen, accompanied by Prince Alfred and Princess Helena, came to London. Her Majesty drove to South Kensington, and inspected the Mulready collection of pictures. Her Majesty then visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, and remained to luncheon. After luncheon her Majesty returned to Buckingham Palace and there received the Archduke Maximilian of Austria and the Archduchess Charlotte. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, afterwards returned to Windsor Castle. Prince Alfred remained in London, and left at night for Edinburgh. In the evening Count Furstentein, Chamberlain to the Crown Princess of Prussia, arrived at Windsor Castle, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty and the Royal family. On Tuesday morning the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Helena, drove in the grounds. In the afternoon the Queen drove out. Lady Fanny Howard arrived at the Castle on a visit. On Wednesday, being the anniversary of the death of the Duchess of Kent, the Queen and Royal family, attended by Lady Augusta Stanley and Lady Fanny Howard, formerly Ladies-in-Waiting to her Royal Highness, visited the Mausoleum of the Duchess at Frogmore, where Mr. Theed's statue of her Royal Highness, modelled under the superintendence of the Prince Consort, was uncovered. The statue, which represents the Duchess standing, is placed on a pedestal of red Portuguese marble, in a temple designed by the Prince Consort. On Thursday morning the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds. Princess Beatrice took a carriage drive. The Right Hon. C. P. Villiers arrived from London and had an audience of her Majesty. In the evening the King of the Belgians, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, arrived at the Castle from Buckingham Palace. His Majesty and his Royal Highness travelled from Paddington by a special train on the Great Western Railway.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES continue at Marlborough House. On Friday morning the Prince rode on horseback, and paid the King of the Belgians a visit at Buckingham Palace. The Princess took a carriage drive. The King of the Belgians visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. The Prince afterwards drove to the Zoological Gardens, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg. A deputation of gentlemen, headed by the Earl of Dalhousie, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Lord H. Cholmondeley, Lord Berners, Lord Calthorpe, and several Members of Parliament, waited upon the Prince and Princess and presented a Bible, Prayer-book, and Lectern, from 3928 gentlemen of the United Kingdom. A deputation from Kidderminster, headed by the Mayor, had an audience, and presented to their Royal Highnesses the offering from that town. On Saturday morning the Prince rode out. In the afternoon his Royal Highness held a levée at St. James's Palace, on behalf of her Majesty. After the levée the Prince and Princess took a drive, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, and visited the Duchess of Inverness at Kensington Palace. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner party to meet the King of the Belgians. On Sunday morning the Prince and Princess, accompanied by the King of the Belgians and Prince John of Glücksburg, attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Bishop of Ripon preached the sermon. In the evening the Archduke and Archduchess Maximilian dined with their Royal Highnesses. On Monday morning the Archduke and Archduchess Maximilian of Austria visited the Prince and Princess. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Prince Alfred, arrived from Windsor, and took luncheon with their Royal Highnesses. The King of the Belgians joined the Royal party at lunch. In the afternoon the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary visited the Prince and Princess. The Princess afterwards took a carriage drive. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, went to the Princess's Theatre. On Tuesday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, drove to Woolwich, and took a cruise down the river in the Sultan's new yacht. Their Royal Highnesses took luncheon on board, and returned to Woolwich soon after 4 p.m., arriving at Marlborough House shortly before 6. On Wednesday morning the Prince rode on horseback, and visited the King of the Belgians at Buckingham Palace. The Princess took a carriage drive. Prince John of Glucksburg visited the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House. On Thursday morning the Prince rode on horseback and visited the King of the Belgians at Buckingham Palace. The Princess took a carriage drive, and also visited the King of the Belgians. His Majesty afterwards visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House. In the afternoon the Prince, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, visited Mr. Leighton's studio. In the evening the Prince and Princess, and Prince John of Glücksburg dined with the Duchess of Inverness at Kensington Palace. It is understood that the Prince and Princess of Wales will leave Marlborough House on Tuesday to pass a week with Her Majesty at Windsor Castle, after which their Royal Highnesses will go to Sandringham for a few weeks.

ARRIVAL OF THE ARCHDUKE AND ARCHDUCHESS MAXIMILIAN.—His Imperial Highness the Archduke Maximilian of Austria, the future Emperor of Mexico, accompanied by the Archduchess and a numerous suite, landed at Dover on Sunday morning and after taking breakfast at the Ship Hotel left for London by a special train on the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. On their arrival at Victoria Station, the Imperial party proceeded at once to the Clarendon Hotel, where apartments had been engaged for them. The Archduke has been travelling in strict incognito, under the title of the Count Lacroma; and consequently, all the usual receptions and salutes were dispensed with. At an early hour on Sunday their Imperial Highnesses went to Marlborough House to visit the King of the Belgians, the father of the Archduchess. Later in the day the Princess of Wales drove out with the Archduchess. In the evening their Imperial Highnesses dined with the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House to meet the King of the Belgians. On Monday morning the Archduke and Archduchess paid a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales and the King of the Belgians, at Marlborough House, and afterwards took a drive in the Parks, returning to the Clarendon to luncheon. In the afternoon their Imperial Highnesses went to Buckingham Palace, and visited the Queen, who had arrived from Windsor for the purpose of receiving them. On their return to the Clarendon the Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Cambridge and the Princess Mary and the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz visited their Imperial Highnesses. At a later hour the Prince of Wales and Prince Alfred called on the Archduke and Archduchess. In consequence of the interest excited by the presence of the Imperial Highnesses at the Clarendon, and the great crowd assembled in the hope of obtaining a glimpse of the future Emperor and Empress of Mexico, the Prince of Wales and Prince Alfred left the hotel by the private entrance in Albemarle Street. During the day the Orleans Princes, several of the foreign ambassadors, Cabinet ministers, and great officers of State, and other distinguished personages, paid their respects to the Archduke and Archduchess. On Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock their Imperial Highnesses left London for Dover by a special train on the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway. On their arrival at Dover the Archduke and Archduchess took luncheon at the Royal Shakespeare Hotel, and embarked immediately afterwards for Ostend on their way to Brussels.

PRINCE JOHN OF GLUCKSBURG is expected to leave Marlborough House on Tuesday, on his return to Copenhagen.

COURT MOURNING.—Orders were issued from the Lord Chamberlain's Office on Tuesday for the Court to go into mourning for three weeks, commencing to-morrow, the 20th inst., for the late King of Bavaria.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—The official declaration of the poll for Hertfordshire was published on Monday, when the High Sheriff announced the exact majority of Mr. Surtees to be 248, the numbers being 2274 for Mr. Surtees, and 2026 for Mr. Cowper. The Berwick election committee has reported that Mr. Cargill was duly elected. A new writ has been issued for the county of Armagh, vacant by the resignation of Mr. Close.

SECRETARYSHIP OF THE POST OFFICE.—The Postmaster-General has appointed Mr. John Tilley to be Secretary of the Post Office, in the room of Sir Rowland Hill, resigned.

THE PRIVY COUNCIL JUDGMENT ON ESSAYS AND

it would be of incalculable advantage to the working classes. Lord Stanley concurred in the principle of the Bill, but suggested that further time should be allowed for its consideration. After some discussion the Chancellor of the Exchequer agreed to adjourn the debate to Thursday week. On Tuesday Mr. M. Gibson called attention to the report of the Joint Committee on Metropolitan Railway Schemes, and moved that the Bills therein recommended to be abandoned should not be proceeded with. After some discussion and a division the motion was agreed to. Mr. Adderley moved a resolution that grants made from the Treasury to schools for the working classes should not in every case be reduced by the whole amount of the endowments. After a long debate, during which several members spoke in favour of the motion, Mr. Lowe said that in deference to the prevailing feeling of the House the Government would accept the resolution. The motion was then agreed to. On the motion of Mr. G. Clive, a Select Committee was appointed to inquire into the expediency and practicability of abolishing turnpike trusts. On the motion of Sir S. Northcote, a Select Committee was appointed to inquire into the constitution and working of Government schools of art. The Inclosure Bill, and the Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill, were read a third time and passed. On Wednesday the Trespass (Ireland) Bill was read a second time. The Watching of Towns (Ireland) Bill was withdrawn. Mr. Ewart moved the second reading of the Weights and Measures Bill, the object of which is to permit the use of the metric system in mercantile transactions. Mr. M. Gibson said he would not oppose the second reading of the Bill, but could not consent to some of the clauses. Mr. Walter moved that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. On a division, the amendment was negatived by 90 to 52, and the Bill was read a second time. The Cattle Diseases Prevention Bill and the Cattle Importation Bill were read a second time and referred to a select committee. On Thursday the House went into Committee of Supply on the Naval Estimates, and agreed to the vote for 1,275,316*l.* for the wages of artificers in the dockyards. The other votes were postponed in order to give the House an opportunity of discussing the details. The House went into committee on the Mutiny Bill, when Mr. Cox moved the omission of the clause authorising the punishment of flogging. The motion was negatived on a division by a majority of 3, the numbers being 45 to 42. Mr. Cox then moved the omission of the clause relating to the branding of deserters. On a division, the motion was negatived by 80 to 50. The Bill then passed through committee. The Marine Mutiny Bill also passed through committee. Mr. Lawson moved for leave to bring in a Bill to enable owners and occupiers of property to prevent the common sale of intoxicating liquors in certain districts. On a division, leave was given by 70 to 36.

A despatch from Vienna announces the important intelligence that Austria has assented to the policy proposed to her by Prussia, and that the allied armies have received orders to advance immediately into Jutland and surround the city of Fredericia. In accordance with these orders a Prussian division, accompanied by the Crown Prince and General Wrangel, advanced on Sonderskoogl on Tuesday, attacked the Danish outposts, and drove them back to Fredericia; while the Austrians advanced on Veile, to the north of Fredericia, and dislodged the Danes from that position.

A telegram from Copenhagen states that the elections to the Folksthing took place on Saturday, when all the candidates favourable to the prosecution of the war were returned. The President of the Council, in a speech delivered to his constituents, said that he should continue to struggle persistently for the independence of the monarchy, and the maintenance of the union between Denmark and Schleswig, and would never consent to a dissolution of this union. A great meeting was held at Stockholm on Sunday, at which resolutions in favour of the Danes were unanimously adopted. A popular demonstration for Denmark was subsequently made before the house of the Danish Minister.

The King of Bavaria died on Thursday morning, after an illness of less than 24 hours. His Majesty is succeeded by his eldest son, now in his 19th year, who has been proclaimed King by the title of Ludwig II.

Since the announcement of the state of siege in Galicia the whole of the Russian army has been placed on a war footing. The Imperial Guard has been ordered to the Prussian frontier, and the 6th Corps d'Armée has been ordered from the extreme provinces of Russia to Poland. An Imperial proclamation emancipating the peasants throughout Poland was solemnly proclaimed in Warsaw on Sunday.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the grounds. Princess Helena came to London, and attended the performance at the Lyceum Theatre. On Wednesday morning the Duke and Duchess d'Aumale visited the King of the Belgians, and took luncheon with her Majesty. The Ambassadors from the Queen of Madagascar were presented to the Queen by Earl Russell. They were accompanied by Mr. John Duffus, their interpreter. Earl Russell had an audience of her Majesty. On Thursday morning, the Queen, accompanied by the King of the Belgians, Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, left Windsor for Buckingham Palace, to attend the christening of the Prince of Wales. The Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold left the Castle for London an hour previously. Prince Alfred had arrived at Buckingham Palace on the previous night from Edinburgh. Prince Arthur also arrived from Greenwich Park. After the christening, the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, went to Marlborough House to visit the Prince and Princess of Wales. Her Majesty afterwards drove to the Paddington station of the Great Western Railway, and returned to Windsor. The King of the Belgians, Prince Alfred, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa, remained at Buckingham Palace, and in the evening dined with the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House.

The Prince and Princess of Wales.—On Friday afternoon the Prince and Princess received deputations from the University of Oxford, the University of Cambridge, and the body of Presbyterian ministers of London and Westminster, who presented addresses on the birth of the infant Prince. The Princess of Wales afterwards took a carriage drive. The Duke and Duchess d'Aumale visited the Prince and Princess of Wales. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner party. On Saturday morning the Prince took a ride on horseback. The Princess drove out in an open carriage. In the evening the Prince attended the performance at the Haymarket Theatre. On Sunday morning the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. The Bishop of Sodor and Man preached the sermon. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses took a drive in an open carriage to Kew Gardens. On Monday morning the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary visited the Prince and Princess. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses left Marlborough House for Windsor, on a visit to the Queen. On Tuesday morning the Prince and Princess returned to Marlborough House. In the afternoon the Prince drove to the Victoria Station to meet Prince John of Glücksburg, who arrived on a visit to their Royal Highnesses. The Princess took a carriage drive. Prince John of Glücksburg visited the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary. In the evening the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, went to the Lyceum Theatre. On Wednesday the Princess took a carriage drive. The Duke of Cambridge visited Prince John of Glücksburg at Marlborough House. On Thursday, after the christening of the infant Prince, the Prince and Princess of Wales gave a State dinner at Marlborough House to the King of the Belgians, the members of the Royal family, the Royal guests invited to the christening, and the principal Officers of State and the Royal Household.

Christening of the Infant Prince.—The baptism of the infant son of the Prince and Princess of Wales took place on Thursday, the first anniversary of the marriage of his Royal parents. The ceremony took place at 1 o'clock in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace, in the presence of the Queen, the King of the Belgians, the Princes and Princesses of the Royal family, Prince John of Glücksburg, brother of the King of Denmark the Princess Augusta of Saxe-Coburg, Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, Princess Clotilde of Saxe-Coburg, Prince Edward and Prince Gustav of Saxe-Weimar, several of the Foreign Ambassadors, her Majesty's Ministers, the Great Officers of State, the members of the Queen's and Prince of Wales's Households, and a large number of invited guests. The Archbishop of Canterbury officiated, assisted by the Bishop of London, the Bishop of Oxford, the Bishop of Chester, the Rector of St. George's, Hanover-square, the Dean of Windsor, and the Dean of Westminster. The Sponsors were the Queen, the King of the Belgians, Prince John of Schleswig-Holstein-Sönderburg-Glücksburg, representing the King of Denmark; the Princess Helena, representing the Crown Princess of Prussia; Prince Alfred; the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, representing the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; the Duchess of Cambridge, representing the Dowager Duchess of Schleswig-Holstein-Sönderburg-Glücksburg; and the Duke of Cambridge, representing the Landgrave of Hesse. The Royal personages having been conducted to their seats, the service commenced with the performance of a chorale, composed by the Prince Consort, and a hymn. When the music ceased, the Lord Chamberlain, accompanied by the Groom of the Stole to the Prince of Wales, and the Chamberlain to the Princess, conducted the infant Prince into the Chapel, his Royal Highness being carried by Mrs. Clark, the head nurse, and attended by the Countess of Macclesfield, one of the Ladies of the Bedchamber to the Princess. The Royal infant was attired in a robe of Honiton lace—the same that was worn by the Prince of Wales at his christening, with a cap of Honiton lace, a cloak of crimson velvet lined with ermine, and a mantle of white satin edged with Honiton lace. When the Archbishop of Canterbury commenced the prayer of the baptismal service, the Countess of Macclesfield gave the infant Prince to the Queen, who handed his Royal Highness to the Archbishop. On reaching the portion of the service for the naming of the child, the Archbishop demanded of the Sponsors how it should be named. The Queen answered "Albert Victor Christian Edward," and the Archbishop baptized it in those names. The infant Prince was then restored to the arms of the Queen. The Countess of Macclesfield afterwards took the Prince, who was reconducted from the Chapel in the same way as on entering. The exhortation and blessing having been given by the Archbishop, the ceremonial concluded with the performance of Haydn's grand chorus from the "Creation." As soon as the ceremony was concluded, the Queen was conducted by the Lord Chamberlain to the White Drawing Room, where the Sponsors joined her Majesty. The Royal personages, with their attendants, and all others forming the Royal procession, also retired from the Chapel and proceeded to the State apartments. The Queen wore a black silk dress covered with deep black crape, and edged with jet gimp; a cap of white crape lisse, in the style of the cap of Mary Queen of Scots, with diamonds round it, and a long white crape lisse veil attached to it. Her Majesty wore the riband, star, and badge of the Garter, a diamond necklace, and large cross containing the Prince Consort's miniature, and a brooch composed of a large sapphire set in 12 large diamonds. The Princess of Wales wore a white satin dress with ruches of tulle and two flounces of rich Brussels lace decked with flowers, water lilies, ferns, and grasses; a tiara of diamonds, necklace, brooch, and earrings of pearls and diamonds, a corsage of the City diamonds round the top of the dress; the Portuguese Order of Isabella, and the Victoria and Albert badge. The King of the Belgians wore the uniform of a Field-Marshal. The Prince of Wales wore a General's uniform, with the collar of the Garter. Prince Alfred wore a naval uniform. Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold wore the Highland costume. The Duke of Cambridge wore the uniform of a Field-Marshal. The Ministers of State and the officers of the Royal Household all wore their full-dress uniforms, and the members of the orders of knighthood wore the collars of their respective orders. The ceremonial having concluded, the visitors proceeded to the Green Drawing-room and Picture Gallery, and shortly afterwards partook of a collation with the Royal family in the supper-room, which had been beautifully prepared for the occasion. Much of the most curious and costly plate belonging to the Palace was displayed on the tables and the buffet, and conspicuous among the viands was a superb christening cake. During the collation the Lord Steward gave the following toasts:—"The Prince Albert Victor of Wales." "The King of the Belgians." "The King of Denmark." "The Queen." "The Prince and Princess of Wales." After the collation the guests took their departure, and the Queen, after paying a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House, returned to Windsor.

ARRIVAL OF PRINCE JOHN OF GLÜCKSBURG.—His Royal Highness Prince John, youngest brother to the King of Denmark, arrived in London on Tuesday, to represent the King and Queen of Denmark at the christening of the infant Prince. His Royal Highness landed at Dover at 3 A.M. on Tuesday morning, and slept at the Ship Hotel. The Prince left Dover at noon by the express train on the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, and was met at the station by the Prince of Wales, who conducted him to Marlborough House, where he remains on a visit to the Prince and Princess.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street.

THE CHANNEL FLEET passed Plymouth on Saturday on their way to Portland.

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW.—The Secretary of State for War has sanctioned a review of Volunteers being held on Blackheath, near Guildford, on Easter Monday, the 28th inst. Applications from corps desirous of attending this review are to be made upon the prescribed form and transmitted to the War Office through the proper channel not later than the 23d inst.

THE CRAWLEY COURT-MARTIAL.—A return from the War Office has been published, showing the expenses of the court-martial, distinguishing the proportions to be defrayed from Imperial and Indian revenues respectively. The account is as follows:—Cost of transport for witnesses, &c., from India to England, 5324*l.* 10*s.*; travelling expenses for witnesses, &c., in England, 456*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; pay and allowances of witnesses, &c., 9283*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.*; estimated cost of transport back to India, 2901*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*; expenses of Deputy-Judge-Advocate-General, and of certain witnesses, telegrams, cabs, &c., 127*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*; Messrs. Gurney & Sons, for transcripts of evidence, &c., 212*l.* 17*s.* 3*d.*; fitting up club at Aldershott, fuel, light, and repairs of furniture, 54*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.*; incidental expenses, 17*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*; total, 18,378*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* The whole of the above expenditure will be defrayed from Imperial revenues.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—The election for Hertfordshire took place yesterday, and terminated in the return of Mr. Surtees by a large majority. The numbers at 3 o'clock, as given by the Liberal return, were—for Mr. Surtees, 2117; Mr. Cowper, 1887.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The Archduke and Archduchess Maximilian arrived in Paris on Saturday, escorted from the Belgian frontier by Prince Metternich. Their Imperial Highnesses were received on their arrival at the Tuileries by the Emperor and Empress. It is understood that they will leave Paris to-day or to-morrow for Windsor Castle, and there take leave of Queen Victoria and King Leopold, and that they will embark at Trieste on the 25th inst. for Mexico. The Patrie of Friday states that the foreign legion will be reorganised, with a total effective strength of 6000 men, and be period of 8 or 10 years. The French army would then be placed at the service of the Archduke Maximilian for a able to embark for France at the end of the present year. The Presse asserts that Count Bernstorff has announced to Earl Russell that the Prussians intend shortly to attack Fredericia. The Constitutionnel of Saturday, in an article signed by M. Paulin Limayrac, says:—

"The proclamation of a state of siege in Galicia is a serious and lamentable fact, but the English press draws exaggerated consequences therefrom in concluding that a political combination exists between the Cabinets of Vienna and St. Petersburg. As we are in the habit of commenting on precise information only, we will say no more on the subject now, but confine ourselves to pointing out the contradiction between Austria making war in Denmark in the name of the principle of nationalities, and her conduct towards the Poles in Galicia."

The same journal of Tuesday, in another article signed by M. Limayrac, considers the assertions of the English journals respecting the establishment of the Holy Alliance to be at least exaggerated. It says:—

"We cannot believe in the resurrection of a policy which was justifiable when we had to fight it, and when it led to a gigantic struggle, but which at the present time would be the most absurd of anachronisms. On what principle was the Holy Alliance founded, and what was its object? Its principle was absolutism, its object was to crush the French Revolution and its consequences. In a word, it was the struggle of old against modern society, of feudal against modern Europe, of absolutism against 1789. The First Empire, which was the Revolution reduced to order, had accepted the dangers together with the advantages of the political and social transformation which had just taken place, and the old world, rising against it, was making its last effort."

La Patrie of Sunday publishes the following in a postscript:—

"Just as we were going to press two grave facts have been communicated to us by private telegraphic despatches, and confirmed by private information. Austria having consented to associate herself in the execution of all the strategic plans of Marshal Wrangel, the continuation of hostilities in Jutland is said to have been decided upon at Berlin. These facts are incontestably connected with the execution of the engagements entered into between the Courts of Vienna, St. Petersburg, and Berlin, the first realisation of which is the declaration of a state of siege in Galicia."

The Temps describes the anxiety with which the future is expected. It says:—

"No Government in its senses would prefer war to peace, but treaties are everywhere looked upon as so much waste paper, and the 'nationality movement' is upheaving Italy and other nationalities which are or fancy themselves oppressed. No reflecting mind can any longer conceal from itself the gravity of the situation of Europe. History records no concourse of circumstances at once so tragic and so strange. Never has Europe felt so clearly the presentiment of a formidable crisis, never has she been less desirous of one, and never has she felt herself less able to avert it."

The Emperor has consented to arbitrate in certain questions pending with the Suez Canal Company, referred to him for settlement by the Viceroy of Egypt. His Majesty has appointed a Committee of five members to examine the questions at issue. The supplementary election at Cambrai to the Corps Législatif took place on Tuesday, when M. Stievenand, the Opposition candidate, obtained 16,159 votes, and M. Boitelle, the Government candidate, 13,425 votes. It was recently mentioned that the second daughter of Count de Montalembert had become a nun in the Convent of the Sacré Cœur. The youngest sister of the Countess has just entered the same establishment in a similar capacity.

SPAIN.—In the sitting of the Cortes on the 3d inst., Senor Mon, President of the Council, who has provisionally assumed the direction of the Ministry of Marine, declared that he would govern with the co-operation of the Cortes, settle the constitutional question, and abolish the measures introduced in 1858. In the sitting of the Senate on Tuesday the President of the Council brought in a Bill abolishing the Constitutional Reform Law of 1858. The Minister of the Interior laid three Bills before the Chamber; the first for the suppression of electoral offences; the second regulating the Parliamentary disabilities of public functionaries, and the third proposing the appointment of Mayors of towns by Royal decree. In the sitting of the Cortes on Wednesday, Senor Balmasedo moved that the sinking fund for the Passive Debt should be ncreased. The Minister of Finance replied favourably to the proposition, which was then referred to the Committees.

SWEDEN.—A public meeting, convened for the purpose of summoning the Government to aid Denmark, was held at Stockholm on Sunday, and was very numerously attended. Thousands of people, being unable to obtain admittance to the hall, which was quite full, were waiting in the streets. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

"1. This meeting expresses its strongest sympathy for Denmark, whose resistance it considers to be just. It further considers the war as a struggle for the independence and free development of the whole North. 2. This meeting believes that the honour and the real interests of Sweden render an energetic policy on the part of that country necessary."

The people are ready to bear the sacrifice which such a policy may necessitate. In the course of the evening a popular demonstration was made before the house of the Danish Minister, when cheers were given for Denmark. The Snalposten of Thursday asserts that Russia has undertaken to form a corps of 150,000 men to operate against Sweden in the event of the latter State becoming an ally of England and France.

DENMARK.—The elections to the Folksthing of the Rigsraad took place on Saturday. All the National and Liberal candidates in Copenhagen favourable to an energetic prosecution of the war were elected. M. Hall, the ex-Prime Minister, made an electioneering speech, in which he stated that, after the arrival of Lord Wodehouse from Berlin, he had asked his lordship whether the revocation of the November Constitution would prevent the entry of the Austro-Prussian troops into Schleswig. The reply was that it decidedly would not. He further said:—

"The alliance with Sweden was not an agreement made only between the Sovereigns, but also between the Governments of Sweden and Denmark. A personal union between Denmark and Schleswig-Holstein would lead to the loss of those Duchies, or to Denmark being Germanised and ruined. The German Powers never stated their demands before they occupied the Duchies."

Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council, in a speech delivered before his electors, said he should continue to struggle persistently for the independence of the Monarchy and the maintenance of the union between Denmark and Schleswig. He would never consent to a dissolution of this union. All the other candidates demanded the energetic prosecution of the war, and declared the abrogation of the November Constitution to be impossible after war had commenced. These speeches were received with applause by the people. All the districts of Schleswig not occupied by the Austro-Prussian troops have elected members to the Rigsraad. Letters from Copenhagen state that the Guards having left the capital, the civic artillerymen serve the guns of the forts which protect the town on the sea side, and the outer fort of the citadel, which commands the Sound in a northerly direction as far as Charlotten. An official notification states that from the 15th inst. the towns of Comin, Schwinemunde, Wolgast, Ereifswald, Stralsund, and Barth will be blockaded.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—Three Austrian brigades received orders from Marshal von Wrangel on Sunday to advance into Jutland rapidly and surround the town of Fredericia. On Tuesday, at 6 A.M. the Austrians crossed the Kolding-au in two columns. After a very exhausting march of one German mile and a quarter they encountered the Danish cavalry to the south of Veile. The Austrians forced back the Danes to Veile, where three Danish infantry regiments, three batteries, and two cavalry regiments, took up a position to the north of the Veile river. The Nostiz Brigade, under the command of General von Gablenz, a portion of the Gondrecourt Brigade, and the artillery reserve, succeeded in dislodging the Danes, in spite of the great strength of their position, and in driving them back towards Horsens. The Danish loss was considerable, and the Austrians took many prisoners. General Wilster, the Danish Commander-in-Chief there, Hoffmann, his head of the Staff, and three other officers were wounded. The Austrians subsequently occupied Erritsö and Staunstrup before Fredericia, but have made a retrograde movement between Eritsoe and Borderup, and evacuated Snoghöe. While these operations were in progress on the Austrian side, the Prussian division of the Guards, accompanied by the Crown Prince and Field-Marshal von Wrangel, advanced to Sonderskoogl, driving the Danes back to Fredericia and capturing 180 prisoners. The Prussian loss was two killed and 20 wounded. A portion of the Royal Danish Foot Guard made a descent, for reconnoitring purposes, on Sunday on the eastern coast of Holstein. They marched to the village of Putlos, and were received in a friendly manner by the inhabitants. An ordinance of the Austrian and Prussian Civil Commissioners was promulgated on Tuesday at Flensburg, stating that from the 1st of April next the Danish currency and the notes of the Bank of Copenhagen will no longer be accepted in payments made to the public Treasury. The same ordinance declares that the Schleswig-Holstein currency and silver thalers of all the German States will be a legal tender.

HAMBURG.—A Prussian siege train, consisting of 50 mortars and 3000 projectiles, of a calibre varying from 25 lb. to 65 lb., passed through Hamburg on Wednesday.

BAVARIA.—King Maximilian was taken ill on Wednesday afternoon with an attack of erysipelas of the left breast. His Majesty rapidly became worse, and received extreme unction at 5 o'clock on Thursday morning. About six hours afterwards the King died. The last act of his Majesty previous to his illness was to sign the instructions to his representative at the Federal Diet to urge forward the vote on the succession question in the Duchies. On Thursday afternoon the Royal herald proclaimed in all the streets and public places the accession of the eldest son of his late Majesty, under the title of King Ludwig II. The new King was born in 1845, and is consequently in the 19th year of his age.

FRANKFORT.—In the sitting of the Federal Diet on Saturday, the representative of Bavaria proposed that the Diet should notify to the Federal commander in Holstein the conclusion of an understanding between that body and the two great German Powers in reference to the occupation of the military route in that Duchy by the allied troops. Bavaria also proposed that the Federal troops in Holstein should be reinforced by the 7th corps and by another corps made up of troops from different States. An official communication to the Frankfort newspapers states that the Federal Diet has recently received no invitation from any quarter to be represented at an European Conference.

PRUSSIA.—The Pays states that three Prussian war ships have received orders to leave Brest, where they are at present stationed, and proceed immediately to the North Sea.

AUSTRIA.—The Prussian General Manteuffel left Vienna on Saturday evening, after having arrived at a definitive understanding with the Austrian Cabinet in relation to the advance of the allied troops into Jutland. An agreement has also been concluded between the two great German Powers in regard to united action in the Federal Diet—both engaging to issue instructions to their representatives in the sense of their last motion. Strategic proceedings are to leave the authority of the civil commissioners intact. An Imperial ordinance, dated the 3d inst., was promulgated on Saturday, containing regulations for the capture and stoppage of hostile and suspected ships by Austrian vessels. The ordinance purports to be issued on account of the hostile measures adopted by Denmark against German ships. Four Austrian frigates passed Messina on Thursday, sailing westward, on the look-out for Danish vessels.

THE ADRIATIC.—A letter from Trieste of the 27th ult. says that Rear-Admiral Wullersdorf had passed through that city on his way to Pola, to hoist his flag on board the Kaiser steam ship of war. He will assume the command of the Austrian squadron charged to protect German vessels against Danish cruisers. The same correspondence says that the Novara, which has been selected to convey the Archduke Maximilian to Mexico, has been ordered not to complete her armament till further orders. The Austrian gunboat Vilenich has captured a Danish merchantman laden with coffee, and left her at the island of Cephalonia.

VENETIA.—The Pays of Tuesday asserts that a strong body of Austrian troops has been despatched to Italy. Letters from Venice also announce important military preparations on the part of Austria in the district of Verona, in which will be included those of Carintia, Trieste, and Istria. There are at present 100,000 men in the district; but the supply of war material is sufficient for an army of 300,000 men. A reinforcement of 30,000 men is expected. It is intended to concentrate large quantities of artillery in Polesina.

ITALY.—The Emperor Napoleon has sent a reply to an address of the National Italian Society, forwarded to his Majesty on the occasion of the late conspiracy. The Emperor's letter concludes as follows:—

"Such attempts cannot change my sentiments towards your country. I shall always prize the honour of having contributed to its independence."

RUSSIA.—It is stated that the whole Russian army has been placed on a war footing. The Imperial Guard has been ordered to the Prussian frontier, and the 6th Corps d'Armée has been ordered to Poland from the interior of Russia. A letter from St. Petersburg of the 2d inst. states that the despatch announcing that the Austrian Government had declared the province of Galicia in a state of siege had produced an explosion of joy in the Russian capital. In military circles they speak of the reconstitution of the Holy Alliance between Austria, Prussia, and Russia against France and the principle of nationalities. The Russian papers accuse the Italians of fomenting insurrection, and the Journal de la Bourse states in plain terms that it is fomented by a certain person who supports a cosmopolitan revolution. The Journal de St. Pétersbourg of Sunday publishes several Imperial decrees, one of which regulates the conditions for the emancipation of the peasants in Poland. Another decree treats of the organisation of the communal administrations on the principle of self-government in Poland, by which all connection between the nobility and the peasantry is entirely severed. Count Blondoff, President of the Council of the Empire, died last week.

POLAND.—At noon on Sunday an Imperial manifesto, announcing the emancipation of the peasants, was solemnly proclaimed in the public squares of Warsaw.

THE IONIAN ISLANDS.—Fort Vido is now half demolished. The Citadel is still untouched, and may probably remain so. The new Fort and Fort Abram are partly dismantled. Turkey is constructing fortifications opposite Corfu and Paxos. It is intended to entrust the administration of the Islands to a military governor.

GREECE.—A Ministerial crisis has taken place at Athens. M. Tringhetta has been appointed Minister of War; M. Petrinos, Minister of Justice; and M. Rondiris, Minister of Marine. The construction of the railway from Athens to the Piræus has commenced.

TURKEY.—At the invitation of the Porte a conference of Ambassadors will shortly take place for the discussion of various questions. Forty-eight battalions of Rediffs have been called out for active service. The Porte has promulgated a new Press law.

INDIA.—The Bombay mail has arrived with news from that Presidency to the 14th ult. Sir John Lawrence, the Viceroy, is still in Calcutta. His Excellency, on a morning walk last month, was pursued by a wild buffalo that had broken loose from the cattle-show, and escaped from its attack by his fleetness as a runner. The Viceroy is summoning to his counsels those who formerly were co-workers with him in the Punjaub. He has also invited Sir Hugh Rose to Calcutta to confer on military matters of importance. General Lawrence, agent for the Rajpootana States, has been summoned to Calcutta to confer with the Viceroy on important matters connected with the affairs of Rajpootana. Great changes are in contemplation with regard to the political jurisdiction over that part of the country. The Rajah of Vizianagram, and Rajah Sahib Dyal Bahadoor, of Kishenkote and Umritsur, have been gazetted as additional members of the Governor General's legislative council. Gen. Lawrence, Sir Herbert Edwardes, and Colonel Durand are spoken of as candidates for the Lieutenant Governorship of the Punjaub. The Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway is completed. Colonel J. Pitt Kennedy, the engineer in chief of the line, travelled from Bombay to Ahmedabad, on the 9th ult. It was expected to be opened for traffic on the 1st inst. A great fire at Nagpore has reduced to ashes the splendid Palace of the Bhonslas, that covered 200 square yards. The city, containing nearly 100,000 inhabitants, had a narrow escape from conflagration. General Sir Neville Chamberlain has had the bullet extracted from his arm, and is now doing well. The Maharajah of Jheend died on the 26th January. The three great Cis-Sutlej States have thus each lost its chief within the last few months. Two more of the ringleaders in the mutiny have been brought to justice. Hunnoomaun, who carried fire and sword into Allahabad, has been sentenced to transportation for life; and Soonunder Sai, who plotted against the Government in the Central Provinces, is in custody. Dr. Haug, professor of Sanskrit in Poona College, is meeting with unexpected success in his researches for ancient Zend MSS. in Guzerat. A census of the city of Bombay was taken on the 2d ult. The Secretary of State for India has in contemplation a simultaneous census of the whole of British India. The first section of the Persian Gulf telegraph cable, 359 miles in length, from Gwadur in Beloochistan to Cape Mussendom on the Arabian coast, has been successfully laid.

CHINA.—A despatch from Shanghai of Jan. 26, states that China is tranquil.

JAPAN.—The news from Japan is unsatisfactory. The Princes were endeavouring to exclude foreign trade at Yokohama.

NEW ZEALAND.—There is no important news from New Zealand, the war being virtually at an end.

UNITED STATES.—No important events are reported from the army of the Potomac. General Meade had left for the front. He has had long consultations with the President and military authorities at Washington, and will proceed at once, it is said, to reorganise his army. Confederate guerillas are becoming more daring and numerous, and keep the outposts on the alert. It is rumoured that General Lee is preparing to advance against General Meade, with a view of driving him back to the defences of Washington, or forcing a battle on the old Bull Run ground. It is said that the Richmond authorities demand this movement to be made in order to relieve the despondency existing at the capital. Confederate deserters state that so great is the scarcity of forage within General Lee's lines, that Fitzhugh Lee's cavalry has been disbanded until grass time, in the middle of March. Refugees assert that the Confederates in Western Virginia threaten a raid into Ohio. General Sherman, with from 25,000 to 30,000 Federals, reached Quitman on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad without opposition, and has since occupied Selma after a severe battle. It was stated that he would next attack Montgomery, but would not be allowed to capture Mobile without a desperate battle. A rumour has been telegraphed from Alabama that Sherman had also defeated Polk near Brandon, capturing 12,000 prisoners, but the reported battle has since proved to be a fiction, and Polk has been reinforced by two divisions of Johnstone's army. The Federal cavalry which left Memphis to co-operate with Sherman are reported to have had a severe engagement with the Confederates at West Point, Mississippi, and to have been forced back with considerable loss. The Richmond Inquirer of the 18th ult. states that the War Department had received despatches announcing that the Federals had been repulsed with great loss at Grant's Pass, 35 miles from Mobile. Despatches from that city to the 15th ult. announce that Admiral Farragut's fleet had passed eastward through the Sound in the direction of Grant's Pass. Despatches to the 19th state that Admiral Farragut had not renewed the attack on Grant's Pass, the weather being too bad for action. The Governor of Alabama issued a proclamation on the 16th ult., stating that Mobile was about to be attacked, and ordered all non-combatants to leave the city. It is reported that the Confederates have 20,000 men and two iron-clads at Mobile. It is reported that the guerilla General Morgan has crossed the Tennessee River, and that the Confederates were blockading the river below Chattanooga. A Knoxville despatch, of Feb. 21, states that General Longstreet has broken up winter quarters, and retreated from before Knoxville, and that his army has appeared in force upon Strawberry Plains. They have completed a pontoon bridge, over which two brigades had already crossed. It is said that Longstreet had previously been heavily reinforced with artillery by General Buckner. The Confederates surprised and captured a battalion of Federal cavalry on the 22d ult., and drove in the outposts five miles east and south of Cumberland Gap. General Gilmore officially reports the capture of Baldwin, Florida, on the 9th. He also reports that on the march to that place he captured 8 guns, 100 prisoners, and a large amount of cotton property. General Beauregard reports that news had been received at Charleston that the Federal advance in Florida was repulsed at Lake City. There seems to be no doubt that the Federals have been seriously repulsed in Florida, but the Government has withheld details. An unofficial report states that the engagement took place on the 20th ult., beyond Jacksonville, with the Confederates 15,000 strong, and that the Federals were defeated with a loss of 500 to 1300 men and 5 guns. Gen. Butler, in an order dated the 11th, directed the Provost-Marshals in Portsmouth and Norfolk, Virginia, to assume control of the churches, and to replace the present clergymen by those of known loyalty. Soldiers, both white and coloured, are to have free access to the churches, and any expressions of distaste or insult are to be promptly suppressed. The Committee of Ways and Means have reported on the resolution authorising Mr. Chase to issue, during the present year, a five or forty years' six per cent. loan of 200 millions. The National executive committee, of which Senator Pomeroy is the chairman, have issued an address nominating Mr. Chase for the Presidency. It is rumoured that Mr. Chase will retire from the Cabinet, and that Mr. Robert J. Walker will replace him. The Maryland Union State Convention has nominated Mr. Lincoln for the Presidency. The Halifax police magistrates have committed the Chesapeake pirates to gaol for delivery to the United States. Efforts are making to transfer the case to the Supreme Court. The Canadian steamer Bohemian was totally wrecked on the night of the 22d ult. on Alden's Rock, six miles from Portland. She lies in four fathoms of water. Nineteen of the crew and steerage passengers were lost.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.—The Marquis of WESTMEATH laid on the table a Bill to amend the law for the punishment of the crime of Rape, the object of the measure being to include a public whipping where it had been proved that more than one person was concerned in the commission of the offence. The Bill was read a first time.—Lord CHELMSFORD complained that in the distribution of the Kertch and Yenikale Prize Money, Sir M. Stopford, Admiral Boxer, and Sir F. Grey, who were not present at the capture of those places, were allowed to participate, and inquired if the Government had acted on the advice of the law officers of the Crown.—The Duke of SOMERSET said the prize money in question had been distributed in accordance with the proclamation of March, 1854. The law officers of the Crown had not been consulted, but the distribution had taken place in strict accordance with the precedents regulating such matters. Sir John Lawrence's Annuity Bill was read a second time. Metropolitan Railways.—Earl GRANVILLE called attention to the report of the select committee on railway schemes within the limits of the metropolis, and moved that the Victoria Station and Thames Embankment Railway, Oxford Street and City Railway, London Main Trunk Underground Railway, Charing Cross (Northern) Railway, Charing Cross (Western) Railway, Tottenham and Hampstead Junction Railway (Extension to Charing Cross), London Union Railways, and Tottenham and Farringdon Street Railway Bills be not proceeded with this session. He also moved that the fees incurred in respect of those Bills be remitted; and that the report be referred to all select committees to which any railway Bills within the limits of the metropolis may be referred in the present session. The motion was agreed to without discussion.

TUESDAY.—Invasion of Jutland.—The Earl of DERBY referred to the incidents of the war in Schleswig that have occurred since the dates of the correspondence last published, the dismantling the forts of the Dennewerk by the German forces, the removal of Danish officials, the prohibition of the use of the Danish language, and finally the invasion of Jutland. These acts went beyond an occupation of the territory, and changed the character of the war. Under these altered circumstances he wished to know whether the Government would consent to the production of the correspondence on Danish and German affairs down to the latest dates.—Earl RUSSELL repeated the different reasons that had been given by the German Powers for the advance of their troops into Jutland, and described the negotiations entered into by Her Majesty's Government for an armistice and a Conference between the Powers who signed the Treaty of London. An answer from the Danish Government to the proposal of a Conference was expected during the present week, but as negotiations were still pending he was not now prepared to produce all the correspondence.—Lord STRATFORD DE REDCLIFFE hoped that before Parliament separated for the Easter recess the Government would redeem the pledge they had given to the House of Commons, and state what was the final decision they had arrived at.—In reply to a question from the Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, Earl RUSSELL said the subject was complicated in every possible manner, and gave some explanations of the conditions of 1851. Austria and Prussia still declared they did not intend to go beyond those conditions, and were prepared to maintain the integrity of Denmark.—The Earl of SHAFTESBURY asked the FOREIGN SECRETARY whether he could give any information respecting the movements of the Austrian fleet towards the Baltic. Whether that force were large or small, he hoped it would be watched by a British squadron, and every means taken to maintain the integrity of Denmark.—Earl RUSSELL believed it was not intended that the Austrian ships should enter the Baltic, but that they should protect German merchant vessels entering the Channel and the mouth of the Elbe.—The Earl of ELLENBOROUGH, notwithstanding any assurances that might have been given, believed that the Austrian ships of war were intended to form a junction with the Prussian fleet in the Baltic, and thus establish a naval in addition to the military superiority of the Germans over the Danes. In such a case the islands of Alsen and Funen might be taken, and not only the integrity but the very existence of Denmark would be destroyed. Would England stand by and see this wrong perpetrated? Was there no point at which the honour and interest of England required it to protect the weak against the strong? Parliament ought not to rise for the holidays without stating its readiness to support any measures her Majesty might think necessary to secure the independence of Denmark. Without such a declaration the Government was powerless.—Earl GREY concurred with the Earl of Ellenborough, and said that a perusal of the Danish and German correspondence left a painful impression that this country had been humiliated.—The Earl of HARROWBY thought the Government required support in this question from some expression of the opinion of the country.—Earl RUSSELL, in reply, contended that the papers Earl Grey had read with humiliation described proceedings approved and supported by the general opinion of the nation. If Lord Grey thought otherwise, he could at once move a vote of censure on the Government; or if he thought the Government ought now to act differently, and rush into a war without the co-operation of other Powers, he might propose a resolution to that effect. But her Majesty's Government would not enter on a war when the interests, the integrity, and the independence of Denmark could be secured in another manner, nor would the Government neglect any means by which those objects could be attained. As to the supposed junction of the German fleets, the Channel squadron had been ordered home so as to be within reach if necessary, and he did not expect that any fleet of Austria or Prussia would venture to encounter it. Sir J. Lawrences's Salary Bill passed through committee.

THURSDAY.—Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill was read a third time and passed. The Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill passed through committee. The Turnpike Roads Bill was read a second time.

FRIDAY. — Enclosure of Hampstead Heath. — The Earl of MALMESBURY laid upon the table a Bill entitled "The Leases and Sales of Settled Estates' Act Amendment Bill," which was read a first time. America.—The Earl of CORK gave notice that the Marquis of Clanricarde would, on Friday the 18th inst., move for the production of any correspondence between her Majesty's Government and the Government of the Confederate States, relative to the removal of the British Consuls from their ports. The Chief Rents (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed. The Turnpike Roads Bill was read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—China.—Colonel SYKES called attention to the recent treacherous conduct of the Footai at the capture of Soo-chow, and the wholesale murders perpetrated there, and inquired whether, with this renewed instance of perfidy in Chinese officials, it was intended by her Majesty's Government to pass unnoticed any further violation of the instructions of the Foreign Office to British authorities in China to be strictly neutral in the civil war now raging in that country.—Lord PALMERSTON said that it was most desirable that order and peace should be restored in China, and for that purpose a commission had been given to Captain Osborn and Mr. Lay to organise a naval force, and British subjects had been permitted to enter the service of China. The purpose had, however, not been answered, and as the conduct of the Chinese officials had been most disgraceful, the Order in Council had been repealed. Nothing could be more worthy of condemnation than the conduct of the Footai, which had been represented to the Court of Pekin, and it was hoped that adequate punishment would be inflicted upon him. After a few remarks by Mr. WHITE and Mr. KINNAIRD the subject dropped. Confederate Cruisers.—Mr. LEFEVRE called attention to the course pursued by the agents of the Confederate States in fitting out vessels of war and enlisting seamen in the ports of this country in violation of the laws of neutrality. He dwelt upon the escape of the Alabama and upon the annoyance which that vessel had caused to the United States, and adverted to certain facts in relation to Mr. Laird's iron rams, and other vessels supposed to be intended for the Confederate service. He thought there was evidence that there had been an organised scheme to obtain war vessels in this country. He admitted that there had been an honest endeavour on the part of our Government to enforce the Foreign Enlistment Act, but if that law was ineffectual for the purpose, it was not only our right, but our interest, that more should be done. He concluded by moving for papers.—After some remarks by Lord R. MONTAGU, Mr. BAXTER, and Mr. TAYLOR, the SOLICITOR-GENERAL observed that Mr. Lefevre, although he acknowledged that the Government had endeavoured honestly to carry out the law, seemed to have found fault with them; and he proceeded to vindicate their course of proceeding in the cases referred to by Mr. Lefevre. Their answer to all the complaints of the United States' Government was, he said, that they had fairly and honestly enforced the Foreign Enlistment Act, and had observed a strict neutrality. He discussed the suggestions offered by Mr. Lefevre, and, with regard to one of them, he said measures had been taken to remonstrate with the Confederate Government. After some observations by Sir E. COLEBROOKE and Mr. J. EWART, the motion was withdrawn, and the House went into Committee pro formâ.—On the order for the second reading of the Penal Servitude Acts Amendment Bill, Mr. ADDERLEY moved as an amendment that it be read a second time that day six months. He regarded the present law as neither clear nor precise, but believed that further mystery and doubt would be introduced by the measure of the Government. The punishment of crime should be sharp and certain, and, if remission were allowed, it should be limited solely to an alteration of the treatment of convicts and a system of classification. If tickets of leave were granted they should be given unconditionally, and he therefore objected to the proposal to subject convicts to the supervision of the police, which he regarded as an un-English system.—Mr. BEACH seconded the amendment, but expressed himself in favour of police supervision, which, he said, had worked well in Ireland.—Mr. HARDY supported the principle of the Bill, the details of which could, he thought, be considerably improved in committee.—After some observations from The O'CONNOR DON and Sir W. MILES, Sir G. GREY replied; and ultimately the amendment was withdrawn, and the Bill read a second time. The Inclosure Bill passed through committee. On the order for going into Committee on the Government Annuities Bill a discussion arose as to whether the Committee should be postponed, which extended to the merits of the Bill. Ultimately the debate was adjourned.

MONDAY.—Invasion of Jutland.—Mr. DISRAELI inquired whether the Government had any authentic information in reference to the invasion of Jutland by the German Powers.—Lord PALMERSTON replied that the accounts received by the Government were extremely contradictory. He believed that as matters now stood the Germans wanted Friedericia, a town which commanded the Sound, between Jutland and the Island of Funen. The invasion of Jutland, which had first been repudiated as having taken place without orders, for contrary to orders, was now sought to be justified on strategic grounds. The view which the Government took of the matter was that the whole of the military operations beyond the Eider was an attack upon the independence of Denmark, and an act of violence not justified by the existing state of things. The Conference.—In reply to Mr. S. FITZGERALD, Lord PALMERSTON said that the German Diet had been informed that a Conference without an armistice was likely to take place, and that they would be invited to send a representative to it, but that he believed some difficulty had arisen as to who should be that representative.—On the order for resuming the adjourned debate on going into committee on the Government Annuities Bill, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER proceeded to answer some of the objections which had been urged against the measure out of doors by those chiefly interested in friendly societies, assurance companies, loan offices, and similar institutions. He said that the Bill of the Government enjoined nothing and prohibited nothing; all it did was to give facilities to the public for self-help, and it might be for self-protection. The Government had been moved to bring in the measure from representations from all parts of the country, complaining of the irregularities, frauds, and swindlings of what were termed friendly societies. The two questions to be considered in reference to the project of the Government were its safety and its justice. With regard to its safety, it would be put in all respects upon the same footing as the Post Office savings banks; and with regard to its justice, if it were desirable that such business should be undertaken by private bodies, there could be no injustice in the Government action in the matter. The three things to be ascertained were age, employment, and mode of life as regarded habits. On all these points the Government could get information by means of existing local machinery. The annuitants would have perfect safety for the custody of their deposits, and facilities would be afforded not only for the payment of premiums but for the migratory habits of working people, which no private office could offer. The right hon. gentleman referred at considerable length to the failure and collapse of an enormous number of friendly societies, and minor insurance companies, in order to show the loss, disappointment, and ruin entailed upon individuals, and concluded by expressing a sanguine hope that the measure, when passed into law, would be of incalculable advantage to that class of the community which was least able to help itself. — Mr. SHERIDAN denied that the large assurance offices were unwilling to grant policies for sums under 100*l.*, and charged the Chancellor of the Exchequer with having suppressed information in his possession on that subject. He opposed the present Bill because he believed it would break up and destroy some 20,000 existing friendly societies, while it would entail an enormous loss upon the country, which would infallibly have to make up the deficiency which would result from so unwise an interference with private enterprise.—Lord STANLEY cordially approved of the principle of the Bill, but hoped that further time would be given to consider its provisions. It was a great experiment, and its effect might be to diminish pauperism materially; but, as he desired to see a perfect measure on the subject, he objected to see it marred by too great precipitancy. — Mr. HUNTER admitted that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had made out a very strong case, but opposed the Bill as an injudicious interference with the private affairs of the people, and as tending towards a principle of centralisation.—Mr. ROEBUCK also objected to the Bill, and asked whether there were not better modes of curing an admitted evil than Government control. He warned the Chancellor of the Exchequer against converting a constitutional Government into that intolerable nuisance described as "a paternal Government."—Mr. NEWDEGATE thanked the Chancellor of the Exchequer for having unfolded to the House a state of things which certainly went far to prove the necessity of Government interference.—Alderman SIDNEY recommended the adjournment of the committee on the Bill until after Easter.—Mr. W. E. FORSTER agreed in thinking that a state of things had been revealed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer which called for inquiry. He thought that time should also be given to the managers of friendly societies to put in an answer to the very serious allegations made against them.—Mr. BOVILL supported the Bill, contending that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had understated the facts with reference to the shortcomings of assurance offices, as proved in courts of law.—Mr. P. URQUHART approved of the Bill generally, but recommended postponement for a few weeks.—Mr. HENLEY expressed his apprehension that the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer would cause a panic among the friendly societies throughout the country. Nevertheless, if his statements were well founded, the remedy which he proposed to apply would be sanctioned by Parliament.—Mr. BAINES and Mr. H. LEWIS questioned the policy of a measure which, by sweeping away existing benefit societies, would destroy all feeling of self-reliance on the part of the working classes.—Sir M. FARQUHAR moved the adjournment of the debate, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER acceded, and the debate was adjourned accordingly to Thursday week—on the understanding, however, that the Committee would not be taken until after Easter.—The Land Drainage (Provisional Orders) Bill, and the Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill, passed through Committee. The Mutiny Bill and the Marine Mutiny Bill were read a second time.

TUESDAY.—Metropolitan Railways.—Mr. M. GIBSON called attention to the report of the Select Committee of both Houses on Railway Schemes within the limits of the Metropolis, and moved that the following Bills be not proceeded with in the present Session, viz.:—The Victoria Station and Thames Embankment Railway, the Oxford Street and City Railway, the London Main Trunk Underground Railway, the Charing Cross (Northern) Railway, the Charing Cross (Western) Railway, the Tottenham and Hampstead Junction Railway (Extension to Charing Cross), the London Union Railways, and the Tottenham and Farringdon Street Railway.—Mr. CRAWFORD moved as an amendment, after "Tottenham and Farringdon Street Railway," to add, "and so much of the Metropolitan District Railways Bill No. 33 as refers to the proposed works situated to the eastward of Blackfriars Bridge, together with the Metropolitan District Railways Bill No. 34." The amendment was negatived, on a division, by 277 to 76.—Sir J. PAXTON moved that the Charing Cross (Western) Bill be omitted from the list. The amendment was negatived without a division. The Easter Holidays.—Lord PALMERSTON gave notice that on Friday he should move that the House, at its rising, should adjourn to the following Monday fortnight for the Easter holidays. The Danish Papers.—Mr. DISRAELI complained that the papers on Denmark were only brought down to the end of January, and that they contained no record whatever of the invasion of Jutland or of the negotiations for a Conference. He wished to know whether there was any intention on the part of the Government to submit further papers to the House.—Lord PALMERSTON said that the only cause of the delay was that the negotiations with regard to the Congress had not been brought to a close, but that when they were concluded one way or the other, the papers would be produced down to the latest date. The Education Minute.—Mr. ADDERLEY moved the following resolution:—"That grants made from the Treasury to schools for the working classes should not, in every case, be reduced by the whole amount of all endowments." He said that endowments had always been looked upon as local contributions, and proceeded to examine the reasons assigned by the Treasury for adopting the principle of excluding endowments, under the minute of 1863, insisting upon the injustice of the principle. He adduced facts to show that the theory of the Treasury broke down in practice, and indicated the results and consequence of the minute as far as it could be carried out, contending that it was in direct contravention of the original minute.—Mr. F. POWELL seconded the motion, which was supported by Lord HENLEY, Mr. MITFORD, Colonel SYKES, Mr. C. BRUCE, and Lord R. CECIL, and opposed by Mr. BAINES and Mr. HADFIELD.—Mr. LOWE reminded the House of the original object of these grants—namely, to aid voluntary local exertions. The question raised by Mr. Adderley was, whether endowments should not be regarded as voluntary local contributions. The rule complained of was not adopted by the Committee of Council without great consideration or without reason. They came to the conclusion that endowments were not to be considered as local voluntary contributions. They were not local in their nature; they might be in Stock or in the Funds. The Government was bound to look to the interests of the taxpayers. He must say, for himself, that he did not desire to see money devoted by will or deed to the foundation of schools for the working poor. Having replied to various objections, he concluded by saying that in deference to the strong feeling which appeared to pervade the House he was willing to accept the motion, and he suggested modes in which it might be carried into effect.—After some remarks by Mr. G. HARDY the motion was agreed to.—Mr. G. CLIVE moved for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into the expediency and practicability of Abolishing Turnpike Trusts.—After a few words from Mr. SCOURFIELD and Mr. W. MARTIN, the motion was agreed to.—On the motion of Sir S. NORTHCOTE a Select Committee was appointed to inquire into the constitution and working, and into the success, of the Schools of Art wholly or partially supported by Government grants, or otherwise assisted by the Government, and into the system upon which the sums granted by Parliament for the promotion of national education in art are distributed and administered. On the order for going into Committee upon the Court of Justiciary (Scotland) Bill, Mr. W. LESLIE opposed the motion, which, after a short discussion, was carried, upon a division, by 84 to 49, and the House went into Committee, when the Chairman was ordered to report progress. The Inclosure Bill, the Bills of Exchange and the Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill, were read a third time and passed.

WEDNESDAY.—The Trespass (Ireland) Bill, the object of which is to assimilate the law of trespass in Ireland to that of England, was read a second time, on the motion of Mr. W. O. GORE.—The Watching of Towns (Ireland) Bill, after some discussion, was withdrawn by Sir H. BRUCE, on Sir R. PEEL giving an assurance that he would consider the suggestions thrown out by the Irish members, with the view of making the constabulary force more efficient for the purpose aimed at by the measure.—Mr. W. EWART moved the second reading of the Weights and Measures Bill, and explained that its object was to introduce the metric system now in operation in most continental nations. The Bill was of a permissive character, and would render the system lawful of adoption by numerous trades and manufactures that were willing to have recourse to it.—Mr. LOCKE seconded the motion.—Mr. M. GIBSON said the real effect of the measure would be to alter the unit or decimalise the standard of weights and measures by the introduction of the metre, the ten-millionth part of the arc from the equator to the Pole. If it were thought necessary to introduce decimal weights and measures, that might be done by an order in Council, and there would no doubt great facilities for decimalising the coinage. The Bill proposed to furnish 700 different places with copies of the new weights and measures founded upon the metric system, and he could not say that it would be right to commence the system by establishing in the country a new standard of weights and measures. He should not oppose the second reading of the Bill, but could not consent to some of its clauses.—Mr. HENLEY thought that the Bill would set up two licensed modes of buying and selling in all retail shops, and would open the door to frauds upon the poor. If there were to be any change it ought to be made on the responsibility of the Government.—Mr. ADDERLEY considered that the Bill would be of great importance to international commerce, and that, in order to familiarise the public with its operations, it should be introduced into the national schools and the Government offices.—Mr. HANKEY supported the Bill, which he thought was of much importance that the Government should take it up.—Mr. WALTER objected strongly to the Bill because it was permissive and also because it was revolutionary in its tendency. If it were adopted at all, it ought to be made compulsory; but, for his own part, he held that we had already an excellent standard of weights and measures, to which he was prepared to adhere.—It was moved that the Bill be read a second time that day six months.—Mr. J. B. SMITH and Colonel SYKES spoke in favour of the Bill.—Mr. BUXTON and Colonel BARTTELOT were of opinion that, as the Government did not vote against the second reading, they were bound to take up the Bill and adopt it.—Mr. BAXTER thought that, as the metric system was spreading all over the world, England should not be the last in the march of improvement. On a division the amendment of Mr. Walter was negatived by 90 to 52, and the Bill was read a second time.—Mr. H. A. BRUCE moved the second reading of the Cattle Diseases' Prevention Bill. He showed the extent of the evil which the measure proposed to remedy, and the enormous loss resulting from cattle disease, and indicated the probable causes of its propagation and the quantity of diseased meat actually consumed in the great towns of the United Kingdom and its effects upon the human system. He then explained what had hitherto been done to deal with the evil by providing against the importation of diseased cattle, and stated the provisions of the Bill, which consolidated and extended the existing law. He proposed that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee.—A short discussion followed, in which Mr. PAKINGTON, Mr. CAIRD, Mr. NEWDEGATE, Mr. HOLLAND, and other members took part. After some discussion the Bill and the Cattle, &c. Importation Bill were read a second time, and referred to a Select Committee. The Land Drainage (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.

THURSDAY.—Mr. H. B. SHERIDAN made a personal explanation with reference to certain statements of the Chancellor of the Exchequer respecting the British Provident Assurance Company in the debate on the Government Annuities Amendment Bill.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER deferred his reply until he could look into the documents upon which he had founded his statements.—On the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. H. BERKELEY called attention to the defective state of the Armament of the Royal Navy. After spending three millions of money and six years of experiments the country had to fall back on the old 68-pounders. He complained of the practical monopoly accorded to Sir W. ARMSTRONG, which shut out competition, and, he thought, ought not to exist.—Lord C. PAGET said that Mr. BERKELEY was mistaken in supposing that, while the Americans had steel guns in their ships, we had only the old round shot: our ships had shell-guns, and the Admiralty was intent upon providing the navy with the most effective armament. He honestly believed that in respect to guns we were more advanced than the French. A discussion on naval matters followed, in which Sir J. PAKINGTON, Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, General PEEL, Lord LOVAINE, Sir F. BARING, and Sir F. SMITH took part.—In reply to Mr. H. SEYMOUR, Sir G. GREY said the Lord Chancellor hoped to be able to propose a Bill during the present Session for the reform of the Ecclesiastical Courts and Registries in England. The House then went into Committee of Supply upon the Navy Estimates. The first vote of 1,275,316*l.*, for wages to artificers, labourers, and others employed in the establishments at home, was agreed to, on the understanding that the remaining votes should not be proceeded with that evening.—Mr. PEEL moved a supplementary vote of 175,000*l.* for the redemption of the Scheldt Toll, explaining the nature and effect of the arrangements for the extinction of the toll. After some discussion the vote was agreed to.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON moved a supplemental vote of 400,000*l.* for Army Services, explaining that the expenditure was caused chiefly by the war in New Zealand. This vote was likewise agreed to after a short discussion. In Committee of Ways and Means, Mr. PEEL moved that the sums of 54,[illegible] and of 1,500,000*l.* be granted to Her Majesty out of the Consolidated Fund. The motion was agreed to. The House having gone into Committee on the Mutiny Bill, Mr. [illegible] moved the omission of clause 22, relating to Flogging, which he denounced as disgusting and demoralising.—Mr. W. [illegible] seconded the motion.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON said it was the opinion of the most experienced officers that men who were in the British army men of a certain class who were insensible to any other punishment than the lash, which was inflicted only in aggravated cases of misconduct, until a man was degraded for offences to the second class. The punishments in the armies of other nations were more severe, and cases of flogging were diminishing in number in our own army. After much discussion the Committee divided, when the amendment was negatived by a narrow majority, the numbers being 45 for the clause and 42 against it.—Mr. COX then moved the omission of clause 26, relating to Branding.—Mr. HEADLAM said it was essential that the practice of branding, the pain of which inflicted no pain, should be kept up. Men of bad character, who deserted, or were dismissed from the army, enlisted in other regiments, receiving the bounty, and there was no other effectual mode of identifying them. After another animated debate the Committee again divided, when the amendment was negatived by 80 to 50, and the clause was agreed to. The other clauses were likewise agreed to. The Marine Mutiny Bill passed through Committee.—Mr LAWSON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to enable owners and occupiers of property in certain districts to prevent the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors within such districts. On a division the motion was carried by 70 to 36.

FRIDAY.—The Proposed Conference.—In answer to Mr. FITZGERALD, Lord PALMERSTON repeated what he had said on a former occasion, that after her Majesty's Government had vainly attempted to obtain the consent of the belligerents to an armistice as preliminary to a conference, they deemed it important that negotiations should begin, that they proposed a conference without an armistice. To that proposal Austria and Prussia had agreed, but Denmark up to the present time had given no answer. He had good reason to believe that France, Russia, and Sweden would concur in such a Conference, but no positive communication would be made to them on the subject until the belligerents had agreed. England, France, Austria, Russia, and Sweden, all concurred in admitting the validity of the Treaty of 1852, and the obligation it imposed of maintaining the integrity of Denmark. But no other basis had been proposed. At present her Majesty's Government had no knowledge that the belligerent parties would agree to a Conference. When the Conference met it would be for the parties to agree to a basis. Ireland.—On the order

Reviews.—The Archbishop of Canterbury has addressed the following letter to the Rev Rev. W. H. Trendell, of Tan y Bwlch, Carnarvon, in reference to the recent judgment of the Privy Council :—

"Lambeth Palace, S., March 4.

"Dear Sir,—I wish it to be generally understood that, in assenting to the reversal of the judgment of Dr. Lushington on the subject of eternal punishment in the case of Mr. Wilson, I did so solely on technical grounds, inasmuch as the charge against him on this point was so worded that I did not think it could be borne out by the facts. The eternity of punishment rests, according to my mind, exactly on the same ground as the eternity of blessedness; they must both stand or fall together; and the Church of England, as I maintain, holds both doctrines clearly and decidedly.

"Believe me yours faithfully, C. T. Cantuar."

A committee appointed at a meeting held in Oxford on the 25th February, consisting of Archdeacon Clerke, Rev. Dr. Cotton, Provost of Worcester; Archdeacon Denison, Rev. W. R. Fremantle, Rev. Dr. Leighton, Warden of All Souls; Rev. Dr. Miller, of Birmingham; and the Rev. Dr. Pusey, have drawn up the following Declaration, which is in course of circulation among the clergy for the purpose of obtaining their signatures :—

"We, the undersigned Presbyters and deacons, in Holy Orders of the Church of England and Ireland, hold it to be our bounden duty to the Church of England and Ireland, and to the souls of men, to declare our firm belief that the Church of England and Ireland, in common with the whole Catholic Church, maintains without reserve or qualification the inspiration and Divine authority of the whole canonical Scriptures, as not only containing but being the Word of God, and further teaches, in the words of our blessed Lord, that the 'punishment' of the 'cursed,' equally with the 'life' of the 'righteous,' is 'everlasting.'"

The Yeomanry Cavalry.—A numerous deputation of Yeomanry Cavalry officers had an interview with Lord Palmerston on Wednesday, for the purpose of urging the desirability of calling out that force for active service during the present year. Lord Palmerston, in reply, said that since the late vote in the House of Commons, advices had been received from New Zealand which would enable the Government to effect a saving on the Estimates and incur the expense of training of the Yeomanry without any addition to the gross amount. He had great pleasure, therefore, in informing the deputation that the force would be called out as usual this year. His lordship also complimented the Yeomanry Cavalry upon their high state of efficiency and on the value of their services, and expressed an unqualified opinion that they were a necessary auxiliary to the new Rifle Volunteer force.

Foreign.

France.—The Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha arrived in Paris on Friday, and had an interview with the Emperor. It is currently reported that the object of the Duke's visit to Paris was to explain to the Emperor the position of Germany, to induce him to encourage the claims of the Duke of Augustenberg, and to propose to his Majesty the aid of a league, composed of the petty German States, against Austria and Prussia. On all these points the Duke is said to have altogether failed to attain his object. The Emperor, it is said, refused to encourage the claim of the Duke of Augustenberg to the Duchies, and professed the most pacific intentions towards Germany. The Duke has since left Paris, greatly disappointed at the failure of his mission. The following note was addressed, on the 27th ult. to the diplomatic agents of the Emperor by the French Minister for Foreign Affairs :—

"Monsieur,—You have of course been informed that the English Government has made the proposition of a Conference to Vienna and Berlin, which should immediately meet to deliberate upon the arrangements calculated to bring about peace between the two great German Powers and Denmark. Similar proposals have been forwarded to Copenhagen. In the opinion of the British Cabinet the Conference might sit without hostilities being suspended. If the belligerents adhere to this proposition the Government of the Queen would invite France, Russia, and Sweden, as well as the Germanic Confederation, to nominate plenipotentiaries immediately. We have reason to believe that the Cabinets of Vienna and Berlin are disposed to give their assent to the idea of this deliberation. We think we may say, further, that the Court of Austria continues to consider the Treaty of 1852 as suitable to serve as the basis of new arrangements. The principle of the integrity of the Danish monarchy has been affirmed in the identical declarations of the two German Courts, dated January 31, and after the formal assurances of the Austrian Cabinet this principle remains placed under the safeguard of Europe. Hostilities have not invalidated the stipulations which bind Austria and Prussia, not only with Denmark, but with several other Powers. Austria only claims liberty of action in respect to the arrangement concluded in 1851-52 between Germany and Denmark relatively to the position of the Duchies in the monarchy and to the relations formerly existing between Holstein and Schleswig. We have no reason to suppose that the point of view of the Prussian Cabinet is different; but it remains to be ascertained what reception the English proposition would meet with from the Danish Government and the Germanic Confederation. Denmark would appear, according to what may be judged of her intentions, to desire to claim the conclusion of an armistice prior to all negotiation, and it is to be feared that she would only regard the refusal of a truce as proving the intention of the German Powers to pursue the destruction of her army in order to aggravate the conditions of peace. On the other hand, the Germanic Confederation has adopted a point of view which differs from that of Austria and Prussia. The Diet has not concurred in the Treaty of London, and has not recognised its validity. It is at this very time occupied with a report from its committees, which lays down conclusions contrary to the integrity of the Danish Monarchy. It is therefore difficult to foresee at present whether the proposition of the English Government will be agreed to at Copenhagen and Frankfort. As regards ourselves, monsieur, we have not hitherto been under the necessity of expressing our opinion. The English Government will not address itself to neutral Powers until after having obtained the acquiescence of the belligerents. We have not therefore had to associate ourselves with its measures, as has been reported; but we have seen this war break out with regret, and, faithful to the principles which guide us, we shall be happy to second all the efforts which may be made to hasten its termination. If the adhesions sought by her Britannic Majesty's Government permit it to acquaint us with the proposition of which we have received notice, we shall be found ready to participate in every serious effort at pacification.—Receive, &c.,

"Drouyn de Lhuys."

La France, alluding to the rumours of a Conference, says :—

"England and Russia are endeavouring to induce Denmark to accept an armistice on the basis of uti possidetis. The two armies would remain during the Conference in the same positions they now occupy. England and Russia point to the reiterated declarations by Prussia and Austria of their intention to respect the integrity of Denmark. Prussia and Austria are acting upon the Confederation to bring about its acceptance of the Conference upon the bases above-mentioned."

The Mémorial Diplomatique of Sunday states that the draught of a treaty was agreed upon at the Tuileries, to be ratified so soon as the Emperor Maximilian I. shall have ascended the Mexican throne, and announced his accession to the Court of the Tuileries. The Mémorial further says :—

"If we are rightly informed, the treaty definitely settles two important questions,—firstly, the French occupation; and secondly, the claims of the French Treasury on the Mexican Government. It is already known that the pay and maintenance of the troops engaged in the expedition have since the 1st of January, 1864, been borne by Mexico. This will continue until their recall, which will gradually be effected as the regimental lists of the Mexican army are completed."

The Archduke and the Archduchess have made a most favourable impression on all who have had any intercourse with them during their brief stay in Paris, and it is said that all the Mexican prisoners of war in France submitted in writing their adhesion to the Government of his Imperial Highness previous to his departure for London. M. Garnier Pagés, one of the candidates at the forthcoming election for Paris, invited a number of his political friends to meet at his house on Sunday night. They responded to his invitation, and were quietly discussing his prospects of success, when two commissaries of police made their way into the drawing-room, and commanded those present to disperse. The Moniteur of Wednesday, in reference to this occurrence, says :—

"For several days past public meetings have been held in the populous quarters of Paris, under pretext of canvassing for the elections, at which the Government was violently attacked. The meetings have been dissolved, and a judicial investigation has been instituted. No public meeting can take place without authorisation, and the Government will continue to make the law respected."

The Moniteur of Tuesday says that the Emperor having charged the Duke de Morny to make a report upon the questions at issue relative to the Suez Canal, the Duke has reported on the basis of a compromise which appeared equitable to the Emperor, and its conclusions were communicated to the Viceroy, who requested the Emperor to settle the difficulties between the two parties. The Emperor, accepting the arbitration, has formed a committee to examine the questions at issue. An Imperial decree published on Friday fixes the amount to be paid for exemption from military service for the year 1864 at 2300 francs. The case of the journalists prosecuted for forwarding identical correspondences to provincial newspapers, such conduct being considered as publishing a newspaper without authority, came on for judgment on Thursday. The accused were found guilty on all the counts of the indictment. MM. St. Chéron, Clerbois, and Lavedan were each condemned to one month's imprisonment and 100f. fine for the publication without authority of writings treating of political matters. It was also ordered that their correspondences shall cease to appear.

Spain.—Some Madrid journals ask what would be the course of the Government if a European war were to break out in Italy.

Portugal.—The Government Bill abolishing the tobacco monopoly has been brought forward in the Cortes. It is doubtful whether the Ministers will obtain a majority; as the opposition to the bill is increasing. The Florida Confederate steamer from Brest arrived a Madeira on the 28th of February, and was allowed to receive 20 tons of coals, with water and provisions, but was required to leave the port on the following day. The Danish brig Prethe, from Leith to Barcelona, has been brought into Lisbon by the Austrian war steamer Schwarzenburg and the gunboat Seehund.

Belgium.—The Archduke Maximilian and Archduchess Charlotte arrived at Brussels on Tuesday night. Their Imperial Highnesses dined with the Royal family on Wednesday, and left in the evening for Vienna.

Sweden.—Advices from Stockholm state that after the recent monster meeting in favour of Denmark, popular riots took place at Stockholm, and the mob broke the windows of the Foreign Minister. Some of the ringleaders were arrested. The Swedish Minister for Foreign Affairs has stated that the English Parliamentary blue book relative to the Dano-German conflict was not complete, inasmuch as it omits all mention of the fact that Sweden had asked the Western Powers in February last to support Denmark, and was herself prepared for all eventualities. The King set out for Christiania on the 9th inst. with four Ministers, and Prince Oscar has been intrusted with the Regency during the King's absence. A letter from Helsingborg states that on the 10th inst. an order was issued to the troops in Schonen to be ready to march within four days after receiving orders to that effect.

Norway.—The Norwegian Storthing was opened on Tuesday. The King, in his speech from the throne, announced that a Bill would be laid before the Chamber, granting an extraordinary credit of 1,500,000 rigsdalers to the Government, in order to enable it to give active aid to Denmark in certain emergencies. The King also expressed a desire that the Government should have liberty of action for all eventualities, and should be authorised to employ the regular army and navy in aid of Denmark if found necessary.

Denmark.—The Oesterreichische Zeitung of Wednesday publishes a telegram from Berlin, asserted to be derived from an authentic source, stating that Denmark is disposed to accept the armistice and Conference propositions in their essential points, but will only accept part of the conditions attached to the armistice. The semi-official General Correspondenz also announces that Denmark has accepted the propositions for an armistice and Conference on the basis of the status quo, stipulating for the suspension of any further advance of the Allies in Jutland, and promising not to further molest German shipping. The elections to the Lower House of the Rigsraad are concluded. All the members elected belong to the National party, which wishes for the continuation of the war. M. Hall, the ex-Premier, was elected unanimously. Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council, who expressed himself favourable to pursuing the war, was elected by a large majority, four votes only being given against him. The Upper House will probably meet upon the 25th. The portion of Schleswig not occupied by the Austro-Prussian troops will be represented by three members. It is not expected that the Session will last longer than 10 days. The citizens of Copenhagen have presented an address of loyalty to King Christian at the Castle of Christiansborg. His Majesty in his reply said :—

"I also fully comprehend the necessity of unity and perfect concord between the King and the people at such a momentous time as the present. The deputation presenting the address may therefore feel assured that I shall never be untrue to my people, and that I thoroughly appreciate their devotion. No one has been more painfully affected by the evacuation of the Danewirke than I. I can also very well understand the general feeling of deep sorrow which seized the metropolis at this unexpected news, and am, consequently, quite willing to forget all that afterwards happened in connection with that event. (The King alluded to the riots.) How gladly I receive the present expression of devotion I will prove by showing the citizens of Copenhagen the confidence I place in them. As I am about to send my Guards to take part in the defence of the country, I shall ask the civic guard of Copenhagen to take their place in the charge of the royal castles."

In accordance with an order of the day from the King, the Prince Royal has proceeded to the army, and joined the staff of General Hegermann-Lindenkrone, which forms part of the fourth division. Five Danish steamers, one of them carrying 40 guns, are cruising off Stralsund, where the Prussian flotilla is still ice bound.

The Danish Duchies.—The vanguard of the 6th Austrian Army Corps has entered Horsens. On Friday they pursued General Hegermann's army corps with 21 battalions of infantry, cavalry, and artillery, as far as Fredericia. On Saturday evening they entered Aarhus, after the Danish infantry had embarked for Fredericia and Alsen. An unimportant engagement took place on Sunday at Sundewitt. On the 9th inst. the eastern defiles of Randsau were occupied by the Prussian advanced corps of the Division of the Guard, in order to watch the fortress of Fredericia. The rest of the division took up a position in a westerly direction. On Sunday a detachment of Danish troops was driven from Lillemölle by two companies of the 15th and 55th Regiments. Several battalions of Röder's Prussian brigade subsequently took Nübel after a slight engagement. Rackebüll was also occupied after sharp contest. Lieut. Troschel and three men of the 24th Regiment were killed, and Capt. Ballhorn, of the 24th Regiment, and about 10 men were wounded. All the superior officials and mayors of that portion of Jutland now occupied by the allied troops have since been taken to the Prussian head-quarters. Eleven of them, among whom were MM. Dahl and Bretton, have arrived at Flensburg as prisoners of war, and been conveyed to a Prussian fortress. This measure is connected with the delivery of the requisitions for supplies intended to be enforced upon the inhabitants. The Austrians have made a requisition for 5000 oxen and 2500 horses. On Saturday night the Prussians completed the erection and armament of their batteries at Gammelmark, on the Vemmingbund. The Danes immediately opened fire from the intrenchments at Düppel. The Prussian batteries replied in the course of Sunday. On Thursday a vigorous bombardment of Duppel was carried on by the Prussians from Broager. The bombardment was continued all day, but without result. A very strong artillery force opened fire against the right wing of the Danish position, but was soon withdrawn. It is reported that the Prussians intend to deliver the assault upon the 22d, the birthday of the King of Prussia. At half-past 5 on Tuesday morning the island of Femeren was occupied by the Prussians, who were ferried across from Heiligenhafen during the stormy weather. The whole Danish force in the island, consisting of 100 men, together with the commander of a gunboat, were taken prisoners. On Thursday afternoon a sharp naval engagement took place off Pugard, between five Danish steamers and two Prussian men-of-war and several gunboats. At 4 o'clock the action was continued in the rear of Granitz, on the eastern side of the island. The engagement resulted in the withdrawal of the Prussian ships, closely pursued by the Danes, whose force had been increased to seven vessels. The Prussian gunboats have safely reached Ruden, and the two corvettes put into Schwinemunde. The Nymphe lost two, and the Arcona three killed. The Summa had nine men wounded, among whom is Lieut. Berger seriously. Great enthusiasm prevails among the seamen. Yesterday morning the Danish fleet sailed for Moen. 600 Jutland peasants, comprising both old and young men, have been compelled by the Germans to assist in the erection of the trenches before Fredericia. Marshal von Wrangel has issued a proclamation prohibiting the export of horses, cattle, and grain from Jutland, under penalty of confiscation. It is asserted that a tax of 1 thaler per ton of hard corn will be imposed by the allies upon the landed proprietors in Jutland. The use of the Danish stamped paper with the King's initials has been prohibited in Schleswig, as has also been the use of the prayer for the King of Denmark in the churches. The salaries of dismissed officials have not been paid. A German office for the supervision of the Schleswig postal arrangements has been established in Flensburg, at the head of which is an official from the Prussian Post Office. The Prussians have arrested Herr Stockfleth, the amtmann of Hadersleben. A letter from Veile states that on Thursday and Friday week four civilians were executed in that town for attempting to assassinate German soldiers; and General Gablenz has ordered that all munitions and arms in the possession of civilians shall be delivered up to the military authorities within 24 hours. Mr. Crowe, son of the English Consul-General at Christiania, has fled to Copenhagen from Veile, where he has been ill-treated by the Austrians. The rumour current in Hamburg on Thursday of the death of Duke Frederick of Augustenburg was a pure invention. The duke is in the enjoyment of perfect health.

HAMBURG.—A Prussian siege train, consisting of 50 mortars and 3000 projectiles, of a calibre varying from 25 lb. to 65 lb., passed through Hamburg on the 9th inst. Colonel Bess, the commandant of the garrison of Hamburg, left on Friday for Cuxhaven, to hasten the construction of the fortifications erected to defend the entrance of the Elbe.

BAVARIA.—The young King Ludwig II. has summoned the Council of State, and taken the constitutional oath. In his address to the Council his Majesty promised that he would govern in accordance with the Constitution and for the welfare of the country. His Majesty, who was born in 1845, and is consequently in his 19th year, has since issued the following proclamation on his accession:—

"We, Ludwig II., by God's grace King of Bavaria, &c., to our beloved subjects greeting. Almighty God, in his impenetrable decrees and will, having thought fit to call to himself our well-beloved and highly-honoured father, the most illustrious King Maximilian II. of Bavaria, and the entire kingdom of Bavaria, with all its ancient and modern possessions, having by this decase fallen to us, according to the constitution, the political and dynastic treaties, and in pursuance of our right as next lineal and first-born successor, we have taken full possession of the same, and assumed the government of the kingdom. We, therefore, call upon all the inhabitants of our hereditary states to recognise us henceforth as their legitimate and only sovereign, to pay us inviolable fidelity and obedience, and to fulfil all duties towards us as towards their sovereign sent by God. We announce to them that we have already taken the oath prescribed by the constitution. In order that the progress of public business should not be interrupted, we order that all the authorities of the kingdom should continue to discharge their duties until fresh orders upon our part are received; that, wherever necessary, official acts shall be done in our name, but that the former signets shall be made use of until new ones are prepared. We especially remind all functionaries of their oath to the crown and the constitution, and trust that all our subjects, as in duty bound, will obey the orders of their legitimate sovereign, for which we bestow upon them our Royal grace and good will."

FRANKFORT.—In the sitting of the Federal Diet on Saturday the motion of Bavaria for the recognition of the Duke of Augustenburg was brought forward. The representatives of Austria and Prussia proposed the adjournment of the motion until the committee should have reported on the succession question, declaring that they would very shortly state their views on the subject. On account of this declaration the Bavarian representative stated that he would not insist upon his right, as mover of the proposition, to put the question to the vote within a week. The debate was therefore adjourned. The motion of Saxony and Wurtemburg to convoke the Holstein Diet, and that of Hanover to summon Denmark to surrender the captured German shipping, was referred to a committee.

PRUSSIA.—The Government has contracted a loan of 6,000,000 thalers, bearing 4½ per cent. interest, at the rate of 99, with the Royal Bank, the Seehandlung, and the house of Raphael Erlanger. This loan was previously voted by the Chambers for the construction of railways. A Ministerial decree published on Friday directs that no person shall be allowed to visit the district of Jahde without a special passport. Prince Adalbert of Prussia, in his official capacity as Prussian Admiral, has been summoned to Berlin by telegraph. He left for that city on Tuesday night. It is stated that the three Prussian men-of-war which have been at anchor in the harbour of Brest since the commencement of hostilities have been placed under the command of the Austrian Admiral in order to operate in concert with the Austrian squadron. The Minister of War has issued the regulations to be observed by commanders of Prussian ships of war in reference to the capture of Danish and suspicious shipping. Holstein and Schleswig ships will not be regarded as hostile vessels. The flag protects the cargo. Neutral cargoes under the enemy's flag will not be confiscated. In both cases contraband of war is excepted. Subjects of the enemy on board captured vessels are to be treated as prisoners of war.

AUSTRIA.—The following identical note has been sent by Austria and Prussia to the signataries of the London Treaty, in explanation of their advance into Jutland:—

"The Prussian (Austrian) Government had hoped that the Danish Government would have displayed a more conciliatory disposition. In this case the two great German powers would have hastened to interrupt their military action, and to enter into negotiations. We are, however, compelled to state with regret that our expectations have been deceived. The attitude of the Copenhagen Court, and its refusal to take part in the Conferences proposed by England, impose upon us the duty of persisting in the measures of compulsion to which we have resorted. Important strategic considerations have occasioned the order which has been given to the commander-in-chief of the Austro-Prussian forces to advance into Jutland, in order to secure the position of his troops, and hold the Danes concentrated at Fredericia in check, as he prevents their threatening the flanks of the army, or devoting all their strength to the defence of the line of Düppel. The two Powers have had the less hesitation in permitting this strategic movement, as they were justified in adopting measures of reprisal against the regulations of the Danish Government, ordering the seizure of ships upon the high seas, belonging not only to the Powers waging war, but also to the other States of the Germanic Confederation. The extension hereby given to the military operations in other respects alters nothing in the former declarations of the Prussian (Austrian) Government regarding its position in the present disagreement. The better to prove that its personal sentiments are sincere and its intentions unaltered, the Prussian (Austrian) Government declares itself ready to conclude an armistice with Denmark at once, either upon the basis of mutual evacuation of the positions at Duppel and upon Alsen by the Danish troops and by the Austro-Prussian army in Jutland, or upon that of the military uti possidetis. But in the one case as in the other the Prussian (Austrian) Government stipulates as conditions that the cessation of hostilities by sea shall be included in the armistice, that the prizes made upon both sides shall be given up, and that the embargo laid upon ships in harbour shall be withdrawn. The Prussian (Austrian) Government declares itself equally ready to enter into a Conference with the Powers concerned as to the means best fitted to restore peace."

HUNGARY.—Arrests have been made in Pesth on account of some political intrigues.

VENETIA.—News from the Venetian frontier announces that a great popular demonstration was made at Verona on Monday in honour of the birthday anniversary of the King of Italy. Bonfires were lighted and fireworks displayed. Political inscriptions were exhibited in the public squares and most frequented streets of the city.

ITALY.—Letters from Turin speak of an approaching change in the Ministry. The new Cabinet would comprise Baron Ricasoli, Signor Rattazzi, and General La Marmora. General Cialdini would have the command in chief of the Italian troops. This Ministerial combination would be connected with important financial and political interests. Sentence has been passed by the Court of Assize at Santa Maria, in the province of Terra di Lavoro, on the brigand chiefs. Cipriano, Giona, and Lazalo have been condemned to death, Papa to hard labour for life, and Davango to hard labour for 20 years. The brigand Ninco Nanca has been killed by the National Guard of Avigliano Accounts from Rome state that the Pope has been attacked by serious illness, which commenced on Friday last with one of his usual fainting fits, and has confined him to his bed ever since. The disease appears to be a fresh attack of erysipelas, accompanied by a derangement of the digestion, brought on by the Pope's strict observance of Lent. The latest news says that the illness of his Holiness has become more serious. The Official Gazette publishes a Royal decree, nominating 23 new senators. Fresh conflicts continue to take place at Rome between the French and the Papal soldiery. Detachments of soldiers patrol the streets night and day to preserve order. The populace participate in the conflicts by siding with the Papal soldiers. The Duke of Modena, who spent so much of his large fortune in maintaining a little army after his flight, is on his way to Jerusalem.

THE IONIAN ISLANDS.—The demolition of the fortifications have been suspended, according to the French papers, by order received from London.

RUSSIA.—The Journal de St. Petersbourg of Tuesday refutes the rumour of a revival of the Holy Alliance, having either the character of a league of sovereigns to destroy the liberties of peoples or of a coalition of Europe against one great Power. It says:—

"The only Holy Alliance possible is that of peace, progress, and general prosperity. Russia has need of rest to carry out reforms. Nevertheless she would not be the last to join a Holy Alliance the objects of which would neither threaten the interests of nor exclude any Power, always excepting those wishing to intrigue, and who are in reality enemies both to the liberties and prosperity of nations."

POLAND.—The despatch of Russian troops towards the Prussian frontier continues. From the 15th of March the Russian head-quarters were to be established at Kalisch. Bossak's insurgent corps is hemmed in between the Vistula and Pilica, and is surrounded by superior forces. Sixty thousand Russian troops are stationed on the Bessarabian frontier.

THE DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES.—A telegram from Constantinople, dated the 13th inst., states that Prince Couza adheres to his former declarations upon the secularisation of convent property. Mehemet A... has been appointed Minister without portfolio.

UNITED STATES.—General Meade's army crossed the Rapidan on the 27th ult. in the direction of Richmond. Their movement was a feint to cover a cavalry raid upon General Lee's communication with Richmond. General Custer, with 1500 men, made a demonstration upon the Confederate left at Charlottesville, while General Kilpatrick, with a much larger force crossed the Rapidan at Germania and Ely's Ford. Custer found the Confederates in force, and was compelled to retreat precipitately, narrowly escaping capture. Kilpatrick has returned to Butler's lines on the peninsula, after having lost in skirmishes along his route, 150 men, of whom three colonels are missing. He destroyed a large portion of the Virginia Central Railroad, and penetrated to the outer suburbs of Richmond. The Federal cavalry expedition which left Memphis early in February to co-operate with General Sherman has been defeated in a series of severe engagements in Mississippi, and driven back to Memphis. The Confederates captured three cannon and many prisoners. General Sherman is reported to be retreating to Vicksburg, and fears are entertained that his position is jeopardised by the closing in upon his rear of the victorious Confederate cavalry. It is reported from Washington that the real object of the campaign in the South-West was the overthrow of General Joseph Johnston's army; that the demonstration of Grierson, Sherman, and Farragut were feints to induce a division of Johnston's army for the support of the points they threatened, and that the late advance by General Thomas towards Dalton was made with 35,000 troops, which was intended to be followed by that of his whole force. The vigilance of the Confederates frustrated the Federal plan, and General Thomas's advance upon Dalton and Atlanta was effectually checked by Joseph Johnston. It is generally admitted that the spring campaign, both in Virginia and the South-West, has been an utter failure, and General Meade has been summoned to Washington for consultation with the President and the War Department. Confederate telegrams from Greenville, East Tennessee, report that General Longstreet had withdrawn from before Knoxville, but declared it imprudent to mention in what direction he had gone. It is reported, however, that he has arrived at Richmond. Details of the late battle in Florida confirm the reported extent of the Federal disaster. The battle commenced at 2 P.M. on the 20th, and lasted until 7 P.M. The Federal loss was 1200 killed and wounded. Hamilton's battery, of five cannon, 88 men, and 80 horses, lost in 20 minutes 44 men, 40 horses, and two pieces. The loss to other Federal divisions was proportionately great. The Federals retreated in a shattered condition to Jacksonville, closely pursued by the Confederates. It was considered highly probable that they must re-embark on board their transports and return to Hilton Head. General Seymour, who commanded the expedition, has been placed under arrest by General Gilmore, and replaced by General Voages, or Hodges. In the Senate, on the 21st inst., Mr. Thompson, of Maryland, threw the whole blame of the Florida disaster upon Mr. Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln's nomination of General Grant for the Lieutenant-Generalship has been confirmed by the Senate. The Louisiana Unionists elected their Free State candidates on the 22d ult., under the dictation of General Banks. The Confederate General Pickett, commanding in North Carolina, in a correspondence with the Federal General Peck, at Newbern, declares it his intention to execute every negro he catches who is proved to have killed a Confederate, and that should retaliation be adopted he will hang 10 Yankees for every Confederate executed. General Bragg is appointed General-in-Chief of the Confederate armies. General Sigel has been assigned to the command of Western Virginia. The Confederate Congress has adjourned. An address to the people, prepared by a Committee from both Houses, states that throughout the war the South has desired peace, and that as all her overtures have been rejected, no further negotiations will be attempted until the Federal Government gives assurance that they will be received. The address asserts that the Confederate States will rather consent to a European Protectorate than to unite on any terms with Yankees, and concludes by declaring that the continued unity of purpose of the Southern people is alone necessary to insure the independency of the Confederacy. The Federal sloop of war Housatonic was destroyed off Charleston on the 18th ult. by a Confederate propellor Torpedo. The crew, with the exception of two officers and three men, were rescued by boats from other blockading vessels.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY.—The Easter Recess.—Earl GRANVILLE announced that the House would adjourn on Friday to the 5th of April for the Easter recess.—Lord CHELMSFORD asked whether the Government intended to propose any changes in the office of the Judge-Advocate-General. It had been stated that a measure was under consideration, but recently the Judge-Advocate himself had announced in the House of Commons that no change would be proposed during the present year. Earl DE GREY explained that certain modifications in the duties of the Judge-Advocate were under consideration, but were delayed by the necessity of consulting several...

ments of the Government in reference to them. No change could be effected this year, as it was necessary that the Mutiny Act giving effect to the Articles of War, should be passed by a certain day. The Danish Question.—The Earl of Derby asked Lord Wodehouse whether anything passed at the interview between him and M. Hall, the chief of the late Danish Government, beyond the conversation described in the report sent by the noble Lord from Copenhagen.—Earl Granville thought it inconvenient such a question should be put in the absence of the Foreign Secretary.—The Earl of Derby said that he had given Lord Wodehouse private notice of the question, and he had expressed his readiness to answer it.—Lord Wodehouse explained that when he stated to M. Hall his belief that nothing the Danish Government could do would arrest the course taken by the German Powers, he alluded to the execution in Holstein ordered by the Diet. It was impossible he could have given any opinion as to the invasion of Schleswig, for the intentions of the German Powers were not then known. England and France.—Lord Campbell asked what construction the Government put on a declaration by Prince Gortschakoff, contained in a despatch from St. Petersburg, published in the Danish and German correspondence, to the effect that Austria, Prussia, Russia, and England "were now thinking and acting in harmony on a question still more important than that of Schleswig and Holstein."—Earl Granville thought the allusion was to an agreement supposed to exist between the four Governments not to take part in the plan of a general European Congress. But, as to England, he stated that no agreement or combination of any kind had been entered into that could be considered as displaying the slightest hostile feeling towards France, for the Government were most anxious to act in concert with France on all European questions.—In reply to the Earl of Ellenborough, the Duke of Somerset said that some Austrian vessels of war had left Malta for Gibraltar, but he had not heard they were to proceed beyond that point or enter the Baltic.

Tuesday.—Germany and Denmark.—The Earl of Ellenborough gave notice that on Friday he intended to call attention to the differences between Germany and Denmark. He asked whether the statement in the morning papers that Austria and Prussia had presented an identical note, containing an amended proposal for an armistice, and a Conference on terms of mutual concessions, was authentic. If it were so, then he hoped the two Governments had sent orders to Marshal Wrangel to stop the needless effusion of blood, and that Denmark would accept the proposal; for it was certain that although the latter Power might have at first a superiority at sea, she must in the end be overpowered.—The Duke of Somerset believed that the statement referred to was substantially correct. The Insane Prisoners Bill was referred to a Select Committee. On the order for reading the Malt for Cattle Bill, Earl Grey, adverting to the question of the repeal of the malt tax, observed that the tax was not paid by the farmer or producer, but by the consumer, and that its abolition would be most injurious to the landed interest by creating a demand for foreign malt. The agitation for the repeal of the malt tax was, in his opinion, equivalent to an agitation for an increase of taxation so far as the landed interest was concerned.—The Duke of Argyll said that in certain parts of Scotland, where inferior barley was grown, the Bill before the House would be extensively acted upon.—Lord Redesdale trusted there would be a surplus of revenue, sufficient, at all events, to admit of a partial reduction of the malt tax, which, theoretically and practically, was the most objectionable fiscal charge in existence, now that all other home manufactures had been relieved from taxation with the exception of spirits.—The Earl of Hardwicke was of opinion that the Bill would be inoperative. After a few words from Lord Wodehouse, the Bill was read a second time. The Lunatics (Ireland) Acts Bill passed through Committee after a division, on clause 4, which was thrown out by 34 to 27. The Inclosure Bill passed through Committee. The Marine Mutiny Bill was read a second time.

Wednesday.—The House held a brief sitting to read the Mutiny Bill a second time. The Marine Mutiny Bill was also forwarded a stage.

Thursday.—Army Enlistment.—The Earl of Desart inquired whether the Government were prepared to take any steps to meet the reduction that must be occasioned in the army by the expiration, next year of the ten years' enlistment term.—Earl De Grey and Ripon said that there could be no doubt that a larger number of men than usual would be entitled to their discharge next year, but judging from experience, it was anticipated that about one half would re-enlist. The Government were considering whether it could not hold out greater inducements than at present existed to retain the men in the service.—The Earl of Donoughmore asked whether the Government contemplated any steps to reform the Irish Constabulary, with a view to increasing its efficiency and usefulness.—Earl Granville referred to the peculiar circumstances of Ireland as a reason for maintaining the constabulary on its present basis, and said he could adduce testimony from all quarters to its patriotism, good conduct, and efficiency; but, with a view to improving its character as a detective force, the Government were consulting the public officials in Ireland. After some remarks from the Earl of Desart, the Marquis of Clanricarde, and the Earl of Leitrim, the subject dropped.

Friday.—The Royal Assent was given by commission to the Consolidated Fund (£84,6*s*.) Bill, Consolidated Fund (£4,500,000*l*.) Bill, Sir John Lawrence's Salary Bill, the Inclosure Bill, the Mutiny Bill, and the Marine Mutiny Bill. The Danish Question.—The Earl of Ellenborough withdrew his notice respecting the affairs of Germany and Denmark, in compliance with a request from Earl Russell, who stated that negotiations were still pending, and that on public grounds it would be most impolitic to discuss the question at present. The Malt for Cattle Bill passed through committee, with the addition of a new clause. The Court of Chancery (Despatch of Business) Bill, was read a second time. The Conveyancers &c. (Ireland) Bill, was read a second time. The Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill, passed through committee. Fairs Amendment (Ireland).—In answer to Lord Clanricarde, Earl Russell said that the papers relating to the enlistment of seamen at Cork by the Federal cruiser Kearsage, should be produced. His lordship added that the Government had done everything possible to prevent any similar infringement of the Foreign Enlistment Act, by publishing her Majesty's proclamation in all parts of Ireland. The House then adjourned to Tuesday, the 5th of April.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Friday.—Retirement of Sir Rowland Hill.—Lord Palmerston gave notice that shortly he would move that the House resolve itself into a committee to consider the grant (of a pension to Lady Hill, for her life, in the event of her surviving her husband. Ireland.—On the order for going into Supply, Mr. Hennessy moved a resolution to the effect that it is just and expedient to extend to Ireland the beneficial provisions of the English Poor Law. He dwelt upon the decline of the population, and urged that a remedy of the evil would be to give to Ireland the English Poor Law, which would not only benefit the poor, but lower the rates. He described the system of relief under the Irish Poor Law and its effects upon the pauper population, and compared them with those under the Poor Law in England and Scotland, where it was the practice to grant outdoor relief, which he showed by examples to be economical.—Mr. Blake seconded the motion.—Mr. Vance said that the introduction into Ireland of the English Poor Law in all its integrity would cause an extensive confiscation of property in Ireland.—Sir F. Heygate argued that the effect of outdoor relief upon the rates would press severely on the landed property of Ireland.—Mr. P. Urquhart thought that a greater degree of outdoor relief might be beneficially administered.—Mr. O'Reilly, admitting that there were imperfections in the Irish Poor Law, considered it in many respects preferable to the English. After some remarks by Sir H. Bruce, Mr. Dunlop, Sir P. O'Brien, and Mr. Herbert, in opposition to the motion, Sir R. Peel said that Mr. Hennessy was not correct in his facts in relation to the administration of outdoor relief, and contended that if that system were carried out in Ireland as in England and Scotland it would enormously burden the ratepayers, and not meet the wishes of the people, while it might create grave social evils. Even in Scotland the effects of outdoor relief in certain districts had been demoralising and had changed the character of the labouring classes. The system of the Irish Poor Law did not need to be supplemented by the English law; it had ample power of its own to afford adequate indoor and outdoor relief. Emigration was not the fault of the Poor Law, but the effect of natural causes that would continue to work. The difference of wages would naturally entice labourers to cross the Atlantic, and if they bettered themselves by the change, they would improve the condition of those they left behind by rendering labour more scarce and raising wages. Emigration to America was not confined to Ireland; the movement was in extensive operation in Germany and all the countries of Western Europe. In describing the prosperous condition of Ireland he referred to the Fenians, and said that they were the ancient national militia of Ireland, and he greatly amused the House by giving, from sources he described as authentic, an historical sketch of the character, manner, and extraordinary institutions of the early Feni. In conclusion, he opposed the motion in the interest of the ratepayers of Ireland, as well as in that of the honest and industrious labourer.—Mr. Bright was in favour of extending to Ireland those wise and beneficent laws under which England had attained unparalleled happiness and prosperity. The condition of Ireland was anomalous among the Christian States of Europe, and it was a deplorable reflection that her position as regarded England was not dissimilar to that of Venetia towards Austria, or of Poland towards Russia. So depressed, indeed, was it that the English Viceroy had publicly expressed a hope that emigration would go on until the people who remained would be enabled to earn the magnificent sum of 10*s*. per week. It was admitted by the common consent of Catholics and Protestants that the country was now more disloyal and disaffected than at any previous period in its history. As an illustration of the exasperated feeling of the people, he had been assured by a considerable landed proprietor in the south of Ireland (a Protestant) that if the French were to land in Bantry Bay to-morrow they would be received with open arms.—Sir J. Walsh charged Mr. Bright with having imported into the debate the language of an inflammatory demagogue.—Mr. Maguire recommended Mr. Hennessy to withdraw his motion, and bring in a Bill to improve the existing law.—Major Knox rebuked Mr. Bright for using intemperate and offensive language, and said that if the French were to land in Bantry Bay the men of Ulster would rise as one man to protect their liberties and to maintain their connection with England.—After a few words from Lord Naas, deprecatory of the tone adopted by Mr. Bright, Mr. Hennessy withdrew his motion. The House went into Committee of Supply pro formâ, and, having immediately resumed, the Summary Procedure (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. The Mutiny Bill, as amended was considered. The Marine Mutiny Bill was read a third time and passed. Leave was given to the Lord Advocate to bring in a Bill to provide for the commutation of Vicarage Teinds on Fish in Scotland.

Monday.—The Sheffield Inundation.—In reply to Mr. Roebuck, Sir G. Grey stated that in consequence of representations made by the Mayor and coroner of Sheffield, the Government had deputed Mr. Rawlinson, civil engineer, to visit Bradfield, and report upon the causes which had led to the recent deplorable inundation. Bombardment of Kagosima.—Mr. Layard read a despatch from Lieut.-Colonel Neale, British Plenipotentiary in Japan, and also a letter from Admiral Kuper, stating the circumstances under which Kagosima had been bombarded. The substance of the correspondence was that Kagosima contained a population of 40,000 only (not 180,000); that all the inhabitants quitted their houses before the fire was opened on the palace of Prince Satsuma; that the British attack had been characterised by great caution and moderation; and that the town would very soon be restored to its original proportions. The American War.—Mr. Roebuck asked whether the Government, while remonstrating with the Confederate States on their employment of agents for illegal purposes, intended also to remonstrate with the Government of the Federal States upon the employment by them of agents in Ireland for the purpose of enlisting as soldiers the subjects of her Majesty. In explaining the reasons which had led him to make this inquiry, he denounced the Federal Government as base, cowardly, and corrupt, and severely censured the conduct of our foreign policy, stating that the honour of England was at stake, and in his opinion, the character of England had not been upheld as it ought to be upheld, and that he had therefore a right to inquire whether the strict neutrality professed by the Government had been maintained.—Lord Palmerston said it was vain for Mr. Roebuck to attempt to select a single member of the Government and hold him up to public obloquy. Earl Russell was the organ of the Government in all its communications with foreign Powers, but he took no step without concert with his colleagues, and he (Lord Palmerston) was equally responsible with him for every step he had taken. The Government had declared their intention to observe a strict neutrality in the contest going on in America, and they had done so; but there was a difference in the position of the two belligerent parties, and a difficulty in dealing with the enlistment of men which did not exist in the same degree in respect to ships. There might be agents in the employ of the Federal Government endeavouring to enlist men to go to America; but the difficulty was to obtain evidence. Her Majesty's Government had remonstrated on the subject, as would appear in the papers laid before the House, and prosecutions had been instituted, and there would be no backwardness on their part in vindicating the honour of the country.—Mr. Bright said that he had never heard in that House language so unworthy of it as that he had heard from Mr. Roebuck; there was no necessity for the Government of America to invite Irishmen to go to America; he only marvelled that any Irishman, not the owner of land, would remain in that blighted and unhappy country.—Mr. Kinglake declared that the language applied by Mr. Roebuck to the Government of Washington did not represent the opinion of any party, or any fraction of a party in the House; they represented his own opinion alone.—Mr. Stansfeld and Mazzini.—Sir L. Palk asked whether the French Government had made any representations on the subject of the revelation made by the Paris conspirators respecting Mazzini's alleged relations with Mr. Stansfeld.—Mr. Layard said that no communications whatever had been made on the subject.—Mr. Hennessy read various documents respecting M. Mazzini and his alleged complicity with the recent conspiracy in France.—Mr. W. Forster and Mr. G. Duff defended Mazzini, and Mr. Disraeli expressed his opinion that further explanations were due to the House and the country.

Navy Estimates.—The House then went into Committee, when, on the recommittal of Vote 8, the labour vote, Mr. Stansfeld explained the causes of the very considerable increase of this vote, for wages to artificers, labourers, and others employed in the establishments at home, the amount being 1,277,316*l*., that of last year being 1,112,878*l*. After showing that the condition of the Navy as regarded men was eminently satisfactory, he insisted upon the policy of a rapid construction of the newest and most powerful vessels, consumption of time and slowness of construction being incompatible with the rapidity of changes at the present day. It was necessary, he said, to have a little courage in dealing with these matters; like a manufacturer, who hastened to adopt the newest and best machinery. Relying upon science and theory, the Admiralty endeavoured not to be left behind in the design and construction of vessels. They had purchased iron enough to complete all the iron-plated vessels in the next financial year, and they now proposed to devote their energies to the construction of new and powerful vessels. He then explained the system under which the increased expenditure would be administered, and the new and improved scheme of dockyard accounts. Men conversant with large mercantile and manufacturing operations were aware that they could not be profitably or safely conducted for any length of time, unless they were based upon an accurate and simplified system of accounts and stock taking; and if this were true of private undertakings, how much more was it required in a great department like the Admiralty! In conclusion, he described the changes introduced, or to be introduced, into the organisation of the dockyards, especially in the Controller's Department, from which he anticipated much advantage.—Mr. Lindsay said it had not been shown that vessels could be built as economically and efficiently in her Majesty's dockyards as in private yards. He moved to reduce the vote by 244,979*l*., the sum set down in the Estimate as the wages of 3712 additional artificers and labourers.—After a long discussion Mr. Lindsay withdrew his amendment, and moved to reduce the vote by 162,438*l*., the difference between this year's vote and that of last year.—After further discussion the Committee divided, when the amendment was negatived by 110 to 29, and the vote was agreed to. The vote of 69,205*l*. for wages of artificers, &c., in the establishments abroad was likewise agreed to.—The Chairman was then ordered to report progress. The Mutiny Bill was read a third time, and passed. The Consolidated Fund Bills were read a second time.

Tuesday.—Fire Insurance Duty.—In reply to Mr. Hubbard, Mr. Sheridan said that he intended to postpone his motion for the reduction of the fire insurance duty until after the financial statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.—The Crawley Court Martial.—Mr. D. Fortescue called attention to the late court-martial at Aldershott, and moved for copies of a letter from Colonel Crawley, announcing, for the information of Sir W. Mansfield, the arrest of Sergeant-Majors Lilley, Duval, and Wakefield, on a charge of conspiracy, together with any documents in support of such charge; of the last half-yearly confidential inspection report on the 6th Dragoons, prior to Colonel Shute's resigning the command; and of the first half-yearly confidential inspection report subsequent to Colonel Crawley's assuming the command of that regiment. In explaining his reasons for bringing the subject again before the House, he said that in consequence of his statement last year, he was placed in some measure upon his own defence, but he did not call in question the verdict of the court-martial, whatever his individual opinion might be. Having stated the facts as they had come to his knowledge, in the first instance, he expressed his regret if, through any defective information, he had been led to overstate the case and make it darker than it really was. He then reviewed the circumstances of the Mhow court-martial, and the arrest and confinement of the sergeant-majors, the feelings engendered by the incidents connected therewith in the non-commissioned officers of the army, and deplored the scandal and mischievous effects resulting from this unhappy business.—Mr. H. Grenfell seconded the motion, and urged the importance of taking into consideration the unsatisfactory framework of courts-martial, and remedying the defects of these tribunals.—Lord Lovaine said that Colonel Crawley had been persecuted with unrelenting virulence and animosity, but he objected to make that House a court of appeal from military tribunals.—General Peel moved as an amendment a resolution that the production of any further papers is inexpedient. He did not want to debar the House from the proper control of the army, but he deprecated its interference with the administration and government of the army, and the constituting itself a court of appeal. The case of Colonel Crawley had already done much to weaken the discipline of the army, and he condemned the manner in which the Government had acted in the matter, and especially the unfair trial to which Colonel Crawley had been subjected, and the attempts made and defeated to obtain a verdict against him.—The Marquis of Hartington said the course which the Government intended to take was to give a cordial assent to the amendment moved by General Peel, believing that the time had at last come when this controversy should be brought to an end. He defended the Government against the charge of having yielded to popular clamour, explaining and justifying the part he had himself taken in the case.—Lord Hotham said that this was an exceptional case, and was only to be met by an exceptional remedy, and when such things were done as had been done in this case there was more to fear from mystery and secrecy than in letting the whole truth be given to the country.—Mr. O'Reilly suggested that in the proceedings in India there had been violations of military law.—Sir J. Fergusson said that Colonel Crawley had suffered grievous injustice, and that Mr. Fortescue had only two courses open to him—either to apologise to the House for having been made the vehicle of gross falsehood, or to take exception to the finding of the court-martial.—Mr. Headlam, after explaining the course he had taken as Judge-Advocate-General, with reference to the Mhow Court-martial, replied to the objections offered to the proceedings which had been taken against Colonel Crawley, justifying the bringing that officer to a court-martial, and the having the trial in England. He defended the manner in which the trial had been conducted, and all the steps he had taken in a case in which unusual difficulties had presented themselves.—Mr. Mowbray complained that Mr. Headlam had not fully explained his course of action in reference to the Mhow Court-martial and to Paymaster Smales. As to the mode of conducting the late Court-martial at Aldershot, he suggested certain points in which that mode was, in his opinion, erroneous, and that the fault lay with the Judge-Advocate-General.—Mr. Smollett thought, with Sir J. Fergusson, that the statement made by Mr. Fortescue last year ought to have been retracted, and that an apology was due to the House and the country. After some remarks by Mr. Dutton, Colonel Gilpin, Mr. Bouverie, Mr. Neate, Captain Archdall, Colonel Dickson, Sir P. O'Brien, Sir W. Fraser, and Mr. Fortescue, in reply, the original motion was negatived, and General Peel's amendment agreed to without a division.—Mr. Baines obtained leave to bring in a Bill to extend the Franchise in Boroughs to Occupiers.—Mr. Locke obtained leave to bring in a Bill to amend the constitution, practice, and procedure of the Court of the Island of Jersey.—Mr. Villiers obtained leave to bring in a Bill to continue for a further time certain provisions of the Union Relief Aid Acts.

Wednesday.—The two Consolidated Fund Bills were read a third time and passed.—Mr. Hadfield moved the second reading of the Judgments, &c., Law Amendment Bill.—Sir G. GREY said the Attorney-General had no objection to the second reading, with the understanding that the Bill should be referred to a Select Committee.—After a few words from Mr. SCULLY, the Bill was read a second time, and ordered to be referred to a Select Committee.—Mr. DODSON moved the second reading of the Tests Abolition (Oxford) Bill, stating that its object was to abolish subscription in the University of Oxford, and to throw open degrees without any religious test whatever. He said that the age of tests had passed away, and that the University should invite rather than repel men of other religious opinions besides Churchmen, so as to bring all within the sphere of its influence and under the power of its religious teaching. The principle of the Bill was recognised, though imperfectly carried out, in the Act of 1854, and he urged the House not to retain in the University fences and barriers which had ceased to be safeguards.—Mr. NEATE seconded the motion, and said that young men were driven from the University by these tests.—Sir W. HEATHCOTE moved as an amendment that the Bill be read a second time that day six months. He contended that the principle of the Bill was to dissociate the governing body of the University of Oxford from the Church of England. Assuming this principle, there was no need of argument; everything was clear. He assumed, however, that the University was a Church institution, and all attempts to amend a Bill the principle of which went so far would be impracticable.—Mr. G. DUFF denied that the University was a Church institution, in the sense of its being specially attached to the Church of England.—Mr. NEWDEGATE said that the Bill aimed indirectly at disorganising the University, and was, on the face of it, unsound, deceptive, and dangerous.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he regretted his inability to assent to the amendment of his colleague; but, in consenting to the second reading, he was not prepared to adopt the Bill as it stood. He suggested changes which might be made in the system at the University of Oxford, corresponding with the system adopted for Cambridge—suggestions that might be considered in committee. The dangers which menaced religion would not be averted or mitigated by the University declining to make concessions which were, in his view, of vital interest to the faith committed to her charge.—Mr. SELWYN insisted that Mr. Gladstone had not grappled with the principle of the Bill, but had led the House away into details not in the Bill, and which had nothing to do with its principle. He denied that the design of the Bill was to assimilate the practice of the University of Oxford to that of Cambridge; its real object was to throw open the governing body without requiring any religious test. If the University were thus rudely severed from the Church of England, the inevitable result would be to induce parents to look out for some other place of education.—Mr. SCULLY supported the Bill.—Lord R. MONTAGU suggested that it might enact a certain test for the governing body alone at Oxford, as at Cambridge.—Mr. BUXTON said that the present system laid a strain upon the consciences of young men, from which it was the object of the Bill to relieve them.—Sir S. NORTHCOTE said that the opponents of the Bill had been accused of indiscriminate resistance to a measure of this kind; he retorted a charge of indiscriminate attack. He recalled the attention of the House to the real issue, which was whether the union of the University and the Church should be maintained.—Mr. WALTER could not support the Bill in its present state, and suggested that it would be better to withdraw it.—Mr. WALPOLE noticed the antagonism of opinion among the supporters of the Bill.—Sir G. GREY said, in voting for the second reading, he did not assent to the principle of a severance between the governing body of the University and the Church of England. The House divided, when the amendment was negatived by 211 to 189, and the Bill was then read a second time. The Election Petitions Bill and the Metropolitan Subways Bill were read a second time, the latter being referred to a Select Committee.—Sir J. HAY obtained leave to bring in a Bill to authorise and regulate the issue of Bank Notes in Scotland by banking companies.

THURSDAY.—The Tuscaloosa.—In reply to Mr. PEACOCKE Lord PALMERSTON said that it would not be consistent with the interests of the public service to lay upon the table of the House the opinion of the law officers of the Crown upon the subject of the seizure of the Tuscaloosa. The Conference.—In answer to Lord R. MONTAGU, Lord PALMERSTON said that the consent of Austria and Prussia to the Conference had been obtained, and that her Majesty's Government had reason to believe that Denmark would also consent, though they had no official information on the subject.—On the motion for resuming the adjourned debate on going into committee on the Government Annuities Bill, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, referring to his former statements with respect to the defunct British Provident Institution, said, that upon a minute examination of the documentary and other evidence on which he had made those statements, he was persuaded of their substantial accuracy, and had nothing to withdraw, and no apology to make either to the House or to the member for Dudley. He read the report of the trial, in which the jury had found that certain words had been interpolated in a deed prepared by the British Provident Institution after the execution of the instrument, and he repeated his allegations with regard to the manner in which that society had conducted its business.—Mr. H. B. SHERIDAN denied seriatim all the charges of the right hon. gentleman, and inquired why he alone had been singled out for attack when there were many other members, some of whom were occupants of the Treasury bench, who were connected with assurance offices, equally open to censure. He complained that his name had been paraded before the public in connection with transactions described as grossly fraudulent, and he challenged the Chancellor of the Exchequer to abandon his privilege as a member of Parliament, and repeat out of doors charges which could be made the subject of a civil action in a court of justice.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, in reply, said that Mr. Sheridan, without meeting the allegations against the British Provident Institution, had, by widening the issue, avoided the real point in dispute. The adjourned debate on the Bill was resumed by Sir M. FARQUHAR, who moved that the measure be referred to a select committee. He argued that it was but fair that societies represented as fraudulent and bankrupt, should be heard before a committee prior to the State depriving them of the greater portion of their business.—Mr. HORSFALL seconded the amendment.—Mr. HODGKINSON, Mr. SALT, and Mr. GOSCHEN supported the Bill, as likely to confer a great boon upon the working classes.—After some remarks by Sir F. GOLDSMID and Mr. GREGSON, Mr. SOTHERON ESTCOURT said that if he were to consult his own feelings he would support the Bill, but there were many portions of it which he thought the mature judgment of the House could not approve, and he hoped the Chancellor of the Exchequer would consent to refer it to a Select Committee.—Mr. AYRTON moved the adjournment of the debate.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he could not consent to a Select Committee, who would consider the whole question of friendly societies, but he had no objection to a Committee to consider the clauses in the usual way.—Lord STANLEY approved of the compromise offered by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The debate was then adjourned. Mr. Stansfeld and Mazzini.—On the motion for going into Committee of Supply, Sir H. STRACEY moved—"That the statement of the Procureur-Général on the trial of Greco, implicating a member of this House and of her Majesty's Government in the plot for the assassination of our ally the Emperor of the French, deserves the serious consideration of this House." He said that he was not influenced by any personal feeling against Mr. Stansfeld, but his antecedents in connection with the Tibaldi and Orsini schemes of 1857 and 1858 were not such as to justify him in treating the allegation of the Procureur-Général with indignant defiance. He did not believe that the conduct of the Government in reference to this matter was either English-like or straightforward.—Mr. STANSFELD said that he now for the first time learned that his name had been associated with the revolutionary designs of Tibaldi or Orsini. He denied that he had ever acted as treasurer with reference to these designs, as no fund whatever had been collected. He admitted that he had allowed his name to be inscribed on bank notes, which he believed would have been used, not in the interests of assassins, but to aid in the establishment of a free and united Italy; but, acting on the advice of friends, he had withdrawn his name from those documents. He also admitted that, in common with other English friends of M. Mazzini, he had allowed that gentleman to have his letters directed to his private residence under the designation of "M. Fuori." M. Mazzini had, however, taken steps to prevent any more of such letters coming to his house.—Lord H. VANE considered that the statement of Mr. Stansfeld was scarcely as satisfactory as it might have been, and that his conduct had been very indiscreet.—Lord H. LENNOX said that nothing but the strong hand of the Emperor had prevented an ebullition in France on this subject, which might endanger the friendly relations of the two countries.—Mr. P. TAYLOR owned that he, too, had placed his address at the disposal of Signor Mazzini, and expressed his regret that the House of Commons had been made the vehicle of the miserable calumnies of a reactionary party.—Sir J. PAKINGTON thought some explanation was due to the Government of France, and asked Lord Palmerston whether he had already offered any, or intended to offer any.—Lord PALMERSTON expressed his opinion that the explanation of Mr. Stansfeld was perfectly satisfactory, and said the Government had not made any communication on the subject to the Government of France, because they considered it would be humiliating for them to take cognisance of what had passed in a court of justice in that country. Mr. Stansfeld had utterly denied all knowledge of the revolutionary schemes of Italian refugees, and he considered the House of Commons ought to be satisfied with his disclaimer.—Mr. DISRAELI denounced the reply of Lord Palmerston as unworthy of the Minister of a great country towards a friendly Power, and called upon the House to vindicate its own honour by passing the resolution of Sir H. Stracey.—Mr. BRIGHT protested against the conduct of the Opposition as unworthy of a great party in trying to make their way to office over the character, happiness, and future of the youngest member of the Government.—Lord R. CECIL was of opinion that the House ought to express its sense of the culpable imprudence of Mr. Stansfeld.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER appealed to the candour of the House to place confidence in the unimpeached honour and integrity of one of its own members. After a few words from Lord CLAUD HAMILTON and Mr. COX the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 171 to 161.—At the instance of Lord PALMERSTON, Mr. B. OSBORNE consented to postpone his motion on the affairs of Denmark until after Easter.

FRIDAY.—The Danish Duchies.—In answer to Mr. OSBORNE, Lord PALMERSTON said he had no certain knowledge that the Estates of the Duchies would be assembled. At present it was doubtful whether there was any authority to assemble them. The Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mr. Sheridan.—Sir J. HAY moved a resolution, expressing the regret of the House that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had not considered it his duty, after the explanation given on the previous night, to withdraw the imputations he had cast upon the member for Dudley.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said he was prepared to reaffirm the whole of his statements. He was also willing to have the whole matter referred to a select committee, and if that committee reported against him, he should be willing that his voice should never be heard again in that House.—Mr. SHERIDAN disclaimed any fraudulent practices in connection with the companies referred to, and denied altogether being responsible for them.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said that if he had unjustly attacked the hon. member for Dudley, and had given him pain, he was sorry for it.—Sir J. HAY said that he had only brought on the question on public grounds, and withdrew his motion. The Easter Holidays.—Lord PALMERSTON moved that the House at its rising do adjourn to Monday, April 4th.—Mr. FERRAND called attention to the Accidents from Reservoirs.

THE BISHOP OF LONDON'S FUND.—The following letter has been written to the Bishop of London by command of her Majesty the Queen:—

"Windsor Castle, March 7, 1864.

"My dear Bishop of London.—I have had the honour to lay before her Majesty the Queen your letter of the 5th inst., together with the accompanying papers. I have received the commands of her Majesty to assure you, in reply, of the deep interest which the Queen takes in the good work which you have undertaken. Under any circumstances her Majesty would have felt it to be her duty to give her support and assistance to a plan for remedying the evils which your Lordship has described, but the Queen feels a double satisfaction in contributing towards measures which, under your Lordship's control, her Majesty feels sure will be carried out with efficiency and with discretion. Her Majesty has commanded me to inform you that it is her Majesty's intention to contribute to the Fund called 'The Bishop of London's Fund,' for its general purposes, one thousand pounds annually for the next three years, making a sum total of three thousand pounds. Believe me, my dear Bishop of London, very faithfully yours, C. B. PHIPPS."

The Prince of Wales has also intimated his intention to contribute one thousand pounds to the general purposes of the Fund.

FATAL BOILER EXPLOSION IN SPITALFIELDS.—On Friday a fatal boiler explosion took place at the saw mills of Mr. W. Saunders, in Slater Street, Ka... Street. Mr. Robert Saunders, brother of the proprietor, was killed on the spot, and several of the workmen were so dangerously wounded that it was necessary to remove them to the hospital. The boiler itself, which was connected with an engine for driving a saw and turning mill, was lifted up on one end with the... blown out; but all around it, as well as the houses in the neighbourhood, were reduced to ruins. The body of Mr. Robert Saunders was found under some rubbish near the boiler. The wounded men can give no account of the accident.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths registered in London in the week that ended on Saturday, March... were 1664. The average number for the corresponding week of the 10 years 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1449. The present return is therefore 215 above the average. During the week the births were 1013 boys and 949 girls, in all 1962 children, were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 1878.

Provincial.

SHEFFIELD.—At a little before midnight on Friday this town was the scene of one of those terrific disasters to which nearly all the great towns in the north of England are more or less exposed, resembling in many of its details the fatal accident which occurred a few years ago at Holmfirth, though far surpassing it in the extent of its destruction. The great reservoir of the Sheffield Water Company at Bradfield, covering an area of 76 acres, and containing 114 million cubic feet of water, the estimated pressure of which was not less than 80,000 tons, suddenly burst its embankment, which was 85 feet high, 40 feet thick, and 300 yards long, and swept with the fury of some Deluge down the narrow gorge formed by the Loxley and Stannington Hills into Sheffield itself. Almost before warning could be given the volume of water began rushing headlong down the valley, sweeping farms and houses, forges and factories, like chaff before it. Never, probably, before has an accident of the same kind occurred so ruinous in its wholesale destruction of property, so lamentably fatal in the loss of human life. Whatever the sudden and tremendous flood may reach it seems to have destroyed, and, calculating by the number of houses swept away, and those reported missing who were known to have been in them on the fatal night, there is every reason to fear that the lives sacrificed by this awful calamity will exceed 250. As to the damage done to property it is impossible at this early date to form an accurate estimate, but it is conjectured the amount will exceed half a million. The devastation in this respect is unparalleled. A large, populous, and thriving district has been almost obliterated from the earth, scarcely more than traces of the houses and factories that once stood there now remaining. Between Malin Bridge and Hillsborough, a distance of four miles, the greatest loss of life occurred. Within that tract whole rows of houses were swept entirely away with all the inhabitants, and scarcely any of their bodies have been discovered. The flood seeems to have swept off everything before it for nearly 14 miles, from the confluence of the Loxley and the Revilin to the Don. Between Wardsend and Sheffield, the bodies were seen lying in the mills and the mud and rubbish. At Neepsend 900 acres of gardens were devastated, and whole families swept away. The latest official report states that 258 persons were missing, of whom the bodies of 178 had been recovered and identified. Large numbers therefore are not yet found. Bodies have been discovered as far down the river as Rotherham and Doncaster. Along the banks of the river, between that town and Sheffield, the scene of the inundation was visited by vast crowds on Sunday, and it was necessary to call out the police and a strong military guard for the maintenance of order and the security of property. The inhabitants of the submerged districts have lost everything, and hundreds have nothing left of their property but their night-dresses. The inquests were opened on Saturday night, and then adjourned for 10 days. There were then 90 bodies in the workhouse. A public meeting for the purpose of affording immediate relief to the sufferers was held on Tuesday under the presidency of the Mayor, at which Earl Fitzwilliam and Lord Wharncliffe were present. A subscription was immediately opened, to which Lord Fitzwilliam contributed 1000*l.*; the trustees of the Duke of Norfolk, 1000*l.*; the Town trustees, 500*l.*; Mr. Hadfield, M.P., 500*l.*; Lord Wharncliffe, 200*l.*; the Mayor, Mr. Jessop, 200*l.*; his firm, 200*l.*; eight other firms, 100*l.* each; three other firms, 100*l.* each; the Sheffield Railway Company, 250*l.*; Mr. Joseph Gillott, Birmingham, 100*l.*; Earl de Grey and Ripon, 50*l.*; the Archbishop of York, 50*l.*; the Right Hon. J. Stuart Wortley, 25*l.*, and other amounts raising the total to over 16,000*l.* During the meeting Mr. Roebuck telegraphed that the Prince of Wales will head the subscription, and the Corporation of the City of London have since voted 500*l.* in aid of the fund. Cartloads of provisions have been sent into the town during the week for the relief of the sufferers from all quarters of Hallamshire. A meeting of the owners of property damaged by the flood was held on Tuesday, at which it was resolved to take united action against the water company. A clause in the Company's Act, passed the year after the Holmfirth flood, specifically fixes upon them the damage caused by the failure or giving way of embankments or reservoirs on any of their works. If the damage should amount to the estimated sum of half a million, as stated above, the amount will be more than the capital of the company. On Monday Sir G. Grey sent down Mr. Rawlinson, C.E., to assist the authorities professionally in investigating the cause of the catastrophe. The embankment is said to have shown signs of cracking for some days previously, and the workmen had made such representations of its insecurity that Mr. Gunson, the resident engineer, and Mr. Craven, the contractor, had been sent for, and measures had actually been taken to let off the water, and so reduce the pressure when the embankment gave way.

Markets.

COVENT GARDEN, March 19.

Vegetables and Fruit in season continue to be pretty well kept up. New Hothouse Grapes may now be obtained, and Apples, though scarce, may still be had; there are likewise a few dessert Pears. Oranges are very plentiful; the best are realising from 6s. to 10s. per 100. Cornish Broccoli is getting scarcer. Continental arrivals are heavy; among them are French Lettuces, Endive, Carrots, and Radishes. Flowers chiefly consist of Tulips, Hyacinths, Orchids, Heaths, Pelargoniums, Primroses, Mignonette, and Roses.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, March 14.

The supply of Beasts is about the same as of late; trade is slow, but there is no alteration in prices. Sheep are rather more plentiful, and the demand moderate. Trade is consequently very dull, and prices on the average are lower, but there is scarcely a quotable reduction. Calves are very scarce to-day, and a large advance in price is realised. From Germany and Holland there are 760 Beasts, 740 Sheep, and 68 Calves; from Scotland, 280 Beasts; from Ireland, 130; and 2730 from Norfolk and Suffolk.

THURSDAY, March 17.

The supply of Beasts is larger than on Thursday last. The weather is favourable, yet trade is dull, and prices are no better than on Monday. Good Sheep are by no means plentiful; there is a demand for them at fully late rates, but inferior qualities meet with a very dull sale. Choice Lambs are in request, at about 7s. per 8 lbs. Good Calves are scarce and dear. Our foreign supply consists of 440 Beasts, 530 Sheep, and 205 Calves. Milch Cows, 95.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, March 14.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and taken slowly at last week's prices; business in foreign from the stands continues to be of a very retail character, and prices remain nominally the same. Barley brings last week's quotations. Beans and Peas sell slowly at late rates. The Oat trade is very heavy, and to effect sales it is necessary to submit to a decline of 6d. to 1s. per qr. Flour is unaltered in value.

FRIDAY, March 18

The weather since the 11th inst. has been fine, with the exception of some showers on the 14th and 15th, the latter and last nights were frosty. The Wheat trade during the above period has continued to be very inanimate, but the quotations in the several markets of the kingdom remain unaltered. Business in Barley has been limited, and in some markets it is written rather cheaper. Beans and Peas have been a slow sale, but prices have not changed. Oats have been sold here at a decline of 6d. and 1s. per qr. Flour has met with little attention, and former prices are nominally unaltered. Since Friday last 15 vessels have been reported off the coast. The floating trade has remained quiet; Wheat cargoes off the coast are held for fully late rates, which buyers decline to pay; for future shipment, however, a good business has been done at previous prices. Maize is dull, and 1s. per qr. lower. Paris, March 17.—Business is very slow as well for Wheat as for Flour, but no further decline in prices has been submitted to. The present stock of Flour has increased to about 17,800 cwt. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 32s. 6d. per 280 lbs. The arrivals of English and foreign Wheat and foreign Barley this week have been small, of foreign Oats moderate, of English and Irish very large. The attendance at to-day's market was small. English Wheat was difficult of sale at Monday's prices, and a portion remained unsold at the close; Foreign met with very little attention, and we do not alter our quotations. Barley, Beans, and Peas were unaltered in value. With large arrivals of Oats the trade was very heavy, and to effect sales it was necessary to submit to a decline of 6d. per qr.

TESTIMONIALS of CUPISS'S CONSTITUTION BALLS, for HORSES and NEAT CATTLE.

Hawking Down House, Wiltshire,
To Mr. F. CUPISS, May 4, 1860.

SIR,—In answer to yours of the 1st, I beg to say you are quite at liberty to publish my opinion of your Constitution Balls, which I very much approve of for getting Horses into fine condition. They are also good for Sheep, especially Lambs when they are in a pining state, by making them into pills about the size of a nut, and giving two or three occasionally; the animal soon becomes strong and healthy.—I remain, yours respectfully, MORALITY RAWLINGS.

Mains of Arisay, Fortwilliam, N.B., Oct. 26, 1860.

SIR,—I have given your Constitution Balls to Horses and Cattle for the last four years, and have always been satisfied with their effect. I consider it a boon to any one keeping Stock to be able to get Balls so good and so sure in their effect.—I remain, yours obediently, JOHN CARTER.

From Capt. H. BURTON, Grange Farm, Rock Ferry, Cheshire.

From Mr. PRATT, King's Arms Hotel, Lancaster.

"I have found the Constitutional Balls most valuable for horses when taken up from Grass, and very beneficial to give them occasionally to horses when turned out."

The Balls are prepared by FRANCIS CUPISS, Diss, Norfolk, Author of the Prize Essay of the Diseases of the Liver of the Horse. And may be had of all Patent Medicine Vendors, in Packets of 3 Balls, 1*s.* 9*d.*; and 6 Balls, 3*s.* 6*d.*: or 4 small Packets, 10*s.* 6*d.*; or 7 large Packets, 21*s.*; with full directions.

Persons using the Balls may consult the Proprietor gratuitously by enclosing a Stamp in a prepaid letter.

CUCUMBER and MELON FRAMES, of an improved make to take apart.

The above are constructed in the best manner as regards ventilation and strength; warranted of good materials. Glass 21 oz. to the square foot.

DENNIS'S PATENT METALLIC HORTICULTURAL BUILDINGS are made from the best Wrought Iron, upon an entirely new principle. The combination of Iron and Glass under this patent is perfect, the possibility of fracture is prevented, and a permanently Water-tight Roof insured.

The leading practical advantages are extreme smallness of Framing, admitting a maximum of light and heat, great strength, durability, and perfect ventilation. They are speedily erected, partake of more desirable outline, and do not exceed the cost of a perishable wooden structure.

For Prospectus, &c., address T. H. P DENNIS, Horticultural Builder, Hot-Water Engineer, &c., High St. Chelmsford, Essex.

In again submitting their LAWN MOWERS to the notice of purchasers, Messrs. SAMUELSON & Co. wish to state that they do not make annual changes in the principle of their LAWN MOWERS. Experience has fully proved that the general design on which their MACHINES have been built for many years past is the best, and their attention has been given therefore rather to substantial improvements in manufacture, reduction of the draught, and increase of durability by the use of malleable iron in place of cast metal, than to the production of ephemeral novelties. Their MACHINES are superior to all others for lightness of draught, elegance, and efficiency under all circumstances of ground and weather, being self-cleaning, and not liable to derangement in the gearing. LAWN MACHINE AS AT WORK, MOWING, ETC.

SHAW'S PATENT FLEXIBLE LAWN MACHINES, for MOWING, ROLLING, and COLLECTING at the same time. With Boyd's Patent Self-cleaning and Sharpening Brush.

IS THE ONLY ONE of which the Cutters are SELF-REGULATING, and free to follow all inequalities of ground, with the certainty of leaving a perfectly uniform length of Grass.

IS THE ONLY ONE in which the Pushing Handles are SELF-ADAPTING to any height and convenience of workman, without varying the height of Cutters.

IS THE ONLY ONE which can be used as A ROLLER ONLY, without risk of injury to the Cutters.

Is fitted with BOYD'S well-known Patent SELF-CLEANING and SHARPENING BRUSH, which keeps the Cutters effective, whether the Grass be wet or dry.

Packs away, when done with, in less than ONE HALF THE SPACE of any other Mower, and is therefore safer from injury.

READ'S HYDRAULIC SUCTION PUMP.

Extract from the "GARDENERS' CHRONICLE," edited by Professor LINDLEY.

"Few things are of more importance in Gardening than good SYRINGES and GARDEN ENGINES. We have seen and had experience of many, but we presume it would be difficult to find more efficient Instruments than those made by Mr. READ, of Regent Circus."

Extract from the "GARDENERS' MAGAZINE," edited by SHIRLEY HIBBERD, Esq.

"We cannot speak too highly of the excellence of these. There may be found Engines of similar make at lower prices, but considering the character READ'S Instruments bear for excellence of material and workmanship, we should prefer to pay Read's price—and be SURE OF VALUE FOR MONEY."

The above PATENT HAND PUMP is fitted with Suction and Discharge Tubes, for Drawing Water from a Tank, Pail, or Pond, with Roses, &c., complete, Price 1*l.* 15*s.* and Two Guineas; larger Sizes, 2½ Guineas.

Also GARDEN ENGINES, MACHINES, and SYRINGES of every description upon the most improved principle.

THE PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASES

SOLE MANUFACTURER,

JAMES GRAY, HORTICULTURAL WORKS,

DANVERS STREET, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

The PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASE is one of the most useful of the Gardening novelties of the day. It is a handsome ornament for the Drawing Room or Sitting Room, and at all times forms a fresh, pleasant, and interesting object to the mind and eye. It is always under command, and will preserve many of the most tender Exotic Plants through the severest winter with comparatively little of the trouble and annoyance attending the use of Lamps, Gas, and Heating appliances of any other kind.

To all who have a taste for the cultivation of In-door Plants, for raising Seedlings, striking Cuttings, &c the Plant Cases will be found an inestimable boon.

INGRAM'S IMPROVED STRAWBERRY HOUSE.

THIS HOUSE is specially adapted for FORCING STRAWBERRIES, possessing as it does, every qualification essential for the perfect cultivation of this highly important fruit. The special advantages of the invention may be enumerated as follows:—The HOUSE is constructed upon the CAST IRON BRACKET PRINCIPLE, and requires no permanent fixing; is easily removed, and can be adjusted to any existing wall. It admits an abundance of light and fresh air to the plant, while imparting shade and moisture to the pot. Each plant has the benefit of being placed close to the glass, while a considerable saving of labour is effected by the small amount of attention required compared with the old system.

It will also be invaluable for the Summer Culture of Plants requiring similar treatment. This HOUSE being only adapted for walls, it is our intention immediately to extend the same principle to ground culture. See future Advertisement.

The Prize Essay on
By THOMAS BOWICK, Britannia Farms, Bedford (late Stoneleigh Abbey Farm).

By special permission of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a reprint from their Journal of the above Essay is now before the public, by Messrs. DAY, SON, & HEWITT, 22, Dorset Street, Baker Street, London. Price, by post, Three Stamps, or Five Copies for Twelve Stamps. This celebrated Essay should be in the hands of all Breeders, from the large Dairy Farmer down to the Cottager with his One Cow.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Bowick's Essay, in a concise way, goes into the question of the construction of the Calf-house, the condition of the Cow before Calving, the best season for Calving, the Feeding of Calves, the Quantity of Milk and other food, the Health and Disease of the Young Calf, the Spring and Summer Feeding, &c. We recommend the perusal of the Essay to those who are employed in rearing calves."—Mark Lane Express, November 1863.

"It is a cheap tract, well written, on a matter of great practical importance, and is certain to receive a wide circulation."—Agricultural Gazette, November 1863.

"The Essay will be very acceptable to farmers in general and a better two-penn'worth it would be impossible to recommend. It ought to be sown broadcast over England; and no farmer, bailiff, or servant in husbandry should be without it."—Worcester Herald, 2d January, 1864.

THE RIVER AMAZONS; a Record of Adventures, with Sketches of Brazilian and Indian Life, during Eleven Years of Travel. By HENRY WALTER BATES.

"We have never seen a more graceful record of strange, out-of-the-world experience. It imparts the fascination which the great river exercised on the writer himself, and makes the reader his absorbed companion to the end."—Times.

"Replete with interest and novelty from the beginning t the end."—British Quarterly.

"A mine of Natural History wealth."—Zoologist

"Mr. Bates belongs to the small class of men who deserve the earnest gratitude not only of their own country, but of the civilised world."—Spectator.

"The keenness of Mr. Bates's powers of observation appears to rival even that of the great Humboldt."—Popular Science Review.

"We hail Mr. Bates as a worthy naturalist traveller."—Journal of Sciences.

"Mr. Bates opens up to us a new, wild, and beautiful world and we close the book with a feeling of regret akin to that with which the traveller himself sailed out of the mouth of the mighty river."—Guardian.

"Mr. Bates's is one of the most important works of its kind that has appeared."—Annals and Mag. of Nat. History.

Fergusson's Modern Architecture.
Now Ready, with 312 Illustrations, One Vol. 8vo, 31s. 6d.,

A HISTORY of the MODERN STYLES of ARCHITECTURE. By JAMES FERGUSSON, F.R.S.

"This volume forms one of the best comprehensive accounts of architecture extant in any language. The conciseness, yet clearness of the style, shows the author to be thoroughly master of his subject, and the portable size of the volume, together with the excellence and number of the illustrations, make it a book which must find a place on the shelves of every architect's library."—Civil Engineer and Architect's Journal.

"A volume which those who have travelled, and to whom the greater part of the buildings cited are well known, will appreciate as a convenient hand-book for reference, either to refresh their memories, or for the purpose of comparison, and one which will be even more valuable to those who have never wandered from home, and who find here a conveniently accessible storehouse of information."—Christian Remembrancer.

"Mr. Fergusson has now completed the 'History of Architecture' of which he published two volumes some three or four years back. The present volume is, nevertheless, a distinct work, because it is confined exclusively to the architecture of the last three centuries; and it is no less novel than distinct, for, practically speaking, we may affirm that no one previously has treated of modern architecture as a whole, or has attempted to criticise its miscellaneous example from a comprehensive point of view."—Times.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes Works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.
22 Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

LAND DRAINAGE.—WORKS of DRAINAGE of any extent are EXECUTED by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY, on all descriptions of property, whether freehold, entailed, mortgaged, trust, ecclesiastical, corporate, or collegiate.

Repayment may be made by the Landowner as successive portions of the Works are completed, or the outlay and expenses may be charged on the estate by way of rent charge created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants.

No investigation of title being required, or notices given to reversioners or mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.

Works of irrigation, enclosing, wood grubbing, road-making, and farm buildings are executed in a similar manner.

Landowners desirous to execute any of the improvements by their own agents, and charge the outlay and expenses on the Estate, may obtain loans for the purpose.

Applications to be made to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.
To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

News of the Week.

BOTH Houses of Parliament adjourned on Friday for the Easter holidays; the Lords to the 5th, and the Commons to the 4th of April.

From the seat of war in the North we learn that the bombardment of Fredericia commenced at an early hour on Sunday morning, and was continued without intermission until Monday. The town was set on fire in several places, and some of the Danish guns were dismounted; but when summoned to surrender the commandant of the fortress refused, and the Germans have since withdrawn out of range, abandoning their positions before the town. The siege of Düppel, which has been going on simultaneously with that of Fredericia, was renewed on Saturday with great vigour. Some of the Danish positions were taken after a desperate resistance, but no effect has yet been produced on the fortress itself. The Danish Rigsdag was closed on Tuesday by a speech from the Throne. HIS MAJESTY said that he was still alone, and did not know how long Europe would look on with indifference upon the acts of violence perpetrated against Denmark; but he would tell her enemies that while he was ready to do anything that might serve to obtain peace, the period was still distant when he would submit to a humiliating peace. HIS MAJESTY afterwards left Copenhagen, accompanied by the Minister of War, to join the army.

A despatch from Vienna states that the Conference has been accepted by Austria and Prussia without any detailed basis or an armistice, and that the two Powers have agreed to maintain the territorial integrity of the Danish monarchy under the present dynasty.

The Italian papers announce that GARIBALDI embarked from Caprera on Monday on his way to England. He is expected to arrive at Southampton on Tuesday next, and after a short stay in the Isle of Wight will come to London, where the working classes intend to give him a public reception.

By the India Mail we learn that Sir HUGH ROSE has tendered his resignation as Commander-in-Chief, and will probably be succeeded by Sir ROBERT NAPIER. The affairs of Cabul are in a very unsettled state; and some of the frontier chiefs are preparing for renewed hostilities in the spring.

The news from the United States, after a long interval of inaction, has again assumed an exciting character. The army of the Potomac, under General MEADE, has failed in an attempt to interrupt General LEE's communications with Richmond and to release the Federal prisoners in that city; while the army under General SHERMAN has been driven back to Vicksburg, under circumstances which leave no doubt that he has suffered heavy loss, and has been severely harassed by the Confederate cavalry during his retreat. The Florida expedition has also failed, and it is thought that the defences of Mobile will be found too strong for Admiral FARRAGUT'S force. General GRANT has been invested with the supreme direction of military affairs, with the rank of Lieutenant-General, and after visiting the army of the Potomac has suddenly left Washington for Vicksburg, to ascertain, it is supposed, the exact position of General SHERMAN'S forces. The House of Representatives has passed the Loan Bill, and the Senate has amended the Gold Bill authorising Secretary CHASE to sell the surplus gold in the Treasury. The Judge of the Court of Appeals at St. John's has delivered judgment, releasing the Chesapeake pirates.

Home News.

THE COURT.—The Queen, with the King of the Belgians, and the Royal family, continue at Windsor Castle. On Friday, being the 16th birthday of the Princess Louisa, the event was celebrated in the customary manner at Windsor and London. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds. Princess Amelia and Princess Clotilde of Saxe Coburg and Prince John of Glücksburg visited the Queen and remained to luncheon. In the evening the Princess Louisa came to town and attended the performance at the Princess's Theatre, returning afterwards to Windsor. On Saturday morning Prince Arthur left the Castle for Greenwich Park. Prince Leopold accompanied his Royal Highness, and will remain with him on a visit for a few days. The Queen, accompanied by the Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds. Princess Beatrice took a carriage drive. Princess Helena came to London, and was present at the Drawing Room held by the Princess of Wales. The Judge-Advocate-General had an audience of the Queen. The Duke of Somerset and the Bishop of London arrived at the Castle. The Duke of Somerset had an audience of the Queen. On Sunday morning the Queen, the King of the Belgians, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Princess Beatrice, attended Divine service in the Private Chapel. The Bishop of London preached the sermon, and dined with her Majesty in the evening. On Monday morning the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds. In the afternoon the Queen drove out in a carriage-and-four. Her Majesty visited the Windsor Union Poor-house, and inspected the establishment. The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and Viscount Sydney arrived on a visit to her Majesty. On Tuesday morning the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz left the Castle for London. Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston arrived on a visit. Lord Palmerston had an audience of the Queen. On Wednesday morning the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds. Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold arrived from Greenwich Park. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess of Wales arrived from London. In the evening the Queen had a dinner party. On Thursday morning the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, drove in the grounds. In the afternoon the Royal charities associated with Maunday Thursday were distributed to 45 aged men and 45 aged women in Whitehall Chapel, with the customary ceremonials, the number of each sex corresponding with the age of her Majesty. According to present arrangements her Majesty and the Royal family will remain at Windsor till about the 21st of April, when the Queen will remove to Osborne for about three weeks, and afterwards return to Windsor for a short period. Her Majesty will then proceed to Balmoral.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.—On Friday morning the Prince rode on horseback. The Princess drove out and visited Westminster Abbey. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess went to the South Kensington Museum and visited the Mulready collection. In the evening the Prince, with Prince John of Glücksburg, went to the Royal Institution to hear a lecture by Professor Tyndall. On Saturday morning the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, and their suite, embarked in a steamer at Pimlico, and witnessed the Oxford and Cambridge boat race. In the afternoon the Princess held a Drawing Room on behalf of Her Majesty, at St. James's Palace. The Prince afterwards went out riding. The Princess took a drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, with Prince John of Glücksburg, dined with the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House. On Sunday morning the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Prince John of Glücksburg, attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James. The Archbishop of Canterbury preached the sermon. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, drove to Richmond Park. On Monday morning the Prince rode on horseback, and visited the Duchess of Hamilton. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, took a carriage drive. In the evening their Royal Highnesses had a dinner party. On Tuesday morning the Prince rode on horseback. In the afternoon the Princess took a carriage drive. In the evening Prince John of Glücksburg took leave of their Royal Highnesses, and left Marlborough House for the Continent by the South-Eastern Railway. The Prince of Wales accompanied his Highness to the Railway station. On Wednesday morning the Prince rode out. The Princess of Wales took a carriage drive. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor, left Marlborough House, and proceeded by the Great Western Railway to Windsor Castle on a visit to the Queen.

DEPARTURE OF PRINCE JOHN OF GLÜCKSBURG.—Prince John, the youngest brother of the King of Denmark, who arrived in London on the 8th inst. to act as sponsor for the King of Denmark at the christening of Prince Albert Victor, left Marlborough House on Tuesday evening for the London Bridge Station, and travelled by the South Eastern mail train to Dover, where he embarked on Wednesday for Calais, on his way to Brussels.

PRINCE ALFRED is expected to take his departure from Holyrood on or about the 9th of April. On Friday his Royal Highness paid a visit to the Earl of Dunmore at Dunmore Park, Stirlingshire, where a large company was invited to meet him, and a grand ball was given in the evening. The Prince returned to Holyrood on Monday. On Wednesday his Royal Highness visited the General Register Office. On Thursday the Prince left Edinburgh for Floors Castle to pay another visit to the Duke and Duchess of Roxburgh. During his residence in Holyrood his Royal Highness has received invitations from nearly all the leading nobility and gentry in the south of Scotland, and has been present at several balls in the Edinburgh Assembly Rooms. He has also visited nearly all the literary and scientific societies of the Scottish metropolis, and shown great interest in its exhibitions of art.

The Cabinet.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday afternoon at the private residence of Earl Russell, in Chesham Place.

Illness of the Duke of Newcastle.—The Duke of Newcastle was taken suddenly ill on Saturday morning, but his Grace was rather better on Sunday, and is said to be in a fair way towards recovery.

Parliamentary Movements.—Colonel Stronge was elected for the county of Armagh on Wednesday without opposition, in the room of Mr. Close, retired.

Confirmation of the Bishop of Ely.—The ceremony of confirming the election of Dr. Harold Browne to the Bishopric of Ely took place on Saturday in the church of St. Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside. The consecration will take place in Westminster Abbey on Tuesday next.

The Late Judgment on Essays and Reviews.—The Archbishop of Canterbury has addressed a pastoral letter to the clergy of his diocese, setting forth at great length his views of the late decision of the Privy Council. His Grace states that he dissented from the judgment of his colleagues in the Council on the doctrine of inspiration, and that while he will not undertake to define inspiration, he accepts the testimony of the Church that the "Bible is God's Word written," and that therefore Dr. Williams must be wrong in saying that it is only the voice of devout reason in the congregation. As to his acquiescence in the judgment on the point of eternal punishment, he says it arose from no doubt in his own mind that the Church teaches the eternity both of reward and punishment, but that from the obscure terms in which Mr. Wilson had expressed his views he doubted whether they have the meaning which the prosecutors attached to them. Some doubts having arisen as to the legality of the Oxford declaration as impugning the Queen's supremacy, the Committee have submitted a case to the Attorney-General and Sir Hugh Cairns, who have given a joint opinion on this subject. They state that the judgment of the Queen is confined to a reversal of the decision of the Court below, and that the reasons given for that reversal are only the reasons of the members of the Privy Council, which neither law nor constitution has rendered exempt from criticism.

The Volunteer Review.—The arrangements for the Volunteer Review at Farley Heath, near Guildford, on Easter Monday, are now completed. Lieut.-General Sir J. L. Pennefather will command in chief, and Major-General Russell, C.B., and Major-General Rumley will each have charge of a division. There are to be eight brigades, under the following brigadiers:—Lord Colville, Lord Ranelagh, Lord Elcho, Earl Grosvenor, Lord Radstock, Lord Bury, Lieut.-Colonel Bigge, and Lieut.-Colonel Loyd Lindsay. One division of the artillery force will be commanded by Colonel Gambier, C.B., and the other by Colonel Buchanan. It is calculated that at least 15,000 men will take part in the proceedings, and that the evolutions of the troops will be supported by 24 pieces of artillery, and by two squadrons of cavalry. The Chilworth station of the South-Eastern is nearest to Farley Heath, being only about 10 minutes' walk from the spot where the review is to take place. Shalford Station, also on the South-Eastern line, is about a mile and a half from the Heath. The Guildford station, which can be reached by the South-Western line from Waterloo as well as by the South-Eastern, is about three miles from the Heath. The Volunteers leaving London by the South-Eastern will be conveyed from London Bridge station, and the general public will be conveyed from the new station at Charing Cross, as well as from London Bridge

Foreign.

France.—The Paris correspondent of the Times states that he has "reason to know that the Emperor has been greatly touched by the manifestation of public feeling in England, both in the press and the Parliament, on the Mazzini affair. He has read with much interest the whole of the debates, as well as the articles in the leading journals, on the painful question lately before the House, and feels gratified that his sentiments and his conduct towards England have been so cordially acknowledged." A rumour was current on Saturday at the Bourse that another plot had been discovered against the Emperor's life among the servants at the Tuileries, and that 50 of them had been arrested. Several foreign papers having given "all the particulars" of this absurd story, the Moniteur of Monday officially states that the rumour is entirely unfounded. The election of a deputy in the first circonscription of Paris has terminated in the return of M. Carnot, the Opposition candidate, who obtained 13,554 votes, while M. Pinard obtained 5979, and M. Laboulay 704. In the fifth circonscription M. Garnier Pagés, the Opposition candidate, was also elected, having obtained 13,185 votes, while M. Levi obtained 5381, M. Bac 350, and M. Tolain 380. A debate took place in the Senate last week of no ordinary interest both in and out of France. A petition had been presented praying the Legislature to prevent the publication of works calculated to affect the faith of Christians, such as M. Renan's "Vie de Jésus." This petition, which was an endeavour to establish a sort of Roman "Index" in France, was referred to a committee, and their report was the subject of debate on Friday and Saturday. The Church party, represented by Cardinal de Bonnechose, called for the interference of the Government to prevent the deplorable effects of cheap books of a frivolous, mischievous, or irreligious character; while M. Langlais, the Government Commissioner, though censuring the publications referred to, recommended that the Chamber should adopt the proposal of the Committee to pass to the order of the day. This course was finally adopted by a large majority. The Moniteur of Tuesday, again referring to the affair of Cardinal Bonald, says:—

"Upon the 11th of March Cardinal Bonald addressed a letter to the clergy of his diocese, stating that the Moniteur had been misled by false information, and that he had only learnt the pretended dissatisfaction of the Pope from that journal. We reply that the information in the Moniteur was official. Explanations were requested by the French Ambassador on the 23d of February, and were given the same day by Cardinal Antonelli. It was not, however, until the 9th of March that the latter conveyed the expression of His Holiness's censure of the indiscreet publication by Cardinal Bonald."

A great trial has been pending for some days at Aix, in Provence, in which M. Armand-Maurice Roux was charged with having attempted to murder his manservant. The Procureur-Général, during the trial, reduced the charge to blows given and wounds inflicted with premeditation, but without intent to kill. M. Lachaud defended the prisoner with great effect. The jury yesterday acquitted M. Armand, and the plaintiff has in consequence commenced a civil action against him for 50,000fr. damages.

Spain.—The Madrid journals of Tuesday state that it is calculated that the Ministry will obtain a majority of 100 votes for their Bill to abolish the reforms of the Constitution of 1845, introduced in 1857. The adoption of the Ministerial proposition would involve the abolition of an hereditary Senate. In the Senate on Wednesday the Bill abolishing constitutional reform was passed by a vote of 90 to 7. The Spanish journals deny the rumour that the question of a recognition of the kingdom of Italy by Spain had been discussed at a Cabinet Council. The Epoca states that some foreign capitalists had an audience with the Minister of Finance on Tuesday for the purpose of negotiating an advance to the Spanish Treasury.

Portugal.—The Government has forwarded a notification to the Austrian Minister that Austrian vessels of war with Danish prizes must sail immediately, their remaining in port being illegal. The Ministers experience great opposition respecting the sale of the Vendas Novas Railway to an English company.

Sweden.—Advices from Stockholm to the 15th state that fresh disturbances have taken place in that city. The police-office was attacked, and the windows in the residence of the chief of the police were destroyed. The military were called out to quell the riot, and 11 persons were arrested. The Dagblad insists upon more energetic measures being taken by the Government in favour of Denmark. The French Ambassador has left for Christiania.

Denmark.—The Rigsdag was closed on Tuesday. The principal passages of the Speech from the Throne were the following:—

"We are still alone, and do not know how long Europe will look with indifference upon the acts of violence perpetrated against us. We are ready to do everything that may serve to obtain peace; but the enemy must know that the period is still distant when we shall be compelled to submit to a humiliating peace. This is the King's farewell to you."

His Majesty, accompanied by the Minister of War, left Copenhagen for the army on the same day. On his arrival at Sönderborg in the evening his Majesty immediately visited the troops stationed there, and returned at night to Hörup. The Dagblad violently attacks the Ministry on account of its accession to the proposed Conference. The Berlingske Tidende in a semi-official article, says:—

"The Government has not acceded to an armistice, since the surrender of Düppel could not be entertained; and to make the present position of affairs the basis for a suspension of hostilities is equally impossible."

The Danish Government has directed the release of the Hanoverian ships under embargo in Danish ports.

The Danish Duchies.—On Saturday a reconnaissance was made against Fredericia. The Crown Prince, Prince Albrecht, and the Prince of Hohenzollern were on the field. The Danish outposts of the intrenched encampment were driven into the fortress. During the reconnaissance sites were selected for the erection of batteries. A sharp fire was kept up by the Danes from the fortress and gunboats. Captains Studnitz and Bülow were wounded, the latter only slightly. The other casualties were two killed and 10 wounded. The Austrian loss was small. The batteries before Fredericia were finished and armed during the night between the 19th and 20th inst. The Danes made a sortie during the night, which was repulsed. On that occasion Lieutenant von Schaper, three Guards, and one soldier of the line were killed. The bombardment of the town was commenced at half-past 5 on Sunday morning from several directions, in the presence of the Crown Prince, Prince Albrecht, and the Prince of Hohenzollern. A cannonade was also kept up against the Danish encampment. The shots told well, and the town was set on fire in several places. Several of the Danish guns were dismounted, and their fire was moderate and ineffectual. The bombardment continued all Sunday night, and the town caught fire in several places. According to the statements of deserters, about 200 men were killed and wounded in the fortress on Sunday. The fire on both sides was almost entirely suspended on Monday. Part of the town was still on fire on that day. When summoned to surrender the commandant of the fortress refused. On Wednesday the Prussians had withdrawn out of range, abandoning their positions before the town. The bombardment of Düppel, which has been proceeding simultaneously with that of Fredericia, was continued on Friday, and there was heavy cannonading and fighting all along the lines. During the day the Roeder and Canstein Brigades and the 3d Jäger Battalion took Oster, near West Düppel. The loss of the Prussians is estimated at less than 100 men. They took 300 prisoners. The Danes displayed great bravery. Duppel village and Tonbjerg position were taken by the Prussians, after a heroic resistance by the Danes, who were outnumbered by four to one. The Prussian artillery has a range of three miles. A Danish Colonel was killed, and 70 wounded were brought in. During the afternoon the Prussians obtained a few hours' armistice for the burial of the dead. On Saturday the Prussians re-opened their cannonade from Broagerland without result. On Sunday morning they opened a cannonade against the southern front of the position. The Danes have not made any attempt to re-take the village of Düppel and the position of Tonbjerg. After the late naval engagement the Danish fleet sailed for Moen, and on the same day Danish men-of-war arrived off Eckenfiorde. A landing is feared at that place, and German troops have been despatched to prevent it. The British barque Renown, which has arrived at Swinemunde, states that between Moen and Rugen she was brought to by the Danish man-of-war Skiold. The Renown received despatches for the Danish Consul at Stettin referring to the announcement of the blockade. In the late naval engagement the Skiold lost 20 men killed, and her captain's cabin was shattered. The Prussian flotilla is expected at Kiel; pilots have already been engaged. Ten Prefects of Jutland have been sent off to Prussia. The Flensburg Chamber of Commerce has resolved upon continuing to make the settlements in Danish currency, notwithstanding the loss by the discount.

Hamburg.—The Hamburg Senate is arming and fitting at its own expense a steam flotilla, which is to be placed under the command of the Austrian Rear-Admiral Wüllersdorf.

Prussia.—The Ministers for Foreign Affairs, of Marine, and of Commerce issued a notification on Tuesday informing the public that the blockade of Swinemünde, announced by Denmark, has up to the present time not been carried out. The official journal also says that as by the proclamation of the 15th ult. the Danish Government promised that up to the 1st of April all vessels under embargo in Danish ports should be liberated, provided they belonged to States acting similarly towards Denmark, arrangements have been made to release Prussian vessels in Danish ports, and vice versâ.

Bavaria.—A telegram from Munich announces that the King of Bavaria has officially received the representative of the Duke of Augustenburg.

Austria.—The Conference proposed by England, without detailed bases or armistice, has been accepted by Austria and Prussia. The territorial integrity of the Danish Monarchy under the present dynasty will be maintained. The Conference is to meet at once. It is stated that the Emperor will in a few days proceed to Venice, where he will meet the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia. After reviewing the troops at Verona his Majesty will proceed to Miramar on a visit to the Archduke Maximilian and and the Archduchess Charlotte. The Archduke has definitively fixed to-morrow (Easter day) for the official reception of the Mexican deputation at Miramar. Their Imperial Highnesses will embark for Mexico on the 30th inst. They intend to pay a visit to the Pope on their way, and also to touch at Valencia, where they will have an interview with the King and Queen of Spain. A contract of marriage between the Archduke Joseph and the Princess Clotilde of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, daughter of Duke Augustus of Saxe and Princess Clementine, the daughter of Louis Philippe, has been signed at the palace of the Prince of Lichtenstein, Grand Master to the Emperor of Austria.

Hungary.—In consequence of popular demonstrations in the theatres and the streets in favour of Kossuth and Garibaldi, about 40 persons of distinction, including M. Paul von Almasy, President of the Diet of Debrecsin in 1849, were arrested last week at Pesth, and it is said that the Austrian Government has decided to reinforce the principal garrisons of Hungary.

Venetia.—Troops continue to arrive from Austria, especially cavalry. A body of Viennese volunteers has arrived at Cadore. The armaments continue, particularly in Borgoforte and Polesina. A new military route is constructing between Vicenza and Bolzano.

Russia.—An Imperial decree was published at St. Petersburg yesterday, reforming the law affecting foreigners in Russia. The decree abolishes the compulsory sale of landed property belonging to Russian ladies on their marriage with foreigners. The consent of the Emperor to such marriages, and the payment of three years' taxation in advance by foreigners on becoming naturalised Russian subjects, are no longer necessary.

POLAND.—On the 19th inst. 500 more exiles were conveyed from Warsaw to Russia. The total number of those transported from the kingdom of Poland, exclusive of those from the Government of Augustowa, is stated to be 23,400 In the latter Government, which is under the administration of General Mouravieff, the number of exiles is comparatively greater. The Russian General Prince Czerkaski has replaced Count Ostrowski, the director of the Department of the Interior of Poland. The Commission to regulate the emancipation of the peasantry, under the presidency of the Secretary of State, M. Milutin, has arrived at Warsaw, from St. Petersburg, and commenced its sittings. On the 11th inst. two Poles, Kozelski and Wilkozki, the former a nobleman and the latter a peasant, were hanged at Segny, in the Government of Augustowa. Songaylo, a nobleman, and Pronaylis, a peasant, have been hanged at Szawle, and Leibmann, a Jew, at Suiwalki. An appeal to the European nations has been issued by the Polish National Government.

GREECE.—Accounts from Athens state that the Ministry had resigned in consequence of a popular demonstration in that city. A new Cabinet had been formed, composed as follows:—M. Zaimis, President of the Council and Minister for Foreign Affairs; M. Comsinduros, Minister of Finance; M. Diligiannis, Minister of Public Instruction; M. Delligiargis, Minister of Justice; M. Cristides, Minister of the Interior; M. Coroneos, Minister of War. The King was making preparations for a journey through the provinces.

TURKEY.—The Turkish Government is taking measures for the more stringent surveillance of the Polish refugees in Turkey, on the Russo-Turkish frontier, and has offered those Poles who have held meetings the alternative of either being sent into the interior or expelled the country.

THE DANUBIAN PRINCIPALITIES.—An insurrectionary movement has been organised by Polish emissaries in the Principalities, under Generals Klapka and Türr, which it is believed may break out at any moment.

EGYPT.—The Levant Herald announces that the delay of six months granted to M. de Lesseps to enable him to alter his arrangement with regard to procuring labour for carrying on the works of the Suez Canal having expired, the Porte will shortly call upon the Viceroy of Egypt to order the suspension of the works.

INDIA.—By the arrival of the Bombay mail we have news from India to Feb. 29. Sir John Lawrence has been suffering from indisposition, and has placed himself under the treatment of Dr. Tonnerre, a homœopathist. His Excellency gave his first public ball on the 15th of February, to which no natives of India were invited. This exclusion is said to have been caused by an insult lately offered by the leaders of the native community of Calcutta to the Governor of Bengal by sending improper women to the Agricultural Exhibition on a day set apart for the reception of native ladies by the most distinguished Englishwomen of the presidency. It is stated that Sir Hugh Rose has tendered his resignation, and Sir Robert Napier is to succeed him as Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army. Sir Neville Chamberlain has been compelled by the state of his health to leave India for a time. General Sir G. Lawrence and Sir Barnes Peacock are also on their way home. The affairs of Cabul are in a very unsettled state, and Major James, Commissioner of Peshawur, has proceeded there on a friendly mission. The Ameer of Cabul has sent information to Government that the Judoon tribes are likely to renew hostilities. Mahomed Ali Khan, son of the Ameer, has returned from a successful expedition against the Mohmunds, whose chief, Saadut Khan, he has made a prisoner. The Akhoond of Swat has directed all his people to arm, as he fears an attack from us in the spring. He is said to be fortifying the Mullakund Pass. Prince Feroze Shah, Grandson of Tippoo Saib, is travelling about in Arabia, lecturing on religious subjects. Coal or lignite has been discovered in the Punjab. It has been tried on the Punjab railways and pronounced excellent fuel. The quantity is said to be inexhaustible. The Bhore Ghaut Railway was to be opened for regular passenger traffic on the 3d of March. The north-eastern branch of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway is blocked up, its single line and small rolling stock being unequal to the conveyance of the largely increased cotton traffic.

JAPAN.—Accounts from Shanghai of the 9th February state that the Japanese Government will send a new Embassy to Europe, by the next French mail steamer, for the purpose of determining the Powers to modify the treaties.

UNITED STATES.—In the absence of official information from General Sherman, most unfavourable reports continue to circulate. One account, viâ New Orleans, states that on the 16th ult. he was defeated by Bishop Polk near Meridian, with the loss of 15,000 men, and that, with the remnant of his army, he was retreating to Vicksburg, pursued and harassed by a large force of Confederate cavalry. Travellers who left Vicksburg on the 3d inst. assert that he had arrived in that city, but do not state whether with the whole or a part of his army. In order to allay the public disappointment at the failure of his movement, very exaggerated reports of the destruction of railways and stores which he committed in Mississippi are published in the Ministerial papers. General Johnson was pressing the Federal lines in Tennessee. The Federals have withdrawn from Tunnelhill to Ringold. General Longstreet's cavalry hold Bull's Gap, 56 miles from Knoxville. His army is at Greenville. The Federals occupy Morristown, 42 miles from Knoxville. The Confederate Generals Magruder and Taylor, with 20,000 men, are reported to be advancing into Eastern Louisiana, from Berwick's Bay. The Confederates, under General Pickett, are again threatening Newbern, Plymouth, and Washington, North Carolina. Four Confederate rams, plated with 10 inches of iron, and carrying four guns each, will co-operate with the land forces. The Federals are sending reinforcements to hold Jacksonville, Florida, but have abandoned further expeditions into the interior. Admiral Farragut opened fire upon Fort Powell, on Dauphin Island, commanding Grant's Pass Channel to Mobile, at daylight on the 23d ult. One Federal gunboat was sunk. The bombardment still continued on the 25th. Refugees from Mobile state that the fort is bomb-proof, but that even if it should be reduced, a narrow channel fortified upon both sides for nine miles will have to be traversed to reach the city. They also state that the Confederate ram Tennessee is plated with six inches of iron, and carries seven 100-pounder Parrotts. Confederate telegrams from Charleston of the 4th report that 1250 Federal shells had been fired at the city during the previous fortnight, but without doing any damage. Blockade running had been actively resumed, and an average of two or three steamers weekly had succeeded in reaching the city. Three steamers plying on Chesapeake Bay were captured by the Confederates on the 5th inst., and taken up the Rappahannock. One of the four Federal colonels killed in Kilpatrick's recent raid upon General Lee's communications was a son of Admiral Dahlgren. On his dead body were found an address and instructions to the soldiers under his command, telling them that when once they were in Richmond the city must be burnt, and Jefferson Davis and his Cabinet killed. The Richmond press is strongly incensed at these instructions, and urges that the severest treatment should be exercised towards the prisoners of Kilpatrick's command. The Northern press declares that the orders said to have been found upon Dahlgren were forgeries. There is a doubtful report from North Carolina that 23 North Carolinians captured from the Federal army, were hung by the Confederate General Pickett. General Meade has been summoned before the War Investigation Committee, in consequence of statements by Generals Sickles and Doubleday that he ordered a retreat of the Federal forces on the first day's battle at Gettysburg, and again on the second, which orders only failed to be executed through General Sickles engaging the enemy. General Meade is also accused of having expressed the opinion that the Confederates could not be conquered. Admiral Wilkes is also to be subjected to a court-martial for disobedience of orders and insubordination. General Grant has arrived at Washington to assume the general direction of the new campaign, and has been received by the President, who presented him with the commission of Lieutenant-General, stating that "with it he presented the nation's appreciation of his past services, and its dependence upon him to accomplish what remained to be done in the present struggle." General Grant made a short and modest reply, and subsequently left Washington on a visit of inspection to the Army of the Potomac. On the following day he suddenly took his departure for Nashville, which was considered to indicate that the military situation in the South-West is of a critical nature. General Halleck will not be removed from his present position, but will be retained at Washington by Mr. Lincoln for military consultation and advice. In Congress Senator Pomeroy has advocated the claims of Secretary Chase for nomination to the Presidency, stating his platform to be emancipation, confiscation, and the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine. Mr. Chase has since written a letter withdrawing his name as a candidate for the Presidency. Gen. Fremont's friends are more active in advocating his claims. The Bill authorising Mr. Chase to sell the surplus gold in the Treasury, which was rejected by the Committee of Ways and Means, has been revived and amended by Mr. Sherman, and adopted by the Senate by a vote of 30 against 8. It has yet to be returned to the Lower House, which has already passed the bill authorising Mr. Chase to anticipate the payment of interest on the public debt, but not to sell gold. The Republican ticket has been elected by a large majority in New Hampshire. An Amendment of the Constitution of the State of New York, permitting soldiers to vote in camp, has been carried throughout the State by a large Republican majority. The Confederate General Preston has left for Mexico, for the purpose of concluding a commercial treaty, based upon the mutual recognition of the Confederate and Mexican Governments. Mr. Justice Ritchie, of the Court of Appeals, of St. John's, New Brunswick, has released the Chesapeake prisoners, on the grounds that no proper requisition has been made by the Federal Government; that there is no treaty existing which would justify their being delivered up; that Mr. Magistrate Gilbert had no jurisdiction in the case, and that the warrant issued for their arrest was insufficient.

MEXICO.—The Paris papers announce that a Mexican loan for 200,000,000f. has been concluded with the firm of Messrs. Glyn, Mills, & Co., of London. The loan is to bear interest at 6 per cent., and will be issued at 63.

Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

FRIDAY.—Mr. FERRAND called attention to the recent Accidents from Reservoirs, and especially to the dangerous state of the Doe Park and other reservoirs belonging to the Bradford Corporation Waterworks.—Sir G. GREY gave a brief explanation upon the subject. Mr. Stansfeld and M. Mazzini.—Lord ELCHO inquired whether, after the public scandal caused by the culpable indiscretion of Mr. Stansfeld with reference to the Mazzini affair, he had tendered the resignation of his office to her Majesty's Government, and whether they had declined to receive it.—Lord PALMERSTON replied that Mr. Stansfeld had, through a friend, placed his office at the disposal of the Government; and had informed him that on the slightest intimation a formal resignation would be tendered. The answer which he had sent was that he did not wish him to take that step; and if any responsibility attached to that decision he was perfectly willing to accept it.—Mr. W. E. FORSTER vindicated the character of M. Mazzini as a single-hearted and devoted patriot, and hinted that hon. gentlemen opposite were hostile to him because he had been one of the chief agents in the resurrection of Italy.—Sir J. WALSH invited Mr. Stansfeld to make a peace-offering of himself by resigning his appointment.—Mr. HALIBURTON thought that no man who boasted of M. Mazzini's acquaintance ought to accept office.—Mr. HENLEY regretted that Mr. Stansfeld had allowed his house to be used as a poste-restante by M. Mazzini, and still more that he had not at once fully and frankly owned his indiscretion in that respect.—Alderman ROSE regretted that the Government had not accepted Mr. Stansfeld's resignation.—Major KNOX wished to know if it was true that Mr. Stansfeld voted with the majority on Thursday night.—Mr. OSBORNE denounced as puerile and undignified the attack which had been made upon a clever man holding a minor office in the Government. That which everybody called a painful subject had been converted into a painful persecution. It was unworthy of the House of Commons to be night after night baiting a junior Lord of the Admiralty.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD said that Lord Palmerston's refusal to accept Mr. Stansfeld's resignation had compromised the Government and the country.—Mr. DENMAN said that the miserable scrap of paper found upon Greco was no proof against Mr. Stansfeld.—Sir J. FERGUSSON said that Mr. Stansfeld had allowed himself to be made the medium between the authors of the moral and immoral theories of the dagger. He had a feeling approaching to disgust when he saw so indiscreet a gentleman seated next to the First Minister of the Crown. The motion for the adjournment was then agreed to.—On the motion for going into a committee of supply, Mr. GREGORY called attention to the demolition of the Fortifications of Corfu and the neutralisation of the Ionian Islands, and moved an address for papers.—Captain JERVIS seconded the motion.—Mr. SMOLLETT protested against the proceedings of the Government in reference to the cession of the Islands.—Mr. LAYARD said the cession had been made in perfect good faith and loyalty on the part of her Majesty's Government. He entered at considerable length into the circumstances which had led to the cession, and justified the destruction of the fortifications as an act of policy necessary to the maintenance of our position in the Mediterranean. The King of Greece and his Ministers were perfectly aware from the first that the destruction of the fortresses was intended to be effected under the treaty for the surrender of the islands. He had no objection to give the papers.—Captain JERVIS asked whether any steps had been taken to protect the interests of British subjects who had held office in the islands, and whose appointments necessarily ceased with the cession.—Mr. C. FORTESCUE said that the pensions already earned would be punctually paid by the Greek Government to the English Consul at Corfu, and the compensations for loss of office to our Minister at Athens.—Mr. S. FITZGERALD said this was another instance in which the Government had committed a mistake in their foreign policy. They had meddled unnecessarily, and had done no good to those in whose behalf they had interfered.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER justified the policy of the Government, and contended that the cession of the Islands was a step calculated to promote the interests not only of the inhabitants of those islands but of the whole kingdom of Greece.—Lord J. MANNERS said that the question was not the policy of surrendering the protectorate, but the manner in which the cession was made, which had unsatisfied everybody.—Mr. CHILDERS read an extract from a speech of Lord Derby in June last which showed that he had suggested the neutralisation of the islands, and the demolition of the fortifications.—Mr. CAVE defended Sir H. Storks, and after some remarks by Mr. D. GRIFFITH, the motion was withdrawn and the House went into Committee pro formâ.—The Report of the Committee of Supply was brought up and agreed to.—The Collection of Taxes Bill passed through Committee with amendments introduced by the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, granting to the present collectors fair considerations for their vested interests, compensations to collectors whose services would not be continued, and enabling persons resident in country districts to pay their taxes by means of money-orders instead of being required to visit the market town. Some further business was disposed of, and the House adjourned to the 4th of April.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

COURT OF ALDERMEN.—Mr. David Henry Stone, nephew of the late Alderman Farncomb and a member of the Haberdashers' Company, was on Tuesday elected Alderman of the ward of Bassishaw, in the room of Alderman Conder, who had resigned his gown on account of ill-health and advanced age.

COURT OF COMMON COUNCIL.—At the last meeting of the Common Council it was resolved unanimously to subscribe 500*l.* in aid of the fund for the relief of the sufferers by the inundation at Sheffield. It was also referred to a committee to consider whether any and what improvements can be made in Farringdon Market, so as to bring that now desolate area into some purpose of public utility.

BLACKFRIARS BRIDGE.—The construction of the temporary wooden bridge across the Thames at Blackfriars has now so far advanced towards completion that it is confidently expected to be opened in the first week of April.

DANISH RELIEF FUND.—A Committee was recently formed in the metropolis, at the suggestion of the Marquis of Clanricarde, for the purpose of raising a fund for the relief of the Danish soldiers and sailors who may be wounded in the present war, and of the widows and orphans of those who may have fallen in battle. A Ladies' Committee was also formed to assist the Committee in this object, in connection with a central Relief Committee at Copenhagen; and a separate Committee was established at the Mansion House under the presidency of the Lord Mayor. It is now announced that the sum of 4600*l.* has been transmitted to Denmark by the Ladies' Committee, and the sum of 1500*l.* by the Mansion House Committee. A Committee has also been formed at Liverpool, by which a first remittance of 600*l.* has been transmitted to Copenhagen.

EXPERIMENTS AT SHOEBURYNESS.—Another series of experiments took place on the 10th and another on the 17th inst. at Shoeburyness. In the experiments on the 10th Sir William Armstrong's 600-pounder was fired with a solid steel spherical shot and a charge of 90 lb. of powder against an iron plate 11 inches thick, at a distance of 200 yards. It only succeeded in penetrating the plate to a depth of about 4½ inches. The result disappointed the expectations of Sir W. Armstrong and his friends, who anticipated that it would have gone through not only the 11-inch plate but the wood and iron backing behind, and they attributed the failure to the mode in which the target was set up. In the experiments on the 17th it was resolved to test the plan which is said to have had so much success in America of employing compressed cotton or wool to resist shot. A quantity of wool was tightly rammed into an iron tube, 11 feet in length; and exposed to the fire both of the 68-pounder and of Sir William Armstrong's 110-pounder. The shot from both guns passed through this mass from end to end of the 11 feet, and then through the bottom of the iron tube and 12 feet of the earth embankment. Shells, plugged with Colonel Boxer's new wood fusees, were then fired, both against an earthern embankment and a solid mass of timber, when it was found that the shells loaded with this fuse burst satisfactorily in each case, blowing up the earthwork and destroying the wood target in a manner which would have scattered death and destruction through any ship which had been exposed to them.

VISIT OF GARIBALDI TO ENGLAND.—It is announced that General Garibaldi is on his way to England, and is expected to arrive at Southampton on Monday, April 3. He will stay at Brook, Isle of Wight, for 10 or 12 days, and is expected to come to London on Saturday, April 16. The working classes of the metropolis intend to give him a public reception, consisting of a public entry into London, and a banquet, probably at the Crystal Palace. The report that the 3rd London Rifle Volunteers had through their commandant, Major Richards, offered to act as a guard of honour on the occasion, is contradicted.

MURDER IN MARYLEBONE.—On Friday the 11th a man was found by the police lying wounded and insensible in Little Chesterfield Street, and was immediately removed to the Marylebone workhouse, where he died on the same evening. He was ascertained to be Mr. Joseph Duck, a scaffold builder, who some years ago had amassed a considerable fortune. He had not been attending to his business for the last four months, and for some time past had been drinking daily at various public-houses in the neighbourhood. On the day before his death a neighbour who met him, told him to put his chain and seals, which were hanging loose, into his pocket. Later in the day he was in a publichouse in Great Chesterfield Street, tipsy. He was standing in front of the bar, when three cabmen came in and began to banter him. He took out two sovereigns, and said he could buy up the whole lot of them. He was not seen after this till he was picked up by the police. His watch, money, and silk neckerchief were gone, and his watch fob was cut at the bottom. At the adjourned inquest Mr. Thompson, who performed the operation of trepanning previous to his death, stated his opinion that deceased had been struck severely from behind. On the following day a man named John Devine was taken before the magistrate at Marylebone police court, charged on suspicion of being the murderer. The evidence clearly proved that the prisoner was seen in company with the deceased at a public house shortly before the murder, and that the prisoner, who had previously complained that he was in such a state of destitution that he had no means of getting a bed that night, was suddenly found in possession of money and had been liberally treating his companions. The magistrate remanded him until Tuesday last, when it was proved by the prisoner's companions that he had employed them to dispose of a watch, chain, and seal, and also of a black neckerchief, all of which were identified as having belonged to the murdered man. The magistrate fully committed him for trial on the capital charge.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths in London, which rose to 1766 in the first week of the present month, and declined to 1664 in the subsequent week, further declined to 1508 in the week that ended Saturday, the 19th March. The average number in the corresponding week of the 10 years 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1464. The present return is therefore 44 above the average. During the week the births of 1117 boys and 1060 girls, in all 2177 children, were registered in London. In the 10 corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2070.

BIRMINGHAM.—The respite granted by Sir George Grey to the convict Hall, for whom such great exertions were made by all classes in Birmingham, has given great satisfaction in the town, as well as in Warwick and the neighbouring towns. Hall himself had given up all hope, and was so overcome by the sudden revulsion of feeling that he could scarcely gasp his acknowledgments.

CAMBRIDGE.—On Friday evening an old lady named Hunt died in this town from the effects of a murderous outrage perpetrated upon her on Sunday the 28th of February. The deceased and another aged lady, named Walker, both widows, lived together at Prospect Cottage, having some small income. On the Sunday evening a man, wearing a mask and armed with a bludgeon and a knife, entered the house, forced his way into Mrs. Hunt's room, pushing the servant who was waiting upon her on one side, and then attacked the defenceless lady with the knife, inflicting some serious wounds on her head and face, beside breaking her arm with the bludgeon. The servant girl screamed "Murder!" and made her escape from the house to give an alarm. Mrs. Walker, who was up stairs, hearing the cries, put her head out of the window and called for help, when the man ran up stairs and struck her several violent blows on the back of the head, leaving her almost insensible. He then made off, but threw away the mask, which he left behind, with his hat, cloak, and knife, in the house. The bludgeon was found outside. On the following Tuesday William Morley Wallis, a young plumber, was arrested by the police. He had been seen in the neighbourhood, and some of the articles left behind were traced to his possession. He had been on friendly terms with Mrs. Hunt, and only a few days before the outrage had been reading to her an account of the highway robbery and murder at Hitchen. He was examined by the mayor and deputy-mayor in the presence of the two ladies, but Mrs. Hunt, who was in bed, said she was unable to identify him, and seemed reluctant to avow any previous knowledge of the prisoner for some private reason. Mrs. Walker also stated that she could not speak to his identity. The depositions of both ladies, however, were taken. The prisoner, who displayed throughout the greatest coolness, denied the charge, but was recognised by a boy as having been seen loitering about the place previous to the assault. The magistrates committed him for trial at the assizes.

CHESTERFIELD.—On Tuesday the 15th the pump at the Spitlewell Ironstone Pits, the property of Mr. Barrow, broke. There were about 71 men and boys employed in the pit; and the water rose so rapidly, that it was feared that the greater part of them were drowned. The excitement at the pit's mouth was very great until the following Thursday, when the water in the mine was reduced to two feet below the arch, and on an exploring party wading through the water all the men were found and brought out alive, having taken refuge in the upper levels, which were free from gas or water.

MANCHESTER.—At the meeting of the Central Relief Committee on Monday, Mr. Commissioner Farnall reported that on the 12th inst. there was a decrease of 6739 in the number of persons receiving parochial relief in the 27 unions of the cotton districts, as compared with the number relieved for the week ending the 27th ult. The Hon. Secretary reported that 400*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* had been received during the fortnight; and that the balance in the bank was 143,103*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.* Several gentlemen addressed the meeting on the gratifying diminution of the distress, and at the same time referred to the success which had attended the operations of the executive committee, and to the manner in which the people had been borne through a great national calamity without disturbance or loss of life, mainly by the judicious action of the committee. Grants were then made to various places, amounting to about 13,000*l.*

SHEFFIELD.—The work of clearing away the mud and filth left by the flood is being rapidly pushed forward, and the streets of the town are now beginning to assume much of their ordinary appearance, except that fence walls and fallen houses are not rebuilt. Disinfectants have been freely used, and with the best effect. The search for bodies continues, and two or three are found daily, but there are yet more than 30 missing. The subscriptions in aid of the sufferers by the recent catastrophe now exceed 20,000*l.*, including 200*l.* from the Queen, 200*l.* from the Prince of Wales, 50*l.* from the Princess of Wales, and 50*l.* from the Duke of Cambridge. The following letter, announcing her Majesty's contribution, has been addressed to Mr. Roebuck, and forwarded by him to the Mayor:—

"Windsor Castle, March 16.

"Sir,—I have had the honour to submit to her Majesty the Queen your letter received last night. Her Majesty had already directed me to make inquiry whether any subscription had been commenced for the relief of the sufferers by the fearful calamity which has occurred near Sheffield. The Queen has commanded me to inform you that it is her Majesty's intention to contribute 200*l.* towards the objects advocated in your letter. Her Majesty has commanded me to add the expression of her deep sympathy for the poor persons thus suddenly overwhelmed with grief and exposed to suffering of every description in consequence of this unexpected and dire calamity. As I am not aware of the name of the treasurer, I shall be very much obliged to you if you will take the trouble to forward the enclosed check to the proper quarter.—I have, &c., "C. B. PHIPPS."

The inquest was opened on Wednesday in the presence of Mr. Rawlinson, the Government engineer; Mr. Beardmore, an engineer sent down by the Government to assist him; and M. Mille, engineer-in-chief of bridges and causeways to the French Government, who has been sent over to examine and inspect the dam. After examining the engineer of the works and the resident engineer at great length, the inquiry was adjourned to Thursday, when Mr. Rawlinson and Mr. Beardmore were examined. The jury, after hearing their evidence, returned a verdict of Accidental Death, with an expression of their opinion that there had not been that engineering skill and that attention to the construction of the works which their magnitude and importance demanded, and that there ought to be a frequent, regular, and sufficient Government inspection of all works of such a character.

SUSPENSION OF THE GALWAY CONTRACT.—Notice was issued on Friday from the General Post Office, that the mail service between Galway and America has been suspended until further notice.

THE FEDERAL ENLISTMENTS.—At the Cork Assizes last week the Attorney-General prosecuted the six men charged with violating the Foreign Enlistment Act, in having on the 4th November, at Queenstown, without licence from her Majesty, agreed to enlist and enter service as sailors on board the American ship of war Kearsage, contrary to the provisions of the Act. It appeared from the depositions that Captain Winslow of the Kearsage had stated in explanation that a party of men, "either by the connivance of the crew, or otherwise, were concealed on board the vessel when she left Queenstown, in the expectation of being enlisted in the naval service of the United States, and that he did not send them ashore at Brest, because he would then have exposed them to the temptation of taking service under the Confederate flag in the Florida, but determined to land them again in Ireland. On the other hand the first lieutenant of the Kearsage stated that several men came on board from Queenstown as applicants for enlistment, but, as the captain was absent, and he had no definite instructions in regard to such applications, he told them that if they were physically qualified to serve they might remain until the captain returned, and that when he did return they "were sent out of the ship." It appeared also that when the men were landed at Queenstown they were all wearing the uniform of the Federal navy. Mr. Justice Keogh, in charging the grand jury, said:—

"Here we have had these young men entering the service of the United States—a Power at peace with Great Britain—at Queenstown, in the grossest violation of all amicable relations which ought to exist between friendly Powers. The subjects of this realm were taken by officers of that navy. They well knew that they were violating the municipal laws of this country in taking the subjects of these realms on board that ship. He regretted exceedingly that, instead of trying these young men, who, he could well believe, were ignorant of the Act, he was not trying the guilty persons, who had induced them to violate the law."

The prisoners all pleaded "Guilty," and the Court accepted their own securities to appear for judgment when called on.

ILLEGAL DRILLING.—Ten young men, one of them a pensioner in the army who had served at the siege of Delhi and the relief of Lucknow, were indicted at the Cork Assizes for military drilling in violation of the Act of 1819. Mr. Justice Keogh, in his charge to the jury, said that he was perfectly convinced that the leaders of such movements acted only with lucre as their object, and always took care to get out of the way when any danger arose. While duping their unfortunate victims, they were handing in to the Executive informations against them. That had happened in Ireland 60 years ago, it also happened 15 years ago, and would happen again. There had not been a law officer ever intrusted with her Majesty's commission in that country who had not experienced what he stated. He also referred to another class of persons—"foolish, silly, vain, self-conceited persons, impotent in intellect and warped in reason, who pretend to direct the movements and the fortunes of a country"—who must be kept from running into further mischief by lessons from the bench and the jury-box. He would only say that as sure as to-morrow's sun rose, no matter how carefully their secrets were kept, no matter how close their doors were shut, their secret would be divulged, and by members of their own body. There was not a club or society which met in 1848, but within five minutes after it separated there were two or three reports of the proceedings forwarded to the Castle in Dublin. Let people take that lesson, and be cautious and tremble when they went into the room of an illegal society. The jury had merely to say whether the men in the dock had practised military exercises, movements, or evolutions. If they had done so, they should be convicted; and, if not, they were entitled to an acquittal. After an hour's deliberation the jury brought in a verdict of Guilty against all the prisoners, but strongly recommended them to mercy, on the ground that they were ignorant of the law. The announcement of the verdict outside caused loud shouting and yelling in the streets, and Mr. Justice Keogh was hissed and groaned at by a crowd of sympathisers on leaving the court. On the following day, in passing sentence, the Judge delivered the following important address:—

"It is manifest that in no other country of Europe could such a thing have been tolerated for a tenth portion of the time. In other countries, the very moment that any persons meet together for an illegal purpose, there is none of the long process of our laws—no swearing of informations, no summonses before magistrates, no sending of bills before grand juries, or trials at assizes or sessions. There the strong hand of power immediately seizes the parties, and deals with them on the most summary process known. Really it is only through the extraordinary liberality of our laws—one of the fines, as it were, that we pay for constitutional Government—that such things go on; and the very men who are complaining of the Government and institutions under which they live absolutely could not act as they do but that they live under these liberal institutions. The very men who complain thus, who abuse our laws, who misrepersent our laws, who seek to breed disaffection against our laws, know in their own hearts that the language they use, the words they write, could not be spoken or published in any other country in Europe, except under the very laws which they assail. I have no doubt in the world that there are men there in that dock who are the miserable dupes of other parties. Perhaps even now, while I am addressing you, there are in this court persons who by their writings and speeches have egged you into these proceedings, they well knowing that sooner or later you would come to be in the position in which you now stand; but they themselves very wisely, very cunningly, and very cowardly, in my opinion, keep themselves always out of difficulty. Supposing you imagined that a time might come when you might appear, not with green sticks or white sticks, but in arms—for drilling in military evolutions is a preparation for arms—do you know what an enterprise you would be entering upon? Suppose even that an army—I care not of what numbers or from what part of the world—were to land on these shores, do you think that you could enter into an encounter with an empire which stood alone against every nation in the world combined against her, and triumphed over them all? There was a time, and no remote time either, when the Government of these countries stood alone in arms against every nation in Europe—ay, and America besides. She triumphed over them all, and I don't entertain the shadow of a doubt that if the contingency again arose she would arise as triumphant from the contest as she did before. And do wretched men imagine that they could enter into an enterprise with the hope of overthrowing the Government of this country? I think the Crown would have acted with great pusillanimity if it had allowed you to walk out of that dock. A great deal too much forbearance has been shown in these transactions—forbearance calculated to lead you into the opinion that the law was afraid of you, That is as wild a delusion as ever entered into the brain of man. The law is all-powerful and will prevail. One of your number is a pensioner, discharged from the army, and receiving the pay of the Sovereign for services which have already been honoured by a medal. There are a number of pensioners through the country, and they must be taught a lesson not to train or encourage to sedition. All government would be at an end if the men who are receiving the pay of the Sovereign, raised in taxes from the people, and given into the hands of the Executive for distribution, were allowed to engage in movements which attack the institutions under which we live. And if pensioners and discharged soldiers, and persons employed in several capacities under the Commissioners of Education in the country, national schoolmasters, engage in the commission of offences of this nature, they must all be taught by an efficacious lesson that they will lose in substance as well as be punished in their persons for any violation of the law. The sentence of the Court is that you, Patrick Neale, be imprisoned for 15 calendar months, and as to the rest of the prisoners, whom I regard as having been led astray, I will impose upon them the lesser punishment of 12 months' imprisonment each."

THE WATERFORD MURDER.—At the Waterford assizes on the 16th, Thomas Walsh was tried for the murder of Thomas Connolly, on the 29th September last. The crime was marked by circumstances of peculiar atrocity. He and his daughter lived in the same house with deceased, who was the grandfather of his son-in-law. Differences arose between them, and during the absence of the grandson the crime was perpetrated. The scene was a lonely cottage, and during the temporary absence of his daughter on some errand, Walsh struck Connolly on the back of the head with a hatchet, fracturing the skull and causing instant death. When the daughter returned she saw the old man lying dead. Her father then compelled her by threats of murder to assist him in carrying the corpse into a turf-house, where he shut himself in and cut up the body in fragments. She heard the chopping as she stood outside in the yard. Walsh then took the fragments in a sack and hid them in a bog, the remains forming three loads. He told the daughter where he had thrown them. This story, when reported to the police, seemed too horrible to be credited. But the remains were found, the woman's evidence was fully corroborated, and the jury at once found the prisoner guilty. Baron Deasy passed sentence of death, and ordered the convict to be executed on the 14th April.

THE LISBURN BRIBERY CASE.—This celebrated case came on for trial at the assizes for Belfast on Friday. It will be remembered that Mr. John D. Barbour, who was returned as M.P. for Lisburn in February, 1863, was unseated by a decision of a Committee of the House of Commons, and a prosecution directed against him and his brother Robert, for bribery and treating. Mr. Robert Barbour was indicted on Friday for these offences, and after a lengthened hearing the jury returned a verdict of Not Guilty, which was received in court with great applause.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE, CORK.—On Wednesday night another fire broke out in the western wing of Queen's College—the same building previously burned. It is stated that the fire originated from embers left by workmen; but great excitement and doubt exist as to the cause. The fire was got under before any great damage was done. In consequence of certain charges brought by Dr. Bullen against Sir Robert Kane in connection with the previous fire at the College, and of the counter charges brought by Sir R. Kane against Dr. Bullen, the Lord Lieutenant has ordered the visitors of the College to hold an inquiry into the matters at issue.

THE IRISH CENT GARDES.—The King of Denmark has politely declined the services of the Irish "Cent Gardes," but has instructed the Grand Marshal of the Court to express to Mr. O'Leary the thanks of his Majesty for his "chivalrous offer."

THE CONSTABULARY AND THE PRIESTS.—The Lord-Lieutenant has just given his decision in a matter which has been looked upon as of a very serious character in Ireland. It appears that a police-constable was lying at the point of death in the constabulary barracks at Dundrum. Although previously a Protestant, he expressed a wish to receive the ministrations of a Roman Catholic priest, and one was sent for. The sub-inspector, Mr. Boyes, refused the priest admission at first; but, having thought better of the matter, allowed him to visit the dying man on the following day. Under all the circumstances, the Lord-Lieutenant has decided that the reprimanding of the sub-inspector, and his removal to another station, would meet the justice of the case.

THE O'CONNELL MONUMENT.—The O'Connell National Monument Committee have published an appeal to the people of Ireland, stating that after two years of begging through the columns of the press, at chapel doors, and in every other way they could imagine, the funds at their disposal up to the present time are miserably insufficient.

THE PAMPERO SEIZURE CASE.—On Friday the judges of the First Division of the Court of Session repelled the defenders' objections to the information, and refused a motion for leave to appeal at the present stage. The Lord Advocate withdrew the third count and 23 others on the same model, and also the 98th count. The 5th of May is named for the trial.

THE UNIVERSITY BOAT RACE.—The Oxford and Cambridge boat race took place on Saturday, and was won easily by the Oxford crew by about 20 boats' length. This is the 21st contest which has taken place between the two Universities. The former 20 were equally divided between them, so that the present race was regarded as their deciding contest, and the numbers who flocked to the banks of the river or crowded the Thames in boats and steamers were greater than was ever before known. Conspicuous among the latter was the Prince of Wales and his suite, who were on board the George Peabody, chartered by the Thames Subscription Club. His Royal Highness was warmly welcomed by the assembled multitude.

Obituary.

THE EARL OF ABERDEEN died at his seat, Haddo House, Aberdeenshire, on the 22d inst. in his 48th year. For a long time before the death of his father—the Prime Minister at the outbreak of the Crimean war—he had been a confirmed invalid, and was obliged to resort to a more genial climate every autumn for the benefit of his health. His lordship, George John James Hamilton Gordon, was born in 1816. He married, in 1840, the second daughter of Mr. George Baillie, of Jerviswoode, and sister of the Earl of Haddington, the Countess of Ashburnham, and the late Marchioness of Breadalbane. By that lady, who survives him, his lordship leaves three sons and three daughters, his eldest son, Gordon, Lord Haddo, born in 1841, and now on a visit to his uncle, the Governor of New Brunswick, succeeding to the family honours. Lady Mary, the eldest and only married daughter, is wife of the Master of Polwarth. The deceased peer was a Liberal Conservative in politics, and for seven years represented the county of Aberdeen in the House of Commons.

LORD ASHBURTON died suddenly on the 23d inst., in his 65th year, at the Grange, Alresford. He had almost entirely recovered from the dangerous pulmonary attacks under which he had recently suffered, but expired suddenly from heart disease, to which he had been subject from his youth. His Lordship, William Bingham Baring, was the son of the first baron, and was born in 1799. He married first, in 1823, the eldest daughter of the Earl of Sandwich, and secondly, in 1858, the youngest daughter of the Right Hon. J. A. Stewart Mackenzie. He formerly represented Thetford, Callington, Winchester, and North Staffordshire in Parliament; was Secretary to the Board of Control from 1841 to 1845; and Paymaster-General from 1845 to 1846. As he has left no male issue by either marriage, he is succeeded in the title by his brother, the Hon. Francis Baring, born in 1800, and married in 1833 to the daughter of the late Duc de Bassano.

Law.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—Attorney-General v. Sillem and Others.—The Alexandra Case.—This case came before their lordships before the recess on appeal from the Court of Exchequer Chamber for the purpose of their considering whether the question raised as to the proper construction to be placed upon the Foreign Enlistment Act is to be determined, or whether all the expense incurred and the labour expended on the matter are to be thrown away in consequence of a technical difficulty. The technical point is however one of considerable importance, being whether the Judges of the Court of Exchequer have power under the 26th section of the Queen's Remembrancer's Act to make such rules as would give the advisers of the Crown in this instance a right of appeal which they did not possess at the time the verdict of the jury at the trial was delivered in favour of the defendants. In consequence of the Lord Chief Baron and the Attorney-General being unable to agree as to the effect of the Chief Baron's direction to the jury at the trial, it was found impracticable to present a bill of exceptions, and the alternative of moving for a new trial on the ground of misdirection was adopted. This rule the Court of Exchequer granted, but discharged upon argument. The Attorney-General had previously applied to the Court of Exchequer to exercise a power it was assumed the Barons possessed under the 26th section of the Act referred to to make rules giving him a power of appeal to the Court of Exchequer Chamber. In accordance with that application the Court of Exchequer drew up a series of rules on the day before the rule for a new trial was moved for. Under the power of appeal given by these rules the Attorney-General brought the case before the Court of Exchequer Chamber, which Court, however, by a majority of 4 to 3, rejected the appeal, on the ground that the Barons had not power to make the rules. This appeal was then brought to reverse the judgment of the Court of Exchequer Chamber. The Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General addressed their lordships on behalf of the Crown on Friday; and on Monday Sir Hugh Cairns commenced his address for the respondents. He contended that the new rule by which the appeal was rendered possible had been made for this special purpose—a proceeding unprecedented in the legal annals; that the rules were not in accordance with the Act by the authority of which they were said to be framed, and that on these grounds the appeal ought not to be entertained. Mr. Mellish followed on the same side. On Tuesday the Attorney-General replied on the whole case, and contended that the Legislature had left a power to the Barons of the Exchequer to regulate the proceedings in error analogous to that now claimed for them respecting appeals, showing the confidence the Legislature had in the discretion of those Judges. He showed that the proceeding to error was well known to be matters of procedure in the Court below, and that the case never left the jurisdiction of the Court in which the cause originated, even when taken into a higher Court upon appeal. With regard to the question as to the retrospective action of the rules, he contended that the new rules would justly apply to all proceedings in any cause subsequent to the passing of such rules. Now, the rules did not apply to the verdict, but they did most undoubtedly apply to the motion for a new trial, which was made after the rules were issued. At the conclusion of the arguments, the Lord Chancellor said the House would take time to consider their judgment. His lordship subsequently announced that judgment will be delivered on an early day after the Easter recess.

OXFORD CIRCUIT: HEREFORD.—The Hennor Murder.—Thomas Watkins was convicted on Wednesday of the wilful murder of Mary Ann Watkins, his wife, at Hennor, near Leominster, on the 18th of January, under circumstances which were fully noticed at the time. Baron Pigott passed sentence of Death in the usual manner, holding out no hope of mercy.

NORTHERN CIRCUIT: LIVERPOOL.—The St. Helen's Murder.—James Clitheroe, a married man, employed in the St. Helen's Brewery, was convicted on Tuesday of the wilful murder of Mary Woods, a cripple, who kept a small school in the town, where the prisoner had carried on an illicit intimacy with her. It will be remembered that the young woman was found dead in her bed with her throat cut, and the prisoner lying by her side with his throat cut also in a shocking manner. Mr. Justice Willes passed sentence of Death in the usual manner.

BIRTHS.—On the 9th inst, at 4, Belgrave Square, the Lady BOSTON, of a daughter—16th inst, at 25, Chapel Street, Park Lane, Lady HILL, of a daughter, stillborn—9th inst, at 5, Leinster Street, Dublin, Lady MOLYNEUX, of a daughter—9th inst, at Croston Hall, Lancashire, the Lady ADELAIDE DE TRAFFORD, of a daughter—14th inst, at 38, Upper Brook Street, the Lady SELINA BIDWELL, of a daughter—15th inst, at East Barsham, Norfolk, the Hon. Mrs. DELAVAL ASTLEY, of a daughter—20th inst, at Tredegar Park, Monmouthshire, the Hon. Mrs. FREDERIC MORGAN, prematurely, of a son, who survived its birth but a few hours—16th inst, at Wollaton Rectory, near Nottingham, the Hon. Mrs. CHARLES WILLOUGHBY, of a daughter—20th inst, at 33, Leinster Gardens, Hyde Park, Lady SCOTT, wife of Sir Sibbald David Scott, Bart., of a daughter—16th inst, at Darcy Lever Hall, near Bolton, the wife of Captain W. GRAY, M.P., of a son.

MARRIAGES.—10th inst, at St. John's Church, Kensington, Lieut.-Colonel W. T. RICH, 71st Highland Light Infantry, eldest son of the late Sir George Rich, to ADELAIDE, daughter of General the Hon. Sir CHARLES GORE, G.C.B., of Kensington Park Gardens—19th inst, at Trinity Church, Brompton, RICHARD RYDER, Esq., of the Inner Temple, to LIBYLLA SOPHIA, daughter of the late Right Hon. Sir Robert Grant—8th inst, at St. George's, Hanover Square, REGINALD DYKES MARSHALL, Esq., of Cookridge Hall, Leeds, to MARY JANE, eldest daughter of Rear-Admiral the Hon. K. STEWART, C.B.—10th inst, at St. Marylebone Church, FREDERICK WILLIAM, second son of H. R. CROZIER, Esq., of 25, Upper Gloucester Place, Dorset Square, to ELEANOR ROBERTA, second daughter of Major-General CHARLES E. GOLD—14th inst, at St. Nicholas Church, Brighton, CARTERET HOUSTON KEMPSON, Esq., formerly Royal Fusiliers, eldest son of the late Carteret John Kempson, Esq., of 16, Rutland Gate, Hyde Park, to MARY HAY, second daughter of the late ROBERT FRANCIS WALKER, Esq., R.N.

DEATHS.—On the 17th inst, at Windsor, of congestion of the lungs, arising from measles, CHARLOTTE AUGUSTA, widow of the late HERBERT COMENEALE, Esq., of Delbury Hall, Shropshire, and daughter of the late Lord Charles Somerset, aged 64—10th inst, at Park Lodge, Greenwich, ANNA MARIA, eldest daughter of the late Right Hon. METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, March 21.

We have a few more Beasts than on Monday last. Trade is slow, but there is scarcely a quotable reduction in price. A clearance cannot be quite effected. There is a considerable increase in the supply of Sheep, and the demand is very limited, consequently prices are lower, and several remain unsold. Choice Lambs and Calves are in request at full rates. From Germany and Holland there are 880 Beasts, 2330 Sheep, and 123 Calves; from Spain, 122 Beasts; from Scotland, 300; from Ireland, 190; and 2960 from Norfolk and Suffolk.

THURSDAY, March 24.

The number of Beasts is about the same as on Thursday last. Trade is very dull, and although we retain that day's quotations, the amount of business transacted is small. We have a larger supply of Sheep. There are now so few in the wool that we cease to quote them. Trade is very heavy, and prices on the average lower. Lamb is the principal feature of this day's market. They are not so plentiful as on the corresponding day last year, and are sold at high prices. Calves are rather higher. Our foreign supply consists of 470 Beasts, 650 Sheep, and 278 Calves. Milch Cows, 80.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, March 21.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and met a slow sale on the terms of this day se'nnight. The attendance was limited, very little business was done in foreign Wheat, and prices are nominally as last week. Fine Malting Barley brought last week's prices; other descriptions were a slow sale. Beans and Peas were unaltered in value. The Oat trade was dull, and prices were 6d. lower than this day se'nnight. Flour was neglected.

WEDNESDAY, March 23

There was a very moderate supply of English Wheat on sale at to-day's market, but its general quality was good. Selected samples were taken somewhat steadily, at full quotations, but all other kinds moved off heavily, at about previous rates. The show of foreign Wheat was tolerably extensive. Millers purchased cautiously, at prices about equal to Monday. Floating cargoes of grain were inactive, but there was some inquiry for Wheat for forward shipment from the Black Sea ports at previous rates. Malting Barley moved off steadily, and the currencies were well supported. In grinding and distilling sorts very little was passing at last week's quotations. Malt, the supply of which was good, moved off slowly; nevertheless prices were supported. Good dry Oats were in price; but heated samples were somewhat heavy, at Monday's decline in value. In Beans the transactions were on a limited scale, on former terms. Peas were held at full quotations, but the inquiry for them was inactive. Both English and foreign Flour moved off slowly, but no change took place in prices. The seed market was very quiet, at previous currencies. Bombay Linseed realised 62s. per qr. on the spot. In cakes very little was passing.

LIVERPOOL, March 22.—Our market has been very well attended this morning, both by local and distant buyers, and with a fair consumptive demand for red Wheats sellers have in most instances been able to maintain the quotations of Friday last; white Wheat is not asked for. Flour is altogether neglected, and importers must take less money to effect sales. Indian Corn remains steady at previous rates. Oats and Oatmeal still very dull. Beans less active at the recent improvement. Peas and Barley as before.

PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.—IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—
"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."
Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Beds, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Tobacco Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Collotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

PATENT WORCESTERSHIRE RANGE

PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, AWARDED for EXCELLENCE.
The above RANGE is most complete, and strongly recommended for its unrivalled ECONOMY, CLEANLINESS, CONVENIENCE, DURABILITY, and is a certain CURE for SMOKY CHIMNEYS.
It is an entirely new invention, and consists of large MEAT ROASTER, PASTRY OVEN, and WROUGHT-IRON BOILER. The top forms a HOT PLATE for BOILING, STEWING, &c. The whole Heated by ONE SMALL FIRE. One 5 feet wide equal to an ordinary Range 8 feet wide.
Extracted from the London Daily Telegraph, May 19, 1862.
"INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class 31.
"Of the most recent inventions it should be said that Messrs. JONES & ROWE'S Patent Worcestershire Range has attracted very special attention, and has been commended by the best authorities. A valuable peculiarity of their Range is the placing of the OVEN and ROASTER one above the other instead of side by side; and the ROASTER is constantly replenished with fresh air."

PHOSPHO GUANO.

PHOSPHO GUANO COMPANY LIVERPOOL
Company's Trade Mark.

EDINBURGH AND LONDON
Contractors' Trade Mark.

THE PHOSPHO GUANO, in its natural state, is found on trap-rock islets within the tropics. It was discovered in 1854; and its existence was made known in August, 1856, by Dr. VOELCKER, who read a paper at the Cheltenham meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, "On the Remarkable Composition of a New Variety of Guano, called Columbian or Maracaibo Guano," pointing out its peculiar fitness as the base of a highly concentrated phosphatic manure.

Its valuable and peculiar qualities immediately attracted the attention of the leading Agricultural Chemists, who pronounced it at once to be greatly superior to all other Guanos as a manurial agent. The result of careful experiments in the field having fully established this superiority, the consumption has increased year by year; and at the close of the seventh season, 1863, it has attained a position second only in consumption to that of Peruvian Guano.

The Baron LIEBIG, in the course of his investigations, discovered potash in the raw Guano, a discovery since confirmed by Dr. VOELCKER and other Chemists. To the presence of this substance (which is not found in any mineral phosphate) is attributable, in some degree, the great superiority of the PHOSPHO GUANO when compared with other phosphatic manures made from coprolites, apatite, Sombrero Guano, &c.

PHOSPHO GUANO contains in its natural state nearly double the quantity of phosphoric acid found in bones and other substances from which Superphosphates are prepared; and LIEBIG states that by using PHOSPHO GUANO, the farmer conveys to his field 26 per cent. more phosphoric acid than by a mixture of equal parts of Peruvian Guano and Superphosphate of Lime; while "the advantage for the improved quality of the soil appears still more in favour of the PHOSPHO GUANO, if the quantity of soluble phosphoric acid is taken into consideration."

One of the most important advantages of the PHOSPHO GUANO is its uniform composition, and in this particular it is equalled by no other manure; for with scarcely an exception, they all vary greatly in different samples, even when drawn from a comparatively small bulk.

All Chemists of standing have ceased to place a money value on manures submitted by them to analysis, as tending to lead to erroneous conclusions, owing to the disingenuous manner in which such values are paraded before the public eye by dealers; but for the information of those farmers who still have faith in this test, the money value of the PHOSPHO GUANO, calculated by the data hitherto in use, is, according to the mean average of Dr. VOELCKER'S analyses, 13*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.* per ton; and of Baron LIEBIG'S analyses, 14*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* per ton.

Peruvian Guano and PHOSPHO GUANO are respectively the representatives, in the highest degree, of the two most important manurial substances, ammonia and phosphoric acid. In Peruvian Guano there is 13.61 per cent. of nitrogen, yielding 7.0 of actual ammonia and 10.0 latent—and the latent, in the opinion of Dr. VOELCKER, is as available or nearly so as the actual ammonia—together with 3.0 per cent. phosphoric acid in soluble state. In PHOSPHO GUANO there are 18.027 per cent. of phosphoric acid in soluble state, and 3.50 per cent. actual ammonia.

As Peruvian Guano is acknowledged to be a cheap source of ammonia, so likewise PHOSPHO GUANO must be considered as a cheap source of phosphoric acid—much to be preferred to bones, superphosphates, coprolites, apatite, Sombrero and other inferior Guanos; while the proportion of 3.50 per cent. of actual ammonia constitutes it the best-balanced manure in the market.

If the results of practical experience were required to recommend the PHOSPHO GUANO, testimonials from many of the most eminent Agriculturists in the kingdom could be adduced; but the reader of this advertisement is particularly referred to the most recent of these, published in the last number of the Quarterly Journal of Agriculture (Jan. 1864), by Mr. HENRY STEPHENS, author of the "Book of the Farm," detailing the experiments made by the MARQUIS OF TWEEDDALE, with their successful results.

Pamphlets, containing a full description of the PHOSPHO GUANO, its History, Nature, Properties, &c., may be obtained on application.

PRICES AND TERMS.

The Cash Prices, including the cost of bags, Carriage Free at any railway station or shipping port in the kingdom, are as follows:—

For 10 tons and upwards, £11 10s. per ton. | For smaller quantities, £11 15s. per ton.

For full cargoes, direct to any port, special rates will be quoted.

CREDIT RATES.—Should the Consumer require credit, the price is increased at the rate of 2*s.* per ton per month.

To prevent fraud, all casks and bags are branded with the PHOSPHO GUANO COMPANY'S Trade Mark, as well as that of the Contractors, copies of which appear at the head of this advertisement.

There are Authorized Agents appointed for the sale of PHOSPHO GUANO in all the principal towns and villages in the United Kingdom; but where any difficulty exists in procuring supplies, orders may be sent direct to

GRAY'S OVAL TUBULAR BOILER.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class IX., No. 2119.

Mr. GRAY begs to call the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, Nurserymen, Gardeners, &c., to his acknowledged by practical judges to be a great improvement on every form of Tubular Boiler yet introduced. It has proved itself superior to all other Boilers for quickness of action and economy of Fuel, doing its work with one-third less the amount required by any other.

Extract from Report in Gardeners' Chronicle of International Exhibition, May 24, page 476.

"The upright form of Boiler is usually made on a circular plan, but the oval form given to Mr. GRAY's variety of it is said to be preferable in consequence of its bringing the tubes in closer contact with the fire. The usual form of a furnace being a parallelogram rather than a square, it seems feasible that the Boilers on the oval plan should bring the tubes more completely within range of the burning fuel; and this being so, the change, though a slight one, is no doubt an improvement."

They are made of all sizes, which, with prices, may be had on application.

A New Boiler.

THE PATENT UPRIGHT-CELLED BOILER, combining efficiency, economy, durability, and the possibility of cleaning every part.

The Patentee begs to bring to the notice of the public this Boiler, which is new in principle, and is constructed to give the greatest possible amount of heating surface in a given space. It has been in use for some years by amateurs and professional gardeners, as well as for heating large public buildings, and has never failed to give entire satisfaction.

The cost (which is less than that of any patent Boiler of equal power yet out) together with the great saving it effects, in fuel, bring it within the reach of all classes.

Testimonials and particulars as to price, the various sizes, &c. to be had on application to Messrs. CLARKE & HOPE, Horticultural Engineers, Lionel Street, Birmingham.

PATENT GUTTA PERCHA SOLES.—IMPORTANT TO GARDENERS.—The Gutta Percha Company have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of the following letter from G. GLENNY, Esq., the celebrated Florist:—

"Gentlemen,—I have worn Gutta Percha Soles and Heels these two years, and being so much in a garden as I necessarily am in all weathers, and with the ground in all states, I would on no account be without them. As a matter of economy I would recommend Gardeners to use them, for they may repair the worn part at all times by warming the material at the fire, and pressing it from the thick parts to the worn parts, as easily as if it were so much dough. I think it the duty of all persons who must occasionally wet their feet to adopt a material that completely defies damp. Many a gardener would escape colds and rheumatism by the use of Gutta Percha Soles. Your obedient servant, G. GLENNY."

Every variety of Gutta Percha articles, such as Mill Bands, Tubing, Soles, Sheet, Pump, Buckets, Fire Buckets, Bosses, Union Joints, Flasks, Bottles, Bowls, Chamber Vessels, Toilet Trays, Sponge Bags, Curtain Rings, Galvanic Batteries, Calbotype trays, &c., manufactured by the Gutta Percha Company, and sold by their wholesale dealers in town or country.

Oil Paint no longer Necessary.

HILL AND SMITH'S PATENT BLACK VARNISH for preserving Iron Work, Wood, or Stone. This Varnish is an excellent substitute for oil paint on all out-door work, and is fully two-thirds cheaper. It may be applied by an ordinary labourer, requires no mixing or thinning, and is used cold. It is used in the grounds at Windsor Castle, Kew Gardens, and at the seats of many hundreds of the nobility and gentry, from whom the most flattering testimonials have been received, which HILL & SMITH will forward on application.

From The Hon. Captain DUNCOMBE, Kilnwick Percy, near Pocklington, Yorkshire.

"Gentlemen,—Having now for some time used your Black Varnish, and that rather extensively, I have no hesitation in bearing my testimony to its superiority over all other paints or compositions for the purposes to which I have applied it, namely, to hurdle and wire fencing, some with wooden posts. I consider the Barrow of the greatest use, if not essential, in applying the Varnish in an expeditious and economical manner."

MEDICAL and ŒCONOMICAL BOTANY; or An Account of the Principal Plants employed in Medicine or Domestic Œconomy. In One Vol. 8vo, with numerous Woodcuts, price 7s. 6d.

EXTRACT FROM THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE.
"The Vegetable Kingdom contains, among a large quantity of plants of no known importance to man, various useful species employed in medicine, the arts, or in the many branches of domestic œconomy. The principal part of those which can be brought by teachers in Europe under the notice of students, or which, from their great importance, deserve to be among the earliest subjects of study, are mentioned in the following pages, where they are arranged in the manner proposed in the 'VEGETABLE KINGDOM' of the author, with the sequence of matter departed from in a few instances, when it was believed that the convenience of younger students would be consulted by doing so. The author trusts that this selection will be found to have been made in such a way that all teachers who possess reasonably extensive means of illustrating their lectures, and all Botanic Gardens, may furnish the larger part of the species which are mentioned. A small selection was indispensable; firstly, because a greater work would have been beyond the reach of the majority of purchasers; and secondly, because experience shows us that those who have to study a science of observation, such as Botany, require to concentrate their attention, in the first instance, upon a limited number of objects."

Dr. Lindley's Theory of Horticulture.
In 8vo, with 98 Woodcuts, price 21s. cloth.
THE THEORY and PRACTICE of HORTICULTURE; or, an Attempt to explain the chief Operations of Gardening upon Physiological Grounds: being the Second Edition of the "Theory of Horticulture," much enlarged. By JOHN LINDLEY, Ph.D., F.R.S., Corresponding Member of the Institute, Vice-Secretary of the Horticultural Society, Professor of Botany in University College, London, &c.
"The First Edition of this valuable work was issued in 1840, since which time it has had an extensive circulation, and has been translated into the German, Dutch, and even Russian languages. Being more particularly restricted to principles, however, the author at length resolved to render the work more generally interesting and useful by a more frequent reference to practical operations. He has thus greatly extended the matter, by supporting the physiological doctrines with an appeal to facts familiar to cultivators, or which ought to be; and the result is a still more interesting and popular compendium of the principles and practice, or the science and art, of horticulture."—Builder.
"This is a Second Edition of the 'Theory of Horticulture,' with the addition of a large quantity of practical matter, introduced to show how entirely scientific principles and good cultivation correspond. The volume contains about four times as much matter as the first edition. . . . Although very large additions are made to every chapter, while many passages in the first edition have been wholly struck out, it may be proper to say that the greatest changes are those which relate to vitality, climate, domestication, ventilation, propagation, pruning, resting, and soils and manures; such being the subjects in which practical men are most interested. The whole work has, indeed, assumed such a form as to make it evident that the great object of the author has been, not to produce a work suited to men of science, but one which every well informed gardener may understand and apply. As the volume concludes with a very copious index of matter, there is no difficulty in ascertaining where any given subject is treated of."—Gardeners' Chronicle.

INTRODUCTION to BOTANY. 4th Edition, greatly enlarged; with 6 Plates, and numerous Wood Engravings. Two vols. 8vo, 24s.
 It has been the Author's wish to bring every subject that he has introduced down, as nearly as possible, to the state in which it is found at the present day. In doing so, he has added so very considerable a quantity of new matter, especially in what relates to Vegetable Anatomy and Physiology, that the present Edition may be considered, in those respects, a new work.

"The subject is noble; and Mr. Dixon has treated it with rare vigour, spirit, and conscientiousness. The glorious victories won by Robert Blake are universally known; but to find out how they were won, and what sort of man achieved them, we must apply to the famous Republican Admiral's latest, best, and completest biographer. His narrative is not only historically valuable, but is terse, vivid, and dramatic in no ordinary degree. We especially like the manner in which the extraordinary events of Blake's period are interwoven with Blake's life; and the vigorous and masterly clearness of the descriptions of the sea-fights."—Leader.

The interest of his narrative never flags, whether he is dealing with the old Admiral and his worldly intrigues—with the youthful Quaker and his affairs—with the mature philanthropist and his rising colony—or with the bewildered and melancholy close of the great Quaker's earthly career,—the history is admirably sustained."—Gentleman's Magazine.
"Mr. Dixon's sketch of the Governor's life in his American dwelling is tempting and picturesque. His style is good and easy. There is life in his narrative and vigour in his descriptions."—Edinburgh Review.

Preparing for Publication, in Imperial Folio, each Part containing Five Coloured Plates, Price 1l. 1s.,
By JAMES BATEMAN, Esq., F.R.S., F.L.S., &c., Author of "The Orchidaceæ of Mexico and Guatemala."
Although founded by Humboldt and Bonpland early in the present century, it is only of late years that the genus Odontoglossum has received any considerable attention, either from the botanist or the cultivator. Not more than five species were assigned to it by Professor Lindley in 1832 ("Genera et Species Orchidearum," Part III.), these however had increased to 65 on the publication of the first Part of the same author's "Folia Orchidacea," in 1852, while they are now known to exceed a hundred, and we may expect to see that number doubled by the time that the favourite homes of the genus in the Mexican and Peruvian Andes shall have been thoroughly explored. In this case, Odontoglossum will become—next to Oncidium—the most extensive genus in the "Vanda" Section of the great Orchideous family, and might therefore almost seem entitled to a separate Work even if it had no other claims to independent treatment. Such, however, may be readily found; for
(1.) Its species affect exclusively the mountain-chains of Mexico, Central America, New Grenada, and Peru; not a single straggler having yet been discovered either in the West Indian Isles or in the low and sultry latitudes of the South American continent. In this remarkable fact we have clear indications of a distinct group.
(2.) A large proportion are eminently beautiful. They are usually of compact growth; their flowers are always exceedingly durable, and often deliciously sweet.
(3.) They do not require—indeed they will not endure—the great heat of most Orchid-houses; but they will thrive with proper treatment, in a mean temperature of about 60°, which is that of an ordinary greenhouse.
Unfortunately, it was long before this latter peculiarity in their habits—and consequently the secret of their cultivation—came to be fully understood; what wonder, then, if the labours of a Karwinski or a Galeotti, a Linden or a Schlim, a Pavon or a Warscewicz, should have added little to our collections of living plants, and that many of their most brilliant discoveries should at present be only known to us from dried specimens in our herbaria! The principle of cool treatment having at length however been fully established, the most strenuous efforts are being made by nurserymen and others to obtain fresh supplies of what we formerly lost, as well to search out new forms, and with this object, not fewer than seven collectors are now (January, 1864) busily engaged in ransacking the richest portions of the New World as seem to promise the richest harvest of novelty or beauty.
As the various collections arrive, they will doubtless be found to comprise many fine Odontoglossa, the most remarkable of which it is proposed to figure in a Monograph, specially dedicated to the genus; and the Parts of which will appear with greater or less frequency, as the materials for illustration can be had. Not more, however, than Four Parts will ever be published in a single year.
Full descriptions of the plants (in Latin and English) as well as careful directions for their cultivation, will accompany the Plates; and with the concluding Parts an Analysis of the Genus, and Conspectus of all its known Species, will be given.
The first Part is expected to be ready in April, and will contain figures of O. nebulosum, O. Uro-Skinneri, O. Insleayi, O. Phalænopsis, and O. auro-purpureum.
The Plates will be beautifully coloured, after drawings by Fitch and other eminent Artists. In particular cases, where the large habit of a species may prevent its being adequately rendered on the Coloured Plate, woodcuts will be added, giving, on a reduced scale, the general appearance of the entire plant.
Subscribers are invited to send their names to the Publishers, Messrs. LOVELL REEVE & Co., 5, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, W.C.

This day is published, in One Volume, demy 8vo, price 18s., illustrated with numerous Plans, Sections, and Sketches of Gardens and General Objects, a New Edition, greatly enlarged, of

The Prize Essay on
"THE REARING of CALVES."
By THOMAS BOWICK, Britannia Farms, Bedford (late Stoneleigh Abbey Farm).

By special permission of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a reprint from their Journal of the above Essay is now before the public, by Messrs. DAY, SON, & HEWITT, 22, Dorset Street, Baker Street, London. Price, by post, Three Stamps, or Five Copies for Twelve Stamps. This celebrated Essay should be in the hands of all Breeders, from the large Dairy Farmer down to the Cottager with his One Cow.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Bowick's Essay, in a concise way, goes into the question of the construction of the Calf-house, the condition of the Cow before Calving, the best season for Calving, the Feeding of Calves, the Quantity of Milk and other food, the Health and Disease of the Young Calf, the Spring and Summer Feeding, &c. We recommend the perusal of the Essay to those who are employed in rearing calves."—Mark Lane Express, November 1863.

"It is a cheap tract, well written, on a matter of great practical importance, and is certain to receive a wide circulation."—Agricultural Gazette, November 1863.

"The Essay will be very acceptable to farmers in general and a better two-penn'worth it would be impossible to recommend. It ought to be sown broadcast over England; and no farmer, bailiff, or servant in husbandry should be without it."—Worcester Herald, 2d January, 1864.

THE GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY,
Offices: 52, Parliament Street, S.W.
HENRY KER SEYMER, Esq., M.P., Chairman.
J. BAILEY DENTON, Principal Engineer.

Under this Company's Act tenants for life, trustees, mortgagees, guardians, committees of incompetent persons, beneficial lessees, corporations (ecclesiastical or municipal), incumbents, charitable trustees, &c., may effect the following land improvements, and charge the outlay and expenses on the estate improved, by way of rentcharge, to be paid by half-yearly instalments, viz:—

1. All works of Drainage, Irrigation, Warping, and Embankment.
2. The Erection of Farmhouses, Cottages for Agricultural Labourers, and all kinds of Farm Buildings.
3. The Construction of Roads.
4. The Grubbing and Clearing of Old Woodlands, Enclosing, Fencing, and Reclaiming Land.

The owners of estates, not entailed, who may be desirous to avoid the expense or inconvenience of a legal mortgage, may also charge their Estates with an outlay in improvements under the simple and inexpensive process of the Company's Act.

The term of years for the rentcharge is fixed by the landowner, so as to adapt the amount of annual payment to the circumstances of the tenants, the term for building works being limited to 31 years.

No investigation of title being required, and the charge not being affected by encumbrances, no legal expenses are incurred.

The arrangements for effecting improvements are threefold:—

No. 1. The works may be designed and executed entirely by the landowner's agent, and the Company employed only to supply the loan and conduct the matter through all the official forms for charging the outlay on the estate.

No. 2. The Company will supply plans, specifications, and estimates for any improvements to be executed by the landowner's agent as under No. 1. In each of these cases the landowner will be solely under the control of the Enclosure Commissioners.

No. 3. The Company will undertake the entire resposibility of the improvements, prepare the plans, execute the works, and finally charge on the estate the actual amount expended, with their commission thereon, approved by the Enclosure Commissioners.

Landowners may thus obtain what assistance they require from the Company, and no more, in effecting the objects in view.

Works of Drainage and other improvements are also executed on commission for landowners, who merely require the skill and experience of the Company's officers and a staff in constant practice.

Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Office of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.
To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

News of the Week.

A DESPATCH from Vienna states that the English proposal for a Conference on the Danish question has been accepted by Austria, Prussia, Denmark, France, and Russia; and that the first meeting will be held in London on the 12th inst. The French papers confirm this statement so far as it relates to the Great Powers, but assert that Denmark and Sweden have not yet replied. The Federal Diet on Saturday referred the proposal to a committee, and it is believed in diplomatic circles that it will be accepted by a large majority.

The ineffectual bombardment of Fredericia has been followed by the repulse of the allies before Düppel. On Monday morning, at 3 o'clock, the Prussians made an attack on the whole of the Düppel lines, and succeeded in penetrating between the trenches. The Danes, however, soon dislodged them, and though the Prussians returned three times to the charge they were as often repulsed by the Danes; and after seven hours' fighting the Prussian soldiers at last refused to obey the command of their officers to advance. The Prussian force was consequently compelled to retreat. One of the Danish iron-clads, the Rolf Krake, took an effective part in the contest, and seriously damaged the Prussian right. The loss on both sides was considerable. The deputies of the Holstein Estates have been convened by Professor BEHN, Count RANTZAU, Herr REINCKE, and Pastors VERSMANN and SCHRADER, to meet at Kiel on Tuesday next.

The committee of the Norwegian Storthing has unanimously agreed to the proposals of the Government relative to war armaments in favour of Denmark; and in the sitting of the Storthing on Wednesday a sum of 800,000 specie thalers was voted for armaments. The Government was also authorised to employ the army and navy in aid of Denmark should they deem it necessary. 6,000 troops of the line will immediately be placed on a war footing, and the whole fleet is to be fitted out for active service.

The negotiations between the Archduke MAXIMILIAN and the Emperor of AUSTRIA in reference to his rights as the heir presumptive to the Austrian Throne were brought to a favourable issue on Thursday, and the ARCHDUKE'S acceptance of the Crown of Mexico is expected to be announced shortly.

From the United States we learn that General HALLECK at his own request has been relieved of his duty as General-in-chief, and that General GRANT has assumed the command of the Federal armies. The new Commander-in-chief has announced that his head-quarters will be with the army of the Potomac, and it is said that he will concentrate a large force to attack Richmond. It is believed, however, that the Confederates are making extensive preparations to assume the offensive. President LINCOLN has called for 200,000 men, and if that number be not raised by the 5th of April the deficiency will be made up by a draft. General M'CLELLAN and General FREMONT have both been nominated for the Presidency by great meetings in New York. A conspiracy has been discovered in Kentucky, having for its object the annexation of that State to the Southern Confederacy. The new Italian steam frigate Ré Galantuomo is said to have foundered at sea. The fate of the crew is not yet known.

By the Calcutta and China mails we learn that the VICEROY will leave Calcutta for Simla during the present month, to return to it no more as the seat of Government. The position of the new capital, however, is not yet determined on. In China the position of affairs remains unaltered; and the latest news from Japan is pacific.

The Revenue Returns for the year and quarter ending the 31st ult., show a decrease of 224,657*l*. on the quarter, and of 394,598*l*. on the year. This decrease is explained by the late reductions of the tea duties and the income tax, and in both cases is much less than was expected. In all the other branches of revenue there is a steady increase.

Home News.

THE COURT.—The Queen and Royal family continue at Windsor Castle. On Good Friday morning the Queen, the King of the Belgians, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Arthur, and Princess Beatrice, attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Dean of Windsor officiated, and administered the sacrament. The Rev. H. Ellison preached the sermon. On Saturday morning the Queen drove in the grounds, accompanied by Princess Helena. The Portuguese Minister and the Right Hon. E. and Mrs. Cardwell arrived at the Castle on a visit. In the evening the Queen had a dinner party. On Sunday morning the Queen, the King of the Belgians, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Arthur, and Princess Beatrice, attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Dean of Windsor officiated, and administered the sacrament. On Monday morning the Queen walked and drove in the grounds, accompanied by the Princess Helena. The Portuguese Minister and the Right Hon. E. and Mrs. Cardwell left the Castle for London. Prince Philip of Würtemburg arrived on a visit. In the evening the Queen had a dinner party. In consequence of the death of the Landgravine of Hesse, grandmother of the Princess of Wales, her Royal Highness did not join the dinner party. On Tuesday morning the Queen, accompanied by Prince Arthur, walked in the grounds. Professor Owen had the honour of delivering before the Queen and Royal family the first of a course of four lectures on Natural History. The King of the Belgians and the Prince of Wales inspected Mr. Whitworth's one-pounder mountain gun, his large bore rifle, and his new hollow projectile. On Wednesday morning the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, came to London by a special train of the Great Western Railway. Her Majesty proceeded from Paddington to South Kensington, and visited the exhibition at the Horticultural Gardens. Her Majesty afterwards honoured the Countess of Elgin with a visit, and then returned to Windsor. The Prince and Princess of Wales and the infant Prince Albert Victor left the Castle for Marlborough House. Prince Arthur left the Castle for Greenwich Park. On Thursday morning the Queen walked and drove in the grounds, accompanied by Princess Louisa.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES, with the infant Prince, returned to Marlborough House on Wednesday from a visit to the Queen at Windsor Castle. The Prince afterwards visited Prince Philip of Wurtemburg at the Clarendon Hotel. The Duchess of Cambridge and Princess Mary visited the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House. On Thursday morning the Prince rode on horseback. In the afternoon the Prince and Princess drove to Kew, and visited the Duchess of Cambridge. Yesterday morning their Royal Highnesses, with the infant Prince, left Marlborough House for Sandringham, where they are expected to remain in comparative retirement until the third week in this month.

PRINCE ALBERT VICTOR, the infant child of the Prince and Princess of Wales, was vaccinated on the 17th ult. The desired effect was produced, and the Royal infant has passed through the various stages of the process in the most satisfactory manner.

PRINCE ALFRED went on Saturday with the Duke of Roxburgh and the Marquis of Bowmont, and fished in the upper streams of Floors Water, where he landed during the day 17 salmon. On Sunday the Prince attended divine service in the parish church of Floors. On Monday morning his Royal Highness returned to Edinburgh, and had a dinner party at Holyrood Palace in the evening. On Tuesday evening the Prince dined with the Lord Advocate, in Great Stuart Street. On Thursday his Royal Highness left for Wishaw House, to spend a few days with Lord and Lady Belhaven. The Prince is expected to go to Hamilton Palace, Cadzow, and other places of interest around Hamilton to-day.

COURT ARRANGEMENTS. — The Queen has been graciously pleased to announce her intention of holding a Court at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday next, the 6th inst., at which her Majesty will receive the principal members of the Corps Diplomatique, and at a second Court, to be held on Wednesday, the 13th, a limited number of distinguished persons will be invited to attend in order to have an opportunity of paying their respects to her Majesty. Drawing-rooms will be held on the 3rd and 14th of May, and the 14th of June, by the Princess of Wales, and Levées will be held on the 7th of May, and on the 1st and 22nd of June by the Prince of Wales, on behalf of the Queen. In the months of May and June two State concerts and two State balls will, by command of the Queen, take place at Buckingham Palace, and her Majesty's birthday will be celebrated on the 24th of May.

THE CABINET.—Summonses were issued on Tuesday for a Cabinet Council to be held this afternoon at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—Sir F. T. Baring has announced his intention to retire from the representation of Portsmouth at the next general election. There is a vacancy at Devizes, caused by the succession of the Hon. W. W. Addington to the peerage. Sir T. Bateson, Bart., is a candidate for the vacant seat, in the Conservative interest. There are three candidates for Lancaster, vacant by the retirement of Mr. Garrett, Mr. W. A. F. Saunders, of Wennington Hall, Ingleton, in the Conservative interest; Mr. E. M. Fenwick, of Burrow Hall, in the Liberal interest; and Mr. F. Somerville Head, son of Sir Francis Head, Bart, as an independent supporter of the present Government. Sir Morton Peto has announced his intention to retire from Finsbury at the close of the present parliament, on the ground that the amount of local business and the extent of correspondence it entails is too onerous for his health. He intimates, however, his readiness to enter Parliament again for a borough that will only require him to attend to public questions.

CONSECRATION OF THE BISHOP OF ELY.—The consecration of Dr. Harold Browne as Bishop of Ely took place on Tuesday in Westminster Abbey. The Archbishop of Canterbury and the Bishops of Worcester and St. David's officiated, assisted by the Dean of Westminster.

SURRENDER OF THE IONIAN ISLANDS.—The protocol putting an end to the English protectorate of the Ionian Islands was signed at the Foreign Office on Tuesday. Immediately afterwards Earl Russell and Mr. Tricoupi, chargé d'affaires for Greece, signed another document, stipulating pensions in favour of Ionian and other subjects whose services to the Ionian Islands had entitled them to that recognition.

THE REVENUE.—The Revenue Returns for the year and quarter ending the 31st March, show a decrease of 394 598*l.* on the year, and a decrease of 224,657*l.* on the quarter. The Year's Account shows an increase in the Excise of 1,052,000*l.*; Stamps, 323,000*l.*; Taxes, 68,000*l.*; Post Office, 160,000*l.*; Crown Lands, 5000*l.*; Miscellaneous, 282,402*l.*; and a decrease in the Customs of 802,000*l.*; Property Tax, 1,483,000*l.* The Quarter's Account shows an increase in the Excise of 462,000*l.*; Stamps, 65,000*l.*; Taxes, 10,000*l.*; Post Office, 10,000*l.*; Crown Lands, 2500*l.*; Miscellaneous, 136,843*l.*; and a decrease in the Customs of 189,000*l.*; Property Tax, 722,000*l.*

THE VOLUNTEER REVIEW.—The annual Easter Review of the Volunteers took place on Monday at Blackheath, a wide plateau of undulating ground lying about four miles in a south-easterly direction from the town of Guildford. Extraordinary preparations were made by the South-Eastern and South-Western Railway Companies for the conveyance of the troops, who numbered about 18,000, with 24 guns; and Guildford and the neighbouring villages had become so crowded with visitors for two days before that the General commanding at Aldershott was unable to send over the promised contingent of cavalry, from the impossibility of obtaining quarters for them. The distribution of the metropolitan Volunteers being as far as possible equalised between the two railways, arrangements were made for running about 12 trains with troops from London on each line, irrespective of trains required for the general public, for country Volunteers, trains with horses, &c. The Volunteers from London and the suburbs arrived at an early hour at their appointed termini, and the successive trains were despatched as fast as possible by the companies; but considerable delay occurred in getting the regiments safely landed and in motion towards the ground. The approaches to the Heath also were few and narrow, and the lanes were so steep and sandy that it was a difficult task to get the artillery upon the ground, even with the aid of the powerful teams supplied by the farmers of the neighbourhood. In consequence of these delays it was impossible to get the different corps in their places on the ground by 12 o'clock, but soon after that hour nearly all the attacking and defending forces began moving across the Heath in great masses to the positions assigned to them. At this time there was a great concourse of spectators on the ground which fringed the woods, and it was noticed with satisfaction that the Volunteers formed upon this broken and difficult ground with as much precision as if they had been on the turf of Hyde Park. About 1 o'clock the whole force was stationed at their allotted points of attack and defence, and almost precisely as the last disposition was made, the weather broke in cold, sharp showers, which fell with disagreeable frequency almost throughout the remainder of the day. The defending force, which was commanded by General Russell, was composed as follows:—

1st Sussex Artillery, six 18-pounders; 1st Middlesex Artillery, four 18-pounders; 1st Hants Artillery, 1st Cinque Ports Artillery, 2d Middlesex Artillery, 2d Surrey Artillery, 1st City of London Artillery, 1st Tower Hamlets Artillery, 1st Middlesex Engineers, 1st City of London Engineers, 1st Hants Engineers, 7th Battalion Middlesex, 36th Middlesex, 2d Middlesex (South), 4th Middlesex, 9th Middlesex (West), 11th Middlesex (St. George's), 32d Middlesex, 15th Middlesex (London Scottish), 19th Middlesex, 21st Middlesex (Civil Service), 38th Middlesex (Artists), 22d Middlesex (Queen's) 1st Battalion; 22d Middlesex (Queen's); 2d Battalion; 29th North Middlesex, 46th Middlesex, 2d City of London, 2d Battalion Surrey; 12th Surrey, 1st Battalion Surrey; 3d Battalion Surrey; 1st and 7th Surrey, 10th, 19th, and 23d Surrey, 2d Battalion Hants; 1st and 2d Hants, 3d Battalion Hants; 13th, 15th, 16th, and 18th Hants; making a total of about 9750 men.

Hon. Artillery Company, Horse Artillery, two 6-pounder guns; Field Battery, four 6-pounder guns. Light Cavalry. 3d Middlesex Artillery, four 18-pounders and four 24-pounders, Hon. Artillery Company, 2d Battalion Middlesex, 26th Middlesex, 37th Middlesex, 20th Middlesex, 28th Middlesex (London Irish), 39th Middlesex, 40th Middlesex, 48th Middlesex (Havelock), 4th City of London, 1st Battalion Sussex, 2d Battalion Sussex, 1st Sussex, 2d Battalion Essex, 3d Battalion Essex, 1st Battalion Kent, 6th Kent, 2d Cinque Ports, 1st City of London, 3d City of London, 1st Battalion Tower Hamlets, 9th Tower Hamlets, 2d and 8th Tower Hamlets, 4th and 6th Tower Hamlets, 1st Battalion Berks; making in all a total of about 8500 men.

Lieutenant-General Pennefather, K.C.B., commanded in chief, assisted by a numerous staff. The actual details of the evolutions of which the battle consisted may be summed up briefly, for though the mock contest lasted at least two hours, its most striking feature was the sustained and tremendous fire kept up on both sides, as the peculiar nature and limited space of ground forbad any attempt at complicated or extended manœuvres. General Russell, with the defending force, occupied the ridge of hills stretching across the Common, facing rather to the south, where the main attack was anticipated from Farley Woods. The assailants, under General Rumley, may be said to have been divided into two bodies—one of about 4000 men, with eight guns, while the main body, of 5000 men, with two pieces of horse artillery and four field-guns, made a flank march under cover of the woods, and delivered the real attack on General Russell's extreme left, compelling the whole body to fall back, the guns covering the retreat. It was this feint and real attack, and the necessity which General Russell was under to bring his troops from his left to meet the flank attack on his right, which constituted the evolutions of the day, in which, from the absence of cavalry, there was a sameness almost amounting to monotony, as far as the spectators were concerned. The Volunteers, however, did their best by the rapidity of their movements to make up for the want of cavalry. At a little before 4 o'clock the manœuvres were brought to a close, and the troops were formed up in columns of companies for marching past. The ground over which they had to step was little less uneven, and quite as thickly overgrown with heather as any other part of the common. Under all the circumstances, and after such an exhausting day, this was rather a trying ordeal, but, nevertheless, all went through it with great credit, and some in such a manner as to elicit deserved applause. Thus ended one of the most fatiguing reviews the Volunteers have ever gone through, the great majority of them having been 10 hours in the ranks before they started to return to London. We regret to say that the day did not pass over without one fatal and two serious accidents. Many got heavy falls over the stumps of broom and gorse which lurked among the heather, and in two cases these unfortunately resulted in broken legs. The fatal accident happened to a clergyman, the Rev. Cuthbert Earle, Minister of the Catholic and Apostolic Church at Albury, who was shot in the abdomen by a ramrod, and so badly injured that he died on Wednesday morning. In all cases the sufferers were immediately removed to the hospital-marquee, erected in rear of the grand stand, and specially sent over for this duty from Aldershot. Beyond these unfortunate mishaps no other casualty took place.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The Paris papers announce that France has agreed to the project of a Conference, that Sweden and Denmark have not yet replied, and that the Federal Diet has referred the invitation of England to the Committees on the Schleswig-Holstein question, and will give its decision about the 1st of April. They add that Russia desires that the Treaties of 1851 and 1852 should form the basis of the Conference. The Weimar Gazette of Wednesday says:—

"According to reliable information, France has declared to the English Government that it would not be advisable to maintain the Treaty of London as the basis of negotiations, and that she considers universal suffrage to be the only means of arriving at a solution. France would express this view at the Conference."

The same paper asserts that some other Governments have made a similar declaration. The Constitutionnel of Tuesday publishes an article, signed by M. Limayrac, on the Danish Circular referring to the conduct of the Austrian and Prussian troops towards the inhabitants of Schleswig. The article points out the anomalous nature of their acts, and concludes thus:—

"Modern diplomacy should seek for a new code of international law, conciliating the liberty and dignity of nations and guaranteeing the preservation of the European balance of power."

The same paper of yesterday publishes another article, signed by M. Limayrac, pointing out the difficulties to be resolved in the question of the Duchies, and stating that the only equitable mode of settling it is universal suffrage. Another article by M. Limayrac appears in the same paper, maintaining that the enthusiastic reception which Garibaldi will meet with in London will be equally embarrassing to two of England's allies—Italy and Austria. The writer observes that while England is preparing to welcome Garibaldi, a soldier who has fought bravely for the independence of his country, she manifests scorn and indignation at Mazzini, the instigator of infamous conspiracies and the associate of assassins. The Court of Assize of the Seine, sitting without a jury, on Wednesday condemned Mazzini, by contumacy, to transportation for participating in the conspiracy against the life of the Emperor. Admiral Pénaud died at Toulon on the 25th ult. of acute inflammation of the liver. The statutes of the company established by Messrs. Pinard, Schmeider, and Talabot, on the same system as that of the Crédit Mobilier, were approved on Wednesday by the Council of State.

SPAIN.—The official Gazette publishes a Royal decree, dated the 22d ult., creating Christian IX. King of Denmark, Knight of the Order of the Golden Fleece. The Epoca of Wednesday advocates the recognition of the Kingdom of Italy by Spain. Banquets continue to be given in honour of the chiefs of the Progressista party, Senor Olozaga and General Prim. The latest have taken place at Saragossa, Valencia, and Alicante. The espousal of the Infanta Donna Maria Isabel of Orleans and Bourbon with her cousin, the Count of Paris, took place on the 19th ult. in the Palace of San Telme, with great solemnity. The ceremony was performed by the Cardinal Archbishop of Seville, and was followed by the ratification of the marriage articles. The President of the Audiencia of Seville acted as Chief Notary of the Kingdom, representing the Minister of Grace and Justice.

PORTUGAL.—The Ministerial measure for the abolition of the tobacco monopoly has passed in the Cortes by a majority of 24 votes. The American corvette St. Louis has arrived at Lisbon.

Switzerland.—Dr. Kern, the Swiss Minister at Paris, has informed the Federal Council that the negociations for a Franco-Swiss treaty of commerce have been renewed, but without much expectation of a successful issue. M. Humbert, the Swiss Envoy to Japan, has informed the Federal Council that the draught of a commercial treaty between Switzerland and Japan had been prepared, but was not yet signed.

Norway.—The Committee appointed by the Storthing to examine the Government Bills, and to report thereon, has unanimously recommended that Assembly to accept the proposals relative to war armaments in favour of Denmark. The report said:—

"Although the Norwegian people does not wish for any further intimate political connection with Denmark, the ruin of that State would, nevertheless, arouse the strongest sympathy in Norway. The Committee, therefore, recommend the adoption of the Government Bill, upon condition that Sweden and Norway should also have allies."

In the sitting of the Storthing on Tuesday a sum of 800,000 dols. specie was voted for armaments. The Government was also authorised to employ the army and fleet in aid of Denmark should they deem it necessary. Six thousand troops of the line will be placed on a war footing, and the whole fleet is to be fitted out for active service. The Royal Life Guards and one battalion of each regiment have already received orders to hold themselves in readiness to march. It is rumoured there that the appearance of the Austrian squadron in the Baltic will be considered by the Swedish and Norwegian Governments as a casus belli.

Denmark.—The Danish Government has addressed to its diplomatic representatives at the various European Courts a voluminous and elaborately compiled protest against the mode in which the German Powers have carried into execution their intervention in the Duchy of Schleswig. The protest shows that, in taking the step which necessitated war, the allies were actuated by different motives than those which ostensibly induced them to invade the Danish territory. It adduces the sworn informations of persons resident in Schleswig at the time of the entry of the allied armies, to prove that the royal authority was superseded, and the officials dismissed irrespective of their birth, whether German or Danish, and in violation of the terms of a proclamation declaring that on fulfilment of certain conditions they should be permitted to retain office under the Provisional Government. It further charges the allies with offering no opposition to the insurrectionary movement organised in favour of the Prince of Augustenburg, but, on the contrary, with having endeavoured by every means in their power to overthrow the subsisting order of things. It therefore urges upon neutral States the inconsistency of the conduct pursued by the allied Powers with the language which they have hitherto held. Since this protest was published two circumstances have occurred which confirm the charges brought against the German Powers. It appears that the Marshals in command of the allied armies have allowed their troops to destroy a monument which had been erected at Flensburg to the Danes who fell in the rebellion of 1848, and to carry away the armorial bearings of Denmark and Schleswig, the medallion portraits of the principal officers who died in that struggle and a couching lion which surmounted the monument as a symbol both of the kingdom and the Duchy, and also to efface the boundaries of the churchyard around it. They have also permitted the troops at Haderslad to cut away the slabs which had been fixed in the wall of the Town Hall bearing the initials of the late King Frederick VII., and to carry them away as trophies.

The Danish Duchies.—At 3 o'clock on Monday morning the Prussians attempted to surprise the Danish position at Dybböl. They penetrated between two of the trenches, and afterwards made an attack on the whole Dybböl lines. The fighting became hand-to-hand, the troops engaged using the butt ends of their muskets as well as the bayonet. The Prussians were thrice repulsed, and at last the Prussian soldiers refused to obey their officers' command to advance. The Danish iron-clad Rolf Krake took an effective part in the contest, and fired on the Prussian right from Wemmingbund. The engagement lasted seven hours. The Danes had 100 killed or wounded, but took 27 Prussian prisoners. The Prussian loss was 136 killed wounded, and missing. They took 53 Danish prisoners. On Tuesday the Austrians left Horsens, marching southwards, and in the course of the day the town was reoccupied by the Danes. The Austrians had previously informed the commander of the Danish man-of-war stationed off the town that on the first shot fired from the ship the place would be given up to pillage and destroyed. At Assenderup, where on Wednesday the Danes took twenty-three Hussars prisoners, the Prussian troops burned several farms out of revenge. Ten Hussars were taken prisoners on Thursday. It is reported that a portion of the Prussian division of the Guard has gone to Fredericia to co-operate with the Austrians in continuing the siege of that place. Several engineer officers of high rank have arrived at Rendsburg, in order to survey and select ground for the erection of a new line of fortifications. The King of Denmark arrived at Aarhuus on Tuesday, and at once proceeded to Randers. Five Danish steamers, two transports, and one sailing vessel have made their appearance off the north of Arcona (Rugen Island). The Deputies of the Holstein Estates will meet at Kiel on Tuesday next. They have been convened by Professor Behn, Count Rantzau, Herr Reincke, and Pastors Versmann and Schrader.

Wurtemburg.—The King has determined that during his illness the prerogatives of the Crown shall be more absolutely transferred to the Council of Ministers, and that the Crown Prince shall preside at the Council and sign documents in His Majesty's name.

Frankfort.—At the extraordinary sitting of the Federal Diet on Saturday a communication from England was submitted in reference to the Conference between Austria, Prussia, England, and Denmark, as well as an invitation to the Diet to take part in the proposed Congress. The matter was referred to the committees, with instructions to report upon them with the least possible delay. The Diet, however, will not vote on the question until the representatives of the minor States receive instructions from their respective Governments, who are expecting to be made acquainted by Austria and Prussia with the bases which the latter intend to lay down for the conclusion of peace with Denmark. In diplomatic circles it is generally believed that the Diet will accept the Conference by a large majority.

Prussia.—The King, on the anniversary of his birthday on the 22d ult., in a most cordial manner expressed to the Ministry his approval of the policy adopted both at home and abroad. An official notification of the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, Marine, and Commerce, published on Tuesday, announces that the blockade of the ports of Stralsund, Wolgast, Barth, Griefswalde, and Cummin, as well as Swinemunde, has not yet been carried out; and the Prussian cruisers have been ordered to inform all the trading vessels of neutral States they may meet on the high seas, that no Prussian port of the Baltic has been placed in a state of blockade by Denmark. Count Bernstorff, the Prussian Minister in London, has contradicted a report which has been current, that at the banquet at Buckingham Palace after the baptism of the son of the Prince and Princess of Wales, he refused to drink the toast of "The King of Denmark."

Austria.—A despatch from Vienna states that the Conferences for the settlement of the Danish question will begin in London on the 12th of April. The official journals say that the Conference, without bases for negotiations and without armistice, has been accepted by Austria, Prussia, Denmark, France, and Russia; and that Austria desires that the Federal Diet should send a special representative. Difficulties have arisen in regard to the Archduke Maximilian's departure for Mexico, caused it is said by the necessity of coming to an understanding as to the rights of the Archduke, as heir presumptive to the Austrian throne. The Oesterreichische Zeitung of Thursday says that the negotiations between the Archduke and the Emperor on this subject were brought to a favourable issue on that day, and that the Archduke's acceptance of the Crown of Mexico is expected very shortly.

The Adriatic.—The line-of-battle ship Kaiser and the flagship Elizabeth passed the island of Lissa on Sunday. They were coming from Pola, and steering in a south-westerly direction.

Hungary.—The military organisation of Hungary by the revolutionary party is being proceeded with on the basis of the former regimental lists of National Guards (Honveds). The greater part of the former colonels and majors of the Honved Corps of 1848 have been arrested.

Venetia.—Letters from Venetia to the 22d ult. report that demonstrations have occurred in all the cities of that province to celebrate the anniversary of the revolution of 1848. Several arrests were made in Venice. It was believed that the visit of the Emperor of Austria to Venetia would be postponed until the first fortnight in April.

Italy.—Letters from Rome state that the Pope officiated in St. Peter's on Easter day. On account of the rain His Holiness bestowed the public benediction inside St. Peter's, instead of, as is usual, from an exterior balcony. His Holiness had previously undergone an operation for a tumour on his leg, and has since been in better health. The alarming rumours which have been current respecting him are said by the French papers to be without foundation. The Military Gazette of Turin denies that a camp of observation is to be formed at Bologna. Advices from Rome confirm the intelligence that fresh enlistments of brigands are taking place.

Ionian Islands.—The demolition of Fort Vido was completed on Tuesday.

Russia.—On Thursday, being the 50th anniversary of the entry of the allies into Paris, a review of the Guard took place in front of the Monument of Alexander I. The Invalide Russe, in an article on the subject, says:—

"Every nation has its own way of perpetuating glorious reminiscences. In France and England the monuments, streets, and bridges bear the names of victories. In Russia the exploits of our forefathers live in the hearts of the people, and the anniversaries are celebrated by reviews.

Poland.—Intelligence from Warsaw states that the entire general staff of the Russian army has been transferred from Warsaw to the camp near Kalisch. General Borg is shortly to follow. On the Polish frontier near Inowraslaw the Prussian troops have discovered numerous bands of insurgent volunteers. 50 Russians were captured, and the remainder succeeded in escaping to Poland. A detachment of insurgents under Corea, coming from Galicia, crossed the frontier of the palatinate of Lublin, after an engagement near Radsyn, which lasted 12 hours. Another more important engagement occurred near Wonchock, in the palatinate of Radom, between the insurgent corps under Bossak and the Russians, which is said to have resulted favourably to the former.

Turkey.—Mustapha Pasha has retired on account of ill health from the Ministry of Finance, and has been replaced by Kiamil Pasha, but remains in the Cabinet without a portfolio. The Grand Vizier retains the superintendence of the Finance.

Danubian Principalities.—It is said that Prince Couza, under pressure of the menaces of Austria, has consented to take measures against the Polish and Hungarian refugees. A motion expressing censure and want of confidence in the Ministry has been rejected by a large majority in the Chambers.

India.—The Calcutta mail of Feb. 22 states that the Viceroy and Council will leave Calcutta for Simla in the course of the present month to return to it no more as a seat of Government. Although Calcutta will cease to be the seat of the civil administration of India, it will continue the head quarters of the commander-in-chief. All was quiet on the frontier up to the 14th ult. The arrangements for opening the Bombay, Baroda, and Central India Railway to Surat will be completed by the 1st of April.

China.—From Pekin we have no news, the cold weather having closed up the usual access to the capital. In Shanghae the prevalence of crime is arousing the serious attention of those in authority, and it is stated that arrangements are in progress for the punishment of native criminals by foreign authorities. From Fuhchau we learn that the district mandarin is about to be degraded for his inefficiency in quelling the recent anti-missionary riots.

Japan.—A great fire which lately took place at Osaca has completely destroyed a portion of the city about five miles in circumference. Fires have also occurred at Kanagawa, and in the neighbourhood of Yokohama. The Prussian treaty has been ratified. The Swiss have made a treaty, which was to take effect from the 3rd February, on which day it was to have been signed at Yeddo. The French and American ministers have succeeded in obtaining a reduction of the duty upon various articles.

United States.—An order from the War Department announces that General Halleck, at his own request, has been relieved from the position of General-in-Chief; that General Grant has been appointed to succeed at head-quarters, both at Washington and in the field; and that Gen. Halleck has been assigned to the duty as Chief of the Staff of the Army, under the direction of the Secretary of War and the General-in-Chief. The same order confers upon General Sherman the command in the South-West, vacant by the promotion of General Grant. Gen. McPherson is to command the army in Tennessee. General Grant officially assumed the command of the Federal armies on the 18th ult., and announced that his head-quarters in the field would be with the army of the Potomac. General Sherman has also assumed his new command, with his head-quarters at Nashville. His official despatches confirm the failure of his Mississippi expedition. The Confederate General Bishop Polk, at Demopolis, Alabama, in congratulating the troops on the retreat of General Sherman, said, "Never did so grand a campaign, inaugurated with so much pretension, terminate more ingloriously." The Confederates are apparently about to assume the offensive. General Johnston has advanced a large force of cavalry, infantry, and artillery to Taylor's Ridge, near Ringgold. Stuart, with 5000 cavalry, is reported across the Rappahannock, at Fredericksburg, menacing Meade's communications; the Confederates are also moving upon Barboursville, in West Virginia. Troops are embarking at Vicksburg for a campaign, in conjunction with General Banks, against the Confederates in Louisiana, and General Sherman has impressed all the steamers at Vicksburg to convey the troops up the Red and Washita rivers. Through revenge for Colonel Dahlgren's death, Kilpatrick's cavalry, at Norfolk, Virginia, made an incursion into King's and Queen's County, laid in ashes the town and county seat of that name, and destroyed a large amount of private Confederate property. The inhabitants were driven from their homes, and many pursued and killed. Mills, granaries, and houses were included in the general destruction. The Federal loss in the battle at Olustee, Florida, is now shown to be upwards of 2500 killed and wounded. The actual number of Federals captured is not yet made known. The Confederates have captured one white and two coloured Federal regiments which recently occupied Yazoo City. Admiral Farragut has abandoned the attack on Mobile. General Longstreet has mounted his forces, and it is reported that he will proceed to North Carolina. The Free State Government has been publicly inaugurated at New Orleans with imposing ceremonies. The wife of General Beauregard has died in that city. At the funeral a great public demonstration of sympathy was made. In Kentucky the Governor has protested against the enlistment of slaves, declaring that he will carry out the state laws against persons taking slaves without the consent of their owners. President Lincoln, on the 15th, issued a call for 200,000 additional troops, allowing until the 15th April for filling up the quotas by volunteering. The present high bounties will be continued until the 1st. Both Houses of Congress have passed the Bill authorising Secretary Chase to sell the surplus of gold in the Treasury, with the amendment that the obligation to create a sinking fund, according to the Act of February, 1862, shall not be impaired. The Congressional Committee has reported upon the resolution requiring the President to inform England of the intention of the Federal Government to terminate the Canadian Reciprocity Treaty in September, 1865, unless the treaty be, meanwhile, modified by agreement of both Governments. A great meeting of Democrats, who advocate General M'Clellan for the Presidency, was held at the Cooper Institute on the 17th ult. The speeches and resolutions denounced the Administration and Abolitionists, and declared General M'Clellan to be the only man capable of rescuing the nation from disintegration and ruin. On the following day General Fremont was nominated for the Presidency by a great meeting. The platform was entirely Abolitionist. It proclaimed equality of all men before the law, without distinction of race or colour, and denounced the initiation of serfdom by attaching the person of the labourer to the soil. The United States District Court has ordered the restoration of the barque Saxon and cargo to the owners. President Davis has appointed the 8th of April for fasting and prayer. A conspiracy is reported to have been discovered in Kentucky, extending through several towns and counties, having for its object the annexation of that State to the Southern Confederacy. Numerous arrests have been made of persons organising companies to join the Southern armies. The prize steamer Peterhoff was recently sunk off Cape Fear by coming in collision with a United States transport. The British ship Star of the West, which has arrived at New York, reports meeting an Italian frigate in a sinking condition on the 7th ult. The Star of the West consented to lay by her all night. After 11 o'clock the frigate ceased replying to the signals, and in the morning she had disappeared. She is supposed to have been the Rè Galantuomo, the new war steamship constructed for the Italian Government. One British, one French, one Russian, and two American war vessels have sailed from Halifax and New York in search of the frigate and her crew, who numbered 406 persons.

MEXICO. — Juarez has published a letter denying that he had resigned the Presidency. He had attempted to establish his seat of Government at Monterey, but had been expelled from that city by the Governor of the State, Vidaurri, who had abandoned the Juarez cause. Gonzales Ortega is also reported to have joined the Imperialists. The capture of Zacatecas by the French, with the occupation of numerous other towns, is confirmed. The French corvette Cordellière has captured the Mexican vessel San Francisco with despatches for Juarez. Four French war steamers were blockading the port of Acapulco.

SAN DOMINGO.—The Spanish are reported to be making no progress in San Domingo.

Metropolis and its Vicinity.

THE APPROACHING VISIT OF GARIBALDI.—The mail steamship Ripon, with Garibaldi and suite on board, touched at Gibraltar on Tuesday and proceeded to Southampton. After staying for a few days at the country seat of Mr. Seely, M.P., in the Isle of Wight, he will come to London and be the guest of that gentleman at his town residence at Rutland Gate. Meetings have been held in London for the purpose of arranging the details of his reception, and a general feeling has been expressed that it would be more acceptable to Garibaldi himself to place at his disposal a sum of money for the purpose of being applied to any future enterprise he may undertake than to waste it on entertainments or personal offerings which he is not likely to accept. Mr. Richardson, a member of the Court of Common Council, has given notice of his intention to move, at their next meeting, that the freedom of the Corporation of the City of London be presented to General Garibaldi, in a casket of the value of 100 guineas.

THE PROPOSED NEW COURTS OF JUSTICE.—The number of houses intended to be taken for the construction of the new courts of justice is 162, situated in that colony of courts in St. Clement Danes, between Yeate's Court and Lower Serle's Place, including Clement's Lane, Plough Court, New Court, Old Boswell Court, Robinhood Court, Cromwell Court, and other dilapidated and closely confined localities, the houses varying from two to twenty rooms, and being generally badly drained. The estimated number of families to be displaced is 210, and the promoters state that no provision has been made to remedy the inconvenience, if any, likely to arise from such displacement.

THE THAMES EMBANKMENT.—For some days past hundreds of cartloads of earth, sand, and chalk have been thrown into the Thames for the purpose of forming a foundation for the Thames Embankment at the bottom of Norfolk Street, Arundel Street, and the adjacent streets which run down to the river. At this spot and eastward to the Temple Gardens the works for the embankment are going on rapidly. In the course of a few days the ship Royalist, which was one of those which went out in the search for Sir John Franklin, but which has of late years served the purpose of a Thames Police Station, will have to leave her old quarters at the bottom of Norfolk Street and find a position in some other part of the river. The works between Westminster Bridge and Hungerford are going on with great rapidity, vast numbers of men being employed day and night in carrying out the plans.

HOLBORN VALLEY IMPROVEMENT.—The number of houses proposed to be taken and pulled down for the purposes of this improvement amount to 154, containing from four to twelve and two to ten rooms each, situate in Shoe Lane, Plum Tree Court, and other adjacent courts in the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn, on the south side, and in Great Saffron Hill, Field Lane, Cock Court, Green Dragon Court, Fox and Knot Court, Hosier Lane, Turn Again Lane, and other localities in the parish of St. Sepulchre. The number of persons to be displaced by the demolition of these localities, as far as can be estimated, is 2216, but provision is proposed to be made by the Corporation of London to remedy the inconvenience of such displacement by building in some suitable spot in the neighbourhood model lodging houses for the classes ejected.

MILITARY FRAUDS AT WOOLWICH.—A reward of 30*l.* has been offered by the authorities of the War Department for the apprehension of a recruiting sergeant named James Saunders, who has been employed in Woolwich garrison for many years, and who appears to have succeeded in realising some thousands of pounds, by means of perjury and false attestations. It was his duty to enlist and receive recruits from other depôts, and to carry out the preliminaries for their being sworn in. On the production of the attestation papers bearing the signatures of the local magistrate, the majority of which were forged he was entitled to a bounty of 15*s.* Considerable sums of money were likewise paid over to him, under a claim for rations and pay due to recruits not in existence. Colonel Wodehouse, who has recently succeeded to the command of the Royal Artillery Depôt Brigade, having received information which induced him to suspect the sergeant's probity, he was placed under arrest in charge of Sergeant Harvey, who was recently reduced from the grade of sergeant-major for insubordination and breach of discipline. At roll call he managed to make his escape from the custody of the guard, and has not since been heard of. The circumstances of his escape are suspicious, and Sergeant Harvey has now taken his place under arrest for complicity with his escape. It is feared that other persons in authority in the garrison are implicated.

A STURGEON AT ROTHERHITHE.—On Saturday morning, as the foreman of the labourers at Acorn Wharf, Rotherhithe, was at work on one of the barges, his attention was drawn to the dorsal fin of a large fish just above the surface of the water. With a boat-hook and a rope, together with the crane on the wharf, he succeeded in landing what turned out to be a very fine sturgeon. It measured 7 feet 2 inches, and weighed 1 cwt. 1¼ lbs. In the course of the day it was taken to the Mansion House and presented to the Lord Mayor.

THE MARYLEBONE MURDER.—At the adjourned inquest on Tuesday the jury returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against Arthur John Devine, who had previously been committed by the magistrates for trial for the murder of Mr. Duck. They accompanied their verdict with an expression of dissatisfaction at the conduct of the Home Secretary in not allowing the prisoner to be brought before them.

GREAT FIRE IN THE CITY.—On Tuesday morning a fire broke out in the warehouse of Messrs. Pewtress, the extensive paper manufacturers in Gracechurch Street. The premises were stored with paper, and fears were entertained for the banks in Lombard Street, which the warehouse closely adjoins. The flames were not subdued until the greater part of Messrs. Pewtress's premises were destroyed, and great damage done to the chapel of the Society of Friends, White Hart Court, now temporarily occupied as the banking-house of Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, & Co., during the building of their new establishment, as well as the shops of Messrs. Frodsham, the chronometer makers, and Messrs. Blanch, the gunmakers.

MURDER AT AGAR TOWN.—On Monday week the adjourned inquest was resumed in the King's Road, Camden Town, on the body of a woman unknown, discovered floating in the Regent's Canal on the 16th ult., with her clothes torn off and her skull fractured in such a manner as to leave no doubt that a fearful struggle had taken place, in which she was cruelly murdered. The body when found was much decomposed, having apparently been about three weeks in the water. Every endeavour has been made by the police to get the body identified, but without effect, and with a view of enabling the police to make further inquiry, the inquest has been adjourned to the 11th inst.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Registrar-General's Weekly Return states that the deaths registered in London in the week that ended Saturday, March 26, were 1397. The average number in the corresponding week of the ten years 1854-63, corrected for increase of population, was 1419; the present return is therefore 52 below the average. During the week the births were 974 boys and 923 girls, in all 1897 children, were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number was 2068.

BUCKINGHAM.—A shocking case of murder and attempted suicide occurred a few days since in the town. For some time a man called William Stevens, aged 27, a tailor, had been paying his addresses to a young female called Anne Leeson, 18 years of age. The latter, however, had been constantly in dread of him, in consequence of his having stated that if she would not marry him he would take good care no one else should, for he would blow her brains out. He carried a razor in his pocket for several days, with which he threatened to murder his sweetheart, and he appears to have shown it to deceased herself a few days before her death, when they were walking together a short distance from the town. On their return home the girl told her sister that he had behaved improperly to her, and that she would never walk with him again alone. Two days afterwards, while the girl was on her way to get some water from a pump, Stevens, who had been lurking in an adjoining passage, rushed after her in the street, and deliberately drew the razor across her throat. The wound severed the windpipe and larger vessels in the neck, causing almost instant death. The murderer then inflicted a frightful wound in his own throat, from which he is now suffering, with very little prospect of recovery. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of Wilful Murder against him, but he is still so ill that it was impossible to bring him up for trial at the present assizes, and the case has consequently been ordered to stand over to the next assizes.

BURSLEM.—At the Borough Police Court on the 8th ult., six informations, lodged under the Coal Mines Inspection Act, were heard against Messrs. Fox and Ward, proprietors of the Booden Colliery, near this town. The defendants were charged with not having an adequate break attached to the engine, not having the flywheel of the engine securely fenced, using a single-link chain for lowering and raising the men employed in the pit, not having a proper indicator showing the position of the load in the shaft, not having a proper steam gauge to the boiler, and not securely fencing the shaft of a pit out of use. The defendants were convicted and fined 40*s.* in each case, with costs, making altogether 15*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

CANTERBURY.—On Sunday evening a man named Horton, about 25 years of age, a labourer, attempted to take the life of Esther Cullen, a servant in the employ of Mr. Rigden, in Castle Street, in this city. He had for some years been keeping company with the young woman, but she had on several occasions slighted him, and about two years ago he was bound over by the magistrates to keep the peace towards her. On Sunday evening, while the family were at church, he went to the house, and on finding from the girl's sister that she was at home he rushed into the kitchen where she was sitting, and drawing a new pistol from his coat pocket fired it close to the right side of her head. Fortunately, the ball had fallen from it into his pocket, and she was consequently only scorched by the discharge. The man then drew another pistol, and placing the muzzle to his own head discharged it. The ball tore up the flesh across the forehead and fractured the skull, but did not cause death. He then drew a pocketknife, and thrust it into his neck, and died almost immediately afterwards. The jury at the inquest returned a verdict of felo de se.

FALMOUTH.—The War Office authorities have liberally offered to grant a lease of the lands surrounding Pendennis Castle, for the use of the public, on condition of their being converted into recreation grounds, by the construction of carriage roads, promenades, &c. A committee has been already formed, and 200*l.* have been subscribed towards the 1000*l.* required to effect the object.

FAVERSHAM.—On Saturday night the 19th ult. the 2d Kent Artillery, two batteries, two of the Sheerness Dockyard Volunteers, and the Gillingham Volunteers, one battery, were exercised in a sham attack and defence at Faversham. By permission of the naval authorities three gunboats from Sheerness were brought into requisition to aid in the operations. The manœuvres extended over an hour, in which the various corps acquitted themselves in a very satisfactory manner.

LIVERPOOL.—A Board of Trade Inquiry has been held in this town respecting the abandonment of the ship John Linn, while on her voyage home from Madras to Liverpool, with a cargo of cotton, valued at 150,000*l.* Captain Browning, the master, in his account of the matter, stated that the ship was sinking, and no effort of himself or the crew could save her. But the captain of a foreign vessel, the Deogaum, now at Flushing had reported that he fell in with the abandoned vessel; that there was little water in her hold; and that he could easily have taken her into port if he could only have spared men from his own ship. Finding that he could not accomplish this, he set fire to the ship and cargo. The Court found that little reliance could be placed upon the assertions of the foreign captain that he could have saved the ship, and that on the other hand Captain Browning and his crew used every exertion to get her into a port of safety, and only abandoned her in extremity, and to save life, after 24 days of unremitting exertion. The Court, therefore, restored Captain Browning his certificate, and at the same time expressed their opinion that the captain of the Deogaum had no business to set fire to the abandoned ship on his own responsibility.—At the borough police court on the 19th ult., three men who had previously been charged with having piratically seized the American schooner the Joseph L. Gerrity while on a voyage from Matamoras to New York, were brought up for final examination. The magistrate said he was inclined to consider the case as one of piracy, but in a matter of such consequence to the prisoners he wished to give them the opportunity of applying to the superior courts. He would, therefore, remand the prisoners, to afford them that opportunity.

LYNN.—The leakage which occurred recently in the great dam of the Middle Level has been stopped. It has been ascertained that there was not any defect in the syphons, as had been also supposed, but only in the flange of the tube connecting the air-exhausting pipe with one of the syphons. This defective flange has since been removed. The syphons continue to act satisfactorily, so far as it has been found necessary to use them, but the amount of rainfall still continues below the average, and the efficiency and capacity of the syphons to pass the waters of the level in a time of heavy and continuous rain still remains to be tested.

MANCHESTER.—A few days since a woman called Ann Leslie was taken before the magistrates on a charge of shooting at a gentleman whose name was then unknown. She was remanded for further inquiry, and the police have since made some discoveries respecting her antecedents, and the person at whom she fired. They have ascertained that she came to Manchester, from London, about 10 years ago, and for some time she kept the London Pie House, in Oxford Road. She afterwards lived in Bath Street and Embden Street. The person at whom she discharged the revolver is a Manchester merchant, carrying on business in one of the principal streets in the city. It is a singular circumstance that all the information which the police have obtained is traceable to a scrap of paper which she was observed to tear in pieces after she was taken to the police station. Another circumstance has also been discovered which shows the determined character of the attack. After discharging one barrel of the revolver, she attempted to fire the remaining four, but one of the bullets fortunately slipped to the mouth of the chamber, and so prevented the barrels revolving.

NEWARK.—A shocking tragedy occurred at a village called Fiskerton, near this town, on Tuesday. A young man named Parker had a quarrel with his father about his misconduct in absenting himself from home, and going about drinking. After threatening his father with blows, the son took down a double-barrelled gun, and as his father and mother ran out of the house he shot them one after the other through the window. Both are still alive, but are not expected to survive. The prisoner is in custody.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Messrs. Morrison, of this town, have just forged the largest and most powerful steam hammer in the world for the Russian Government. The piston rod to which the hammer is attached is a ponderous piece of metal, weighing no less than 42 tons in its rough state, and now, when dressed down to the required dimensions, it has only been reduced to 35 tons. Its length is 38 ft., its diameter 2 ft. 4 in., having a stroke of 14 ft. 6 in., the piston being 6 ft. 8 in. The forging of this mass of metal occupied 44 days. The cylinder for the hammer was cast at the Elswick Works. Its diameter inside is 6 ft. 8 in., its weight upwards of 40 tons. The two standards weigh nearly 40 tons each. The united weights of the hammer bar, the cylinders, and standards amount to over 150 tons.

SHEFFIELD.—Mr. Rawlinson, the Government inspector, has reported to Sir George Grey that having visited the works in progress at the Agden embankment now in course of construction near the site of the late catastrophe, he found that everything objectionable at the Bradfield embankment which has failed, is now in course of repetition at the Agden embankment. Sir George Grey immediately warned the Directors of the Sheffield Waterworks of the very serious responsibility they would incur if, after the failure of the Bradfield Reservoir, and with a knowledge of the opinion expressed by eminent engineers, as well as by the coroner's jury, they should continue to construct the Agden embankment on the same plan. The Directors have consequently given orders for the stoppage of the works at Agden, until they have obtained the best possible advice as to the future construction of the reservoir. Mr. Rawlinson is now engaged in making an official inspection of the Doe Park and other reservoirs belonging to the Bradford corporation.

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.—The local committee of the Tercentenary Festival in honour of Shakespeare having determined to place the responsibility of selecting a site for the monumental memorial to Shakspeare in the hands of gentlemen of recognised taste and judgment, have transferred their powers to a committee, consisting of the Earl of Carlisle, Earl Somers, Sir Robert N. C. Hamilton, Sir Coutts Lindsay, Mr. Charles Buxton, M.P.; Mr. Robert Bell, Mr. Layard, M.P.; Mr. Stirling, M.P.; Mr. Beresford Hope, Mr. Theodore Martin, Mr. Gruneisen, Mr. Gambier Parry, Mr. Tom Taylor, Mr. John Ruskin, and Mr. Alfred Tennyson. A sub-committee of these gentlemen having recently visited Stratford and inspected the various sites proposed, have arrived at an unanimous conclusion as to the principle of choice and the site which is most available. Their report, which has just appeared, states the grounds of their selection of the Bridge Street site as uniting all the conditions required:—

"It is eminently central, being situate at the intersection of four of the principal streets of the town. It is the most accessible point in Stratford-on-Avon. A memorial placed there would satisfy all the conditions of effect, being approached in front by a gradual ascent, along the broad space of Bridge Street, with side views from both east and west, while at the back it might be combined with the Market House, which would have to be substituted for the present one, should this site be appropriated to the Memorial. On the space thus cleared might be erected an elegant and effective loggia in the Elizabethan style, with terra cotta ornamentation of from 50 to 60 feet long, by 25 to 30 feet wide. In its rear there would be room for a new market-house, which might be made to harmonise in design with the Memorial. Into the details of the design your sub-committee do not consider it within their present province to enter; they would only submit that there is nothing irreverent or appropriate in placing the memorial of Shakespeare in the midst of the bustle of Stratford market. Indeed, such a place seems singularly suitable to such a purpose. Not only is the art of Shakspeare eminent for its healthy humanity and its intense sympathy with the realities of life, but the man himself was content to retire from the capital to his quiet native town; to set himself down among his schoolfellows, early acquaintance, and neighbours; to cultivate his own land, sell his own beeves and sheep, wool, wheat, and malt in this very market; to be a commonplace burgess of Stratford-on-Avon, while he was giving every year some immortal play to the world. A Stratford-on-Avon Memorial, we think, may well symbolize both sides of this double existence. The poet's statue might be set up here, surrounded, on the one hand, with illustrations of the marvellous creations of his mind, on the other with the everyday life and business of the town at its busiest."

The town itself would thus gain an object of additional attraction to the many associations connected with Shakspeare which draw thither the travellers from all lands: and the name of Shakspeare would be appropriately honoured in the place of his birth by the best combination of the fine arts which our century can devise. In addition to this monumental memorial, various plans have been arranged for celebrating the Festival in the town. These include a banquet, performances of the Poet's plays, a concert, a ball, readings, and exhibitions, for all of which the first talent of the day has been gratuitously enlisted, while the future interests of the locality are not to be overlooked, as the surplus of the proceeds is to be applied to the improvement of Stratford Grammar School.

WHITEHAVEN.—The Archbishop of York last week paid a visit to this town, of which he is a native. As this was the first visit of his Grace since his elevation to the episcopal bench, the inhabitants turned out to do him honour. The Volunteers were drawn up as a guard of honour when he went to church, and the clergy and churchwardens presented an address of congratulation. The Archbishop, in reply, expressed his appreciation of the goodwill evinced by the people, which he said was no common support to a person in his position. The office and duties of a bishop in these times were not free from difficulties, and looking at the future, he could not see that those difficulties were likely to be diminished.

WRECK OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK STEAMER.—The Inman steam-ship City of New York, which left New York on the 19th ult., struck on Daunt's Rock on entering Queenstown harbour on Tuesday morning. The rock penetrated her bottom under the starboard bunker, opposite the mainmast, and the ship speedily filled with water to her main deck. The specie, mails, the passengers, 153 in number, and the crew were saved, and it is expected that her cargo, which is chiefly cotton, will be saved if weather continues fine, but in a damaged state. The Port Admiral at Cork immediately sent down to the wreck two gunboats with a large number of seamen, and several tug boats to assist in lightening the vessel and striking the rigging. All the Cunard tenders at Queenstown also went down to render assistance. The position of the vessel on Thursday was very precarious, and it was feared that she would soon break up. Yesterday however divers were able to go down, and they report that, with the exception of one hole near the forward bunker, the vessel has sustained no injury, and sits firm and upright upon the rock. This is the first serious accident which has befallen the American steamers running to and from Queenstown.

THE ATTACK ON MR. GORE JONES.—At the Tipperary Assizes at Nenagh, the man Hayes was convicted on his own confession of firing at Mr. Gore Jones, R.M., with intent to murder him. Mr. Justice O'Brien commented at length upon the heinous nature of the crime, and sentenced the prisoner to penal servitude for 20 years.

AGRARIAN OUTRAGE IN WESTMEATH.—A murderous attack was made a few days since upon a young farmer called Walsh, in consequence of his family taking a farm from which some persons had been ejected. The attacking party were seen to enter the field where Walsh was working by six or eight persons—among whom was his own brother—but they all distinctly affirmed that they were totally unacquainted with any of the party, and even asserted that they were unable to give a description of their personal appearance. For the last month the house in which Walsh resided had been closely watched by the police, and finding this to be the case, the party took the opportunity of attacking him when engaged on his farm, which is so situated as to afford many facilities for their escape, being distant one mile and a half from the nearest constabulary barrack. In spite of the difficulty of obtaining evidence from the witnesses of the outrage, the constabulary have succeeded in arresting seven persons belonging to the county of Kilkenny. Walsh has died of the injuries he received, but before his death, he recognised four of the men who are in custody.

THE MAYO MURDER.—At the Mayo Assizes, a woman called Bridget O'Neill, about 40 years of age, has been convicted of murder and sentenced by Baron Hughes to be hanged on Wednesday the 5th inst. Her victim was a poor dressmaker, whom she accused of setting fire to her turf. The prisoner met deceased in a field, and there murdered her with a reaping-hook. No one saw the blow struck, but the circumstantial evidence, given by 18 witnesses, left no doubt of her guilt. The body of her victim was found lying on her face in a hole, the head covered with blood, with three cuts on the forehead and a hole behind the ear, made by a stone which was lying near the corpse. The prisoner seemed quite insensible to her position, and angrily rebuked her husband for taking it to heart.

MURDER NEAR ALLOA.—On Tuesday the 15th ult. a lad, about 12 years of age, named James Paton, was found lying on the Stirling and Alloa road, near Tullibody Bridge, frightfully wounded and speechless, and on the following day he died of his injuries, which had clearly been the result of personal violence. Thomas Arnot, a surfaceman employed on the road, was apprehended on the same day, and on being examined before the Sheriff made a full acknowledgment of his guilt. He said that he was at work on the road, paring the footpath and cleaning the run-channel, when the boy came up leading a horse by the head, and brought his cart over the place which he had just finished. He felt so enraged at this that, without speaking a word, he raised his shovel and knocked the boy down with a blow on the back. He then with the edge of the shovel struck him two or three times on the head, and leaving him lying on the roadside, gathered up his tools and went home. He said he had no recollection of having seen the boy before, but added that he was so enraged at the time, that if the boy had been a giant he believes he would have served him in the same way. The prisoner, who is said to be eccentric, if not imbecile, and who was usually thought an inoffensive person, told his wife and others about the affair when he went home, expressing some remorse of conscience for the deed. On being apprehended he quoted to the officers the proverb "that those who were born to be hanged would never be drowned." He is a native of Perthshire, is 56 years of age, and has three daughters grown up.

WESTERN CIRCUIT: EXETER.—The Attempted Murder at Plymouth.—William Stone was indicted for having cut and wounded Elizabeth Ann Stone, his wife, with intent to murder her, at Plymouth, on the 16th January. It appeared that the prisoner and his wife had been married about 12 years. On the night in question they went to bed, being on the most amicable terms. About four o'clock the woman awoke and found a candle burning, and her husband lying by her side. She asked him what made him light the candle; he said it was time to get up. She told him it was not, and having put out the candle she went to sleep again. She awoke about seven in the morning and found her throat was cut; and that her husband's throat was cut also. In cross-examination she stated that her husband had been a petty officer in the navy; his mother was now in a lunatic asylum, and the prisoner's manner in the autumn became so strange that in October he was put into the lunatic asylum at Yarmouth; he came out of the asylum in December, but his manner was still strange, and she was afraid of him, and spoke to the people in the house about him, asking them to come to her if they heard any noise. He was an excellent husband and a good man, and she had no complaint to make against him. When the people went into the room they found the prisoner lying over his wife with his throat bleeding. He was asked what he had done it for, and he said his soul was gone to eternity for a long time. He then asked a soldier who was present to go to a drawer and get a razor, and let him finish it; and wanted the soldier to do it for him. The prisoner then said the job was badly done. A surgeon was immediately sent for, and his opinion was that the prisoner was a lunatic. The jury Acquitted the prisoner on the ground of insanity.——TAUNTON.—The Taunton Murder.—James Howell, a costermonger at Bath, who in 1856 was convicted of manslaughter for killing his wife, and sentenced to six years' penal servitude, was charged with the murder of a woman named Susan Cleverley, with whom he had lived since the expiration of his previous sentence. The evidence showed that he had constantly treated her in the most brutal manner, and that a few days before her death the persons living in the same house, and also in the adjoining houses, were awoke by cries of murder and noises as of a person jumping upon some substance. On entering the room they found the woman upon the floor, bleeding profusely from the face, and the prisoner jumping upon her body. A policeman was called in, but the woman refused to give him into custody, saying that if she did so he would be sure to kill her afterwards. She died a few days afterwards from the effects of the injuries. Her body was frightfully bruised, and the medical evidence clearly showed that death was caused by injury to the brain, resulting from the prisoner's blows. The jury returned a verdict of Guilty of Manslaughter. Baron Martin told the prisoner he had been found guilty upon the clearest evidence, and that his crime approached as near to murder as it was possible. For a man to knock a woman down, as he had no doubt he did, for the mere tearing of a shirt, then to jump on her, strike her, and blacken both her eyes, was an act as scandalous and unmanly as it was unlawful. He had before killed another woman, for which he had suffered penal servitude, and he would now be sentenced to be kept in penal servitude for life.

NORFOLK CIRCUIT: NORTHAMPTON.—The Ringstead Murder.—William Weekly Ball, a man 47 years of age, and described as a butcher, was charged with the Wilful Murder of a girl called Lydia Arley, 14 years ago. The case has for some time excited great interest in the county, and was fully noticed in our Provincial news when the supposed skeleton of the deceased girl was found in a ditch near the orchard in which she was last seen alive in the company of the prisoner. Similar skeletons have since been discovered in the same spot, and it appears that gipsies have been in the habit of burying there. When the case was called on, the counsel for the prosecution stated that the evidence, though grave, was too imperfect to go to trial. He proposed, therefore, to abandon the case for the present, and if further evidence appeared—and some additional evidence had already appeared—the prisoner could be again apprehended. The counsel for the prisoner objected to this course, but the Judge intimated that it would be best for the prisoner's own interests. The case was then formally abandoned for the present.

Miscellaneous.

DIARY OF THE JAPANESE AMBASSADORS.—The Japanese Ambassadors who visited this country last year have published their diary through the bookseller Fou-yah, at Yeddo. Among other things it is therein said that the people of the West are very little different from each other; the dresses are the same as well as the weapons, though one nation manages them better than another; the French, above all, appear to excel therein. Ceremonies and honours are very easy, and the honours to be paid to a sovereign are very nearly the same as to a person of inferior rank—one takes his hat off, makes a small reverence, and therewith the thing is finished. At our audiences with the Princes they were not separated from us by a curtain; even the Princess was not veiled, and sits as high as the Prince. The Lords were very civil, even too civil, for they allowed us to eat and drink more than was in accordance with our ceremonies. The lower classes were less civil, and unequivocally demonstrated that they thought us ugly. Among the women there are many handsome ones, among others the Empress of the French. They run like a man. In order to appear taller they wear a high bonnet. Even fashionable women dance very much; they hang on the arm of the men, and one sees the men frequently run along the street in the arms of women. We believe them to be their own wives. Women in general enjoy too much liberty, and the fashionable ones wear the same dresses as those of the lower class. The dress of the women, especially at night, is not always decent. Excepting the Dutch women, all other European women stand below the French. The men are stiff, rough, and a little proud; they wear no weapons, and very seldom the distinctions of their rank. It appears that everybody, and even the fashionable people, frequent the cafés. High officers even frequent the theatres. We were sorry we could not understand everything there. Almost everybody had a spying-glass, which, perhaps from distraction, was always directed at us. The merchants are proud, and the shopkeepers do not like one to turn their articles too much about. It annoyed us very much to see raw meat exhibited in the towns. Eating meat is often very healthy, but why exhibit it to every one? In Paris and London they run (walk) very fast, just as they do in our country when there is a fire. The houses are so high that they must be destroyed at the first earthquake. They appear, however, to stand against fire.

BIRTH OF A CAMEL IN MANCHESTER.—A double-humped Bactrian camel, in the collection of Messrs. Sanger, at the circus, in Manchester, gave birth to a fine male calf on the 23d ult. This is believed to be only the second instance of the birth of a camel of this species in this country. The first occurred at the London Zoological Gardens; but the dam did not take kindly to her offspring, which could not be reared in consequence. In the present case the dam at first took little or no notice of the calf, except to make an attempt to bite it. A little kindness and attention, however, altered her temper; and then she took kindly to the young camel and suckled it, having an abundant supply of milk. Both are now doing quite well. Soon after its birth, the calf measured 3 feet 6 inches in height and weighed 58 lb. Like the mother, it is brown in colour except the humps, which are black. In the calf, however, the humps are unformed; the parts where they will grow are only indicated by small patches of thin, loose skin, resembling oil-skin, and in size bearing no proportion to the bulk attained by the humps in the full-grown camel.

Obituary.

HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE LANDGRAVINE OF HESSE, aunt of the late King of Denmark and grandmother of the Princess of Wales, died on Monday last. Her Royal Highness the Princess Louisa Charlotte of Denmark was daughter of Frederick, Prince Hereditary of Denmark, and sister of the late King Christian VIII. She was born in 1789, and married in 1810 William Landgrave of Hesse, by whom she had issue the Princess Marie, married to Prince Frederick of Anhault Dessau; Princess Louisa, the present Queen of Denmark; Prince Frederick William George, married to a daughter of Prince Charles of Prussia; and Princess Augusta, married to Baron Blixen-Fineke, Hereditary Seigneur of Dalland. The Princess of Wales and several members of the royal houses of Germany will be placed in mourning by the death of her royal highness.

THE PRINCESS VICTORIA GAUROMMA OF COORG, god-daughter of the Queen, died prematurely on Wednesday at the house of her husband, Colonel John Campbell, in George Street, Portman Square. She was the daughter of the late Rajah of Coorg, at whose request she was baptised into the Church of England, in the private chapel of Buckingham Palace, in 1852, her Majesty, Viscountess Hardinge, and Mrs. Robert Drummond officiating as godmothers, and Sir James Weir Hogg, Bart., Chairman of the East India Company, as the god-father, the ceremony being performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, to whom the Rajah had written a touching appeal on behalf of his daughter's Christian education, although he himself remained a strict Brahmin of the Sudra caste. The Princess was subsequently confirmed, under the auspices of the Queen, and a few years ago she married Colonel John Campbell.

VISCOUNT SIDMOUTH died at Albury, near Guildford, on the 25th ult., in his 70th year. His lordship, William Leonard Addington, Viscount Sidmouth, of Sidmouth, county Devon, in the peerage of the United Kingdom, was in holy orders, and had been in declining health for some months past. He was the only surviving son of the first viscount, who was for 12 years Speaker of the House of Commons, and successively Mr. Pitt as Prime Minister in 1801. He was born in 17[illegible], and married, in 1820, the eldest daughter of the late Rev. [illegible] Young, by whom he had a numerous family, three sons and five daughters being still alive. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father, who died at a great age, in 184[illegible], and is now succeeded by his eldest surviving son, the Hon. William Wells Addington, M.P. for Devizes, born in 184[illegible], and married, in 1848, to his cousin, the eldest daughter of the Hon. and Very Rev. Dr. Pellew, Dean of Norwich, by whom lady he has a youthful family. His lordship was formerly in the navy, and obtained his commission of lieutenant in [illegible].

SIR ANDRIES STOCKENSTROM, Bart., late Lieutenant-Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, died on the 15th ult., at his residence, Talbot Terrace, Bayswater, in his 72d year. He was the eldest son of Mr. Andries Stockenstrom, of Stockenstrom, afterwards chief magistrate of Graaff Reinet, by the daughter of Mr. John Broeders, a resident at the Cape. He acted for some time as landdrost of Graaff Reinet, and was appointed lieutenant-governor of the eastern division of the Colony in 1834. He was also a captain in the Corsican Rangers. On his retirement in 1840, on a pension, he was rewarded for his services with a baronetcy. He married in 1828 the daughter of Mr. Gysbert Henry Maasdrop, and is succeeded in the baronetcy by his son, Gysbert Henry, born in 1841.

SIR FRANCIS HAMILTON LOFTUS, Bart., died a few days since, at his seat, Mount Loftus, Kilkenny, in his 87th year, after a protracted illness of many years.

MAJOR-GENERAL HARVEY died on the 11th ult. at his residence at Chester. He entered the army in 1825, served in the Syrian campaign of 1840-41 as assistant-adjutant-general, and was present with the Turkish forces at the affair with the garrison of Gaza, near Ascalon. For his services in Syria he was promoted to the rank of brevet lieutenant-colonel, decorated with the gold medal from the Sultan, and received the Syrian war medal from his own Government. In 1843 he rejoined the 14th Light Dragoons, then in India, and was present in 1844 at the bombardment and capture of the Mahratta fortresses of Panulla and Powunghur. For his services on that occasion he received the thanks of the Bombay Government in general orders. He attained the rank of major-general in 1858.

ADMIRAL PATTON died at his chambers, 20, Cockspur Street, on the 18th ult, in his 73d year. He entered the navy in 1804, and served in the Bellerophon as a midshipman at the battle of Trafalgar. He afterwards served in the West Indies on the Irish station, and at Portsmouth; and, while lieutenant of the Astedor, took part in a yard-arm-and-yard arm conflict of upwards of an hour, with the French frigate Etoile, which terminated in a drawn battle. He obtained post rank in 1819, and subsequently commanded the Rattlesnake and the Isis, in the West Indies. He accepted the retirement in 1846, and attained the rank of admiral only a few years since. He was son of Colonel Patton, formerly governor of the Island of St. Helena; and brother-in-law of the late Major-General Sir Henry Torrens.

ADMIRAL NEEDHAM TAYLER, C.B., died at his residence at Brixton, on the 19th ult., in his 81st year. He was born at Devizes, and entered the navy in 1796, on board the Royal George, 100, bearing the flag of Lord Bridport, and the following year was present at the mutiny at the Nore. He served as a lieutenant in the bombardments at Copenhagen, in 1807; and subsequently at Walcheren. He became a commander in 1810, and while commanding the Sparrow, 19, was actively engaged in the defence of Castro and in the breaching batteries at St. Sebastian, where he was dreadfully wounded. For these services he was twice gazetted advanced to post rank, and granted a pension of 200*l*., which, in 1815, was increased to 250*l* per annum, with the rank of C.B. He accepted retirement in 1846, became vice admiral in 1855, and admiral in 1861. Admiral Taylor was well-known for the improvements he introduced in gunnery, floating breakwaters, [illegible].

ADMIRAL SIR EDWARD TUCKER, G.C.B., died at his residence in Dover Street, on the 26th ult. He entered the navy in 1791, and, after seeing service in the Mediterranean, North America, and Cape of Good Hope, he obtained his commission as lieutenant in 1799. He was present in 1796 at the surrender of the Dutch squadron in Saldanha Bay. After being employed in several ships on the home station he served as commander in the West Indies. On obtaining post rank in 1807, he was sent to the East Indies, and commanded an expedition against the Moluccas, Amboyna, and other Dutch settlements, in 1810 and 1811. He afterwards commanded several ships on the home station. For his Indian services he was made a Knight of the Bath in 1815, and a Grand Cross of the order in 1862. In 1858 he was awarded a distinguished "service pension." He attained the rank of admiral in 1857. He married in 1817 the sister of Vice-Admiral Sir Byam Leeke, K.C.B.

PROFESSOR PILLANS, LL.D., of Edinburgh, died in that city on the 27th ult., in his 86th year. Since June last he had felt the weakness of old age; but his active habits enabled him to bear up almost to the last, and even within eight or ten days before his death, he was able to walk out-of-doors. On Thursday week however a slight cold passed into fever, and he became insensible and never afterwards recovered consciousness. He was born at Edinburgh (where his father carried on business as a letter-press printer) in 1788. In his youth he was for many years a private tutor at Eton; was then for nearly ten years rector of Edinburgh High School; and in 1820 was appointed Professor of Humanity in the University of Edinburgh, which office he filled for the long period of 43 years, ceasing to perform the duties only last year.

MR. JAMES HAY ERSKINE WEMYSS, M.P. for Fifeshire, died on the 29th ult. at his house at Buckingham Gate. He was the eldest son of the late Rear-Admiral Wemyss by the daughter of the 16th Earl of Erroll, and was born in 1820, so that he was only in his 35th year. He married in 1855 the [illegible] humous daughter of the late Hon. John Kennedy Erskine, by Lady Augusta Fitzclarence, who subsequently remarried Lord Frederick Gordon Hallyburton. He was elected for Fifeshire in 1859 in the Whig interest, and was recently appointed Lord-Lieutenant of Fifeshire, in the room of the late Earl of Elgin. He was Major-Commandant of the Fife Artillery Volunteers, and as a collateral branch of the family of Wemyss, inherited large estates in the county, including Wemyss Castle and Torrie House.

MR WILLIAM ROTHERY, late legal adviser to the Treasury in all matters connected with the slave trade, died on the 27th ult., in his 89th year. He was born in April, 1775, and only before the outbreak of the American War, as he remembered being taken by his father to see the [illegible] in the chapel in Lincoln's Inn Fields by the Lord [illegible] rioters. In early life he entered the office of [illegible] Proctor in Doctors' Commons, and soon rose to the that establishment. In 1821 he was appointed by the Treasury to be their Lordships' referee on slave trade matters, and held that appointment up to the year 1860, when at the advanced age of 85, owing to increasing infirmities, he was compelled to resign it. He was afterwards frequently employed by the Government on matters not immediately connected with his regular official duties. In 1836-7 he was engaged with some eminent lawyers and civilians in framing rules for the guidance of the Vice Admiralty Courts in our colonies. In 1840 he was associated with Sir Henry Bulwer for the purpose of settling, in conjunction with two Commissioners nominated by the French Government, the amount of compensation proper to be paid to British subjects for the forcible interruption of their trade by the French at Portendic, on the coast of Africa; and in 1844 he was appointed in conjunction with the present Judge of the Court of Admiralty, Admiral Denman, and the late Mr. Bandinel, was appointed to prepare a code of instructions for the guidance of naval officers employed in the suppression of the slave trade.

MR. LEONARD HORNER, F.R.S., died on the 7th ult. in his 80th year. Mr. Horner, who from an early age was attached to scientific pursuits, was in 1827 appointed Warden of the London Institution, and did much to organise it. In 1833 and 1834 he published several papers on the mineral kingdom in the "Penny Magazine," a periodical published by the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, of which Lord Brougham was the president. In 1833 he became one of the principal inspectors under the Factory Act, and has done much towards the physical improvement of factory workers and the prevention of accidents. On these subjects he has written many works. He was a brother of the celebrated Francis Horner, M.P., whose works he edited in 1843, and was the father of Lady Lyell, wife of Sir Charles Lyell, the geologist.

METROPOLITAN CATTLE MARKET.

MONDAY, March 28.

The supply of Beasts is much smaller than for some months past; it being holiday week, however, the demand is smaller. Trade is by no means brisk, but prices on the average are decidedly better. The number of Sheep is also smaller, but quite equal to the demand, and prices cannot be quoted higher. Lambs are not quite so dear as on Thursday, and Calves are rather dearer. From Germany and Holland there are 580 Beasts, 1770 Sheep, and 93 Calves; from Scotland, 270 Beasts; from Ireland, 78; and 1760 from Norfolk and Suffolk.

THURSDAY, March 31.

We are well supplied with Beasts, and trade is slow, consequently prices are not so good as on Monday. Sheep are not quite so plentiful as on Thursday last, yet there are more than can be sold. Prices on the average are rather lower. Good Lambs and Calves are scarce, and full prices are realised.

Our foreign supply consists of 415 Beasts, 570 Sheep, and 128 Calves. Milch Cows, 75.

MARK LANE.—MONDAY, March 28.

The supply of Wheat from Essex and Kent to this morning's market was small, and the condition somewhat improved; it was cleared at the prices of this day se'nnight. The attendance was moderate, and foreign Wheat taken in retail only at last week's quotations; the demand was chiefly confined to Russian and American red. Prime Malting Barley sells freely at late prices; other sorts are neglected. There is no alteration in the value of Beans or Peas. The Oat trade is quiet, but previous rates are maintained. In Flour there is but little doing.

FRIDAY, April 1.

The weather since Monday was unsettled and rough, with snow, hail, and rain storms. No interruption to the long prevailing dulness of the Wheat trade has occurred, and with the exception of Liverpool and Manchester, where a decline is noted of 6d. to 1s per qr. on Wheat, and a similar reduction in the value of Flour, prices have remained about the same throughout the kingdom. Fine Malting Barley has commanded full prices; in other descriptions of Spring Corn and Flour we observe no alteration of value. During the last fortnight 37 vessels have been reported off the coast. The floating trade has been very inactive; Maize has declined 1s. per qr., but no alteration has to be noted for any other description of grain. Linseed continues in good demand at rising prices. Paris, March 31.—Flour: Prices have improved a little, but the transactions have remained limited. The six marks for delivery this month are quoted equal to 33s. 3d per 280 lbs. The present stock of Flour is estimated at 15,870 cwt. In Wheat a few sales have been made at an advance of 6d. to 9d. per quarter, but a large improvement, is mostly demanded. The arrivals of English Wheat and Barley, of foreign Wheat, Barley, and Flour this week are good, of English Oats large, and foreign moderate. The attendance at to-day's market was small, and the business in Wheat, both English and foreign, was very restricted; prices must be considered nominally the same as on Monday. For Barley there was rather more inquiry, and Oats were 6d. per qr. dearer.

LIVERPOOL, March 29.—Although to-day's market has been very well attended, we have had only a very moderate demand, and compared with the rates of Tuesday last Wheat must be quoted 1d. to 2d. per cental lower ex ship, whilst flour remains very unsaleable at a reduction of 6d. per barrel and sack. Indian Corn is neglected, and all descriptions are the turn cheaper. Oats and Oatmeal very dull and rather lower. Beans steady at late rates. Market closes flat.

FRIDAY, April 1.—There was a fair attendance at market. Wheat in moderate demand at rather easier rates. Flour quite nominal. Indian Corn steady. Egyptian Beans unaltered. Oats and Oatmeal dull, a dragging sale.

In again submitting their LAWN MOWERS to the notice of purchasers, Messrs. SAMUELSON & Co. wish to state that they do not make annual changes in the principle of their LAWN MOWERS. Experience has fully proved that the general design on which their MACHINES have been built for many years past is the best, and their attention has been given therefore rather to substantial improvements in manufacture, reduction of the draught, and increase of durability by the use of malleable iron in place of cast metal, than to the production of ephemeral novelties. Their MACHINES are superior to all others for lightness of draught, elegance, and efficiency under all circumstances of ground and weather, being self-cleaning, and not liable to derangement in the gearing. Oil Paint no longer Necessary.

HILL AND SMITH'S PATENT BLACK VARNISH for preserving Iron Work, Wood, or Stone. This Varnish is an excellent substitute for oil paint on all out-door work, and is fully two-thirds cheaper. It may be applied by an ordinary labourer, requires no mixing or thinning, and is used cold. It is used in the grounds at Windsor Castle, Kew Gardens, and at the seats of many hundreds of the nobility and gentry, from whom the most flattering testimonials have been received, which HILL & SMITH will forward on application.

From Sir W. BELLAIRS, Knight, Mulbarton Lodge, Norwich

"Sir,—I have much pleasure in offering my testimony to the efficiency of your Black Varnish as a substitute for paint. I have used it for out-door purposes on wood and iron, and found it economical, easily applied, and giving an excellent brilliant black. The use of the Varnish is rendered much more expeditious and convenient by the assistance of the Heating Barrow, which I strongly recommend from experience.

Sold in casks of about 30 gallons each, at 1*s.* 6*d.* per gallon at the Manufactory, or 1*s.* 8*d.* per gallon paid to any Station in the kingdom.

THE PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASES

SOLE MANUFACTURER,

JAMES GRAY, HORTICULTURAL WORKS,

DANVERS STREET, CHELSEA, LONDON, S.W.

The PATENT IN-DOOR PLANT CASE is one of the most useful of the Gardening novelties of the day. It is a handsome ornament for the Drawing Room or Sitting Room, and at all times forms a fresh, pleasant, and interesting object to the mind and eye. It is always under command, and will preserve many of the most tender Exotic Plants through the severest winter with comparatively little of the trouble and annoyance attending the use of Lamps, Gas, and Heating appliances of any other kind.

To all who have a taste for the cultivation of In-door Plants, for raising Seedlings, striking Cuttings, &c. the Plant Cases will be found an inestimable boon.

PATENT WORCESTERSHIRE RANGE.

PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, AWARDED for EXCELLENCE.

The above RANGE is most complete, and strongly recommended for its unrivalled ECONOMY, CLEANLINESS, CONVENIENCE, DURABILITY, and is a certain CURE for SMOKY CHIMNEYS.

It is an entirely new invention, and consists of large MEAT ROASTER, PASTRY OVEN, and WROUGHT-IRON BOILER. The top forms a HOT PLATE for BOILING, STEWING, &c. The whole Heated by ONE SMALL FIRE. One 5 feet wide is equal to an ordinary Range 8 feet wide.

Extracted from the London Daily Telegraph, May 19, 1862.

"INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, Class 31.

"Of the most recent inventions it should be said that Messrs. JONES & ROWE'S Patent Worcestershire Range has attracted very special attention, and has been commended by the best authorities. A valuable peculiarity of their Ranges is the placing of the OVEN and ROASTER one above the other instead of side by side; and the ROASTER is constantly replenished with fresh air."

TESTIMONIALS of CUPISS'S CONSTITUTION BALLS, for HORSES and NEAT CATTLE.

Hawking Down House, Wiltshire,
To Mr. F. CUPISS, May 4, 1860.

SIR,—In answer to yours of the 1st, I beg to say you are quite at liberty to publish my opinion of your Constitution Balls, which I very much approve of for getting Horses into fine condition. They are also good for Sheep, especially Lambs when they are in a pining state, by making them into pills about the size of a nut, and giving two or three occasionally; the animal soon becomes strong and healthy.—I remain, yours respectfully, MORALITY RAWLINGS.

Mains of Arisay, Fortwilliam, N.B, Oct. 26, 1860.

SIR,—I have given your Constitution Balls to Horses and Cattle for the last four years, and have always been satisfied with their effect. I consider it a boon to any one keeping Stock to be able to get Balls so good and so sure in their effect.—I remain, yours obediently, JOHN CARTER.

From Capt. H. BURTON, Grange Farm, Rock Ferry, Cheshire.

From Mr. PRATT, King's Arms Hotel, Lancaster.

"I have found the Constitutional Balls most valuable for horses when taken up from Grass, and very beneficial to give them occasionally to Horses when turned out."

The Balls are prepared by FRANCIS CUPISS, Diss, Norfolk, Author of the Prize Essay of the Diseases of the Liver of the Horse. And may be had of all Patent Medicine Vendors, in Packets of 3 Balls, 1s. 9d.; and 6 Balls, 3s. 6d.; or 4 small Packets, 10s. 6d.; or 7 large Packets, 21s.; with full directions.

Persons using the Balls may consult the Proprietor gratuitously by enclosing a Stamp in a prepaid letter.

The Prize Essay on
"THE REARING of CALVES."
By THOMAS BOWICK, Britannia Farms, Bedford (late Stoneleigh Abbey Farm).

By special permission of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, a reprint from their Journal of the above Essay is now before the public, by Messrs. DAY, SON, & HEWITT, 22, Dorset Street, Baker Street, London. Price, by post, Three Stamps, or Five Copies for Twelve Stamps. This celebrated Essay should be in the hands of all Breeders, from the large Dairy Farmer down to the Cottager with his One Cow.

THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Mr. Bowick's Essay, in a concise way, goes into the question of the construction of the Calf-house, the condition of the Cow before Calving, the best season for Calving, the Feeding of Calves, the Quantity of Milk and other food, the Health and Disease of the Young Calf, the Spring and Summer Feeding, &c. We recommend the perusal of the Essay to those who are employed in rearing calves."—Mark Lane Express, November 1863.

"It is a cheap tract, well written, on a matter of great practical importance, and is certain to receive a wide circulation."—Agricultural Gazette, November 1863.

"The Essay will be very acceptable to farmers in general and a better two-penn'worth it would be impossible to recommend. It ought to be sown broadcast over England; and no farmer, bailiff, or servant in husbandry should be without it."—Worcester Herald, 2d January, 1864.

PROSPECTUS.

This Company is now erecting a first-class Family Hotel upon the extensive freehold grounds of more than an acre in extent, formerly belonging to Clarence House, the purchase of which has recently been completed by the Directors.

The grounds occupy a commanding area in the centre of the Marine Parade, facing the sea, and having the noble castle and extensive fortifications in picturesque contiguity.

From the existing want of Hotel accommodation of a residential character in the fashionable part of Dover, it is reasonable to suppose that the Clarence Hotel will be filled with visitors throughout the year, and the Directors are confident it will pay very large dividends to the shareholders.

The Company's Architect, Mr. Whichcord, has been successful in producing plans for the buildings proposed to be erected, which so thoroughly combine architectural symmetry and ample accommodation with extreme simplicity of construction as to have afforded the Directors the highest satisfaction in adopting them.

The erection of the Hotel has been undertaken by Mr. Lewis Glenton, with whom the Directors have concluded a very favourable contract for the purpose. Mr. Glenton's position as a contractor for large works, and notably as the constructor of the Grand Hotel at Brighton, now rapidly approaching completion, affords a most complete guarantee for excellence of workmanship and punctuality in completion, and the Directors esteem themselves fortunate in having effected an arrangement so calculated to serve the Company's interests.

The first stone of the Hotel was laid at the close of the past year by the Chairman of the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company, and the works are now in full progress.

A considerable portion of the Company's capital has been already subscribed, and the remaining shares are now offered to the public, to whom, as a sound investment, the undertaking is cordially commended.

Interest at the rate of 5*l.* per cent. per annum will be allowed upon all calls previous to the opening of the Hotel.

The elevation and ground plan of the Hotel, together with the Articles of Association, may be seen at the Company's Offices.

Applications for Shares may be made to the Secretary of the Company, accompanied with a deposit of 10s. per Share or banker's receipt for the same,

By order,
April, 1864. HENRY A. LINFORD, Secretary.

Drainage of Land.

MR. C. F. HUMBERT, F.G.S., of Watford, Herts, and formerly Senior Surveyor to the Tithe Commission, a Land Surveyor and Land Agent, more than 20 years established in practice, undertakes Works of Drainage either at a contract price, or to lay out and overlook the same at a commission of 5*s.* per acre; and he has at his command a staff of experienced workmen. His custom is to charge merely the expenses out of pocket in making the preliminary Survey and Estimate where the works are not carried out.

Drainage, &c.

MR. J. BEAUMONT, LAND AGENT, SURVEYOR, and DRAINAGE ENGINEER (for several years Assistant to Mr. Josiah Parkes), undertakes the Planning and Execution of Works of Drainage, and Estate Improvements generally; including Embankments, and River Works; Reclamation of Marshes and Waste Lands; Irrigation and Warping; the Erection of Farm Buildings, Labourers' Cottages, &c., either at the private cost of the Landowner, or through the medium of the various Land Improvement Acts.

Estates Surveyed and Mapped, or Inspected and Reported upon for contemplated Improvements.

22 Parliament Street, Westminster, S.W.

THE LANDS IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.
Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament in 1853.
2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster, S.W.

To LANDOWNERS, THE CLERGY, ESTATE AGENTS, SURVEYORS, &c. IN ENGLAND AND WALES AND IN SCOTLAND.

The Company advances money, unlimited in amount, for the following works of Agricultural Improvement, the whole outlay and expenses in all cases being liquidated by a rent charge for 25 years.

1. Drainage, Irrigation and Warping, Embanking, Inclosing, Clearing, Reclamation, Planting, for any beneficial purpose, Engines or Machinery for Drainage or Irrigation.
2. Farm Roads, Tramways and Railroads for agricultural or farming purposes.
3. Jetties or Landing places on the sea coast or on the banks of navigable rivers or lakes.
4. The erection of Farm Houses, Labourers' Cottages, and other Buildings required for Farm purposes, and the improvement of and additions to Farm Houses and other buildings for farm purposes.

Landowners assessed under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, Royal Charter, or Commission, in respect of any public or general works of drainage or other improvements, may borrow their proportionate share of the cost, and charge the same with the expenses on the lands improved.

No investigation of title is required, and the Company being of a strictly financial character do not interfere with the plans and execution of the Works, which are controlled only by the Government Enclosure Commissioners.

For further information, and for forms of application, apply to the Honourable WILLIAM NAPIER, Managing Director, 2, Old Palace Yard, Westminster S.W.

DRAINAGE LOANS are made by the GENERAL LAND DRAINAGE and IMPROVEMENT COMPANY to the Owners of Freehold Estates, Life Tenants, Trustees, Incumbents, Bodies Corporate, &c., for all works of Agricultural Drainage, as well as Irrigation, Enclosing, Road Making, Wood Grubbing, and Farm Buildings, sanctioned by the Inclosure Commissioners.

The advances are repaid by way of Rent Charge on the Estate created for such a term of years as the Landowner shall determine will best adapt the annual charge to the circumstances of the Tenants.

No investigation of title being required, or notices given to Reversioners or Mortgagees, no legal expenses are incurred.

The Company either supply the money expended by landowners in works designed and executed by their own Agents, or they undertake the entire improvement by their experienced staff, supply the weekly advances required, and charge on the estate the actual outlay in the works, and their commission thereon.

Applications to be addressed to WILLIAM CLIFFORD, the Secretary, at the Offices of the Company, 52, Parliament Street, London, S.W.

News of the Week.

BOTH Houses of Parliament have reassembled this week after the Easter Recess. In the Lords on Tuesday, in reply to a question from the Earl of DONOUGHMORE respecting the enlistments for the Federal navy at Cork, Earl RUSSELL expressed his opinion that the men were on board the Kearsage without the knowledge of the captain, and said that Mr. ADAMS, the United States Minister, had authority from his Government to dismiss at once any officer who might be instrumental in violating the Foreign Enlistment Act. The Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill was read a second time. The Marquis of CLANRICARDE moved for the correspondence with the Government of the Confederate States relative to the removal of British consuls from their territory. Earl RUSSELL said he had no objection to the motion, but suggested an alteration in its terms. The motion as amended, was agreed to. On Thursday the Earl of SHAFTESBURY called attention to the telegraphic announcement of the bombardment of Sonderborg and the destruction of its inhabitants without notice, and expressed a hope that, if the intelligence were true, the Government would send the Channel fleet to prevent the repetition of such atrocities. Earl RUSSELL said that he had telegraphed to Sir A. BUCHANAN, our Minister at Berlin, to ascertain the actual facts, and when he received an answer he would communicate it to the House. The Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill was read a second time. The Malt for Animals Bill and the Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill were read a third time and passed. Last night the Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill, and the Court of Chancery Dispatch of Business Bill were read a third time.

In the Commons, on Monday, Lord PALMERSTON stated that all the Powers who had signed the Treaty of London had consented to send representatives to the Conference on the Danish question, but that no answer had yet been received from the German Diet. The basis of the Conference would be an endeavour to restore peace to the North of Europe without an armistice. Mr. STANSFELD announced that since the House last met he had felt it his duty to tender his resignation, which had been accepted. At the same time he indignantly repudiated any cognisance of the criminal designs or proceedings of the Italian revolutionists, and reiterated his former declarations of disbelief in the complicity of M. MAZZINI in the late conspiracy against the EMPEROR OF THE FRENCH. Lord PALMERSTON expressed his regret at the loss of Mr. STANSFELD's services, and said that he had tendered his resignation in such terms as to leave him no option but to accept it. On the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. R. LONG moved for a select committee on the Post Office, with a special view to the improvement of the mails in provincial districts. The motion was opposed by Mr. PEEL and the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, and was negatived without a division. The House then went into a Committee of Supply on the Navy Estimates, and agreed to several votes after a long discussion on naval and dockyard affairs. The Union Relief Aid Acts Continuance Bill passed through Committee. On Tuesday Alderman SALOMONS called attention to the exemption from local taxation now claimed on account of property in the occupation of Government departments, and moved that all lands and buildings used and occupied for public purposes should be assessed to local rates, and pay rates accordingly. The motion was opposed by Mr. F. PEEL and the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER, and was negatived on a division by 52 to 30. The Select Committee on Turnpike Trusts was nominated. The Report of the Committee of Supply was brought up and agreed to. On Wednesday Mr. BLACK withdrew the Copyright Bill, and obtained leave to introduce in its stead another Bill to consolidate and amend the statutes relating to copyright. The Chain Cables and Anchors Bill passed through Committee with amendments. The Jersey Court Bill and the Registration of County Voters (Ireland) Bill were read a second time. The Union Relief Aid Acts Continuance Bill was read a third time and passed. Mr. ADAIR brought up a report from the Lisburn Election Committee, stating that they had come to the conclusion that they were no longer legally empowered as a committee to proceed further in the matter. On Thursday, in a speech of three hours, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER submitted his annual budget to the House. He said that the surplus for the past year, after all deductions, was 2,352,000*l.*, and that the accounts for the current year, at the present rate of taxation, would leave a surplus of 2,570,000*l.* over the estimated expenditure. He proposed to dispose of this surplus by altering the duty on corn and lentils from 1*s.* a quarter to 3*d.* a cwt.; to reduce the licence duty on the sale of tea from 11*s.* 6*d.* to 2*s.* 6*d.*, where the sale took place in small houses in country districts; to equalise the duties now payable on ecclesiastical benefices of a certain amount; to reduce the stamp duty on proxy voting papers from 6*d.* to 1*d.*; to reduce the duties on powers of attorney for receipt of dividends, and make a change in the stamp duties on settlements; to legalise the practice of marine re-insurance on paying a shilling stamp, and to extend the licences of beersellers by giving them the privileges now enjoyed by publicans. These minor changes would reduce his surplus by about 10,000*l.* With regard to the reduction of more important taxes, he said that he did not propose to deal with the malt tax in any way, because the abolition of that tax, so long as many other taxes remained unrepealed, would be to confer a boon on England at the expense of Ireland and Scotland. He proposed however to reduce the duties on sugars by about 5*s.* per cwt. on the higher classes, and by about 2*s.* per cwt. on the lowest; to take off one penny in the pound from the income-tax; and to reduce by one half the fire insurance duty on stock in trade. These reductions would absorb 2,332,000*l.*, leaving a margin of 238,000*l.*, which he did not think it prudent to reduce further. After a short discussion on the leading features of the Budget, which was received favourably by the House, the first resolution altering the duty on corn and lentils was agreed to, and the CHAIRMAN was ordered to report progress.

A telegraphic despatch from Düppel states that the Prussians, having failed to reduce that fortress by bombardment, have shelled the town of Sonderborg for three days without notice, destroying nearly a third of the town by fire, and killing and wounding about 80 men, women, and children, who were unable to escape. The town is now deserted, but the Danish position at Düppel, in spite of the continuance of the bombardment, is still uninjured.

The Norwegian Storthing was closed on Saturday. The KING in his speech said that Sweden and Norway will endeavour to obtain peace, but must be prepared to render assistance to Denmark against overpowering force.

The latest news from the United States informs us that the Confederates are making extensive preparations for a combined invasion of Kentucky from various points. General LEE was reported to have broken up his encampment on the Rapidan, and to be moving on the Shenandoah Valley, for the purpose, it was supposed, of making an early attack on the army of the Potomac. The New York District Court, after ordering the restoration of the Saxon and her cargo to her owners, have recommended that Lieut. DONOVAN who shot Mr. GREY, the mate, at the Cape of Good Hope, should be tried by court-martial for the murder.

Home News.

THE COURT.—The Queen and Royal family continue at Windsor. In the afternoon of Thursday, the 31st, her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove to Cliveden, and honoured the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland with a visit. On Friday morning the Queen drove out, accompanied by Princess Helena. On Saturday morning the Queen walked and drove in the grounds. The Bishop of Worcester and Sir Charles and Lady Mary Wood arrived at the Castle on a visit. In the evening the Princess Helena came to London, and attended the performance at Covent Garden Theatre. On Sunday morning the Queen, the King of the Belgians, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel. The Bishop of Worcester preached the sermon. On Monday morning the Bishop of Worcester and Sir Charles and Lady Mary Wood left the Castle. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds. Princess Augusta of Saxe-Coburg, the Princess Clotilde, Princess Amélie, and Prince Ferdinand, arrived at the Castle on a visit to the Queen. Professor Owen had the honour of delivering his third lecture before her Majesty, the King of the Belgians, and the Royal family. In the afternoon Earl Russell had an audience of the Queen. On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Augusta of Saxe-Coburg, drove out. The Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, and Princess Clotilde and Princess Amélie of Saxe-Coburg, accompanied her Majesty in a second carriage. Earl Granville arrived at the Castle on a visit. In the evening the Queen had a dinner party. On Wednesday the King of the Belgians left the Castle for Buckingham Palace. Princess Augusta of Saxe Coburg, Princess Clotilde, Princess Amélie, and Prince Ferdinand, left the Castle for Claremont. Prince Arthur arrived from Greenwich Park. On Thursday, being the 11th birthday of Prince Leopold, the event was celebrated with the customary honours. In the morning the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds. In the afternoon the Queen held a Privy Council. Previously to the Council the Bishop of Ely was introduced to her Majesty by Sir George Grey, and did homage on his appointment. The Earl of Clarendon had an audience and took the oaths on being appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. The Right Hon. Edward Cardwell received the Seals of the Colonial Office and took the usual oaths. Mr. Chichester Fortescue was introduced and took the oaths on being appointed a Privy Councillor.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES continue at Sandringham. On Saturday morning the Prince walked over the estate, and in the afternoon the Prince and Princess rode on horseback. On Sunday morning their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service at Sandringham Church. The Rev. G. B. Moxon, rector, officiated and preached. On Monday morning the Prince went out shooting on the Wolferton part of the estate, and in the afternoon went out coursing on the Hall Farm. In the afternoon the Princess rode on horseback. On Tuesday their Royal Highnesses walked over the grounds. It is said that his Royal Highness will probably hunt a day or two with the West Norfolk, as, though the regular season has terminated, some bye days are talked of. The Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge has received an official intimation that the Prince and Princess will visit the University of Cambridge in the week ending the 18th of June.

PRINCE ALFRED on Friday paid a visit to Lord Belhaven, at Wishaw House. On Saturday his Royal Highness visited Hamilton Palace, Bothwell Castle, and Blantyre Priory, and returned to Wishaw in the evening. On Sunday the Prince, accompanied by Lord and Lady Belhaven, attended Divine service in the parish church. On Monday morning his Royal Highness returned to Edinburgh. On Wednesday afternoon the Prince rode to Newbattle Abbey, and took luncheon with the Marquis of Lothian.

THE QUEEN'S COURT.—On Tuesday the Queen postponed the Court appointed to be held at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday last until to-day (Saturday) at 3 o'clock.

THE CABINET.—A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday afternoon at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury in Downing Street.

MINISTERIAL CHANGES.—The Duke of Newcastle has been compelled by increasing ill-health to resign the seals of the Colonial Department. Mr. Cardwell has succeeded his Grace as Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the Earl of Clarendon has succeeded Mr. Cardwell as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

PARLIAMENTARY MOVEMENTS.—The appointment of Mr. Cardwell to the Secretaryship for the Colonies, has caused a vacancy for Oxford. It is expected that Mr. Cardwell will be re-elected without opposition. Mr. Garnett has resigned his seat for Lancaster. It is rumoured that Mr. Somerville Head will retire before the nomination, and leave the electors to choose between Mr. Fenwick and Mr. Saunders. There are three candidates for Fifeshire, Sir Robert Anstruther and Mr. Boyd Kinnear, Jun., in the Liberal interest, and Mr. Anstruther Thomson in the Conservative interest. It is announced that the Hon. Thomas Bruce, brother to Lord Elgin, will become a candidate for Portsmouth in the Conservative interest. The Liberal electors of Finsbury have invited Mr. Donald Nicoll, late sheriff of London and Middlesex, to offer himself as a candidate for that borough. Mr. Motteram and Mr. Huddleston, Q.C., both of the Oxford Circuit, intending offering themselves in the Conservative interest for Stafford.

THE BISHOPRIC OF TASMANIA.—One of the last acts of the Duke of Newcastle, as Secretary of the Colonies, was to offer the vacant see to the Rev. C. H. Bromby, Incumbent of St. Paul's and Principal of the Normal College, Cheltenham. Mr. Bromby belongs to the moderate party in the Church.

THE CHANNEL SQUADRON.—Oorders have been sent to Rear-Admiral Dacres to complete his squadron for sea forthwith.

Foreign.

FRANCE.—The Corps Législatif sat on Monday, when an Imperial decree was read prolonging the sittings until the 4th May. The report upon the Budget was brought in and ordered to be printed. La France of Monday states that all the Powers interested have agreed to take part in the London Conference on the Dano-German question, with the exception of the Germanic Diet. The first meeting of the Conference remains fixed for the 12th of April, but it is still uncertain whether the Germanic Diet will have appointed its Plenipotentiary by that date. The following note on the subject has been addressed by M. Drouyn de Lhuys to Prince La Tour d'Auvergne, the French Ambassador in London:—

"Paris, March 20.

"PRINCE,—The Britannic Government is taking new steps at this moment to bring about the meeting of a Conference, and the belligerents do not appear as much opposed as previously to the opening of negotiations. You are aware that we have no objection to take part therein if they are accepted by all the other Courts, and I conveyed the intentions of the Emperor's Government upon this subject to you in my despatch of the 14th of this month. But before taking our seat at the Conference, I wish you to acquaint the Cabinet of London with the ideas and sentiments we should bring with us. This perfectly friendly communication will, perhaps, explain better than we have hitherto had occasion to do the line of conduct followed by the Imperial Government in the Dano-German difference. It will also contribute, I hope, to put an end to the suppositions of ulterior objects, which have been so gratuitously attributed to us. In associating ourselves with the effort at pacification, we shall find that we are in presence of two chief interests. Upon the one hand we have to take into account stipulations concluded with a view to the European balance of power, and furnished with the signature of France; upon the other, it is impossible to misconceive the sentiments of repulsion which have arisen against the work of the Plenipotentiaries of 1852. We are far from disputing the wisdom of the combination which the Treaty of London was intended to place under the safeguard of the public law of Europe, and if, apart from the opposition of Germany and the manifestations of the Duchies, we were free to obey the inspiration of our traditional sympathies for Denmark alone, all our efforts would be devoted to upholding this agreement. But it is impossible for us not to recognise the obstacles which are opposed to the exact and precise execution of the Treaty of 1852. If in the eyes of some Powers the Treaty of London possesses a separate existence and a peculiar authority, independently of the engagements concluded at the same period between Germany and Denmark, in the opinion of others, upon the contrary, it is subordinated to those engagements, and cannot be separated from them. Among the German States some have refused their adhesion, or have only given it in a restricted form; others, after having formerly adhered to it, now declare themselves free. Finally, the Germanic Confederation appears to dispute the value of an act in which it has not concurred. In presence of this diversity of opinions, which will give rise to insurmountable difficulties, it appears to me indispensable to examine the interests concerned in the existing war, without pre-occupying ourselves exclusively with the letter of the treaty. The cause as well as the distinctive character of this struggle is evidently the rivalry of the populations which compose the Danish monarchy. A national sentiment exists among each, the force of which cannot be placed in doubt. What then would be more natural, in default of a course unanimously accepted, than to take as a basis the wish of the populations? This method, conformable to the veritable interests of two parties, appears to us the best fitted to bring about an equitable arrangement and as offering guarantees of stability. In asking the application of a fundamental principle of our public law, and in claiming the advantages of this principle for Denmark as for Germany, we believe we propose the most just and facile solution of this question, which excites such lively uneasiness throughout the whole of Europe. Accept the assurances, &c.

"DROUYN DE LHUYS."

La France of Thursday evening says, that in consequence of the explanations contained in M. Drouyn de Lhuys's despatch, the British Cabinet is evidently more inclined towards the views of France, and think the labours of the Conference will be facilitated by the understanding which appears to exist between the two Western Powers. The Pays says that France would only ask that the inhabitants of the Duchies should declare themselves relative to the government they wish to have in the event of the greater part of the Powers abandoning the basis of the treaties of 1851. La France of Monday evening believes itself able to state that the Courts of London, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Spain, and France have agreed to recognise the Emperor of Mexico so soon as his accession shall have been notified to them. In another article on Wednesday, it says that it has reason to believe that the existing difficulties respecting the acceptance of the Mexican Crown will be solved by a compromise between the Emperor of Austria and the Archduke Maximilian, and that the latter will very shortly proceed to Mexico. The subscription for the new Mexican loan of 200,000,000f. will be opened on the 15th or 16th of April, and will be issued simultaneously at London, Paris, Frankfort, Brussels, and Amsterdam. Prince Napoleon arrived at Antwerp on Saturday evening in his yacht the Prince Jérome. His Imperial Highness, who is stated to be on a scientific trip to Holland, travelled incognito under the title of Count de Meudon, and, accordingly, no public reception awaited him. On Sunday morning the Prince landed and visited the museums, zoological gardens, and other places, and then proceeded to Holland by railway. His yacht will remain at Antwerp until he returns. The report that he will go to Sweden is contradicted. The Bishop of Oxford has arrived in Paris, and will proceed thence in a few days to Brussels and Antwerp to take some confirmations for the Bishop of London. Mr. Pope Hennessy, M.P., had an audience of the Emperor Napoleon on Monday, and another on Tuesday. The Emperor and Empress gave a ball at the Tuileries on Tuesday night, which was attended by the English Ambassador, the Bishop of Oxford, the Duchess of Somerset, Lord H. Lennox, Mr. S. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Pope Hennessy. The Emperor had a long conference with the English Ambassador, and the resignation of Mr. Stansfeld, being known by telegraph, was the general topic of conversation. In consequence of the alarming accounts of the Pope's health, the French Government is said to have sent instructions to the French Ambassador at Rome to concert with the General commanding the army of occupation as to the precautions to be adopted in case of the death of his Holiness. It is believed that that event would be the signal of a rising in Rome, or at least of an attempt to create disturbances; and both the Ambassador and General are enjoined to maintain, at all hazard, the tranquillity of the city while the Conclave are choosing the new Pope. The Moniteur of Tuesday says:—

"La France is badly informed in stating that the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo was celebrated in England last year. For several years past this anniversary has not been kept in England."

SPAIN.—The Government will shortly ask the Cortes for the necessary credits to purchase 100,000 rifles and other war material. The news of an intended meeting of the Democrats in Madrid has been denied by the Democratic party. All the Madrid journals except four support the policy of the Government.

PORTUGAL.—The Cortes have been prorogued until the 14th of May. The King is said to be desirous of asking the Cortes to pass a bill allowing him to travel in France and Italy. The proposed tour, however, is very unpopular, and the Ministry are doing their best to dissuade the King from his intentions. The Ministerial bill for the abolition of the tobacco contract, which recently passed the Chamber of Deputies by a majority of 23 votes, is expected to meet with great opposition in the House of Peers. Two Austrian frigates and a gunboat have sailed from the Tagus for the Baltic.

CAPE DE VERDES.—Accounts from the Cape Verde Islands describe the population as being decimated by famine. In the island of St. Jago the inhabitants are actually dying daily in numbers in the streets of starvation. Great exertions have been made in Rio Janeiro and Lisbon in behalf of the sufferers, but unless further assistance be given, thousands of the islanders must inevitably perish. The cause of the famine is the failure of the rains in the sowing season, and the consequent loss of the crops of Indian corn and beans, which are the staple articles of subsistence in the islands.

GIBRALTAR.—The Epoca of Madrid of Thursday says that a number of Mazzinians have left the principal towns of Italy to excite revolutions in Spain and Portugal. Their rendezvous is Gibraltar.

SWEDEN.—The Storthing was closed on Friday. The King in his speech said that Sweden, jointly with other Powers, would endeavour to obtain peace; but that she must, at the same time, be prepared to render assistance to Denmark against overpowering force.

DENMARK.—The official journals announce that Denmark has now officially notified her acceptance of the Conference without armistice and without basis. M. Bille, the Danish Minister in London, M. de Quaade, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Councillor Krieger, of the High Court, have been appointed Plenipotentiaries at the Conference. The two latter left Copenhagen for London on Thursday. The portfolio for Foreign Affairs, during the absence of M. de Quaade, will be assumed by Bishop Monrad, the President of the Council.

THE DANISH DUCHIES.—A terrific cannonade was opened on Saturday at 3 P.M. between the Düppel batteries and the Prussian advanced batteries at Broager, which commenced bombarding Sonderborg without giving warning to the inhabitants. The cannonade continued at half-past 11 at night. On Sunday afternoon the Prussians opened another terrific cannonade from various points in front of the Düppel bastions. Sonderborg was shelled from Broagerland, and was set on fire in several places. The cannonade and bombardment continued till a late hour, and the Danish outposts on the right of the Düppel position were attacked several times during the night. Eighty townspeople, women and children, were killed or wounded by the bombardment; 50 houses in the centre of Sonderborg were burnt, and 1500 shells were thrown into the town, which is deserted. The bombardment lasted 48 hours, but suddenly ceased on Monday morning. It was however recommenced in the afternoon. The Düppel works however sustained no injury whatever, and on Tuesday the bombardment again ceased. During the night several divisions of the 4th Regiment of the Guards drove in the Danish outposts, and took up a position 250 paces beyond the first parallel, when an infantry engagement ensued. In this engagement 16 of the Prussian infantry and two pioneers were wounded, but none were killed. 28 Danes were captured. At daybreak on Wednesday the Danish troops re-occupied their former position. During the night the Prussians extended the parallel already commenced. On Wednesday afternoon Sonderborg was again bombarded. The results were inconsiderable. The firing from the Prussian batteries, and also from the Düppel entrenchments, was very severe. The Prussians have erected batteries in Stegswig for the purpose of bombarding men-of-war and a pontoon train has been seen near Ballesgaard. It is said that the Austro-Prussian troops intend to turn the position of Düppel by crossing over to the Island of Alsen very shortly, by means of Austrian pontoons. Everything is said to be prepared for an important action. The Hamburger Nachrichten announces that 6000 Danes have beaten the Prussians near Veile, in the positions lately abandoned by the Austrians. An official telegram from Count Rechberg to the Austrian Ambassador in London contradicts the report from Jutland that the siege of Fredericia was raised because the Hungarian and Venetian troops under General Gablenz, officers as well as men, had agreed to pass over to the Danes. The Chief President, Roosen, and the whole municipality of Flensburg have been dismissed. An extraordinary war tax has been imposed on the town of Flensburg, and will most likely also be levied upon some other places in Schleswig. The Assembly of the Deputies to the Schleswig-Holstein Estates was held on Tuesday. A protest was signed against any decision of the Powers impairing the rights of the Duchies. Three members were ordered to transmit this protest to the Federal Diet, and to the European Powers. An assembly of Holstein clergymen took place at Neumünster on Thursday, consisting of 60 members. The assembly assented without reserve to the resolutions adopted by the Holstein Estates. The municipality and the College of Deputies at Kiel have summoned the other communal representatives of Holstein to assemble at Neumünster, to pass common resolutions in reference to the condition of the country. The Holstein Government, in a circular to the police authorities, has enjoined a strict surveillance of the traffic with Denmark.

HANOVER.—The Minister of Finance has published a notification announcing that the Austrian squadron for the protection of the German merchantmen has received orders to extend its operations to the North Sea.

FRANKFORT.—If the Diet accepts the invitation to the Conference, it is believed that Baron von Bensc or Herr von der Pfordten will represent it. A disagreement exists between Prussia and Austria relative to the representation of the Federal Diet at the Conference. Prussia, it is affirmed, wishes to be furnished by the Diet with full powers, while Austria supports the choice of a representative from among the minor States. It is believed that the Diet will support the Austrian suggestion. Another despatch says that Austria and Prussia have addressed circular despatches to the States of the German Confederation, which are identical in their essential points. These communications request the German Governments to use their influence for the despatch to the Conference of a common representative for all the minor States. An independent representation of the Diet at the Conference is most important, and does not prejudice the question of the Duchies, since the Conference is to be held without any bases being previously fixed, and since there has been no question of the decision of the majority being conclusive.

Prussia.—The semi-official Nord-Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung of Wednesday says:—

"The alleged identical circular Note of Prussia and Austria, published by the Vienna Presse of the 2d inst., said to be addressed to the German Federal States on the subject of the Conference, is in form and contents a complete invention."

The same journal recommends that the question whether they will be German or Danish should be submitted to the Duchies.

Austria.—The semi-official Wiener Abendpost of Tuesday says:—

"The allied Powers will demand at the Conference ample security for the complete independence of the Duchies, as well as for an unconditional equality with the remainder of Denmark. They will further demand the political union of Schleswig and Holstein with Germany, by which they are permanently to be protected."

The Emperor and the Archduke Maximilian have not yet come to an understanding, difficulties having arisen at the last moment touching the Archduke's definitive acceptance of the conditions relative to his eventual rights of succession to the Austrian throne. The Archduke consented to renounce his rights, but the Archduchess Charlotte is said to have offered serious objections to that step. Fresh negotiations have consequently commenced. The journey of the Archduchess to Vienna is said to have some reference to this circumstance. The French papers however assert that the Archduke will receive the Mexican deputation to-day, and will leave for Mexico to-morrow. The Archduchess Hildegarde, daughter of King Louis I. of Bavaria, and consort of the Archduke Albert, died last week in Vienna in her 38th year, after a few days' illness.

The Tyrol.—Precautionary measures continue to be taken in Southern Tyrol. The fortified places, especially Kufstein, are receiving strong garrisons. The mountain defiles and gorges are carefully watched.

Transylvania.—Accounts from the Rouman frontier give reason to apprehend a rising in that quarter. The military governor of Transylvania, in accordance with orders from Vienna, is taking precautions to protect the provinces against any coup de main. Strong bodies of troops are concentrating on the Wallachian frontier.

Venetia.—The German papers state that Austria appears decided to place Venetia in a state of siege.

Italy.—Advices from Rome confirm the apprehensions entertained concerning the health of the Pope, and state that there can, unfortunately, be no doubt that the illness of his Highness must be regarded with serious alarm by the whole Catholic world. On Monday, in spite of his illness, the Pope went to the Church of Santa Maria Sopra Minerva, and assisted in the religious ceremonies performed at the Feast of the Annunciation. His Holiness was enthusiastically received by the people, who thronged the streets through which he passed. A Pontifical rescript has been published, authorising a loan of 40,000,000 lire to defray the expenses of the public administration. Accounts from Turin state that the sum of money seized by order of the Turin tribunal at Lemmi's, and alleged to be the proceeds of a subscription towards a fund for an association objected to by the Government, has been restored to Garibaldi's bankers, it having been proved that the money in question had no connexion with that fund.

Ionian Islands.—The first number of a revolutionary journal has appeared at Corfu. The inhabitants have attacked the house of the English director of public schools. Fears are entertained lest fresh disorders should take place. King George is expected at Corfu to open the Ionian Chamber in person.

Poland.—The National Government has published a proclamation relative to the late Imperial ukases, in which it recommends the peasants not to pay the Russian authorities for the acquisition of land, which they have possessed for a year past by virtue of the decree of the National Government. This decree maintained the indemnification of the landed proprietors by the State.

Danubian Principalities.—It is said that the movements of the Austrian, Russian, and Turkish troops on the frontier continue on a large scale. It is asserted that a corps of 60,000 Turks has been concentrated between Shumla and Widdin. In presence of these demonstrations, Prince Couza has ordered Colonel Douka to send 300 Poles, who were to have joined the insurrection, into the interior of the country.

Cape of Good Hope.—Accounts from the Cape to the 20th Feb. state that the Governor, Sir Philip Wodehouse, was at Graham's Town; his progress through the Eastern Provinces had been very successful, and great enthusiasm prevailed in the various towns through which he passed. Admiral Sir Baldwin Walker was expected to leave for England about May. The Ariel sailed January 25 for the Zambesi, to bring down Dr. Livingstone and the mission party, all of whom were alive and well at Murchison Falls. The mission party intended to return to England. Bishop Tozer and one of his clergymen, however, intended to visit the Governor of Mozambique.

India.—The British Government has applied to the Indian for as much of its garrison strength as can be spared, to the extent of six regiments. The Indian Government has determined that only two regiments can be spared. It is finally decided that the Maharajah of Mysore is not to get the administration of his country back again. The decision has been communicated to him. Men are being enlisted in Calcutta for the American navy. Disturbances are reported in the Nizam's territories; particulars not received. Rumours are rife of an intended attack of the Hindostanees in Bhowanee, Shekhawattee territory. The Nawab of Rampoor has resigned his seat in the Imperial Council, on the plea of ill-health. The Chevalier Romolo Bonhomme, Envoy of the King of Italy, with two other Italian gentlemen, has arrived in Bombay en route to Bokhara to effect the liberation of three Italian subjects imprisoned in that city by the Ameer. The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, with Colonel Maclogan and Professor Oldham, has gone to Pind Dadun Khan to investigate the quality and quantity of the coal recently discovered in the Salt Range. The Rajah of Muneepoor has signally punished the murderers of the French planter in the forests of Muneepoor. He attacked their village, killed 50 men, and burned down the village. It has been discovered that those who sent from Patna men and money to aid the frontier war were the sect of the Wahabees, whose chief seat is Patna, where they have a large Kafila. The Guicowar, on his return from Bombay to Baroda, lost his wife, and from 600 to 700 of his followers, by cholera. The capital of the Bank of Bengal is to be doubled.

China.—A despatch from Shanghai, of Feb. 23, states that Major Gordon has returned to active service.

Australia.—The Parliament of Victoria was opened on the 26th of January, when the Chief Secretary laid on the table the despatch of the Duke of Newcastle, stating that there was no intention of sending convicts to any part of Australia, excepting only that colony situate at a great distance from all the others to which convicts have already been sent for several years past. The Post Office revenue was said to be deficient for the year of 35,000*l.*, and it was stated the reduction of the postal rate to 2*d.* would occasion a further loss of 26,000*l.*, and that to frank newspapers to Great Britain would cost the colony 12,000*l.* per annum. At Adelaide orders had been received to stop any further enrolment of Volunteers for New Zealand; 40 men had previously enlisted.

New Zealand.—The war in New Zealand is still proceeding. The natives have concentrated at Pikopiko, where they are surrounded by General Cameron's forces. The General is said to intend compelling their surrender by starvation.

United States.—General Grant officially assumed the command of the Federal armies on the 18th ult., and has since passed through Philadelphia, en route for Washington and the Army of the Potomac. It is asserted that he will immediately advance upon Richmond. The Confederates are apparently about to assume the offensive, and it is reported that they are preparing for a combined invasion of Kentucky from various points. General Lee is said to have broken up his encampment on the Rapidan, and to be moving in the direction of the Shenandoah Valley, with the intention of attacking the army of the Potomac. Stuart is reported as concentrating his cavalry at Fredericksburg and Charlottesville, preparatory to making a raid. Longstreet's forces are reported to be concentrated at Bull's Gap for a raid in Kentucky; while other accounts represent him moving to join Lee. General Beauregard has been appointed to the command of the Army of the South-West, and is succeeded by General D. H. Hill at Charleston. Advices from that city to the 19th ult. state that the Confederates have mounted six rifled guns in casemates on Fort Sumter, bearing on the channel, and they have completed another ironclad in the harbour. The New York Tribune asserts that an attack on Norfolk by land and with iron-clads from Richmond is expected. Admiral Porter, with a large fleet of gunboats and transports, left Vicksburg on the 12th ult. for operations on Red River. The Confederates have returned Colonel Dahlgren's body to his father. According to a statement just issued by the Provost-Marshal-General at Washington, the total deficiency of troops in all the States under the several calls of the President is 311,724. Illinois is the only State which has completed its quota; New York is deficient by 59,230, and Pennsylvania by 74,127. The decree of the Court which ordered the restoration of the Saxon and cargo to her owners also recommended that Lieut. Donovan, who shot Mr. Grey, should be tried by court-martial for the murder. The questions of compensation to the widow and to the owners of the vessel have been reserved. Mr. Beecher has publicly declared that slavery is not dead; that the proclamations of the President cannot kill it; and that the only means of abolishing it is by a revision and amendment of the Constitution. He has also declared that the Southern people fight better in a bad cause than the Northern in a good one. The British war steamer Styx has returned to Halifax, stating that during her cruise she spoke the British ship Howard, which reported having seen on the 10th ult., in lat. 49, long. 60 west, a vessel answering the description of the Ré Galantuomo, steering a south-easterly course, but making no signal of distress. It is therefore hoped that she is safe.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Tuesday.—Metropolitan Railways.—The Earl of Derby presented a petition from the parish of St. George, Southwark, complaining of the inconvenience and hardships caused by the destruction of dwelling-houses, the sites of which had been required by railroad works. He called the attention of the Government to the state of things thus produced, and suggested that a clause should be inserted in all the Metropolitan Railroad Bills compelling the companies to run two trains in and out of London, morning and evening, to convey the working population to and from their place of labour, at the rate of 1*s.* per week for each person for any distance not exceeding 10 miles.—Earl Granville thought the suggestion a good one, which should receive the consideration of the Government. Federal Enlistments.—The Earl of Donoughmore referred to the enlistment of British sailors on board the Federal cruiser Kearsage, and described some of the facts of the case as inconsistent with the statement given by the commander of the ship.—Earl Russell said that since the matter was last mentioned in the House he had directed the attention of Mr. Adams, the American Minister, to the subject, and in reply that gentleman had informed him that in November last he received instructions from his Government to dismiss at once any officer in the service of the United States who was instrumental in violating the Foreign Enlistment Act. He also said that he would refer the case of the Kearsage to the authorities at Washington; but he did not himself think that either the American consul or the captain of the Kearsage was to blame.—The Earl of Derby said that it had been incontestably proved that the men were examined on board the Kearsage, and attested and clothed in the Federal States uniform. It was impossible, therefore, that the officers of that vessel could have been ignorant of those facts.—The Marquis of Clanricarde said that the Kearsage was now repairing in one of her Majesty's dockyards, and he thought it was not right to extend such courtesy to her after all that had taken place.—The Leases and Sales of Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill was, on the motion of the Earl of Malmesbury, read a second time. The Court of Chancery (Despatch of Business) Bill and the Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill passed through Committee. The Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes (Ireland) Bill was read a third time and passed.—The Marquis of Clanricarde, in moving for correspondence relating to the Removal of British Consuls from the Confederate States, described and defended the proceedings for which these officers had been dismissed. The Consuls were accredited to the Federal Government, and the charge against them, in one case, was forwarding, under an official certificate, letters to the Northern States containing bills of exchange for the payment of debts due in England; in another, that the Consul had been instrumental in shipping specie on board an English vessel of war, for transmission to England, to pay the dividends on a public debt. He contended that these acts were not illegal, as the state of war did not cancel private or public obligations.—Earl Russell admitted that in the case of Mr. Bunch his exequatur had been unjustly taken from him by the Federal Government; but in the case of Mr. Magee it was considered, as English ships of war had been permitted to enter the blockaded ports, it was an abuse of that permission to employ those vessels for the transmission of specie that might be used to obtain the means of carrying on hostilities. In a third case the Consul had advised men who had been compelled to serve in the Southern army to desert on the field of battle. Had any complaint of such language been made by the Confederate Government he should certainly have reprimanded, and probably dismissed, the Consul who had used it. But without making any such complaint, the President of the Confederacy informed these officers they could no longer be allowed to exercise their functions. As the interests of British subjects could not be adequately protected when they had no authority to apply to, he should not think it wrong to establish a means of communication with the Government of the Southern States, as that might be done without acknowledging their independence. He had no objection to the motion if the words were so altered as to prevent any misunderstanding on this point. The motion as amended was agreed to.

Thursday.—Bombardment of Sonderburg.—The Earl of Shaftesbury read the recent telegrams from Sonderburg, announcing the bombardment of that town by the Prussian artillery. If the details were correct, he thought it one of the most cruel acts recorded in the history of civilized or uncivilized warfare. An undefended place had been bombarded without notice for 48 hours, and 80 women and children were said to have been killed. He asked, should the account be confirmed, what steps the Government would take in the matter. He hoped the British fleet would be sent into the Baltic to prevent the recurrence of such cowardly atrocities.—Earl Russell said he had telegraphed to Sir A. Buchanan for further intelligence of the bombardment, and as all the details must be known in a few days, he deferred expressing any opinion till more complete information had been received.—Earl Grey asked whether Lord Russell would have the same objections to a discussion of the Danish and German question, of which notice had been given for Monday next, as he had expressed on a former occasion.—Earl Russell said those objections no longer existed, but it would be for the House to consider whether such a discussion at the present time would be of any public advantage. The Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill was read a second time. The Malt for Animals Bill, and the Conveyancers (Ireland) Bill were read a third time and passed.

Friday.—The Settled Estates Act Amendment Bill passed through committee. The Court of Chancery Despatch of Business Bill, as amended, was read a third time and passed.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Monday.—The Conference.—In reply to questions by Mr. Osborne, Lord Palmerston said that all the Powers that had signed the Treaty of 1852 had consented to send representatives to the Conference; that no answer had been received from the Germanic Diet; that the basis of the Conference would be an endeavour to restore peace; and that no armistice would take place. Mr. Stansfeld's Resignation.—Mr. STANSFELD, in announcing to the House that he had felt it to be his duty to send in his resignation of the office he had held, stated the reasons which had led him to take this step. He had become convinced, he said, from what he had seen, heard, and read, that he would be a source of difficulty and a cause of embarrassment to the Government while he continued to be a member of it, and, after the renewal of the attack made upon him, he preferred to meet it not upon the Treasury bench, under the ægis of Lord Palmerston. He proceeded to explain the nature of his connexion with M. Mazzini, denying in the most positive terms the truth of the charges which had been insinuated against him, disclaiming all knowledge of Greco or Tibaldi, and insisting that there was nothing in the extracts of the letters produced by the Procureur-General which criminated or compromised him. In conclusion, he submitted that the explanation he had made must be satisfactory to the House; but adding that he was ready to give any further explanations that might be required. —Lord PALMERSTON said he was convinced that the motives which had induced Mr. Stansfeld to take the course he had adopted were highly honourable to him, but he must express his own great regret and that of his colleagues at having lost the official assistance of a gentleman of great ability, whose untiring industry and unswerving integrity had made him a most valuable member of the Government. With regard to the insinuations and aspersions referred to, he repudiated them with disdain, being perfectly convinced that they were as abhorrent to the feelings and character of Mr. Stansfeld as to those of any member of that House. — On the order for going into a Committee of Supply, Mr. R. LONG moved, as an amendment, the appointment of a Select Committee on the Post Office, with an especial view to the improvement of existing arrangements for the transmission of mails in the provincial districts. The motion was seconded by Mr. G. CLIVE, and supported by several members.—Mr. PEEL, after stating the rules observed by the Post Office in relation to the acceleration of mails, observed that he was far from saying that there was not room for improvement; but this was the province of the Post Office department, which had facilities for obtaining local knowledge, and he should not be justified in agreeing to the motion.—After some further discussion, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER suggested that, as the Post Office department was not represented in that House, the motion was premature until the Treasury (according to the general principle observed by the House) had had an opportunity of examining the subject in conjunction with the Post Office. The motion was then negatived without a division, and the House resumed in Committee of Supply the consideration of the Navy Estimates. On the vote for 1,164,100*l.* for naval stores for the building, repair, and outfit of the fleet, steam machinery, and ships built by contract, a desultory debate ensued, in the course of which Lord C. PAGET, in reply to an invitation from Mr. BENTINCK to explain what was the policy of the Government with reference to the future of the navy of England, explained that their intention was to continue building armour plated ships, and to forego the building of large wooden ships. The propriety of building ships in private yards as compared with the Government establishments was subsequently brought under notice; and Mr. LAIRD expressed his opinion that the building of ships by contract had never been fairly tested, inasmuch as the plans for the ships ordered to be constructed for the Admiralty were made by the Comptroller of the Navy and his assistants, whose hands were so bound that no opportunity was afforded them for the exercise of their talent or experience. In his opinion it would be better to abandon contracts altogether than to tie up the hands of contractors as at present. The vote was ultimately agreed to, as were the following:—662,212*l.* for naval stores in the department of the Comptroller of the Navy; 64,350*l.* for medicines and medical stores; 102,320*l.* for miscellaneous services; 697,790*l.* for half-pay, reserved half-pay, and retired pay of the navy and Royal Marines; 490,201*l.* for military pensions and allowances; 193,983*l.* for civil pensions and allowances; and 314,320*l.* for the conveyance of troops. The resolutions were ordered to be reported. The Union Relief Aid Acts Continuance Bill passed through committee.

TUESDAY.—Lisburn Election Committee.— Mr. ADAIR moved that Mr. Sterling, the member for Perthshire, be excused for not attending the Lisburn Election Committee on account of illness, on the 22d of March. After a long discussion the motion was carried without a division; but the question whether the circumstance of the committee having adjourned to the day after the meeting of the House instead of the day of meeting, as required by the Act of Parliament, destroys the existence of the committee, was left undecided. Rating of Government Buildings.—Alderman SOLOMONS called attention to the exemption from local taxation now claimed on account of property in the occupation of Government departments, and moved that all lands and buildings used and occupied for public purposes should be assessed to local rates, and pay rates accordingly.—Mr. MORRISON seconded the motion.—Mr. F. PEEL, in opposing the motion, explained the principle upon which the Government had hitherto acted, and said they were quite willing to contribute to the rates where the value of their property exceeded one-seventh of the entire value of the property of the parish, and to indemnify any parish from loss in cases where they had acquired new properties which had previously contributed to the local rates.—Mr. S. BOOTH, Mr. W. MARTIN, Sir J. ELPHINSTONE, and Mr. LOCKE supported the motion.—Mr. HANBURY opposed it.—The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER admitted that the present system of assessment might be unsatisfactory, but urged that the consequence of agreeing to the motion would be that in parishes where one half of the property had for 200 years belonged to the Government, the whole of the rest of the property would be relieved from a charge which it had borne for a period practically immemorial, an operation tantamount to the endowment of the ratepayers of that particular parish out of the national exchequer. It was, in short, a proposal to throw upon the rural parishes and those places which did not possess Government establishments a new and gratuitous burden for the purpose of affording a gratuitous relief, not founded upon justice, to the few parishes that happened to have such establishments. —Sir F. BARING opposed the motion.—After some remarks by Mr. DUTTON, Mr. B. CARTER, and Mr. ANGERSTEIN, the House divided, when the motion was negatived by 52 to 30. The select committee on Turnpike Trusts was appointed. The report of the Committee of Supply was brought up and agreed to.

WEDNESDAY.—The Copyright Bill was withdrawn by Mr. BLACK, who obtained leave to bring in a Bill in its stead to consolidate and amend the existing statutes in copyright. The Chain Cables and Anchors Bill passed through committee, with some amendments. — Mr. LOCKE moved the second reading of the Jersey Court Bill, stating that it was founded mainly on the recommendation of the Royal Commissioners of 1846 and 1859.—Sir G. GREY said he had no objection to the principle of the Bill so far as it went to improve the administration of the court by substituting paid judges, and separating the political from the judicial functions of the court. There were, however, some minor points which would require alteration, and he recommended that the further progress of the measure be delayed until the select committee appointed by the States of the Island had reported. The Bill was then read a second time. The Registration of County Voters (Ireland) Bill was read a second time. The Union Aid Acts Continuance Bill was read a third time and passed.—Mr. ADAIR, the chairman of the Lisburn Election Committee, reported that they had met that morning, and had arrived at the conclusion that under the circumstances they were not justified in continuing their proceedings.

THURSDAY.—The Budget.—The House having resolved itself into a Committee of Ways and Means, the CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER in a very full house made the financial statement of the year. Having compared the expenditure and revenue of the last three or four years, and referred to the peculiar circumstances of the country, including the successive bad harvests in Ireland, and the distress in the manufacturing districts of England, he proceeded to observe that the estimated expenditure of the year 1863-64 was 67,479,000*l.*, but that owing to the war in New Zealand, and the payments on account of the extinction of the Scheldt dues, the estimate rose to 68,283,000*l.* The actual expenditure, however, was 67,056,000*l.*, or about one million and a quarter less than the departments were authorised to expend. Last year he estimated the revenue at 68,171,000*l.*, whereas the actual receipt was 70,208,000*l.*, showing a surplus over the estimate of 2,037,000*l.* The taxes reduced or abolished during the last three years amounted to 6,608,000*l.*, while the increase of the revenue was 5,011,000*l.* The present amount of the national debt was 791,574,000*l.*, or about sixteen and a half millions less than during the Crimean war, while the annual charge was reduced to 26,211,000*l.* The trade of the country during the last few years had received an enormous development, the imports and exports now representing one million and a half sterling per diem. The aggregate amount in 1861 was 377,000,000*l.*; in 1862, 391,000,000*l.*; and in 1863, 444,000,000*l.* These figures, he said, were remarkable as showing the effect of our commercial legislation; but they showed, likewise, that England was becoming more and more the champion of peace and justice in the world. Selecting those years, from 1852, in which Parliament had addressed itself to the liberation of our trade, he showed that its legislation had been immediately followed by striking augmentations of our commerce, its growth keeping pace with liberal measures. He then discussed the effects of our late fiscal legislation upon particular articles, including paper, spirits, wine, tobacco, and tea, and the results of the treaty with France. He was happy to state that although the paper trade was not in a satisfactory state, still the number of manufacturers was not declining, as was the case during the maintenance of the duty, while the public had largely benefited by the fall in the price of the commodity. The spirit duties had not realised as much as had been expected, but he was prepared to prove, if necessary, that the falling off in consumption was not to be traced to smuggling, but rather to the limited means of expenditure possessed by the working classes. Proceeding next to consider the financial prospects for 1864-65, he estimated the total amount of the expenditure at 66,890,000*l.*, and that of the revenue at 69,460,000*l.*, leaving a surplus of 2,570,000*l.* In considering the disposal of this surplus he enumerated a variety of minor changes and modifications which he thought desirable. He proposed to do away with the duty of 1*s.* per quarter on foreign corn, lentils, &c., and to substitute a duty of 8*d.* per cwt., to reduce the license to sell tea in rural places in houses of less value than 10*l.* per annum from 11*s.* 6*d.* to 2*s.* 6*d.*; to reduce the duty on proxy stamps used at joint-stock companies meetings from 6*d.* to 1*d.*; to equalise the duties on ecclesiastical benefices of a certain amount; to reduce the stamp duties on settlements and on powers of attorney for the receipt of dividends; to legalise the practice of marine reassurances on payment of 1*s.* stamp; and to extend to refreshment house keepers the permission to take out occasional licenses in the same manner as publicans were now permitted to do. These alterations would cause a total loss of revenue of 10.000*l.*, reducing the surplus to 2,560,000*l.* In considering the claims made for the application of this surplus in the reduction of taxation, the first claim, he thought, was preferred on behalf of sugar, an article which was next in importance, in an economical point of view, to corn, and the Government proposed to make a considerable reduction in the sugar duties. The question whether there should be a uniform or a classified duty was a very difficult one. At present we had a classified scale of duties, approved by many, and a scandal and offence to others. He was not prepared to say that a classified duty was condemned by experience; it was not condemned by authority. A committee of that House had reported in favour of a system of classified duties. The intricacy of the question had become enormous. On the one hand, a system of classified duties was stigmatized as "protection;" on the other, a uniform duty had been branded with that name. The present duty consisted of four classes, and the Government proposed to adhere to the dividing points as now established, reducing the rates of duty to 12s. 10d., 11s. 8d., 10s. 6d., and 9s. 4d., with a new class for inferior sugars, chargeable with 8s. 2d. The loss of revenue from these reductions, taking credit for increased consumption, he took at 1,330,000*l.*, which would bring down the surplus to 1,240,000*l.* With reference to the malt tax, he did not believe that the loss by its reduction would, as some contended, be repaired by increased consumption, which had not followed the taking off the beer duty, which was practically a reduction of the malt tax. When comparative claims were looked to, comparative grievances should be regarded; and he insisted that the grower of barley had no ground of complaint. Parliament was, moreover, bound to see how the reduction of the malt duty would bear upon the interests of Scotland and Ireland as well as England, and he showed that the giving up of the malt duty would be a boon almost exclusively to England. The Government, therefore, had come to the conclusion that they would betray their duty to the country if they applied any part of the surplus to the reduction of the malt tax. With regard to the income tax, it was beyond dispute, he said, that Parliament ought to consider and decide upon the whole policy of this tax, when it was not desirable to renew from twelvemonth to twelvemonth without reference to the question of policy. After reviewing the history of the tax, and acknowledging the objections inseparable from the ordinary operation of such an impost, the Government proposed, he said, to take a new step in its further reduction by taking off one penny, reducing the tax to 6*d.* in the pound. The immediate loss of revenue caused thereby would be 800,000*l.*, still leaving a surplus of 430,000*l.* Here the Government would fain stop; but, in order to meet what appeared to be the general desire of the House, they were prepared to make an experiment in reference to the fire insurance duty. They proposed, therefore, to reduce the duty on stock in trade from 3*s.* to 1*s.* 6*d.* per cent., to take effect from the 1st of July. The ultimate loss entailed by this experiment would be 192,000*l.*, and the immediate loss 213,000*l.* The result after these deductions and alterations, would be a total financial loss of 2,332,000*l.*, reducing the surplus to 238,000*l.* He believed that if the House would agree to those propositions it would assist still further in extending that wise and beneficent policy which had already done so much to strengthen and secure the country, and promote the happiness and welfare of the people The right hon. gentleman concluded a speech of three hours duration, by placing in the hands of the chairman a resolution to give effect to the alteration proposed with reference to the duty on foreign corn, lentils, &c.—Mr. HUBBARD expressed his regret that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, while admitting the claims of those who urged the reduction of the fire-insurance duty, had not dealt more liberally with that subject.—Mr. WHITESIDE and Lord CLAUD HAMILTON protested against maintenance of the duty on Irish spirits at 10*s.* per gallon, advocated a return to the scale of duties charged in [illegible] Mr. MORRITT announced that, notwithstanding the statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer in reference to the [illegible] tax, he intended to proceed with the motion of which he had given notice condemnatory of that impost.—Mr. [illegible] criticised the Budget in a hostile spirit, and, while [illegible] the general principle of free trade, expressed his [illegible] that the first strong Government that might [illegible] power would reimpose the paper duty. — Mr. [illegible] considered the Budget would give general satisfaction [illegible] the country. He suggested, however, whether it would not be better to reduce the fire insurance by 6*d.* per cent. [illegible] round, than to take off 1*s.* 6*d.* from the duty payable [illegible] in trade only.—After some remarks of Mr. CAVE, Mr. [illegible] FORD, Mr. HENLEY, Mr. BASS, and others, the resolution was agreed to, and the chairman reported progress. On the motion for going into committee of supply on the Army Estimates, Col. SYKES called attention to the employment of British troops in Japan, and inquired whether any provision had been made in the estimates for the charge of certain troops transferred from the Indian establishment for service in China or Japan. Mr. H. BERKELEY called attention to the inferior armament of the Volunteer Artillery, and inquired whether any steps were likely to be taken to arm them in the same manner as the Royal Artillery.—Sir H. VERNEY moved that it was expedient that the recommendations of the committee on the instruction and employment of soldiers and their children in trades be carried into effect, with due regard to the duties and discipline of the army.—The Marquis of HARTINGTON stated, in reply to Colonel Sykes, that the charge for troops in Japan was included in the estimates, that the whole force in that country did not exceed 120 men, and there was no intention to increase it. In answer to Mr. Berkeley, he said that the Volunteer Artillery was chiefly intended for garrison duty, and that provision had been made in the estimate for better guns than those now in use. With regard to the subject which Sir H. Verney had brought under notice, it was proposed to make an experiment in conformity with the report of the committee. The resolution was then withdrawn, as was also the motion for going into Committee of Supply. The remaining business was then disposed of.

FRIDAY.—The Conference.—In answer to a question, Lord PALMERSTON said that the King of Denmark would be represented at the Conference about to be held in London and would, no doubt, have at heart the interests of his subjects. Monastic Establishments.—On the order for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. NEWDEGATE moved for a Select Committee to inquire into the allegations contained in the petition of Mr. Alfred Smee, relative to conventual and monastic establishments in this country, and proceeded to state the circumstances which have occurred in the cemetery of the Oratorians at Sydenham. [Left speaking]
